The Christian Unity Conference — The Queen City's Population.

TORONTO, April 26.—The Christian Unity conference which began Wednesday was concluded yesterday, representatives from the Methodist, Anglican and Presbyterian churches being present. Rev. Dr. McMullen, moderator of the General Assembly, occupied the chair. The committee appointed on Wednesday prescribe these subjects for discussion: (1) Corporate unity, (2) unity in doctrine, worship and mode of action between the three bodies, (3) Holy Scriptures, (4) creeds, (5) one condition of administration of the sacrament, (6) the historic episcopate. The committee also stated: "That in our best judgment the objects of the gathering will be more effectually furthered after disposing of the subject of corporate unity by taking up in the first instance the second topic. The publication of these points of agreement will have the effect of turning the minds of the church to this matter and will have the effect of fostering a desire for unity, also strengthening the faith in the ultimate accomplishment of unity according to the mind of Christ. In the cordial growth of this desire and this faith our hope of a happy ultimate issue can only depend." At the evening session a resolution was passed, trusting that similar conferences may continue to be held from time to time, undertaking to recommend to the several churches the appointment of delegations for that purpose.

An official census of St. Alban's ward (Parkdale) taken yesterday shows the population of the flowery annex to be 8661, which added to the population of the other twelve wards as shown by the census of Dec. 15 makes the total population of Toronto 172,460.

After the hearing of considerable evidence in the cause celebre of Brennan v. Brennan, mention of which was made in this correspondence yesterday, it was arranged out of court that the parties should live apart, that Mrs. Brennan should maintain herself and have the custody of the child; and that she be allowed $3 a week for the maintenance of the child till it is ten years of age, and $4 a week after that.

THE MANITOBA RAILROAD.

Sir George Stephen and Sir Donald Smith Elected Directors.

NEW YORK, April 25.—At a meeting of the Manitoba Railroad directors here today, Sir George Stephen and Sir Donald Smith were elected directors. At the office of the company much secrecy was observed and the names of the retiring directors were refused. It is stated, however, that the $6,000,000 of Manitoba stock, which was bought by interests identified with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy two years ago, has been resold to its original holders. The two new directors were in the Manitoba board when the sale of this stock occurred, but retired to make room for the representatives of the purchasers in August 1887.

Northern Pacific Meeting.

NEW YORK, April 25.—At the special meeting of the Northern Pacific Railway directors to-day the resolution agreeing to the arbitration contract for the control and harmonious operation of the roads in the Pacific Northwest was rescinded. This ends the scheme to obtain a guarantee of the dividend on the Oregon Navigation stock from the Northern Pacific jointly with the Union Pacific, and throws the burden of the lease on the Union Pacific. The proposition to operate the Wisconsin Central on a percentage of earnings was discussed, and three forms of proposed contracts were presented. Only one was read, after which the board adjourned to meet again next Thursday. After the adjournment it was announced that Brayton Ives, one of the most active members of the Northern Pacific board, resigned his office of Vice-President of the Oregon Transcontinental Company, to take effect May 1. This is understood to indicate that the relations of the old Northern Pacific directors with Villard have been severed and it is expected that the representative of the Oregon Transcontinental will withdraw from the Northern Pacific directors.

A CHLOROFORM CASE.

John Dean of Waterford Suing for Damages Because of the Death of His Wife.

HAMILTON, April 25.—At the Assizes today the trial of the chloroform case, Dean v. Rose, was commenced. It is likely to last several days. The facts are briefly as follows: John Dean is a young liveryman, residing at Waterford, a village on the Canada Southern railway, southwest of Brantford. On January 25 last his wife, a young lady about 23 years of age, went to W. J. Chambers, a dentist in the village, to get some teeth pulled. It became necessary for her to take chloroform, and Dr. Rose, the defendant, was called in. Chloroform was administered in the usual way and as a result Mrs. Dean died, despite all efforts to resuscitate her. The plaintiff's counsel tried to show that chloroform was administered by the defendant after another physician had advised her not to take it, but to take a stimulant; that he gave it improperly, and that after she showed signs of death by a livid countenance, etc., they went on giving her the anaesthetic; also that they had not the proper appliances ready to resuscitate her.

Yesterday nineteen tavern and saloon keepers were notified by letter that their licenses would not be renewed.

Said a prominent gentleman to-day: "I have it on excellent authority that the Grand Trunk is going to take over the Niagara Central Railway, and is at present buying timber to be used in constructing the balance of the road from Thorold to the beach."

E. R. Kent died suddenly yesterday afternoon. He was well known in business circles, having started the Burlington Glassworks and the Canada Glasshouse. Deceased was 61 years of age.

NEARING ITS END.

The Maloney-Phillips Case Expected to End in a Committal.

MONTREAL, April 26.—The Phillips-Maloney enquete is finally drawing to a close. The case will probably be argued to-morrow and it is expected will end in a committal to the Court of Queen's Bench. The cards found in Maloney's safe are all so cut at the edges that it appears to be an easy matter to draw whatever card may be required for the game. The missing goods have not yet been found. The enquete was continued this afternoon and formal evidence was heard.

MOLLIE MATCHES CAGED.

A BIG AMERICAN CROOK BEHIND TORONTO PRISON BARS.

Clever Arrest Last Night—John Larney and Joe Dubuque Caught Working Trains at the Depot.

TORONTO, April 27.—John Larney, alias "Mollie Matches," one of the greatest of America's burglars, bank workers and pickpockets, with the little less notorious Joe Dubuque are prisoners at Headquarters, and the chances are that they will only leave the city to join Carson, Ned Rice and one or two other of their chums already doing time in Kingston.

About 7 last evening E. M. Bell, a guest at the Palmer House, reported to the detectives that his pocket had been picked of $140 at the Union Depot at 5.30 when on board the G.T.R. train for the west. Sergeant Reburn at once posted to the depot, rightly surmising that the men who had worked Bell might be still engaged in working the other trains. The G.T.R. 8.20 express for Montreal was the first he boarded, and he was not long in spotting three men whose actions seemed suspicious. They would crowd up as the passengers entered the car and in the squeeze try to extract their wallets.

Reburn kept in the background and allowed the party to leave the car. The three crossed over to the C.P.R. express and were in the midst of their operations when Reburn proceeded to arrest them. He seized hold of one while Policeman Mitchell, who followed his superior officer, succeeded in capturing a second. The third man, who appeared somewhat elderly in his general make up, got away. When the prisoners were brought up to Headquarters they expressed the highest indignation at being arrested. One gave his name as J. Bennett, and the other after much pressing as John J. Danmark.

Inspector Stark and Sergeant Reburn took a good look at Danmark, and the more they looked the more convinced they became that they knew him. It suddenly flashed across them that he was the notorious John Larney, alias Mollie Matches, and a rapid examination of several peculiar marks on his face, hands and right arm convinced them that they were correct. Thus cornered Mollie acknowledged that they were correct, but stoutly denied that he had been concerned in any crooked work in Toronto. His companion proved to be Joe Dubuque, a man who though never convicted is known to be a slick thief of no ordinary capabilities. They were sent to the cells for the night after being searched. No trace of Lee's money was found on either.

Mollie Matches has had an eventful history. He got his nickname from going around when a lad dressed as a girl, selling matches as a blind and picking pockets as a livelihood. He has been concerned in some of the daring robberies of the day, and is now but six months out of Joliet Penitentiary, Ill., where he had been sentenced in 1881 for robbing the Galesburg, Ill., Mechanics' Savings Bank of some $12,000. In appearance, Mollie would pass as a respectable business man.

His age is 60, and he sports a large flowing beard. His dress when on the road is neat, almost to foppery, and he neither drinks nor smokes. He is worth, as the result of his stealings, some $140,000, and he votes in Toronto under the name of Dolan, holding property here worth $35,000.

Dr. C. A. Hodgetts of this city, who was sent to the Parry Sound district to investigate the outbreak of diphtheria, has made his report to the Provincial Board of Health. There have been 153 cases of diphtheria and 57 deaths since September last. The ravages of the disease have now almost wholly abated.

These Ontario appointments have been made: Samuel Mitchell to be a bailiff of the Sixth Division Court of the County of Frontenac.

James Carman Ross of Gananoque, barrister-at-law, to be a notary in and for the Province of Ontario.

EXPORTS AND IMPORTS.

The Anti-Combines Bill Passes its Second Reading in the Senate.

OTTAWA, April 26.—The monthly statement to appear in The Canada Gazette tomorrow shows that the exports from the Dominion in March amounted to $3,767,700, exclusive of coin and bullion, of which latter $1,221,644 was exported.

The imports entered for consumption during the month amounted to $9,746,222, including $67,442 coin and bullion and $2,479,609 free goods, leaving $7,199,171 dutiable goods, on which the duty paid was $2,286,065.

The nine months of the present fiscal year thus compared with the same period of last year:

Value of imports..	$78,044,443	$75,2[illegible]
Duty........................	14,9[illegible]	17,151,[illegible]

The Anti-Combines Bill got its second reading in the Senate to-day without opposition. It will probably be read a third time on Monday.

A FATHER'S AWFUL CRIME.

TERRIBLE TRIPLE TRAGEDY IN MANITOBA.

Farmer McLeod of High Bluff Kills His Two Children With an Axe and Then Cuts His Own Throat.

WINNIPEG, April 26.—A horrible murder and suicide was committed near High Bluff station last night.

A farmer named McLeod, who was last seen about dark us, was found by a neighbor in his house this afternoon with his throat cut.

Two children were discovered in a bedroom off the kitchen: the girl, about 8 years of age, stone dead with a deep cut by an axe inflicted on her head. The boy, about 13, was still living although there were four wounds on the head, but he cannot possibly recover.

The razor with which McLeod ended his own life was found in the cellar, from which place to where he lay were tracks of blood.

Near his body was the bloody axe with which he struck his little ones.

Financial difficulties were doubtless the cause of the crime.

Mrs. McLeod died six years ago.

THE WASHINGTON CENTENNIAL.

New York Talks of Nothing Else—Another Committee Row.

NEW YORK, April 26.—The whole city with another city of strangers is talking of nothing but the coming great celebration. The commonest thing about the city is the portrait of Washington draped in bunting, which adorns the windows of thousands of buildings. Tens of thousands of dollars damage was done to decorations by the storm. Daily numbers of crooks are being arrested and locked up. Mayor Grant has been asked to preside at the banquet on the evening of the 30th. He sent a reply which could not be had. It looks like another row the Centennial committee have gotten themselves into. Secretary Bowen of the centennial committee stated to-day that all the diplomatic corps had accepted the invitation to attend the banquet in their official capacity. Seats of honor near the President have been provided for them.

Birds of Prey Gathering at Gotham.

NEW YORK, April 26.—It is said that the low resorts on Coney Island are crowded with out-of-town thieves and malefactors who are waiting until the centennial opens to swoop down on the city and reap a harvest. The authorities will probably make a raid on them and arrest as many as possible.

Somebody Must be an Awful Liar.

CHICAGO, April 26.—Officials of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad claim that reliable parties on the ground report there is little or no foundation for the rumors that settlers in Oklahoma are suffering for want of supplies. Special attention is being given to this matter by the company and commissaries. Emigrant outfits and other necessaries of life are being hurried forward as promptly as possible.

Why Nowland Shot Jackson.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 26.—Charles Nowland, one of the most prominent contractors of this city, shot Louis Jackson (colored) four times yesterday in the office of the chief of police. Jackson was under police protection on a charge made by Nowland that Jackson carried notes to his daughter from an objectionable suitor. Jackson refused to tell who gave him the notes and Nowland shot him.

The Soo Route.

CHICAGO, April 26.—The central traffic association is stirred up over the announcement that the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road is about to enter the field for the through traffic between Chicago and the Atlantic seaboard. It proposes to open a route in connection with the Milwaukee and Northern, the Canadian Pacific and the Soo.

The Oddfellows at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, April 26.—The Oddfellows' demonstration to-day was highly successful. There were lodges from Deseronto, Napanee, Picton, Trenton, Cobourg, Campbellford, Stirling and Madoc, two local lodges, two encampments and one canton of Patriarchs Militant—in all fourteen organizations and four brass bands. The brethren after parading in procession over a long route attended divine service at Bridge-street Methodist Church, Bro. Rev. D. M. Mihell officiating. A largely attended concert was held in the Opera House this evening under the auspices of the order.

CABLE NEWS.

Boulanger's Evanescent Boom—The General Dined by Lord Randolph.

LONDON, April 26.—Competent judges express belief that the Boulanger boom in London will "peter out" within a fortnight. In spite of the fact that the General has been the recipient of a number of invitations to dinners and receptions, it is a significant fact that not one of them has come from a social or political leader, nor has a single person of social or political distinction visited him at his hotel. The bulk of his callers and would-be entertainers are of the class denominated "tuft-hunters," who see in their entertainment by, or of, the General, the possibility of achieving notoriety. Besides this it is stated that an account of the matter of the expulsion of the Orleans Princes from France while Boulanger was Minister of War, wherein Boulanger's own letters to the Duc D'Aumale proved him to be both ungrateful and untruthful, is to be republished in some of the London papers. Such a course on the part of his enemies can but have the effect to exclude him from a great many of the clubs as well as to close the doors of most of the best houses against him. Elaborate preparations are making at Richmond for the celebration of the silver wedding of the Comte de Paris, which will take place on May 20. A great many of the leading Orleanists will be present, but it is not believed that Boulanger will attend if indeed he is fortunate enough to receive an invitation.

Randy Cultivating the General.

LONDON, April 26.—A select party, including General Boulanger, Count Dillon, General Graham and an unknown lady, dined with Lord Randolph Churchill this evening.

He Must Behave.

PARIS, April 26.—A news agency states that an official of the British Foreign Office has waited upon Gen. Boulanger to acquaint him with the conditions upon which he will be permitted to stay in London.

Smalley's Gossip.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Mr. Smalley cables The Tribune: London cannot be said to lack subjects of conversation. The Queen at Sandringham, Lord Salisbury at Bristol, John Morley at Newcastle, Parnell at Edinburgh (where, in spite of strong opposition, the council has voted him the freedom of the city), Chamberlain and Lord Derby at Birmingham, Pinero at the new Garrick theatre, Gen. Boulanger in Burlington Garden—all these are topics of the day. I do not name them in the order of their importance, if there be any such order, but at haphazard. Among the people or subjects I have enumerated it is the politicians and statesmen who fill the largest space in the papers, and the least, perhaps, in the public mind.

None of the long speeches of the last few days contain aught of political novelty. All the orators are marking time, waiting to see what step is next to be taken in advance. The Unionists seem to think that things are on the whole going well in Ireland. Balfour, who rules that country, rules it from Felixstowe on the east coast of England in the interests of the golf matches, in which he has won second prize. He does not even contemplate going to Dublin. Were there anything serious in the situation he would have to sacrific his favorite pastime and cross the Irish Channel to look into Irish matters for himself on the spot.

Irish agrarian disputes are being settled right and left. The Vandeleur estate is quiet under Sir Charles Russell's arbitration. The Massereene estate is to be colonized with Ulster Orangemen by another Russell less in favor with the Home Rulers, who cry out against what they call this outrage. Worse still, the landlord influence is looking up in Tipperary itself, where guardians have been elected whom the landlords supported. "Irishmen capable of so voting are," cries O'Brien's editorial substitute, "creatures who hug their chains and wallow in their enslavement." Chamberlain, to whom I am indebted for this quotation, appears to like to see them wallow, and Balfour deems the movement propitious for paying a visit to his uncle at Hatfield.

If Chamberlain finds consolation in Tipperary, he needs it, for in his controversy with Lord Randolph Churchill he has had to climb down from a too lofty position which he too rashly took up. His answer to Lord Randolph Churchill is a soft answer, while to Lord Randolph's supporters in Birmingham, who met Chamberlain's resounding challenge with explicit, clear and positive proof of their own charges, he returns no answer at all. He has distinctly had the worst of this encounter, but as he has for the present kept Lord Randolph out of Birmingham, he may, for aught I know, be content with the general condemnation of his conduct.

Chamberlain is Caustic.

LONDON, April 26.—Mr. Chamberlain, in a speech at Birmingham this evening, said the Gladstonians were bastard sons of the Liberal party and that the Liberal-Unionists were the true heirs of the party.

Abolished its Pension Fund.

LONDON, April 26.—The Northwestern Railway Company has abolished its pension fund, established for the benefit of aged and disabled employes, and will distribute the accumulated money, amounting to £100,000, among the members of the company and prospective beneficiaries. The company, however, will retain its own contribution to the fund, the sum of £18,000.

A Mail Robbery.

LONDON, April 26.—A mail car attached to a train running between Frankfort and Mayence, Alsace, was discovered on its arrival at the latter place yesterday to have been robbed of registered letters containing the aggregate amount of 50,000 marks. The robbers have not yet been arrested.

Rebuked for Praying.

ROME, April 26.—The Pope to-day summoned Father Agostino and reproved him for his recent prayer in which he invoked divine blessing upon King Humbert and the Italian army.

Noble Pat McGuire.

ST. LOUIS, April 26.—P. J. McGuire, Grand Secretary of the Carpenters and Joiners' Brotherhood, arrived here to-day from Philadelphia with $6000 to aid the striking carpenters. Yesterday the strike was virtually declared off, but at a secret meeting to-day it was declared on again. McGuire roundly berated the weak-kneed element for lack of confidence.

Railway Building in China.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Consul Smithers at Tientsin reports that the Chinese Government has authorized an extension of the Tientsin and Tongshan Railroad which will make it possible to reach Pekin from Tientsin in three hours, whereas it now requires as many days. The Consul says the opposition of the Conservatives having at last been overcome China may now be said to have fairly entered upon a career of railway construction.

A Paris paper says that the Senate Commission conducting the Boulanger trial has in its possession receipts signed by Boulanger for money given to him in consideration of certain services to be rendered by him in the event of his becoming President. A state official yesterday testified that he had seen similar documents.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

THE EXPORT DUTY ON LOGS OCCASIONS A DEBATE.

A Motion Expressing Regret at the Increase in Duty Lost on Division—The Behring Sea Seizures.

OTTAWA, April 26.—After routine business in the House this afternoon Col. Prior brought up the question of the seizure of Canadian and other vessels for alleged infraction of law in Behring Sea. He thought the Government should actively press for compensation to the owners of these vessels and to secure immunity from interference in the future. He thought the American claim of exclusive jurisdiction in those waters could not be justified by any pretence and that it was made simply on account of the influence exercised by the Alaska Seal Company.

Mr. Davies followed, claiming that Canada was hampered in securing justice from the United States by reason of having no direct communication with the Government of that country.

Sir Richard Cartwright spoke in the same strain, complaining of the circumlocution of the present system of communicating through the Colonial Office.

Sir John Macdonald did not see what effect the presence of a Canadian Ambassador at Washington would have had upon this matter, seeing that not only Canadian citizens but Americans as well had had their property illegally seized for trespass in Behring Sea. It must be remembered that this was not only a Canadian question, but one affecting the whole maritime world. England as a maritime power had pressed and was pressing for a settlement of it. The newly appointed British minister at Washington, Sir Julian Pauncefote, was, from his long connection with the Foreign Office, admirably adapted to carry on negotiations on the subject.

Canada had not been at all neglectful of the interests of her people and he felt confident that compensation must some day be given for the wrongs that had been done. The late Governor-General, Lord Lansdowne, had taken a very deep personal interest in these questions of the fisheries and he had promised to personally interview the authorities in England before proceeding to India and to make plain the position of affairs so far as Canada is concerned. Sir John was confident that Sir Julian Pauncefote had come out charged to bring the matter to as speedy and satisfactory a conclusion as possible.

Mr. Barnard called the attention of the Government to the desirability of the free admission of machinery for the development of the mines of British Columbia.

Mr. Barron re-introduced the question of the increased export duty on logs, which he condemned as calculated to arouse a hostility in the United States which would lessen the export of our sawn lumber. He moved as an amendment to the motion to go into supply a resolution expressing regret that the Government should have increased the export duty.

Mr. Charlton reminded the House that he had brought this question up a few days ago and, speaking for the Canadian Lumbermen's Association, he had asked that the increase be taken off. He had not asked for a vote on the subject, as he knew the matter was being considered by the Government and he did not wish to embarrass them in their actions. He considered Mr. Barron's motion to be ill-advised in the extreme, and to be made by one who had not consulted the interests of those affected and who spoke contrary to their desires and resolutions. He asked that the motion be withdrawn and declared that were it not withdrawn there was a large business interest in the country that would resent it.

Mr. O'Brien said this was a question in which not only the lumbermen but the whole people of the country were interested, and in the interests of the people he hoped that the Government would not do anything to facilitate the export of our lumber. It would come to an end soon enough as it was. It was well known that at every sale of limits made by the Ontario Government for years the largest purchasers were Michigan lumbermen, whose aim it was to take the logs out of the country and manufacture them in the United States. The imposition of the export duty had prevented millions of feet being so taken out.

Hon. David Mills contended that any member of the House was justified in introducing a resolution dealing with such a subject, no matter what any class in the country thought should be done.

Sir John Macdonald explained the reason which had induced the Government to accede to the wishes of the lumbermen to increase the export duty to the present figure. He declared Mr. Barron's resolution to be most inexpedient and a motion made by that gentleman in the interests of what he thinks party more than anything else.

Mr. Perley, speaking as a lumberman, said the facts of the case were just as stated by the Premier. The deputation who had waited upon the Government to ask for the increase from $2 to $3 had considered and urged that an export duty of $3 per thousand feet on the logs was no more than equal to the import duty of $2 imposed by the United States on our lumber. From the standpoint of the public interest he had approved of the increase even though some of his partners urged that it was against the interests of the lumbermen. He would be sorry to think that the people of the States, his native country, would sink to a policy of retaliation, but in any event he was confident that we had nothing to fear. The home consumption increased so rapidly that the United States market became year by year of less importance. He saw no reason why the export duty should be taken off or decreased, at least until the United States had agreed to take a similar course with respect to lumber.

After further discussion the House rejected Mr. Barron's resolution on division by a vote of 54 to 90.

The House then went into Supply. Items in the last submitted supplementary estimates were passed and the House then went into concurrence.

On the appropriation for contingencies of the Senate Sir Richard Cartwright inquired what progress had been made by the joint committee of both Houses appointed with intent to reduce the contingent expenses.

Sir Hector Langevin said the committee had agreed upon a report which would shortly be ready for presentation. They would recommend considerable reductions in salaries for the future, to go into effect whenever vacancies occur. It was the intention to reduce the number of officers. Those at present in office will not be disturbed, the changes being made as vacancies occur. A reduction in the expenses for stationery is recommended and a change, to go into effect this year if agreed to, is recommended with respect to certain officers whose residences are in the building.

Having made considerable progress in concurrence the House adjourned at 12.10 until 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

THE DAIRYING INDUSTRY.

THE export of dairy produce has become one of the chief export trades of the country. In 1868 the value of butter and cheese exported from the Dominion was $2,812,000, and in 1888, twenty years later, it has risen to $8,727,000. The increase was altogether in cheese, for the value of the butter exports decreased from $1,694,000 in 1868 to $796,673 in 1888. The decrease in the exportation of butter was no doubt largely due to the increased attention paid to cheese manufacture and to the milk being diverted to a large extent from the churn to the cheese vat. But there is no good reason why both the butter and cheese industries should not prosper and go hand in hand in benefitting the farmers of the country. There is a great market for butter as well as for cheese, and that there is room for improvement in both industries—especially in butter making—will be generally conceded. The Farmers' Institutes and Dairymen's Associations have done much to benefit the dairy industry—and would do more if those engaged in agriculture would more fully recognize their value and more generally attend the meetings.

At a meeting held in Ottawa of Dominion dairymen the Dominion Government was asked to assist the industry by an appropriation, and we are pleased to see that the request has been acceded to. Among the special votes in the supplementary estimates is $8,000 to aid in the further extension and development of the dairy interest. Just how this appropriation will be applied is not stated, but the Department no doubt will be largely guided by the representatives of those engaged in the trade. The competition in dairy and other farm produce in the markets of the world, and the varying condition of the markets, requires that a watchful eye should be kept upon them to keep the producers informed of the requirements of the markets. The improvements in the means of transportation, while they open new markets, bring out the productions of new sources of supply and the competition is kept up. The Dominion Government has established the experimental farm to assist the farming community, and it is an institution that will be of great benefit, and it has shown again by this vote, and by a further appropriation of $2,000 to aid in the extension of the fruit growing industry, that it recognises the importance of agriculture to this country and is willing and anxious to aid it in every way in its power.

MR. MOWAT said that the United States was a hostile nation. He may feel confirmed in that opinion by his Albany experience.

THE members of the New York Senate who objected to Mr. Mowat being allowed the privilege of the floor did a contemptible thing. But Ontario will not declare war—at least, the war will be confined to paper, and even then will probably be less violent than a Lindsay newspaper war. The people who should feel bad about it are the people of New York State.

IT is now proposed in the United States that a tax be collected on railway cars crossing the lines. It is scarcely probable that the foolish proposal will be carried out, but if it is it will injure both countries. Canada will be indirectly benefitted in more ways than one by such an act, though the general effect would be injurious, while it would be of no benefit to the States. If tax is collected we can make the most of the advantages, knowing that it is due to no act of ours.

UNITED STATES boodlers will have to find some other refuge than Canada. It is unfortunate that Mr. Weldon's bill could not be made retroactive, but retroactive legislation is generally dangerous and unsatisfactory. Long forgotten crimes, of a not very flagrant nature, which have been atoned for so far as an exemplary life for years can atone for a crime, might have been raked up and many entirely innocent people made to suffer through a crime they never heard of. It was this consideration that saved some fugitives wealthy through ill-gotten gains from being forced from Canada or handed over to justice.

The Pembroke Postoffice Robbery.

MONTREAL, April 26.—On April 19 a gang broke into the Pembroke Postoffice and stole $3000 in postage stamps. A day or two ago the Government gave the case into the hands of the Canada Secret Service, and to-day John A. Grose recovered $200 in stamps, located the gang and expects to have them in custody in a day or two.

Teeswater Tannery Burnt.

TEESWATER, April 26.—To-night at 10 o'clock fire was discovered issuing from the engine house roof of the tannery owned by Robert Douglas. GETTING EXPERIENCE.

Visiting Out-of-the-Way Places in Cairo Without the Aid of Donkey Boys.

Whenever any one goes out of the beaten track of travel, or tries to make his way independent of recognized authorities, he is apt to gain some refreshing experience. Mr. Stoddard undertook to explore some out-of-the-way quarters of Cairo without the aid of donkey boys, and from his account of the experiment he must have enjoyed the novelty of the situation.

Many an eye was turned on me in surprise, and when I had at last come into a remote quarter beyond half a dozen streets, and found myself suddenly surrounded by a mob of half grown boys, who were evidently unaccustomed to intruders, I was forced to make as speedy a retreat as possible, followed by a shower of stones.

The gates, which are closed at evening, make separate cities of these several quarters. If you wish to pass from one quarter to another after dark, you must take your lantern and summon the gate keeper, who responds and carefully locks you out afterward. Gas lamps are unknown in that end of Cairo, and white faces a novelty.

I was an hour or more working my way out of the unchristian latitudes, climbing out, as it were, by the minarets, in each of which, I fancied, I saw a resemblance to the one that stands within earshot of our hotel. All foreigners either ride or drive in Cairo, but I got more experience in that one walk than I could have gathered with the aid of fifty donkeys.—Youth's Companion.

Every day now adds its emphasis to the judgment of gentlemen as to the beauty and excellence of our spring Hats. They're buying them. A Great Mistake is made very often by merchants advertising goods at very low figures and when the public call to price the goods they are much higher than the prices their advertisement calls for, or they are just out of the goods. Now, it is altogether different with W. J. Morrow. When you see his advertisement you can rely on procuring the goods at the price stated, just so long as he can get the goods, but of course when we are out you must make an allowance. We have another consignment of beautiful 3 lb. tin Peaches at 15 cents per tin. 3 lb. tin Tomatoes, 3 for 25 cents. W. J. Morrow, 260 George-st.

The Woman Dismissed.

Mary Houstan, the woman who was arrested at the G. T. R. station on Thursday suspected of being of unsound mind, was brought before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning charged with lunacy, and some evidence was taken. Mr. Brundrette, station agent, told of her actions at the station on the day she was arrested, and Mrs. Houstan, the unfortunate woman's mother, also gave evidence which went to show that the girl was not of sound mind, and at times labored under peculiar impressions when she always wanted to leave home. These periods were not regular nor violent. However at the urgent request of the mother, who appeared to be much affected by the misfortune of her daughter, the Magistrate allowed the girl to go.

ODDFELLOWS ANNIVERSARY.

An Entertainment Held in Otonabee Lodge Room.

It was seventy years ago yesterday since the first lodge of Oddfellows was organized in America, and the anniversary was observed by the Order in some manner or other, in almost every town and city throughout the Dominion of Canada and the United States. The local brethren did not go in for any grand demonstration or celebration, but the event was not allowed to slip by without being recognized. Last evening Canton Peterborough, No. 10, held a most successful entertainment in the lodge room of Otonabee Lodge, No. 13. The attendance was good, and the programme that was furnished the audience was excellent and heartily enjoyed by all present. The members of the Canton appeared in uniform, and the brethren of the subordinate lodges turned out in goodly numbers.

OPENING ADDRESSES.

Mr. D. Moore, Captain of the Canton, occupied the seat of honor and presided in a very pleasing manner, having a few words of introduction for each feature on the programme. He opened the programme with a few words of welcome and then with a brief reference to the Order, he introduced Bro. Dr. Bell, Deputy Grand Master, who was first on the programme for an address. The Deputy Grand Master in a brief address gave the audience a condensed outline of Oddfellowship from its first institution in America in 1819 with a lodge of few members down to the present time when there were over half a million of members in good standing in the Order. He also referred to the immense amount of money which had been disbursed for the relief of the sick and the widows and orphans, and commended the Order to their support and patronage.

THE PROGRAMME.

After the addresses Prof. Doucet's orchestra rendered a selection in a pleasing manner, and then Bro. R. M. Roy delighted the audience with some fifty or more stereopticon views. Mr. Roy's views are all from photographs taken by himself, and are exceedingly well put on. The views he gave last evening comprised many local buildings and scenes, such as the Separate school, the Canton grouped, Hamilton's foundry, George-st., scenes on the Otonabee, Riverside Park, etc. Mr. Roy has appeared before local audiences on many occasions and has always something new which never fails to amuse and interest. After the views, Bro. S. O. Monaghan, of Port Hope, gave a humorous song entitled "Mary lit the Fire with Kerosene," which provoked much mirth, Mr. Monaghan's make-up alone being sufficient to cause a broard smile, while his actions and interpretations were those of an old artist. He was forced to respond to an encore, when he gave another humorous song entitled "There's Nothing in It." Mr. W. Burdock next gave a solo on the mouth organ, which delighted the audience who evidenced their appreciation of the remarkable clever manner in which Mr. Burdock plays the mouth ogran by demanding an encore. Miss Sanders, who has a reputation which she fully sustained last evening, then contributed an excellent recitation, which was followed by a duet by Messrs. T. Dunn and A. Elliott, entitled "Haste, Crimson Morn." Needless to say two gentlemen of such talent and whose singing is always an attraction in itself delighted the audience and were loudly applauded. In introducing them the chairman remarked that they were under a compliment to Mr. Dunn who had refused invitations to sing at Belleville and Port Perry in order that he might be with the local brethren that evening. This ended the first part of the programme and a few minutes intermission was given.

Another selection by the orchestra opened the second part and was followed by another duet by Messrs. Dunn and Elliott, which was also given in fine voice. Then Bro. H. Strike recited "Asleep at the Seaside" in splendid form and received the marked approbation of the audience. Miss Moyse next gave an excellent violin solo, and was accompanied by Miss Chalaupka on the piano. The programme was brought to a close by another humorous character song by Bro. Monaghan entitled "I'll place it in the hands of my solicitor," which created much laughter and called forth an encore, to which Mr. Monaghan responded with a recitation. He was recalled a second time and gave another humorous song. The chairman apologized for the absence of Miss S. Cameron and Mr. T. S. Parker, who were both on the programme, but through some misunderstanding had been unable to be present. "God Save the Queen" brought the entertainment to a close.

After the close of the entertainment quite a number of the audience remained and were kindly entertained with a number of stereoptican views by Bro. Roy, while a number of the young people adjourned to the dining hall and enjoyed a short programme of dances.

A Useful Map.

Mr. J. Harrison Brownlee, of Brandon, Manitoba, has issued an exceedingly neat and comprehensive railway and guide map of Manitoba by authority of the Provincial Government. It is a complete encyclopedia of the prairie province and contains all the information necessary for any person desirous of settling in that land of promise. It is sold for the sum of 25 cents, and may be secured by addressing the publisher.

Raising the Question of a Bonus.

The departure of Mr. A. W. Brodie and the removal of his mill machinery and of a number of his employees to Hespeler, has brought up the question that had a bonus been offered would he have remained. Possibly not, as Mr. Brodie is taking hold of a business of larger proportions and one which we hope will prove remunerative. Whether a bonus is essential to establishing manufactories or assisting those in operations to enlarge their borders is doubtful but on the other hand the fact remains that at M. Sullivan & Co's. dry goods of latest styles are sold so cheap that a bonus would not lower prices one cent. Ladies looking for summer dresses should call. The newest and most stylish goods fairly rivalling the best city stocks now on the shelves. Give Sullivan & Co. a call. d26tf

Discharged and Re-Arrested.

Wm. Huffman, the negro who was charged with tapping the till in Chas. Butler's shop on Hunter-st. on the last day of the races in February last, was brought before the Magistrate at the Police Court this morning for trial. Mr. R. E. Wood appeared for the prosecution and Mr. W. F. Johnston was present for the prisoner. There were only two witnesses called, Mr. Butler and his fifteen year-old son. From their evidence it appears that on the night in question Mr. Butler went to tea and left the shop in charge of his son, and while he was gone Huffman and another young lad came in to buy some coal oil. When young Butler went out into the back shop to procure the oil, Huffman remained in the front shop while the young lad who was with him accompanied young Butler. When Mr. Butler came back from tea he found that the till had been emptied of its contents with the exception of about eighty cents, and as Huffman was the only man who had been alone in the shop while he was at tea, with the exception of his son, the negro was suspected of the theft and an information was laid against him. After hearing the evidence the Magistrate said that while he had strong convictions that Huffman was the man who took the money, still there was not sufficient conclusive evidence to convict him and he was therefore discharged. Huffman, however, was not allowed to leave a free man for as soon as he was discharged Chief Rossel re-arrested him for a long-standing Scott Act conviction, and the prisoner was taken to the gaol on a warrant of commitment and will serve his two months.

The Convent's Farewell.

Last evening a very pleasant entertainment was given at the Convent by the pupils, consisting principally of music, at which His Lordship Bishop Dowling and Father McEvay and Vicar-General Laurent, of Lindsay, were present. During the evening addresses were presented by the Sisters and the pupils to Bishop Dowling and Father McEvay, to which they replied in felicitous terms. The musical programme was very good indeed, and the pupils acquitted themselves with credit.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Dolan & Co. have at their disposal, one of the most magnificent stocks outside of Montreal. A stock from which no man can go away dissatisfied, or go away without learning what a progressive age we live in. Never in the history of trade has finer Goods been manufactured than this year, and our effort to buy in the leading markets of the world, has been crowned with success, by placing on our counters the largest variety of the Richest Goods those markets afforded. We wish to raise the standard of clothing in this town, and we say to the men do not be an eye-sore by wearing badly-fitting clothing, but come to a house where you can be suit-in goods and suited in Style. Leave your order for a suit with us, and Mr. Simons shall see you fitted up as becometh a highly respectable man.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER

At last, however, the welcome news came from town to say that the house was ready, and Mr. Earle became a different being all at once.

"First train in the morning, my dear," he said, joyfully. "The very first train in the morning."

"Oh! father, dear!" Nancy cried, in dismay. "Not the 5 o'clock train!"

"Oh, well, no; not the 5 o'clock train. I didn't quite mean that," he admitted.

Nancy did not hesitate, but struck while the iron was hot. "And the one at 8 is very slow, dear," she said, mildly. "We tried it once, if you remember, and you sw—you found fault all the way to St. Pancras. Don't you think we had better say the express at 11:15? It's such a comfortable train, you know, dear."

"Yes, of course—of course," exclaimed the old man, testily. "How dull you are getting, Nancy. That was the train I meant, of course."

"How stupid of me," murmured Nancy, in her gentlest tones.

She had her reward; they reached London in time for her father to have lunch and then go off to his beloved club, whence he came back to dinner—not because he would not rather have dined there, but simply from a sense of duty to his daughter—in the best possible spirits.

Nancy knew from that that he was better—that the great wrench of parting with Stuart had passed over—so she was much more easy in her mind about him, although she did not think it advisable to pay the promised visit to Blankhampton.

Instead, however, her friend Aileen came to stay with her, and the two girls spent a very pleasant time together. There was not much doing, and the town was still rather empty; but at its worst it was a lively change from Blankhampton.

So the greater part of November slipped away, and Aileen returned home, leaving Nancy to her lonely life, for Mr. Earle, being almost all day at his club, could scarce be counted as having much to do with it.

The dreary winter days passed by; Christmas came and went—to the household in Hans place a festive season without any festivity about it—then the old year died out and the New Year dawned.

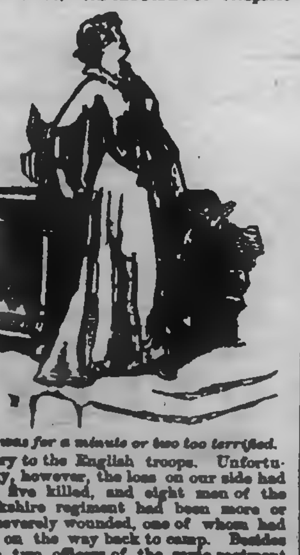
And all this time there was no especial news from the Blankshire regiment. In every letter they were longing for fighting, to get to the front, for anything decisive which would bring the miserable campaign to an end. And at last there came an evening when Nancy opened The Evening Standard to read: "Great Engagement in Burmah," and to see standing out, as in letters of fire, two names, Lieuts. James Beresford and Stuart Earle.

CHAPTER XXIX.

SUSPENSE KILLS.

When the words Great Engagement in Burmah caught Nancy Earle's eyes, and immediately afterward the names of James Beresford and Stuart Earle, she was for a minute or two too terrified to look at the paragraph again. Then she summoned up all her courage and prepared herself to face the worst.

The announcement was a usual one of its kind. It said that a party of the Blankshire regiment had been out on the search for Dacoits and had been surprised by an unusually large band of these native robbers, with the result of complete victory to the English troops. Unfortunately, however, the loss on our side had been five killed, and eight men of the Blankshire regiment had been more or less severely wounded, one of whom had died on the way back to camp. Besides these, two officers of the same regiment had been very severely wounded—Lieuts. James Beresford and Stuart Earle.



She was for a minute or two too terrified.

It was, of course, utterly absurd of the correspondent out of the scene of action to have sent home such a heading to such a paragraph as "Great Engagement in Burmah"—or if he had not been responsible for it, for the person who had done so—but Nancy, poor girl, did not stay to think of that. To her, it was the most important battle that had ever been fought in the world's history—for were not the two soldiers in whom she took more interest than in all the rest of the army put together lying at that moment grievously wounded, if not already dead? In the shock of the moment her bitterness against her brother all died out, but it must be owned that she thought of her Beautiful Jim the most. She felt Jim's wound racking her own delicate body; she felt every jolt of litter or inequality of his rough bed; she thought of the heat and the flies and the absence of proper attention; and she thought but little of Stuart one way or the other.

CROFTER EMIGRATION.

Report of Secretary Colmer of the Colonization Board.

LONDON, April 27.—The Scotch office has received a report from Mr. Colmer, secretary of the Crofter Colonization Board, respecting this season's crofter emigration under the State-aided scheme. Last year £54 out of the £120 loan was spent in transit for each family, leaving only £66 to invest in the Northwest. This year £25 was spent in transit, leaving £95, while several have private means. The report expresses the belief that the money will be paid in accordance with the terms of the scheme. It is also noted that colonization is growing in favor in Scotland. The board are receiving many demands to assist further crofter parties to settle in the North-west. The Government is pledged, however, to refrain from further emigration until the success of the present scheme is assured.

Latest reports from Liverpool take a more hopeful view of the season's emigration to Canada. A marked feature of recent sailings was the large number emigrated by the Self Help and other societies. This emigration is regarded with favor because more care is bestowed on the selection here for settlement in Canada than is possible with isolated emigrants.

A PRETTY TYPEWRITER.

Who Asks $80,000 as Balm for a Broken Heart—Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, April 26.—The trial of the celebrated $80,000 breach of promise suit was commenced at the Assizes to-day. This is a claim brought by Miss Myra Hurrell, a pretty typewriter boarding in Gore-street, in this city, against Thos. O'Callaghan, a wealthy gentleman of London, for damages to her affections caused by a failure to fulfil a promise of marriage. Geo. L. Staunton, with whom is associated B. B. Osler, Q.C., appeared for the fair and slighted damsel, and J. W. Nesbitt defended the alleged heartless trifler with woman's best affections. Mr. Staunton made an eloquent speech in opening, and was expatiating on the accomplishments, beauty and superior mental training of the plaintiff when she came into court and took a seat at the counsel's table. She is a lady of the blonde persuasion, with a good figure and well-based claims to be considered good-looking. As she sat down she tried to catch the defendant's eye with a look that was surcharged with the concentrated essence of scorn, defiance and, rather inconsistently, reproach. The defendant is a stout, handsome man of 42, with black hair, mustache and Galloway whiskers. He is reputed to be worth $80,000. There are not many letters in the case, but the plaintiff's counsel hopes to establish a case by showing the long and assiduous course of "keeping company," and that the proposition of marriage did take place. In his speech to the jury Mr. Staunton stated that the courtship dated back to 1881 and continued until a short time ago, when O'Callaghan came to her, put on a poor mouth, cried, said he had been ruined by a long course of law suits and wanted to beg off. She nobly replied that she was willing to take him cash or no cash, but he did not appreciate this generosity, and his attentions gradually terminated.

In the chloroform case reported yesterday the jury at a late hour last night agreed to disagree and was discharged.

A Masonic ring belonging to C. R. Smith, lost 16 years ago, was dug up yesterday on the main road running south over the mountain. It was about 9 inches underground.

Thomas Walker of this city, fuel inspector for the southern division of the Grand Trunk, had his right hand so badly crushed in Thamesville on Wednesday that it was necessary to amputate two of his fingers.

The rate of taxation this year will be 19 mills, ½ mill higher than last year.

The funeral of the late Richard Benner, secretary of the Board of Trade, took place this afternoon.

GOSSIP FROM WOODSTOCK.

A Singular Accident—Knox Church to Build a New Temple.

WOODSTOCK, April 25.—On Wednesday afternoon during the heavy gale a young man was driving his team along a highway in West Oxford, over which spread an immense ash tree. At the instant he arrived there a violent gust of wind blew the tree down across the team and pinned the horses to the ground. The young man was also caught by the branches, but managed to relieve himself. The team was only slightly injured.

The attention of the Assizes has been occupied for nearly a whole day with the case of Gleeson v. Kennedy. The plaintiff alleges that while driving along a public highway defendant deliberately drove his horse into that of plaintiff, in consequence of which he was thrown out and has since been incapacitated for work. Suit was brought for $5000 damages. Verdict for $300 for plaintiff.

The brickhotel at the Canadian Pacific Railway station was purchased to-day by A. L. Dent for $3350.

At a meeting of Knox Church congregation last night the Board of Trustees presented a report recommending the building of a new church. The report was unanimously adopted. The new building will cost about $30,000.

At the assizes Crown Attorney Ball stated that it was expected to have the new court house under way by July 1. This building will cost about $60,000.

John Menaghan of Woodstock was arrested at Lindsay last night on a charge of stealing several articles from a commercial traveler, who was stopping at the O'Neill House.

He Knew Too Much About Poker.

MONTREAL, April 26.—The cross-examination of Von Reinults was continued in the Maloney-Phillips jewelry case to-day, but nothing of importance was elicited. The witness said he understood the game of pokre as well as any intelligent man, not a professional gambler, could. The cross-examination of Von Reinults will probably be concluded to-morrow.

THE ATTRACTION AT TURNBULL'S.

MILLINERY.—No wonder flowers hold so high a place in Millinery Trimmings—so real to the eye as if raised by the hand of Nature. Everything, from the Daisy that gems the sod, to the Rose that blushes under glass. A jingle of Untrimmed Hats and Bonnets, stacks of Straws every shape you would think to ask for, and designs you would never dream of. Milans, Fancy Straws, Lace, both materials mixed, Chips, Leghorns. Novelties of all kinds; and this is a season of Novelties.

KID GLOVES.—Have tumbled into a line of tan. Kid Gloves, stitched backs, we can sell for 25 c. a pair; some people buy them by the ½ doz. Come early if you want this Bargain. We are in a shape to sell a great number of Women's Silk and Taffeta Gloves, in the next few days. Our Gloves always fit, so they say. Assortment, Quality, Price—the tandem team will give their go.

Such a range of Styles of Hosiery is scarcely ever seen in one place. Sizes to fit Everybody.

SASH RIBBONS.—In Handsome Brocades, at 30c. a yard.

DRESS GOODS.—New shades of Henrietta Cloths to fill up the gap the quick sales of the past few weeks have been making. SMOKE GREY, like the silver sheen of the atmosphere of a light, grey day by the sea. SUEZ GREEN.—Why Suez? Only that the oddity of the name may mentally fit the color—the color so beautiful in combination with other colors. OLD ROSE.—The name suggests the fading leaf, lost beauty, expired fragrance—and yet it stands for a tinting shade of red so delicate that to call it red would be an insult. The colors are primary, of course. All told, we have about Thirty-six Good Shades of Dress Goods to select from, in materials from 10c. to $1.00 a yard. New girdles and trimmings to match.

Fashion is always turning a new corner, and we with it. This spring it is fashionable for men to wear Striped Suitings. We have them in good variety, and will save you money in every suit you buy.

Fresh Styles of New York Domestic Patterns to hand. Every lady can have a new Fashion Sheet that asks for it.

AWFUL HORROR AT THE Y.

A THROUGH EXPRESS JUMPS THE TRACK NEAR HAMILTON.

More Than a Score of Passengers Killed—Flames Consume the Bodies of the Victims—The Dead Unrecognizable.

HAMILTON, April 28.—The ill-fated and ill-starred Great Western division of the Grand Trunk Railway scored another horror this morning that has no equal since the awful Desjardins Canal mishap of some thirty years ago. And this morning's terrible calamity happened less than 1000 yards from that greatest of modern Canadian railway horrors.

About twenty scorched, charred and incinerated human remains were pulled out of the blackened smoking debris of the smashup, thrown into rough pine boxes and carried to the morgue at the General Hospital in this city, where they now are. Two young men, killed and mangled beyond recognition, lie in the same charnel house.

A dozen men, wounded and groaning, are in the Accident Ward.

Perhaps a dozen others were so badly burned that not even their ashes can be recognized.

And all these, the dead and dying, are chiefly American citizens. None of the dead at present are known, which adds to the horror of the catastrophe. They were all through passengers, many of whom were en route from the west to the New York centennial.

SUDDEN AND AWFUL

The short space of time which it took to work the awful destruction struck sudden awe into the hearts of old railroad men and railroad officials. It just seemed to be a case of "One, two, three, and down to death." Nearly twenty of the killed were cut off so suddenly that they never knew what killed them. Then their mangled bodies were cremated and charred to a crisp—an awful sight for the wreckers and reporters who were gathered on the ground during the day. The destruction was chiefly confined to two coaches: a smoker and an ordinary first-class carriage—but seven coaches in all, including two Wagner sleepers, were burned to their trucks, not a vestige of the handsome and valuable rolling stock being left but the twisted iron-work. It is estimated that the main part of the destruction was over within a brief and short minute.

THE ILL-FATED ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

It was the St. Louis express, from the west, due in this city at 6.55 this morning, that was so completely wrecked and left such an awful track of carnage. The accident happened just about 7 o'clock, although it might have been five minutes one way or the other. The scene was just about one and a half miles west of the Hamilton railway station, and on the base of the triangle that forms the famous and ill-fated "cut" or "Y," commonly called the Junction Cut. The train was a remarkably heavy one, her eight passenger cars being well filled with people. Some of the cars were even crowded. The train was made up as follows:

Engine No. [illegible] (formerly No. [illegible]), in charge of Engineer Joseph Watson and Fireman Edwin Chapman, both of London.
A bonded baggage car.
A way baggage and express car, in charge of Express Messenger F. W. Dumas of Suspension Bridge and Baggageman James Welch, also of the Bridge.
A smoking car.
Two first-class G.T. passenger coaches.
The Wagner car "Fitchburg."
A through first-class Chicago and Grand Trunk passenger coach from Chicago to Buffalo.
The Wagner car "Messina."
The Pullman car "Eloise."
The Wagner car "Montpelier."

In all 10 cars and an engine.

The train was in charge of Conductor William Poole of Suspension Bridge, and as stated before she carried a heavy load of passengers.

DEATH AT THE TANK.

The train was moving along at the rate of about 25 miles an hour when the accident happened. Just what gave way or caused the awful destruction is somewhat of a mystery, but like the St. George horror of two months ago it seems to be a case of track-jumping. By some it is said the smash was caused by a defective switch, but leading officials of the road who were at the wreck throughout the day stoutly deny this, and claim that the switch in question was in perfect safety at the time. The switch is situated just 195 feet east of the water tank, into which the engine ran with full force and demolished the tank so successfully that not a chip of it was left. The tank had a capacity of 46,000 gallons of water and was nearly full at the time of its demolition by the engine. The switch in question is used to let trains into the "cut" that are bound to Toronto. The two tracks run eastward from the switch quite closely together until just about the water tank is reached, when the "cut" tracks turn sharply off and join the Toronto tracks on the other side of the big sand and gravel hill. The water tank is thus in the frog. The tank overlooks the Dundas Marsh on the south, from which it is supplied by means of water forced up by an engine at the foot of the hill, which is 50 or 60 feet high. On the north side of the tracks is an outlet of the marsh, but strange to say the only part of the wreckage that rolled down either embankment was the cab of the engine.

THE FIRST WARNING.

The first intimation that Engineer Watson had that something was wrong was just after the train had passed the switch. She began to jolt violently. Like a flash he applied the air brakes, but did not reverse. In a second he and his fireman saw that the engine had left the track and they jumped, they know not how or where. The engineer was badly shaken up, but was not seriously injured. The fireman was badly scalded, and is now in the hospital. The express messenger and baggageman in the car behind also escaped with but a few bruises.

The engine at last made a violent jump to the north side of the tracks and made a dash into the tank. This, with the previous application of the air brakes, brought the train to a standstill all except the bonded baggage car, which in some way or other shot past the engine for a distance of 200 feet, minus her trucks, from which she jumped. The baggage in this car was all saved. It is through baggage, and passes through Canada in bond.

Just what happened in the smoking car and the first coach behind it will probably never be known, but it was in these two carriages where the great loss of life occurred. Some twenty persons in them were killed outright and then burned to a crisp. Not a soul in any of the sleepers or the other two first-class carriages are known to have been killed or even injured. Of course this is merely surmise, but a careful survey of the situation would indicate this theory. The engine, after striking the tank, turned over on her side, and nearly buried herself in the sand. The tender jumped 10 feet away from the main portion and the cab rolled down the north bank into the marsh. The engine was twisted and dismembered as if it were wire. The only articles about her that were not twisted out of sight were the two big figures, "52," her train number, which she carried on her headlight.

NOT A SOUND FROM THE SMOKER.

Of course the greatest consternation among the passengers followed the sudden stoppage of the train. Those who had not been injured at once left the cars. Not a sound was heard from the supposed vicinity of the smoker or the car immediately behind it. This shows that all the passengers therein were killed outright and then burned. The occupants of the third passenger car all escaped, it is thought. The rear end of this coach was knocked clean out by some means and the passengers left it by this egress. The way-baggage car, it is thought, was thrown right on to the engine and at once took fire. The smoker and the car behind are thought to have been stove clean through each other and it is known that some of the passengers in the smoker were hurled into the way baggage car. The smoker at once took fire and so did the car behind. The flames burst out fiercely in both cars. The way baggage was also a mass of flames in an instant.

Rain was falling fast, and the alarmed passengers who had left the rear cars ran about in dismay. They did not know how serious the catastrophe was. The baggage car, the smoker, the two passengers, the "Fitchburg," the car behind it and the "Messina" were soon all in flames and being devoured wildly. The "Eloise" and "Montpelier" were only saved by being uncoupled and shoved back safe out of danger.

THE WORST NEWS COMES LATE.

It was long after noon before it was known that the loss of life was very great. Up to that time it was believed that only two men had been killed and a dozen wounded. It was not until the wreckers began to dive into the debris of the smoker and the car behind that the awful truth was realized. Then it was seen how terrible the destruction was. The wreckers were not long in separating the blackened remains of seventeen human beings, three of them being females. These 17 were put into wooden boxes and sent to the hospital morgue. Subsequently what was supposed to be the remains of four more were taken out. This with the seventeen and the two dead already in the hospital would make a total of 23. However, there may have been several more who were incinerated out of all recognition.

And up to the time of writing the names of but two of these unfortunates are known. These are supposed to be L. S. Gurney of Brooklyn, N.Y., traveler for a cutlery firm, and Rudolph Ederer, address unknown, but supposed to represent a printing press agency. Further identifications are eagerly looked for. All that is anyway certain is that they were through passengers, principally Americans, many of them en route from the west to the New York centennial. An envelope was picked up beside one of the blackened trunks. Faintly could be read the address: "Harry Evarts, Kohl & Middleton's Museum, Chicago." The envelope, it is supposed, contained some kind of an actor's insurance policy. All the papers and valuables on the charred bodies were consumed in the fierce flames. The remains of the three females were equally charred. One was recognized by a pair of corsets. These unfortunates must have been in the car just behind the smoker. Here and there a blackened coin or a piece of jewelry was fished out. A pocket-book or two were unearthed, but their contents were sadly mutilated or scorched.

The flames devoured the cars so fiercely that, notwithstanding the falling rain and the arrival at about 8.30 of 25 men of the Hamilton brigade with Chief A. Acheson at their head and a good supply of hose, inside of three hours the seven coaches were burned to their trucks.

FULL LIST OF THE WOUNDED.

The full list of the wounded is as follows:

HAMILTON CLARKE, 147 West Ohio-street, Chicago, leg broken, badly injured.
ANTHONY MASS, an Italian, head cut.
EDWARD CHAPMAN, the fireman, badly scalded about the body.
ENOCH KENYON of No. 9 Mincing-lane, London, Eng., several ribs broken and otherwise internally injured.
C. C. AXSELL, Edwardsport, Ind., cut and bruised.
WILLIAM LIPSEY, Chicago, ankle sprained.
A. L. DONEY, Dansville, Ill., slightly burned.
J. A. PALMER, Ilion, N.Y., head badly cut.
GEORGE WHITE, Union Hill, N.J., head cut.
ANDREW CARPENTER, Yankton, Da., several bad cuts on head.
S. E. YOUNG, 264 North-avenue, Chicago, head badly cut.
JOSEPH MORRIS, Clarke's Island, Maine, head cut.

Messrs. Carpenter and Palmer left the hospital shortly after their wounds were dressed and went home this evening.

Dr. Beamer, Medical Superintendent at the Hospital, said at 5.30 this evening that he did not anticipate that the wounds of any of the injured would result fatally. He had the utmost confidence in their speedy recovery.

DELAY IN SENDING MEDICAL AID.

Conductor Poole at about 7.15 ran to the telegraph office in the cut and sent the news of the disaster to Hamilton and London and wrecking crews were sent on at once. There was a great deal of unfavorable comment about the delay of sending medical aid from Hamilton. The first wrecking train from the Ambitious City brought no doctors, and some of the men on the relief said that a number of the Hamilton doctors had been telephoned to, but it being Sunday morning none of them would respond to the call. Drs. A. Mackelcan and Philp came out on the second relief train at about 9.30. Ex-Ald. David Walker, who was on his way home from San Francisco to Toronto, did noble work among the wounded, and ministered to them as tenderly as a hospital nurse. Fortunately the ex-alderman, who is an old railroader, had a good big flask in his pocket, the contents of which was of particular service to the wounded. I saw one American strike Mr. Walker on the shoulder and say: "Damn it, you are better than a dozen doctors. You're a regular trump in an emergency like this."

As soon as possible nearly all the prominent officials of the road who could be summoned were on the scene. Mr. S. Barker went out from Hamilton. Division Superintendent Larmour sent there from Stratford. T. Renton, signal inspector, was on hand. Chief Engineer Hobson, Mr. Joseph Wallace, Superintendent Swift's private secretary, the latter being in New York, Road-master P. Neilson and other officials were at the scene of the disaster and did all they could for the wounded. The removals to the hospital were under the direction of Mr. Wallace, and he ordered that every attention be shown the wounded. They were taken to the foot of Victoria-avenue on a special car and from thence to the hospital. It was 5 o'clock this afternoon before the charred remains from the smoker reached the hospital. Dr. A. Wolverton will hold an inquest to-morrow.

HOW DID IT HAPPEN?

The officials named above spent hours on the wreck and not one of them would venture an opinion as to the real cause of the accident. Some of them said they were positive that the switch was all right when the train passed. As the forward trucks of the engine could not be got at up to this evening it could not be ascertained. The rails were spread and twisted a great deal after the Hamilton brigade had succeeded in subduing the flames. This of course was quite natural on account of the intense heat of the flames, an idea of which may be gained from the fact that telegraph poles 50 feet from the tracks were badly scorched. All of the officials admitted that it was the worst and most complete piece of destruction that they had ever witnessed in the annals of railroad horror. In view of the many other serious accidents on the Great Western of late a most searching investigation is to be made into the cause. The strangest thing noticeable about the wreck was that among all the railroad men around the wreck throughout the day not one of them would give a definite opinion as to what caused the terrible affair. Many of them would shake their heads ominously and mutter something about the switch being wrong or the trucks of the engine having suddenly mounted the rails and then as suddenly jumped the tracks altogether. Like many other horrors the real cause of it may probably never be known, and it will continue to be a deep, dark and bloody mystery.

ONE OF THE INJURED TALKS.

Mr. A. Palmer of Ilion, N.Y., was able to leave the hospital about two hours after having his wounds dressed. To a reporter in the station, just before his departure for the east this evening, he gave a graphic account of the accident. He said: I was sitting in the forward part of the smoker talking to a fellow passenger. I think there were about 20 persons in all in the smoker. I was just about to lie down on the seat when there came a terribly violent and sudden crash, and I was thrown I do not know where. First I thought I went forward and then I came backward. As soon as I recovered my feet I saw that the head of the man whom I had just been talking to was cut clean off, as if with a knife but I do not know how it was done. I looked around me in a dazed condition and the whole car seemed to be shoving backwards, forwards and sideways. Then it seemed as if it were crushed through from one end to the other and I landed out through a window, I thought, underneath a pile of rubbish. I smelt smoke and fire and felt the heat. I was pulled out of the pile by a gentleman whom I afterwards heard was Mr. Walker of Toronto. My wounds were not as bad as I first supposed. I am employed as a machinist in the works of the Wabash Railway at Butler, Ind., and I was on my way home to Ilion, N.Y., to visit my mother, who is dying. I intended to give them a surprise at my sudden arrival, but I think the surprise was all on my side. Mr. Palmer lost his overcoat in the accident. He was forwarded to his home this evening by the company.

THE ENGINEER'S STORY.

Engineer Watson was seen at the Hamilton station this afternoon. Mr. Watson could give no definite account of how the accident occurred. He said that, in accordance with the regulations of the road, he "slowed-up" before entering the curve which runs through the Y. This curve is about one mile long. While passing the switch I did not notice anything wrong, but before we had gone very far the wheel of the engine appeared to have mounted the rail. I then saw that something serious was about to happen and I immediately applied the air brake. This in a great measure assisted in causing the rear cars of the train to come to a sudden stop. Finally, the engine left the rails altogether and crashed into the tank. Myself and the fireman crawled out, but I hardly know how we got out of where we landed."

E. A. Gollet, the keeper of the switch and the engine which runs the tank and his assistant Charles Hull, both say that the switch was all right when the trains passed them. They think the engine mounted the rail and then jumped the track just before reaching the water tank. This opinion was very generally expressed among those working around the wreck.

HOW THE TRAIN WAS MADE UP.

The St. Louis express this morning was a very heavy train. She left Windsor at 1.40, being then composed of the engine, baggage car, smoking car, two passenger cars and the "Fitchburg." At London the Wabash and Chicago and Grand Trunk connections were taken on, together with a bonded baggage car. This increased the strength of the train to ten cars in all. It is understood that there were 109 through and 4 local passengers, making a total of 113 on the train. 65 of these were in the coaches and 48 in the sleepers.

There was considerable excitement when the train reached here this evening among the baseball men of the city, as it was thought that Phillips, the first baseman of the Hamilton club, was on board, and was numbered among the missing; but it was afterwards learned that there were no passengers on the train holding tickets for Hamilton. Phillips is expected here to-morrow.

The St. Louis express, being one of the fastest and best trains over the Great Western road, always is equipped with the best of rolling stock. Her locomotive, which was one of the finest passenger ones on the road, is valued at about $9000. She was built at Kingston about 7 years ago and was afterwards rebuilt at Hamilton. Her passenger cars were worth about $7000 each and her sleeping cars from $12,000 to $15,000. The smoking car, which is very comfortable, is the size of an ordinary passenger car, and is fitted up with reclining chairs and seats. This car is worth about $5000.

The track is all clear this evening, and traffic will not be interrupted further.

ECHOES OF THE HORROR.

Some Brief Sayings About the Great Disaster at the Y.

HAMILTON, April 28.—Chief G. T. Detective Day came up from Toronto on the 12.30 train to-day to see that thieves did not get in their work as they did at the St. George accident. However, when the officer reached the scene, there was nothing left but the trucks of the cars and a pile of smouldering ruins.

The Hamilton firemen, under Chief Aitchison, worked nobly and bravely in subduing the flames. They found the engine that supplied the tank from the marsh of the greatest convenience in their efforts.

It kept the railway police and the city police who went out to the wreck very busy in controlling the crowd and keeping them away back on the sand hills overlooking the Y.

The baggageman said that he thinks nearly a dozen of the passengers in the smoker were thrown into his car.

The express messenger jumped from his car with no boots on. Notwithstanding this lack of footwear he worked like a Trojan in the work of rescue.

Engineer Watson also worked very hard, notwithstanding that he was more or less injured and badly shaken up.

Fireman Chapman was the only train hand who was seriously hurt. He is pretty badly scalded.

Conductor Poole is said to have cut his way out of the roof of one of the sleepers and to have pulled three passengers out after him.

The two sleepers that were not destroyed were sent back to Paris and around to Buffalo via the Buffalo and Lake Huron road.

A special was made up in Hamilton at 11 o'clock this morning and all the passengers that were able to go were sent on.

The flames prevented thieves getting in their work.

Unlucky St. Louis express, fated Y!

The sensation of the wreck was the great leap of 200 feet that the bonded baggage car took. Some of the train men assert that she jumped clean over the derailed engine. It is likely, however, that when the engine left the track she broke clean loose from the rest of the train and the bonded car shot past her. The trucks of the bonded car, it is also likely, helped to block further progress of the cars behind her and some of them were thrown up on the derailed engine.

There was great consternation among the passengers lest the boiler would break. Several persons shouted out that it certainly would. But it didn't.

A peculiar feature of the accident was that no part of the wreck rolled down the steep embankments on either side of the tracks. The wreck, all but the engine, was almost in a straight line with the tracks.

Gurney and Ederer were killed instantly. They were jammed between two cars, but their remains were got away before the flames reached them. Gurney was completely decapitated.

Nearly all of the baggage in the way car was destroyed.

THREE TORONTO MEN ON BOARD.

Two of Them Ex-Aldermen—What They Had to Say.

TORONTO, April 29.—There were three well-known Torontonians on the express at the time of the calamity. They were ex-Ald. David Walker, en route home from San Francisco; ex-Ald. Wm. Hall and A. H. Dixon. Mr. Dixon and Mr. Hall were traveling companions from Detroit, and they were not aware of Mr. Walker's presence on the train until after the smashup. They then met quite unexpectedly beside the burning cars. None of them were at all hurt.

CAPTAIN HALL'S NARRATIVE.

Captain Wm. Hall was seen at his residence, No. 1 Windsor-street, last evening seated in the cosy dining-room with Mrs. Hall and two of his children. He was a passenger from Detroit on the ill-fated train, and spent the night in the Wagner car "Fitchburg."

"The first I knew of the accident," said he, "was the shock felt when the engine struck the water tank, and then followed a series of thumps, communicated to the sleeper by the cars ahead, which were off the track. When our car came to a full stop all the passengers were thrown over the seats but no one seriously injured in the car in which I was. There was one gentleman cut about the face and head, but the wounds were only surface ones. Immediately the car was stopped I got out, and after looking hastily around, made haste to the telegraph office, a few yards off at the end of the cut, to wire for aid. At that time we supposed that there were only two passengers killed. When I returned the cars were in flames, and in about two hours there was not a vestige remaining of the woodwork of the seven cars that were between the first baggage car and the rear sleepers. Amongst the killed there were three women. I don't know who they were or where they were from, but I think they were in one of the cars that came from Detroit. I saw one of the women with one leg protruding through a window of the car, and there were a couple of men trying to rescue her. Her head and body were inside the car and she seemed to be jammed between the seats. While they were endeavoring to get her out she was screaming and crying but just then the fire burst out, and it seemed as if the whole inside of the car were ablaze in a moment. The flames were so strong that the men were forced back and the poor woman was burned to a crisp.

"I don't know how it was that the fire first got started. Some say it was the coals from the demolished locomotive, or it may have been the fire from the stove, which was broken in the telescoping of the car. As soon as we were able to get away, I went on to Hamilton and everything that could be done to alleviate the sufferings of the injured and wounded was done. Mrs. Hall did not know I was coming on this train until I telephoned her after the accident that I was uninjured, and consequently did not suffer from the suspense she would have had she known of the accident, and that I was on the train, before she heard I was safe."

The strangest part of Capt. Hall's story was the presentiment that he had the night before while lying in his berth. He feared the train was going to meet with an accident, and he rose early in the morning before 6 and was all dressed long before the accident.

Neither Capt. Hall nor Mr. A. H. Dixon, who left Detroit together Saturday night, could get a berth in the sleeper until they had bribed the porter of the "Fitchburg" with a dollar note. Then they were at once provided with one. Capt. Hall reached home at 8.45 last night from Hamilton. He lost all his baggage. Capt. Hall was formerly bridge inspector on the very section of road on which the accident happened.

MR. WALKER'S ACCOUNT.

Mr. Walker was on his way home from San Francisco, having been absent from Toronto since Feb. 8. Mr. Walker had a berth in the Wagner car, "Montpelier," which was the last car of the train. Mr. Walker's account of the wreck is as follows: "At about 6.50 a.m. I was talking to one of the brakemen. I asked him when the train was due in Hamilton and he said at 6.50. I looked at my watch and found it was past that time then. Suddenly I saw the brakeman leave the car and the next moment there was a rumbling and rattling sound ahead of me. Then the train came to a sudden standstill. I told a party of Californians who were in the car with me that I thought something had happened forward. I looked out and saw it was raining very hard.

"I grabbed my overcoat and walked to the front of the train. My first impression was that there had been a land slide and that the engine was about to slide down the hill, as I could hear the great rush of water. This was the water which had evidently been in the tank into which the engine ran. I saw a car with her trucks partly displaced and I could hear groans proceeding from beneath it. We pulled out two or three men from underneath this car and we carried them to a safe distance. I then went back to the end of the train and with the aid of several passengers and train men succeeded in detaching the last two sleepers and shoving them back two or three hundred feet. Had this not been done they would certainly have been burnt with the rest. Then I ran into several of the cars which had not been caught by the flames and shouted out that the train was on fire.

"I got no answers and thought by this time many of the passengers had got out. I was very much astonished at the delay in the arrival of medical help from Hamilton, it being so near the scene of the accident. I was also astonished at the number of people who stood down on the road at the foot of the embankment gazing at the burning train and not offering to give the least bit of assistance. I worked around the wreck giving assistance to the wounded for several hours; I do not know how long. Then I went to the city. When I left the scene of the accident six or seven of the cars had been burnt to the trucks. We were all under the impression at that hour that the number of killed was only two and that the wounded was about a dozen. I was very much astonished when I learned afterwards that so many bodies were taken out of the debris. I think they must all have been in the smoker and the passenger car immediately behind it. When the flames got through with their work I think it was the worst looking railway wreck I ever saw in my life."

MR. A. H. DIXON'S STORY.

Mr. A. H. Dixon of King-street west traveled from Detroit on the ill-fated train. He was one of those who escaped from the scene of horror unscathed, and was able last night to tell a connected account of his thrilling experiences. "As far as I can judge," he said, "it was 10 minutes to 7 when the accident occurred. I was in the first sleeper and felt a slight shock. This was followed by a kind of grinding motion, which afterwards turned out to have been caused by the car jumping the rail and grating the outside flange. I think it took me just 15 seconds to reach the rear door of the coach and spring off. I was followed by Captain Hall, who had come down with me from Detroit, [illegible]

THE PRIZE HORSES.

There was considerable interest manifested at the spring show of the West Peterborough Agricultural Society on Saturday afternoon, and the awarding of the prizes was watched with interest. The judges of the horses were Messrs. Geo. McKee, Alex. McLeod and Elias Thompson, and Messrs. R. R. and W. Birdsall judged the cattle.

The competition in each class was good, and especially in the coach stallions and roadsters was there some close judging for the red-ticket. In the former of these two S. Staples' "Lord Sudley" was given first prize and John Patterson's "Chenau" was awarded second. Both of these animals are magnificent horses, and have both been Provincial winners, "Lord Sudley" having taken the red ticket every time. In the roadster class F. J. Daly's "Jim Rysdyke" won the red-ticket. This horse is a very fine animal and showed remarkably well in the ring. He is two years and two months old, and has beautiful lines and is well bred. He was sired by "Phil Rysdyke" out of "Nellie Patchen," and his pedigree would lead to the assurance that he will be found to have speed in him, and that the fondest hopes of his many admirers will be realized.

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

The list of prize winners in all the classes were as follows:—

CLASS I. IMPORTED CLYDESDALE SHIRES OR SUFFOLKS, (three entries).—1st Wm. M. Fair's "John Anderson," 2nd Levi Bowles' "Brown Stout."

CLASS II. CANADIAN BRED CLYDESDALES, (five entries).—1st Michael Sullivan's "Young Criffle"; 2nd, John Hooton's "Young British Lion."

CLASS III. COACH AND CARRIAGE STALLIONS, (four entries).—1st F. J. Daly's "Jim Rysdyke"; 2nd Dr. A. R. Stephenson's "Kentucky."

CLASS VI. AGRICULTURAL STALLIONS, (five entries).—James Moore's "Young Lothair," (diploma)

BULLS.

DURHAMS.—Two years old and under—1st, A. A. Cox's "Wait on Me." Yearling—1st, Jos. Redmond; 2nd, H. Davidson.

HOLSTEINS.—Two years and over—1st, Stothart Bros.'s "Valpariso"; 2nd, Stothart Bros.'s unnamed. One year olds—1st, Stothart Bros.

JERSEYS.—Two years old and over—1st, Ed. Sanderson's "Prince of Jersey."

Baseball Again.

The international baseball games for this season commence to-morrow, and Mr. Sam Ray will once more have the old reliable score board in position at his tobacco store on Hunter-st., where baseball cranks and sports generally can find out "how the score is" as soon as the games are finished.

Question.

A "Topic Party? What is a Topic Party? This is the question that has been agitating the minds of many since it was announced that the members of the "Y" are to give a very unique entertainment under that name at the residence of Mrs. Early, George-st., Thursday evening, May 2nd. Let all the curious attend and become enlightened. Tickets 25 cents. 2d100

Dr. Sutherland's Address.

The Rev. A. Sutherland, D. D., of Toronto, will deliver an address in the Opera House this evening on "Canada's New Party." Mr. George Hilliard will take the chair. The meeting will be open to ladies as well as gentlemen. Special invitations have been sent to the M. Ps. and M. P. Ps. on both sides of the river and they are expected to be present. There will be a silver collection. 1d

Money for Some Lady.

Chief Roszel has the price of a bag of potatoes in his possession awaiting an owner. A farmer came to the police station on Saturday and said a lady had purchased a bag of potatoes from him on the market and paid for them, but that he had been unable to find the house as he had forgotten her name. He, therefore, left the money paid for the fruit of the hills with the Chief, who now wants the purchaser of the potatoes that never came, to put in an appearance at the police station.

He Claims the Credit.

Section Foreman Roach, of Clairmont, claims the credit for preventing the tragedy on the C.P.R. between Clairmont and Green River on Wednesday of last week. He says he was working on a rise in the road when he saw the runaway freight cars coming from the east and the express tearing along form the west, and taking in the situation at a glance he sent a man along the track to flag the express, and this was how Engineer Charlton was enabled to stop his train and reverse his engine before the collision occurred. Give Caesar his due, and if Roach deserves the credit why all honor to him.

Seizures of Salt.

The Dominion Government is determined that the community shall not be imposed upon by light weight salt. The officials are keeping a sharp eye on the salt that is sold in barrels, and on Friday a seizure of a car load was made here and another in Lakefield. Inspector Irwin made the seizures after examining the salt. He found of the car load weighed here only eighteen barrels were 280 pounds gross, the required weight, and at Lakefield eleven barrels were weighed, only one of which was full weight and the others ranged from [illegible] pounds up. The salt was shipped by Rightmyer & Co. of Clinton. The matter has been reported and Mr. Johnston, the chief of the division, is now in the vicinity of the packers' establishments to enquire into matters.

An Expensive Drive.

Charles Baker, a young man who from general appearances should have more good sense than his behavior on Saturday would evidence, was before the Magistrate at the Police Court this morning charged with furious driving on a public street. It appears that on Saturday evening Baker came down George-st. in a buggy, driving his horse at a rather furious gait and applying the whip liberally. He had not gone far on the crowded thoroughfare when he collided with a buggy in which were seated Mrs. Jas. Perrin and her daughter, of South Monaghan. The collision upset the ladies' buggy and its two occupants were thrown into the muddy street but fortunately escaped very serious bodily injury, although Miss Perrin's silk jacket was made unfit for future wear. Several witnesses were called on the case, and from these it seemed that Baker was not sober at the time and was reckless in his driving; and Police Magistrate Dumble fined him five dollars and costs ($9.25) or twenty days in gaol. The fine was paid.

REVIEWS.

ST. NICHOLAS.—The May number of the admirable publication is, in the expressive vernacular of a ten year old, who has looked its pages over, a "Daisy Number." Filled from cover to cover with bright illustrations and enticing print, it holds its place as the first of magazines that are children's very own. Among the contents are several continued tales and a perfect bouquet of new and short stories. "A Lost Opportunity" by Tudor Jenks and charmingly illustrated by Birch, tells, with a touch of scientific sarcasm, of the possibilities achieved centuries ago, in the way of discovery and progress. "La Tour D'auvergne" is a charming account of The First Grenadier of France, and how he, single handed, held the fort. "Cuff, the orphan bear cub," will delight the average boy, and the Dogs of Noted Americans is a subject that has the element of freshness. The balance of the contents are equally attractive. On sale by all booksellers and from the Publishers, the Century Company, New York.

THE MANITOBA TRAGEDY.

Further Particulars of the Triple Crime at High Bluff.

WINNIPEG, April 28.—Later details of the High Bluff horror show that the terrible crime was committed just after breakfast Friday, or perhaps during that meal, as the partly eaten dishes still remained on the table, at which were set three chairs. The supposition is that McLeod, who is thought to have been a little cracked, first attacked the boy and Isabella, the daughter, ran for shelter to her bedroom. Her shoes were covered with blood as if she had stepped in her brother's gore. A deep gash in her head from which the brains oozed showed that death must have been almost instantaneous.

After placing the bodies of the children on the bed, McLeod evidently cut his own throat at the bedside with a blunt table knife, which fell from his grasp through a crack in the floor to the cellar, where it was found. He must have lain there some time and then crawled to the outer room, where, covered with blood he expired.

The boy is still alive but can only live a short time.

McLeod had two other children at school at Portage la Prairie and had talked of sending for them with the probable murderous intention of slaying them all. Ever since the death of their mother two years ago, McLeod's children have been sadly neglected and the neighbors sent two to school. This rankled in the father's mind and he always feared that they would starve on account of his [illegible]. Financial difficulties at last overtook him, and then followed the horrible crime, committed doubtless when the unfortunate man was temporarily insane.

Prince Battenberg's Romantic Career.

Not yet 30 years of age, mind you, and yet Prince Alexander of Battenberg has experienced all the dark days and crossings in life that any young man can ever hope to carry. A soldier of fortune, he passed from the Prussian to the Russian ranks, and without friends and few prospects was so sweetly smiled upon by Dame Fortune that by and by he sat on a throne of his own in a foreign land. Of course the Bulgarian crown was not exactly an ideal one to wear, but for a person whose most ambitious dream could never have been more than to retire at the end of his career as a general, to pass his old days in some German castle home on half pay, it was a good deal. However, in a few short years, after tasting the sweets of power, the grand captain of heroically gained battle fields learned the ingratitude of a people and found his royal joys exhausted. Next he knew the distress of exile; then he picked up acquaintance with the delightful temper and sarcasm of an English queen, and finally, at the house of a kinsman in Darmstadt, met an opera singer of the third rank and fell in love. With a little more patience, perhaps, he might have been the brother-in-law of a mighty monarch, but he had had enough of the vanities of this world, and wishes to choose for wife a good little creature with whom to lead a tranquil and quiet life hereafter.—Paris Cor. New Orleans Picayune.

Jay Gould's Daughter Nellie.

Miss Nellie Gould, the great financier's eldest daughter, probably has more independent property than any other unmarried woman in America. She is her father's favorite; and every year he gives her presents of stocks and bonds which amount up into the hundred thousands. He takes great pains with her investments also, with the result that her fortune grows apace every year. Added to this, her mother, who had a fortune of several millions, left the greater share of her property to Nellie; so that she is estimated to be worth over $6,000,000. Her life has been passed in the quietest way, and, though she is but 20 years of age, her mode of existence is as quiet and humdrum as though she were forty. The big Gould mansion rarely sees any festivity, and an awning up in front of their door would throw the neighborhood into a panic of excitement. Her mother's failing health has been partly the cause of this, for Miss Gould was not only her devoted attendant and companion, but was also the head of the household and bore its whole responsibility. They have a box at the opera, but they are not very regular attendants, and the only place in which she is frequently seen is the Presbyterian church of which she is a member. She interests herself in charities also, and in half a dozen summer homes for sick babies and poor women.—New York Letter.

Decline of Steamboating.

Very large steamboats are no longer built on the Mississippi, so that but few of the class which were once so common are now seen on the river. The burning of the White, Richardson and Kate Adams wiped out the three last of the great floating palaces of the lower Mississippi. Their places have never been filled, and there is no incentive to build any more of the same sort. They were immense boats for passenger traffic, and as fine as the ocean steamers. But the railroads made them unprofitable. During the last two years of their service they lost money, because they could not get the passenger trade. The railroads had entered their territory and deprived them of the principal source of income. The boats are now forced into narrow channels, and must go where the railroads cannot reach. Hence they navigate in small streams, which were formerly despised, and where large boats could not go. This state of affairs requires shallow keels and light draught. Small, swift vessels are now used where the competition is close. The palace of the era of the '70s has passed out of existence.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

They're not doing it without having first compared and decided that ours bear away the prize for shapeliness and quality as well as for faultless making and moderate prices. Gentlemen are critical when it comes to getting a light weight Hat. They are a necessity in these spring days—a necessity in which they esteem style as essential. Witness the demand for our Genuine Cooksy, Woodrow and Ellwood Celebrated Zephr weight Hats made especially for us. There is something peculiar and inimitable about the gracefulness of our Hats.

Horses vs. Bicyclist on Simcoe-st.

Wm. Hendren, a young man who clerks in Elliott & Tierney's, met with an accident from which he was exceedingly fortunate to escape with no very serious injuries. The accident occurred a few minutes after twelve o'clock at noon to-day, when Hendren was riding to dinner on his bicycle. He was going along Simcoe-st. at a pretty good rate and did not hear a team of horses which were coming out of the lane leading into the yards behind the Snowdon House. The team was also coming at a good speed and they struck the bicycle before they could be pulled in and Hendren was thrown headlong to the ground. However, he escaped with a bad shaking up, although his bike was badly smashed, the horses stepping on it.

PARISHIONERS' GOOD-BYE

ADDRESSES PRESENTED TO HIS LORDSHIP AND FATHER M'EVAY.

Bishop Dowling Makes a Lengthy and Well-Worded Reply—Rev. Father McEvay says Farewell—The Addresses and Replies in Full.

After vespers at St. Peter's Cathedral last evening, the congregation presented farewell addresses to His Lordship Bishop Dowling and their pastor, Rev. Father McEvay, who before another Sabbath's services will have left the diocese, His Lordship to enter upon his high and holy duties as Bishop of the important diocese of Hamilton and Rev. Father McKvay to be His Lordship's chancellor. There was an immense congregation present, and, needless to say, the words that fell from the lips of His Lordship and the Rev. Father found most attentive ears and will be treasured up by a people who feel keenly the separation and departure at the same time of their Bishop and their pastor, to both of whom they, one and all, had become attached and learned to love and honor. Rev. Father Kloepfer, of Berlin, who will be master of ceremonies at the consecration services on Wednesday, was present at the services last evening.

THE ADDRESS TO HIS LORDSHIP.

After vespers the committee who have had the matter in charge entered the altar rail and, while the entire congregation remained standing, Mr. Thos. Kelly read the following address to His Lordship Bishop Dowling:—

To His Lordship the Right Rev. Thomas Joseph Dowling, D.D., Bishop of Hamilton:—

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR LORDSHIP:—It is with feelings of the greatest regret, that we approach your Lordship on behalf of the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral to bid you farewell.

Two years ago this month your Lordship came amongst us to assume for the first time the sacred duties of a Bishop of the church of God, and though a stranger to us personally your reputation for piety, zeal, and learning had preceded you, and in this very sanctuary we welcomed you as a worthy successor of the saintly Prelate whom but a short time previously God had called to his eternal reward. From the first we have regarded your Lordship with feelings of respect and veneration, and as time went on our knowledge of your benevolent and self-sacrificing character increased and so won our love and esteem that when the rumor reached us that the Holy See proposed to translate you to another Diocese, we earnestly prayed that it might be the will of God that you should remain with us, and continue to devote your untiring zeal, and your distinguished learning and abilities, for the benefit of God's Holy Church in the Diocese of Peterborough. But it was not to be, and though our sorrow is great, we reverently submit to the will of Him, whose untiring hand has placed you in a more important sphere, where you will best serve His interests.

Our parish has benefitted in many ways since Your Lordship's residence in our midst. It has benefitted, not only by the constant example of the beauty and humility of your daily life, by your learned and eloquent instructions, but also by the good works you will leave behind you as evidences of your thoughtful care and regard for the Catholics of Peterborough. In your anxiety for the health and comfort of the Cathedral clergy, you have removed the old and delapidated parochial house which had done service in days gone by, and purchased a home for the priests more in harmony with their wants and numbers, and with the dignity of the Cathedral parish. We also congratulate you on the purchase of a suitable Episcopal residence, which is an ornament to our town, supplying a want long felt for the convenience of a Bishop, and for the accommodation of all the Diocesan clergy on the occasion of retreats and conferences.

We learned with gratitude from the late financial statement of the Chancellor, that by the generosity of your clergy throughout the Diocese and their respective flocks, and other personal benefactors, you were enabled to pay for the Bishops' house without imposing any additional burden on the Cathedral parish of Peterborough. The two beautiful and commodious houses with their furniture and surroundings are now and for all future time, thanks to your zeal, the property of the Diocese.

Among the many good and noble works of Your Lordship in the administration of the affairs of this Diocese, there is one in particular which will serve to illustrate that feeling of charity and good will towards all men that characterizes the priests of our holy religion, and that is so happily exemplified in Your Lordship. We allude to the founding of St. Joseph's Hospital, a charitable institution, intended for the relief of the poor and infirm of every creed. Your Lordship's memory will always be enshrined in the hearts of those present, and we hope that when this generation shall have passed away St. Joseph's Hospital will stand for generations to come as a monument to the zeal and piety of its founder.

And now it becomes our sad duty to say farewell. God spare you long to rule over the Diocese of Hamilton, and may the reward of your labors be eternal joy in His heavenly Kingdom, will always be the sincere and heartfelt prayer of the congregation of St. Peter's.

BISHOP DOWLING'S FAREWELL WORDS.

His Lordship, who was apparently much affected by the kind words and sentiments of the address and the occasion of the presentation, replied about as follows:—

My Dear Friends and Beloved Parishioners:

It has been often said by friends who perhaps thought too kindly of my sermons that it was no trouble for me to speak, that I had no difficulty in finding words to express my thoughts. Well, let me assure you that whatever may be said of the past I find that difficulty to-night. I am at a loss to know how to begin. It is so hard to bring oneself to say that sad word "Good-bye," and yet it should not be a sad word, for it is only another way of saying in English "God be with you." For a long time past I have shared in that sorrow of which you speak in your kind address, our mutual sorrow at the very thought of separation. There is a tenderness that it is very hard to suppress in parting from persons and places that we love. God has been pleased to impart in the hearts of the young love for home and kindred, and the same God has implanted in the heart of a true priest a supernatural love for the souls committed to his care. Three times in my life I have realized the pangs and pain of separation. First, when as a student I left my father's home; secondly, when as a priest I had to part with my first parish, and now, thirdly, when I have as a bishop to say farewell to the flock of St. Peter's Cathedral, which was the first to receive me as their chief pastor and to bid me an affectionate and hearty welcome on the day of my entrance into the diocese. The joy and enthusiasm with which you received me that day were more than ample compensation for any sacrifice I may have made in severing my connection with my last parish. Stranger as I was personally to you, I may say of you as St. Paul said of his people that you received me as an angel of God. "For Christ," says the apostle, "we are ambassadors," and, unworthy as I am of the dignity, I came amongst you simply to do the work of God, and for all the acts of kindness and generosity done for me personally and officially from the first day I came amongst you, I now beg of you to accept my most sincere and heartfelt thanks. In your kindly estimate of your bishop you are pleased to ascribe to him many talents and many virtues which I know I do not possess, but whatever may be my defects my heart was always in my work, my people always in my thoughts and my constant endeavor has been to promote, as well as I knew how, the glory of God, the good of the parish, the prosperity of the diocese and the sanctification of the souls of priests and people committed to my spiritual charge. Whatever good may have been effected, whatever may have been attained, I take no credit to myself, but attribute all, first, to the goodness of God who has been pleased to bless my humble efforts, for unless the Lord build the house they labor in vain who build; secondly, under God, this prosperity is due to the faithful co-operation of the exemplary priests of the diocese, and, lastly, to the constant zeal and generosity of the faithful of the diocese. The longer I lived in this diocese the more I learned to love it. I loved the people for their piety, the place for its beauty, the clergy for their fidelity and the ranks in which I was engaged for the pleasure of promoting them as well as for the sacred purposes to which they were to be devoted. What the Royal prophet said of the temple I may say of your cathedral, "Lord, I have loved the beauty of Thy house." It is a pleasure for me to know that something has been done during my administration to beautify both the interior and the surroundings of St. Peter's Cathedral, and that in the erection of St. Joseph's hospital I have been in some extent instrumental in leaving in your midst a monument that for all future time will proclaim the heaven-born charity of the children of the Catholic church. In the fond hope of being allowed to live and labor in this diocese for the rest of my days, I laid all the reasons before the Holy Father. His answer was that he regretted to remove me, that he sympathized with your feelings and with mine and that he would send you a chief pastor in the person of Rt. Rev. Dr. O'Connor who would walk in my footsteps and keep me always in your memory. Rome has spoken, it remains for us only to obey the voice of the Vicar of Jesus Christ. I thank God that in the person of Dr. O'Connor you will have a Bishop after God's own heart and one who has been a life long friend of mine. His presence here as Chief Pastor will serve as another reason, please God, to bring me back often to see you and to speak to you and to visit those educational and charitable institutions which are a credit to your piety, to the parish and to the town. Meantime I ask a daily remembrance in your prayers, and promise to remember you at the holy sacrifice. May the blessing of Almighty God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost descend upon you and remain with you forever."

TEMPORAL AND SPIRITUAL PROGRESS

ADDRESS TO FATHER M'EVAY.

Dr. Brennan then read the following address to Rev. Father McEvay, which was accompanied by a purse containing a substantial sum of money:—

To the Rev. F. P. McEvay, P. P., Rector of the Cathedral and Chancellor of the Diocese of Peterborough:

REVEREND AND DEAR FATHER,—Among the many duties we owe to our pastor, the saddest is perhaps that which devolves upon us this evening, of bidding you in the name of your parishioners and of your many warm friends in Peterborough a most affectionate farewell.

We have met for the threefold purpose of giving expression to the esteem and love we have for your person, to our gratitude and appreciation of your valuable service to the parish, and to assure you of our heartfelt sorrow at the thought of separating from a pastor so devoted and so dear to us, and one who in the short space of two years has accomplished so much for the glory of God and the spiritual and temporal interests of the congregation committed to your pastoral charge. The grief we feel in parting with our Bishop is indeed very great, but it is now intensified when we realize that we have also to part with you.

To your enterprise and zeal and self-sacrifice, revered and dear father, under the guidance of His Lordship, we know that we are largely indebted for the many improvements that have been made in the Cathedral and its surroundings. Under your wise and prudent administration as rector of the Cathedral we have enjoyed many spiritual and temporal advantages. Your daily attendance to our spiritual wants, your frequent and fervent exhortations and your constant zeal for the education of youth have borne visible fruit among us, and will never be forgotten by your parishioners. Your whole life indeed has been one of self-sacrifice, as exemplified by the many years devoted to your studies, by your untiring and successful energy in the difficult and scattered missions confided to your care, and by the readiness with which you gave up your home and parish at the request of your good Bishop to assume the heavy burden that awaited you here. We thank God, however, that your obedience, self-sacrifice and zeal have been abundantly blessed. Our cathedral and parish property are now in good order, and our parochial debt reduced to comparatively small proportions, thanks to your untiring zeal, whilst to your admirable tact and administrative ability we are largely indebted for most of the funds on hand for the foundation and construction of St. Joseph's hospital, a monument of true Christian charity with which the names of Bishop Dowling and of Chancellor McEvay will be forever inseparably associated.

While sincerely sorry to part with you we humbly submit to the decree and decision of the bishop and we heartily rejoice to know that your future lot will be associated with that of a prelate who loves you so well and who is so deeply interested in your welfare. We pray God to grant you strength and grace, and many years of health and happiness to labor as successfully for His glory and the good of the church of Hamilton as you have done in the diocese of Peterborough.

"We hope in conclusion to often have the pleasure of a visit from you, promising you a frequent remembrance in our prayers and trusting that you in return will often remember us at the altar, and humbly ask, dear Father, your acceptance of this small souvenir as a token and pledge of the esteem, love and gratitude entertained for you by your spiritual children of the cathedral and your many true and devoted friends of the town of Peterborough.

Signed on behalf of the town congregation:—

REV. FATHER M'EVAY'S REPLY.

Rev. Father McEvay replied in words substantially as follows:—

MY DEAR FRIENDS,—I scarcely know how to begin to answer your very beautiful and your very flattering address, your own goodness depicted what I ought to be rather than what I am. To tell you the truth I was somewhat alarmed when His Lordship told me that he wished me to take charge of this large and important parish, but a priest's duty is to obey his Bishop, and I came trusting on the one hand to your own good dispositions and on the other to the advice and direction and encouragement I knew I would receive from so kind and so able a prelate, and anything that has been done during my short stay here must be attributed to his zeal and wisdom and to your own generous co-operation with his views. For when the people work with the priests and the priests with the Bishop then a chain is formed sufficiently strong to remove all obstacles, and if in the discharge of my duties I have said anything too severe, I take this opportunity to apologize to those who may have been wounded by my remarks. I take this occasion also to thank His Lordship for the many acts of kindness I have received from him since I came to Peterborough. I feel grateful to the priests, and especially to my successor in office, for the valuable assistance they have rendered to me at all times, and I thank you, my friends, most sincerely, both for your exceedingly generous purse and particularly for the good will and encouragement and generosity which you have shown in every undertaking since I came amongst you. And in conclusion I ask a fond remembrance in your prayers, and in return will promise to remember both you and your children at God's holy altar. I now bid you an affectionate farewell. May God bless you all.

ODDFELLOWS AT CHURCH.

The Anniversary Sermon by Rev. J. C. Davidson—Appropriate and Eloquent.

Notwithstanding that the weather was not auspicious there was a large turnout of Oddfellows yesterday to attend service at St. John's Church, where the Rev. J. C. Davidson was to preach the anniversary sermon to the members of the Order. The procession was headed by the Canton in full uniform, and the church was reached about half past three o'clock. The services proved to be of a very interesting character, and the sermon by Rev. Mr. Davidson was an excellent discourse and most appropriate to the character of the audience he was addressing. The singing of the choir was also admirable. The services had been neatly printed and a copy given to each Oddfellow, so that all, no matter whether he was familiar with the English Church service or not, was enabled to enter heartily into the services throughout. The centre pews of the sacred edifice had been reserved for the members of the Order, and the remainder of the church was filled to its utmost capacity with their friends.

THE SERMON.

Rev. Mr. Davidson based his able discourse on the words:—

"So Jonathan made a covenant with the house of David."—1 Samuel xx.; 16.

The rev. gentleman said they could all see very early the importance, if not the entire necessity, of making covenants in every part of life. In commerce, in the interests of trade; in society, in which the sacredness and morality of the home and family were guarded in the marriage covenant; and in the case of religion, which began with a definite covenant in which the individual, on one side, recognizes certain responsibilities which he owes to God, and God, on His side, handed over certain privileges to man. They, as members of the Order of Oddfellows, could appreciate that covenant of which they had read in the lesson, the covenant between David and Jonathan—one made between man and man for mutual protection. This was the covenant of truth, but there was also one of friendship and love. The rev. gentleman then referred to the objects of the covenant of Oddfellows and to the good that and said that right heartily did they deserve and right heartily did they receive his congratulations on that anniversary day and right heartily did he express the hope that their future might be brighter than the past and that more brilliant success might rest upon their banner in the future than during the past seventy years. He said these were no mere platitudes, or, as a minister, he recognized that the objects to which they pledged themselves were closely akin to those laid down by the founder of our religion, Jesus Christ. He asked if it was not right that a man should, instead of thinking only of self and the present time, allow his thoughts to go out to his family and into the future to a time of darkness and trouble, which would surely come to them all, and he pointed out that the Lord's saying "Take no thought of the morrow" meant they should not worry. He said he recognized that the duties and ministrations to which an Oddfellow was bound were also closely akin to the duties and ministrations of the church and the Saviour. He spoke to them of true benevolence, as exemplified in the life of Christ, which never wearied. He said they were bound with a solemn covenant and as a result a vast amount of human misery had been relieved and averted, but while recognizing this, he said there was another covenant. The covenant of an Oddfellow would not suffice them, as it was only a worldly one—a covenant between man and man, but there was another—the covenant with their Almighty and Everlasting God—one upon which they could rely when life was over. After dwelling eloquently on this covenant between God and man and pointing out the difference between it and the one between man and man he closed by saying: "Members of Oddfellowship in Peterborough, you have entered into a covenant. You have seen the benefits of that covenant and you may look forward to still better benefits, but as God's minister I invite you to make sure that you have entered into this second covenant, and if not, now I ask you to enter into that covenant."

A collection was taken up in aid of the Protestant Home, and after the closing hymn the congregation joined heartily in singing "God Save the Queen."

EXPRESSING THEIR THANKS.

Upon returning to Otonabee Lodge room an open meeting was held, and a couple of resolutions were adopted and a few of the brethren in short addresses expressed their pleasure at the appropriate, practical and instructive sermon to which they listened. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:—

Moved by Bro. Hartley, P. G. of Peterborough Lodge, seconded by Bro. Ewly, P. G. of Otonabee Lodge, "That the thanks of the Oddfellows of Peterborough be tendered the Rev. J. C. Davidson, M. A., for his highly appropriate and practical sermon, and to the rector, church wardens and officers of St. John's church for their kindness in placing the church at the disposal of the members of the Order, and also to the organist and members of the choir for their kind assistance."

The Place to Buy.

The public are well aware that Elliott & Tierney's is the place to get the best Value in Groceries; their goods require no puffing. The bargains in all lines of goods are wonderful. Call at the Palace Grocery for square dealing and good articles at lowest prices A full line of Vanderous & Holmes (New York) biscuits, very fine goods.

Raising the Question of a Bonus.

The departure of Mr. A. W. Brodie and the removal of his mill machinery and of a number of his employees to Hespeler, has brought up the question that had a bonus been offered would he have remained. Possibly not, as Mr. Brodie is taking hold of a business of larger proportions and one which we hope will prove remunerative. Whether a bonus is essential to establishing manufactories or assisting those in operations to enlarge their borders is doubtful but on the other hand the fact remains that at M. Sullivan & Co's. dry goods of latest styles are sold so cheap that a bonus would not lower prices one cent. Ladies looking for summer dresses should call. The newest and most stylish goods fairly rivalling the best city stocks now on the shelves. Give Sullivan & Co. a call. d26tf

We wish to raise the standard of clothing in this town, and we say to the men do not be an eye-sore by wearing badly-fitting clothing, but come to a house where you can be suit-in goods and suited in Style. ROYAL TEMPLARS.

A Sermon to the Order by Rev M. L. Pearson on its Anniversary.

Yesterday was the anniversary of the Order of Royal Templars, and it was remembered here by Bro. the Rev. M. L. Pearson preaching a special sermon to the members of Peterborough Council at the morning service in the George-st church. The members did not attend in a body, but a large number were present.

Mr. Pearson chose as his text Daniel vi.; 3—"Then this Daniel was preferred above the presidents and princes, because an excellent spirit was in him; and the king thought to set him over the whole realm." The grandest subject for human study, the preacher said, was a noble character. Instead of dwelling on the principles of the Order of Royal Templars, which had a branch in this town and the motto of which was "Hope, Love and Truth," he would study the character of Daniel and see if it did not embody the same principles. Daniel was of a noble Hebrew family, if not of the royal household. As a lad he was a witness of the vices of the court of Judea, yet he was a pious man, and when carried away a captive he still earnestly and faithfully served God. No man was known to himself or to others until he was tried. The light of Daniel's religious character shone forth as resplendently amid the fascinations of the foreign country as in the less alluring attractions of his home. Babylon was idolatrous. He was the favorite of the king, but he lived above his smiles When the requirements of the king and his duty to god came in contact, his reply always was God. The work of God was his mission, and it swallowed up every mean impulse and every base desire. He then referred to some of the principal incidents in Daniel's life, his religious objection to defiling himself with the king's meat or wine, the physical benefits of his dietary system, his courage in interpreting the king's dream, his reading of the handwriting on the wall at Belshazzar's feast, and his appointment as chief man of the kingdom. He did not conform to the usages of the country, and courtesy to the king and the requirements of customs did not draw him from God. The allurements of offices and the interests of parties should not lead one from the right course. Would Daniel have been among the 13 or among the 188? He would not say which side was right in that vote, but he would say that 188 against 13 would not have discouraged Daniel. He would be one against a thousand for the right. An ambitious young man was in danger if he was not a man of prayer. Daniel loved his country and nothing would draw him from the best interests of his country. He was an example of patriotism. Patriotism was a sacred and religious emotion, and when a blasphemous man talked of patriotism they would know that he knew nothing about it. They wanted such politicians as Daniel, and they were coming. They wanted such Prime Ministers in all their governments, and they would be raised up. He urged them to remember Daniel and his example.

MONDAY, APRIL 29, 1889.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER

She had already dressed for dinner, very simply and plainly, in a dark velvet gown, with her pretty, slender throat just showing from out of its soft lace ruffles, and as she sat by the fireside, her little tender hand somehow got stealing up and down the soft velvet of her gown, until all at once the luxury of her surroundings struck her with a sense of wrong, as if by living among them she was doing a positive injury to him who needed them so much more than she did, and to whom, at that moment, they were an impossibility far out of reach.

Not that she could help herself—her duty tied her hard and fast in her father's house, just as fate had sent him to meet what had already perhaps proved his death—her father was so old and—and then, oh! she suddenly remembered him in the midst of her own trouble, remembered that he would see the evening papers at his club, and would look eagerly for news from the front, and so would receive the intelligence of his son's danger without in any way having it broken to him.

Quickly almost as the thought struck her, she jumped up and ran down into the hall, where the fire was blazing away cheerily and casting pretty gleams of light up the tall quaint screen which formed a sort of chimney corner to it. There was nobody there, so without waiting to summon a servant to inquire if he had returned home, Nancy turned and ran up the staircase again, going this time to his dressing room.

He was not there, either, but as Nancy pushed open the door after knocking twice, his man Darby came out of the bedroom with a can of water in his hand.

"Has Mr. Earle returned yet, Darby?" Nancy asked, breathlessly.

"Not yet, Miss Earle," he answered, with a glance at the little horseshoe clock on the chimney shelf; "and it is twenty minutes to 8, rather less, for that clock is a minute or two slow."

"There is awful news from Burmah, Darby," said Nancy, trembling. "There has been a great engagement—and Mr. Stuart is wounded, severely wounded."

"You don't say so, ma'am," exclaimed Darby, who, in common with all the servants both in Hans place and Earles Hope, detested the heir to the old name. The tone was not very sympathetic; in fact, it expressed the well bred surprise of a good servant rather than sympathy at all—but he was sorry for Nancy, and his thoughts went straight to the effect the news might have upon his master. "I hope the master will not see the papers at the club, Miss Earle," he said, anxiously.

Nancy was about to speak, when a furious peal at the bell of the outer door sounded through the house.

"There he is," she said, and ran out of the room and down the stairs just as the servant, who had come up from below, opened the door.

But it was not her father; and instead of his tall and striking figure appearing out of the gloom of the winter's evening, a short, stout and roseate gentleman walked into the house.

"Oh! Sir George," Nancy cried, recognizing one of her father's most intimate friends.

"My dear young lady," said Sir George St. Leger, kindly, "I am sorry—but there is sad news!"

"I have seen the papers—I know," Nancy answered, quickly. "And my father?"

By this time he had drawn her to the fireside, and was holding both her hands in his.

"I am very sorry, my dear, that your poor father has seen them, too," said he, very kindly, "and the shock—it's no use my trying to spin it out; I told them at the club that I was the wrong man to send on an errand of this kind," he broke off.

"Oh! go on. Don't keep me waiting," Nancy said, imploringly. "Tell me the worst at once. Is he dead?"

"Oh! no—no—no, my dear child," cried the little old gentleman, eagerly; "certainly not—nothing of the kind. But it was a very great shock, of course, to our dear old friend, and he had a kind of seizure—a faintness, or something of that sort, and they are bringing him home, some of the others, in his own carriage; so I took a cab and hurried on to say it would be safer to get the doctor here as quickly as possible. Just a precaution, you know, my dear," pressing her hands ere he set them free.

Nancy put the hand which was nearest to him back into his.

"How good you are," she said, turning round at the same time. "Jones, will you send out at once for Dr. Davies? Don't let them lose a moment, Darby; you have everything ready for my father, have you not?"

"Everything, ma'am," said Darby, who had been prepared for trouble of this kind from the moment the young mistress had told him the bad news of the young master.

"You would like me to stay until they come, or is there anything that I can do, my dear?" asked Sir George, kindly.

"Oh! no. There is so little that any of us can do," she answered, hopelessly; "but do stay, please."

So Sir George drew her down on to the cosy couch, sheltered by the tall Chinese screen, and together they waited during the few minutes, that seemed so interminably long, before the sound of the carriage was heard without.

Naturally enough, Darby was the first to approach the carriage, and as soon as his eyes fell upon the helpless and motionless figure of his master, he looked over his shoulder at the butler and said, imperatively: "Get Miss Earle out of sight—it's paralysis."

Thus bidden, Jones did his best, but Nancy was close behind him. "I am quite prepared for anything, Jones," she said, with intense calmness. "Don't waste time trying to persuade me to go away—they need your help."

AWFUL HORROW AT THE Y

was difficult to get off, as soon as your foot would touch the ground it would strike against a tie. It was not until the car had almost stopped that we found it safe to get off. When we finally found ourselves safe we saw the passengers getting out of the other cars ahead as if nothing particular had happened. As we reached the first part of the train we saw two dead men lifted out of the first passenger coach, and this with the exception of the wounded everyone believed to be the extent of the fatality. The two bodies had just been taken out when the passenger coach, which had telescoped the smoker burst into flames. This drove the rescuers away from both cars, and the railroad men and passengers turned their attention to the wounded. Ex-Ald. Walker, who was in the last sleeper and one of the first out, worked like a hero, and did good work among the wounded. It was not until 12 o'clock that even the railroad people knew the extent of the disaster, and it was only forced upon them by their finding in the burning wreck of the smoker and first passenger car fragments of human bodies, a hand here, a leg there, and in one instance a human head. When I left the scene 18 bodies had been taken out, making the death roll 22, and it is possible there were many more. There were a good many Detroit cadets in the smoker, young fellows on their way to the Washington centennial in New York, and all these must have perished. There were three women in the first passenger coach and these also were victims. It is my opinion that none of them suffered any but were killed instantly. As far as I know there was only one man who escaped out of the smoker. He was standing in the aisle when the crash came talking to a fellow-traveler. The splinters began to fly, and he saw one decapitate his companion as neatly as with an axe. How he himself escaped he could not tell. He reckoned there were some 20 in the smoker. As to the cause of the accident Division Superintendent Larmour says it was the truck of the engine which broke, but there was a rumor around Hamilton that the train which had passed over the spot on the preceding night had been slightly shocked. A man had been sent up to examine the place, but reported nothing wrong. In my opinion the damage to rolling stock will be fully $100,000. You see there is the engine and tender a total wreck and seven cars burned, the baggage car full of baggage, four passenger coaches and two sleepers. You can say that so far as the officials were concerned they worked for all they were worth and did everything in their power to alleviate the sufferings of the wounded."

AN UNFORTUNATE PIECE OF ROAD.

The Scene of Many a Calamity—Some of the Great Horrors.

That part of the Great Western that lies west of Hamilton—from Dundurn to Dundas on the main line, and from the Toronto junction to where the old trestle work crossed the old canal—forms the most expensive portion of the road, costing immense sums for construction. The work is either through or on the side of gravel cliffs and up the mountain. A great many accidents have occurred on this part of this system notwithstanding care is always exercised. Within this small area, say of three miles, occurred the Desjardins canal accident; the catastrophe of yesterday; the accident of last year, by which Peden and Archibald were killed, and the big collision of 1883 between the cut and Dundas.

THE MASON-DOUGLAS ACCIDENT.

On February 15, 1883, a collision occurred on the Great Western about a mile or less west of where the accident of yesterday occurred, that is between the cut and Dundas. The collision was between the Pacific express (10 coaches) and an east bound train of three passenger coaches. Both engines and most of the cars were badly damaged. Engineer Mason of the Pacific express and Thos. S. Douglas of Guelph were killed and seven of the passengers injured.

THE DESJARDINS CANAL ACCIDENT.

The year 1857 was one long to be remembered in this country. It was signalized by the first terrible railway accident that ever occurred in the Province—a calamity which carried desolation to many a Canadian home. On the 12th of March a Great Western Railway passenger train proceeding from Toronto to Hamilton crashed through the bridge spanning the Desjardins Canal in the immediate neighborhood of Hamilton and caused the loss of about seventy lives.

THE PEDEN-ARCHIBALD ACCIDENT.

On the 16th of February, 1888, within 150 yards of a mile from where yesterday's awful accident occurred, two men were killed in a railway collision. At two o'clock in the afternoon a freight train from Point Edward and the Pacific express from Toronto smashed into each other in the "Junction Cut." The express was made up of a parlor car, two passenger coaches, a smoker and an express and baggage car. Thos. Hutchinson was the driver, Robert Archibald fireman, John Edmonson conductor, and Thos. Peden baggageman—all of Hamilton. The freight train was composed of 29 cars and was officered as follows: J. C. Robinson, driver, Stratford; David Vince, conductor, Point Edward; and Robt. Peacock, brakeman, Point Edward.

As the freight was rounding the curve Peacock, Robinson and Fireman Howe, who were in the cab, saw the express approaching and knew at once that a collision was inevitable. They all jumped out and all escaped death with slight injuries. The express hands also saw the approaching freight train and they also jumped for their lives, but Fireman Archibald was killed and Baggageman Peden was crushed to death by the collapse of the baggage car, which flew over the engine of the freight train and rolled down the embankment. Fortunately none of the passengers were killed and only one was injured, Peter Clarke of Buffalo, who had one of his hands cut by broken glass.

OTHER GREAT WESTERN ACCIDENTS.

Humber accident—Jan. 2, 1884, 28 killed outright; 19 wounded, of whom 3 subsequently died.

St. George Bridge accident—Feb. 27, 1889, 10 killed and 29 wounded.

Two other accidents on the Great Western were the Komoka disaster and one between London and Port Stanley, in both of which the loss of life was large.

An 8-Year-Old Murderer.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette

A BROKEN AXLE DID IT.

THE CAUSE OF THE TERRIBLE CALAMITY AT THE "Y."

The Rumored Discovery of More Victims in the Ruins Unfounded—No New Identifications—An Inquest Opened.

HAMILTON, April 29.—The cause of the lamentable calamity at the "Y" yesterday was in all probability made out this afternoon. The wreckers were at work endeavoring to give the coroner's jury who visited the scene a distinct idea of the lay-out of the tracks. One of the axles of the engine was found to be broken. The axle had after the disaster been pitched into mud and water and had also been somewhat burned so that it was impossible to tell by examining the broken ends whether or not the axle had had a flaw in the steel, but from the position in which the engine lay after the plunge into the water tank it is certain that the axle was not broken by being struck by anything either at the time of or immediately after the first crash. The tender of the engine was thrown to one side and it was that which got the full weight of the ten cars behind and caused them to pitch up into a heap. The jury seemed to be of opinion that the broken axle caused the accident, but in order to get more light upon the subject Mr. W. A. Robinson, a prominent manufacturer of this city and an expert in iron and steel working as well as in locomotive engineering, was appointed to make an inspection in order that he might have time to inspect and report.

A rumor was circulated around the city this morning that a lot more bodies, variously estimated at from five to ten, had been found in the ruins. Mr. P. Nelson, the track foreman, was seen in reference to the rumor. He said: "There can be no truth in the report. I was out there yesterday until both tracks were cleared up completely. There could have been no more bodies in the wreck, I think, for all the debris under which a body could be hidden had been sifted in the cleaning up operations."

Other of the railway officials were interviewed and all were of the same opinion.

THE SOLE TOPIC OF THE TOWN.

Nothing Else But the Accident Talked About—At the Undertakers.

HAMILTON, April 29.—Of course there was nothing else talked about in these parts to-day but the appalling railway calamity at the "Y" yesterday morning. It will be many days before the shudder which that awful smash caused will have passed away. The fact that none of the ill-fated travelers are known in this city robs the catastrophe of some of its interest, although the citizens shudder just the same as though the dead were their own kin. It may take days or weeks to identify the killed, and many of them will no doubt go down to unknown graves. It is not thought, from what has been gathered from survivors that any of those in the ill-starred smoking car were persons that would likely be well known, and this fact may delay their identification.

The remnants of the burned victims were taken to Blachford's undertaking establishment to-day, and are now laid out there. So far as can be ascertained at present they are the remains of seventeen persons, and possibly eighteen. There is no doubt that three of them are the remains of women, and one is a child of 8 years, but whether a boy or girl it is impossible to say.

The headless body of Ederer and that of Gurney are also at Blachford's. There is now no doubt of Ederer's identity. The initials "R. J. E." are on his shirt. A careful examination of his scalp—to which a portion of the skin of the face is attached—reveals that Ederer's hair was brown, and that he wore it short and cut pompadour; that he had a full beard and mustache, reddish brown and close-cropped. He was a man about 5 feet 10 inches high. Gurney had no mark on his clothing or anything in his pockets to identify him. A small sum of money—$8.15 in all—was found in one of his pockets to-day. There was $7 in bills and the remainder in American silver, which was in an envelope bearing the name and a cut of the Leland House, Chicago.

Mr. E. R. Saxton arrived here to-day to take charge of the remains of L. S. Gurney of New York. The remains of Ederer and Gurney are the only ones who have thus far been identified.

OPENING AN INQUEST.

The Jury Views the Scene of the Calamity—Evidence About the St. Louis Express.

HAMILTON, April 29.—Dr. A. Woolverton opened an inquest at the City Hospital this morning. The jurors were sworn in: John Hoodless (foreman), Samuel McKay, George Magill, B. Winnifrith, Thomas Littlehales, C. R. Smith, George Lazier, Charles Bird, John Alexander, Samuel Thorne, John A. Barr, John A. Bruce, Henry Arland, Charles Black, Wm. Somerville, Wm. Mewport, J. K. Applegath and Rudolph Rinsmen.

In his opening remarks Coroner Woolverton said that the frequent occurrence of these accidents made it necessary that a searching investigation should be made in the interest of the public. He was glad to see such an intelligent and representative jury empanelled, and he hoped that no pains would be spared to sift the affair to the bottom, and determine on whom lay the blame.

Mr. Hoodless suggested that a detective should be placed at the disposal of the jury and the coroner said this would be done.

Chief Clerk Wallace Testifies.

Joseph Wallace, chief clerk to Superintendent Stiff, was sworn: The wrecked train was No. 52 limited express from Detroit to Suspension Bridge via Sarnia. At London the composition of the train takes place, sections coming over the Wabash from Detroit and the other over the Chicago and Grand Trunk via Sarnia. A sleeper and coach are taken on at Detroit and the train leaves Windsor at 1.40 daily. It is due at Dundas at 6.44. The accident occurred 4½ miles east of Dundas and it would take about eight minutes to run that distance. The train was due to leave London at 4.45, but left on Sunday at 4.55. The following is the due time and actual time along from that point: Paris 6.08, 6.19; Harrisburg 6.23, 6.39; Copetown 6.36, 6.52; Dundas 6.44, 7.00. The wheels were examined in Paris, three minutes being occupied in doing so. Since the St. George accident the engineers have had orders not to make up lost time by fast running.

Mr. Magill—Is it true that the St. Louis express felt a bad jar at that point on Saturday evening previous and had to run back?

Witness had not heard anything of that sort. The running time of the limited express is 43 miles an hour. The St. Louis expresses east and west are timed for 45 miles and 49 miles an hour. Trains should slow down to 25 miles an hour at the point where the accident occurred.

The Grand Trunk authorities put two cars at the disposal of the coroner, and they were run up to the Victoria-avenue crossing, where the jurors embarked, accompanied by the coroner, Mr. Wallace, Mr. Barker, Mr. Hobson and Mr. Armstrong.

When the wreck was reached it was at once apparent that the large gang of men had been industrious during the night. The track was rebuilt, and all the wreck removed except the upturned engine and a nest of wheels and debris in the hole between the tracks. The jurors made a thorough examination of the surroundings and were facilitated in every way in the investigation. The only trace of the run off on the rails removed from the wreck was on the outside rail immediately east of the switch, where there was a deep nick in the end as if the rail just before it had spread and allowed the flange of the engine wheel to light on the end of the rail. While the jury was looking over the ruins the wreckers unearthed the front truck of the engine, the axle of which was broken. This was the only axle broken in the wreck, and some of the jurors thought it might have caused the run off, while others considered that the engine leaping headlong into the hole between the tracks might have caused the break by lighting on the front wheels

After returning from the wreck Coroner Woolverton adjourned the inquest until Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at No. 3 station.

ONLY TWO EYE-WITNESSES.

Little Mamie Ford Tells How the Engine Bumped Up and Down.

HAMILTON, April 29.—So far as could be found only two persons witnessed the accident. Little Mamie Flood, the 14-year-old daughter of the junction switchman, was standing at the window of their house across the ravine when the express came along. "I saw it come out of the curve all right," she said, "but just as it got about half way across the high embankment the engine began to bump up and down and went straight for the tank. The roof and planks flew into the air; then I heard an awful noise and a cloud of steam rose up and in the middle of it the cars were tumbling about. I ran to wake my sister and then we saw the fire begin to blaze up. The train was running very fast at the time I saw it first and the whole thing was over quick."

The reporter unearthed a nice lively old man named Dan'l Young, who keeps a small dairy on the hill south of the wreck. "Yes, I seed the smash-up," he admitted, when a slight impediment in his hearing was overcome. "I was jest goin' towards the cow stable when the express come along an' I seed her go off the rails an' bang up agin the tank. The roof of the tank went shyin' off and the engine turned on its back an' the cars went scooting past an' jumped over everythink."

"I suppose you immediately started up to see what help you could give?"

"Wal, no—not jest then. After I hed milked the cows an' done a few chores I went up and hed a look at it, an' then I come down an' hed breakfast. I tell yer what, young feller, if them men up there hed jest worked anyways-like they could hev saved two more of them cars 's easy as not."

Valentine Flood, the night switchman at the junction, was seen. It was alleged at one time that the switch had been left unlocked, but Mr. Hobson satisfied himself that such was not the case. "I closed and locked the switch thirty-five minutes before the accident," he said, "and had got down to the operator's office when we heard a heavy exhaust of steam and saw some of the trainmen running down. It was 7.05 when the wreck occurred."

BILL PHILLIPS ALL RIGHT.

Hamilton's First Baseman Was Not in the Wreck—Other Notes of the Smash.

HAMILTON, April 29.—This morning Manager Swartwood received a telegram from Bill Phillips stating that he had not left Chicago yet, but would leave this afternoon. He will go direct from there to Syracuse. The reason Phillips did not leave sooner was because he did not receive the letter sent to him by Secretary McKay. It is fortunate that Phillips did not get the letter earlier, as he would most likely have been a passenger on the wrecked train.

Amongst the baggage recovered from the wreck was a trunk addressed "Dan Ferguson, joiner, Boston, Mass." As it has not been claimed it is probable that he was killed.

Among the debris were found two note-books belonging to "F. Simons, Pueblo, Colorado." The owner was evidently a foreigner from Poland, and arrived in America on October 8, 1888. An arithmetic with the name Edmond Johnson was also found.

A. L. Donly, one of the injured at the hospital, has a railway accident policy which he took out before leaving Danville, Ill., and he feels joyful over it. It is said that this gentleman when the accident occurred, though badly hurt, caught up a flag and ran back round the curve to protect the train from any that should follow it.

William Lipsey and Hamilton Clark of Chicago, two of the wounded passengers, are members of the Guiding Star L. O. L. 169, Chicago. The former is secretary and Clark is chaplain of the lodge. When W. Nicholson heard that they were Orangemen he visited them at the hospital and explained that the local brethren would give them any assistance they required. The travelers were on their way to the Washington centennial.

It is likely that W. A. Robinson, formerly mechanical superintendent of the Great Western Railway, will be employed by the jury as an expert in the case.

The engine on the train had been in use for six years. Four years ago it was converted from a small wheel to a large wheel locomotive, especially for speeding purposes.

The injured at the hospital are all doing well except Hamilton Clark, who is rather in a bad way.

The major portion of the mails from Chicago east were consumed in the baggage car. There is usually a great quantity of mail on this train. All the bags for Hamilton are so far missing.

A WOMAN SURVIVOR.

The Only Lady in Her Coach Who Came Out Alive.

BUFFALO, April 29.—Mrs. H. Benjamin was at Tucker's hotel last evening and claimed that she was the only lady in her coach that came out alive. She said: "I was sitting on the left-hand side of the coach looking out at the beautiful little hamlet in a sort of ravine below us. A gentleman had been standing near me talking about the picturesque view, and had started for the smoker. Just as he reached the door there came a terrific crash, a whirl of dust and stars (it seemed to me), and then everything was dark. In the next instant I came to my senses and found that I was lying on my back wedged in so tight that I could not stir. Near me I could hear a man crying: 'My God! my arms; get me out of here!' His cries were something terrible, and somehow hearing them made me struggle.

"I can remember," said she, "six women and seven men in our car that I have not seen since, and I think they must be lost. I think I am the only woman alive out of our car, and how I ever succeeded in throwing the timbers off of me I do not know. I feel bruised about my body, and it makes me shiver and tremble when I think of that man crying: 'Pull me out! Pull me out!' The flames came near catching my clothes."

She was loud in her praise of the employes of the road for the good work they did. "They did nobly," said she, "and I will never cease praising them."

The Detroit Infantry Men Safe

NEW YORK, April 29.—The officers of the Detroit Light Infantry here received a telegram which stated: "In a wreck; all safe." This referred to four members of the corps who escaped uninjured.

The St. George Viaduct Question.

WOODSTOCK, April 29.—The recent accident near Hamilton has caused a revival of talk concerning the St. George viaduct disaster. The responsibility of railways for accidents seems to rest on the fact as to whether every means possible has been taken to avoid such accident. A syndicate of the sufferers by the St. George accident, acting on legal advice, are about to test the question against the Grand Trunk. It is understood that the claimants depend upon what they allege to be a well-known fact, that every old-timer on the Great Western Railway has had at different times expressed his horror and fear of the particular spot, among them W. K. Muir and F. Broughton, ex-managers of the road.

RESTITUTION OFFERED.

Andy Maloney Willing to Surrender Hills & Co.'s Jewelry if Released.

MONTREAL, April 29.—The Maloney-Phillips jewelry case was continued to-day. Andy Maloney was asked by a reporter: "Is it not true that you have offered to give back all the jewelry if the case be dropped?"

"I have offered to give back what jewelry I had, as it does not belong to Von Reinholtz," replied Maloney.

Von Reinholtz's cross-examination was concluded. He said that Mike Maloney was only a spectator at the big gamble. The only person that witness had anything to do with in connection with the game for jewelry was Phillips.

In consequence of compromising discoveries affecting the chiefs of the secret police, Poutiline, the head of that department, and several high officers have been dismissed.

A Horrible Confession.

LONDON, April 29.—A man named Bury, hanged at Dundee on Wednesday for wife murder, left a written confession which should furnish material for Zola. Bury and his wife went to Dundee from London, spent the woman's fortune in drink, and found themselves on the verge of starvation. The woman proposed to earn money by immoral means, which so upset the finely strung nerves of her husband that in a frenzy of rage he strangled her. Then he spent his last shilling in whisky, went to bed drunk, and passed the night within a few feet of the corpse. He awoke sober to meet the glassy glare of his murdered wife's eyes. Bury, in an excess of maddened fear, seized a big knife and slashed and hacked at the corpse for hours. When at length he recovered his self-possession, he proceeded more methodically to work, the idea being to dismember the body and throw the remains piecemeal into the river. But he soon became deadly sick, lost his nerve, and was unable to finish the ghastly task. Finally he wedged the mutilated remains into a big trunk, and night after night for a whole week sat up with the fearsome thing alone, save for the gibbering fiends with which his terrified imagination peopled the room. At the end of the week he surrendered to the police.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

PROROGATION TO TAKE PLACE TO-MORROW.

Three Government Measures Withdrawn—The Railway Resolutions Adopted—The Short Line Agreement.

OTTAWA, April 29.—In the House this afternoon Mr. Davin enquired whether the attention of the Government had been called to the episode occurring in the English House of Commons, and the English press notices respecting the action of the Manitoba Legislature in passing an act on March 2, 1889, repudiating a statutory guarantee of interest on the bonds of the Hudson Bay Railway Company.

Sir John Macdonald said the Government's attention had been called to the matter and so soon as an authentic copy of the Provincial act mentioned was received it would be taken into consideration.

Sir John Macdonald announced that it was the desire of His Excellency the Governor-General to prorogue Parliament on Wednesday if the state of the public business would permit.

Sir John Thompson said, in deference to the desire expressed in the House, he wished to withdraw the bill relating to bills of exchange, checks and promissory notes, which he would again introduce early next session.

On behalf of Hon. Mr. Dewdney Sir John Macdonald announced the withdrawal of the bill amending the act respecting the Rocky Mountain Park.

Sir Adolphe Caron said that since he had introduced his bill amending the Militia Act he had received some very valuable suggestions from officers in various parts of the country, and in order that consideration might be given to these suggestions he would hold over the bill until next session.

Sir John Macdonald said these were all the bills it was at present proposed to drop.

The bill relating to the ocean steamship subsidies agreed to by resolution last week was read a second time on a division.

The House then went into committee on the railway resolutions. These were agreed to:

For a line from Sicamous on the Canadian Pacific Railway in British Columbia to Lake Okanagan, $[illegible].

Cornwallis Valley Railway Company, $3200.

Lake Temiscamingue Colonization Railway Company, $64,000.

Maskinonge and Nipissing Railway, $48,000.

Kingston, Smith's Falls and Ottawa Railway, $64,000.

South Ontario Pacific Railway Company, $128,000.

For a line from St. Cesaire to St. Paul de Abbottsford, Que., $[illegible].

Great Eastern Railway Company of Quebec, $64,000.

Drummond County Railway Company, $14,400.

St. Catharines and Niagara Central Railway Company, $[illegible].

Quebec and Lake St. John Railway, $64,000.

Grand Trunk, Georgian Bay and Lake Erie Railway Company, $64,000.

Hereford Railway Company, $48,000.

Massawippi Junction Railway Company $48,000.

Brockville, Westport and Sault Ste. Marie Railway Company, $64,000.

After recess these subsidies were also agreed to by the committee:

Thousand Island Railway Company, $24,000.

For a line from Cape Tormente to Murray Bay, $64,000.

Amherstburg and Lake Shore Railway Company, $64,000.

A resolution providing for a rearrangement of the subsidy to the Baie des Chaleur Railway received considerable opposition on the ground that the subsidy was too large. The resolution was adopted in committee on a division of 42 to 23 and concurred in by the House on a division of 66 to 35.

On concurrence in the resolution granting the new cash subsidies, Sir Richard Cartwright moved that the amount of $30,000 for the Fredericton bridge be struck out. This was lost on a division of 65 to 33, and the resolutions were adopted.

Sir John Macdonald moved that the House go into committee on the resolution respecting the settlement of the westerly, northerly and easterly boundaries of Ontario.

After addresses by Messrs. Mills, Dawson and Desjardins the resolution was considered in committee and agreed to.

Sir John Macdonald then moved the House into committee on the resolution providing for the construction as a Government work of the portion of the short line between Harvey and Salisbury. In committee he gave a history of this enterprise, showing that this link was originally to have been constructed by the Atlantic and Northwestern Railway Company for an annual subsidy of $63,000 for 20 years, but they proved unable to go on with the work. The Canadian Pacific Company were pressed to undertake it, but refused. The Government, feeling that they were pledged to have the road built, determined to go on with it as a Government work. It would cost, it was estimated, $16,000 a mile and its length was calculated at 113 miles. An arrangement had been made with the Canadian Pacific Company that they should operate this road as part of their short line, keeping it in repair at a nominal rental for 20 years and after that to pay a rental of $73,000 a year in perpetuity. Incidentally Sir John stated that the Canadian Pacific Railway were not to have under this agreement running powers over the Intercolonial except from Salisbury to Moncton and that in his opinion the Intercolonial must be maintained forever as a Government work.

Sir Richard Cartwright condemned this arrangement and undertaking as the most irrational, most absurd and most dishonest ever submitted to Parliament.

Mr. Weldon of St. John also condemned it and entered a protest against by this means diverting trade from St. John.

After further discussion the committee adopted the resolution, and the House adjourned to meet at 1.30 in the afternoon.

He Stole Pantaloons.

KINGSTON, April 29.—On Saturday afternoon E. F. Russell of Toronto got drunk, went into J. Braddon's saloon in Ontario-street and asked for a room. His wish was granted. While in the room he took a new pair of pants and put them on inside of his own. He left the room shortly afterwards. The inmates of the house, discovering the loss, informed the police, and Officer Aiken went in search of the thief. He shortly afterwards arrested Russell in Ontario-street. The pants stolen were valued at $7. Russell is said to be a first-class engraver. He was remanded until to-morrow.

WHAT WOULD HAVE BEEN GAINED?

It is a singular thing that among those who seem to take a lead in the agitation which has arisen over the Jesuit Estates bill there is a disposition to censure chiefly one party—the Conservative party—in connection with the vote given in the House of Commons. Towards the Conservative members who supported the Government most of the criticism is directed. The Mail, which has taken a leading part in the agitation, empties the vials of its wrath upon the Conservatives, and the Globe, even since it flopped, has nothing to say against those Liberals who refused to flop with it and who voted with the Government. At the New Party meeting in the Opera House there seemed to be the same disposition manifested in the interruption to which one of the gentlemen who had been invited to the platform was subjected. Those who, in the excusable heat caused by their feelings on the subject, are ready to denounce all who stood up with the 188, would do well to give dispassionate consideration and a calm answer to the question, What would have been gained if the Ontario Conservatives had all voted for Col. O'Brien's resolution?

The position was this. The bill which is objected to had been unanimously passed by the Quebec Legislature. There had been no agitation against it, only a couple of isolated resolutions being passed in regard to it. The Dominion Executive had reported upon it. Then came the resolution, as an amendment to a Government motion to go into committee of supply, and what would have been the practical result if it had been carried? As practical men the people of Ontario should consider that. Even granting that this was the dominate issue, and that all other political considerations should be cast aside, what would have been the result? The Government would have been compelled to resign. That would have been the first result and it would have mightily pleased the Globe and others who have taken a part in the agitation. But would it have led to the vetoing of the bill? If it would, the action might be justified in the eyes of those honestly desiring that result. But it would not have had that effect. The resignation of the Government would have brought Mr. Laurier, Mr. Mills ane Mr. Mercier into power at Ottawa, and the party which had originated and passed the bill would have been in power at Ottawa as well as at Quebec. What would have been gained by that? It may be replied that the people could have stood by the Conservatives who voted against the present Government. Perhaps so. But had the people, in the elections of 1886 and 1887, given any assurance that they would do so? Was the defeat of many Conservatives who had voted to sustain the Government in regard to the execution of Riel an indication that they would do so. Besides, if they had, in the meantime the bill objected to would have become law. In fact, if in the first instance the Government had vetoed the bill it would not have prevented it from becoming law, for they would have been defeated in the House, and to-day the Liberals would have been in office, the bill would have been repassed and it would have become law. To use the language of the Rev. J. B. Huff, who is one of the Council of the New Party and who was on the platform at the Opera House, "we must consider what we can do, as well as what we would like to do." Then was there no way of securing its defeat? If it is unconstitutional, as many believe, the only present recourse is to the courts to have it so declared. The fact is that owing to the position of affairs a vote by the Ontario Conservatives in favor of Col. O'Brien's resolution would not, could not, have resulted in the disallowance of the bill. This is viewing the matter from a point of view opposed to the bill, for as to the measure itself many of those who composed the 188 were as much opposed to it, we believe, as were the 13. We believe the bill is objectionable, but cannot shut our eyes to facts or to practical considerations that should come to the front. There can be no doubt that the bill was a trick to catch the Conservatives. It was one of the outcomes of the conclave at Quebec, where Mr. Mowat and Mr. Mercier met to hatch plots to overturn Sir John Macdonald. Mr. Mercier made the wording of the bill as objectionable as possible. If it was vetoed he and his party at Ottawa would have had a cry—in Quebec that the bill was vetoed and in Ontario on Provincial rights—and with that view the Globe opposed disallowance until it saw the bill would not be disallowed. It was the Riel affair over again, but the plot did not work as Mr. Mercier, Mr. Mowat and Mr. Laurier had arranged, so in Ontario they have set about on another task, joining with those who are honestly in favor of the disallowance, while their party in the House take a different stand.

We will take occasion to again refer to the Opera House meeting.

SHOT THROUGH THE HEAD.

A Young Man of Twenty Becomes Tired of Life and Attempts Suicide.

Word was received here this morning that a young Englishman named Albert Luiski, who is very well known around town, had committed suicide in Toronto last night by shooting himself. Luiski was one of the boys that was sent out to Canada from Dr. Barnardo's Home and he lived here for a considerable time. He worked in several places in town and for some time he had been employed in Mr. Wm. Green's tailor shop until about four weeks ago when he left town and went to Toronto, where it would appear that living in a great city did not have a tendency to lighten his outlook in this world of sin and misery. The young fellow when here was steady and industrious and bore a very good character.

TIRED OF LIFE.

The Toronto Mail gives the following particulars of the affair:—

"'Tired of life and he made a bad shot—it was not a good one,' and as a spectator stood on the spot where a young man had lately attempted suicide at the Parkdale station of the Grand Trunk railway he expressed very little sympathy for the young man who had fortunately escaped the consequences of his insane purpose. Yesterday afternoon at three o'clock Albert Luiski, a young Englishman of about 20 years of age, was standing alone near the baggage room of the station at North Parkdale. He pulled a revolver, and putting it to the side of his forehead he discharged it. The baggageman heard the report and hurried to the spot. Luiski had fallen. Constable Bowers arrived shortly after. The young man was conscious, and in answer to the enquiry why he had shot himself, he announced that he was tired of life. Dr. Orr was called, and on examination he found that the bullet had not gone directly in but had glanced off under the forehead, just above the right eye. The ambulance was summoned and the young fellow was taken to the hospital. He had been working until a few days ago for Charles Gailor, butcher, Queen-s., St. Alban's Ward. He was sober and industrious, and it was by his own wish that he left Mr. Gailor's employment." The World also has an account of the attempt at suicide in which it says.—"When searched, a small bottle of laudanum was found in one of his pockets. He threatens to kill himself yet and refers to the man from whom he purchased the revolver as 'a damned old Jew to give him cartridges that wouldn't go off.' He was doing well at the Hospital at 11 o'clock last night."

The Bicycle Club.

A gathering of young men who dexterously ride that uncertain and erratic vehicle known as the bicycle, met last night and formed a club. Ask for a sample and test it with what you have been using. Remember the only exclusively tea depot in town is at Hawley Bros. d84 is made very often by merchants advertising goods at very low figures and when the public call to price the goods they are much higher than the prices their advertisement calls for, or they are just out of the goods. Now, it is altogether different with W. J. Morrow. When you see his advertisement you can rely on procuring the goods at the price stated, just so long as he can get the goods, but of course when we are out you must make an allowance. We have another consignment of beautiful 3 lb. tin Peaches at 15 cents per tin. 3 lb. tin Tomatoes, 3 for 25 cents. W. J. Morrow, 340 George-st.

A Great Mistake

To-Morrow's Voting.

To-morrow the vote will be take on the two school by-laws, one of which is to provide for the issuing of debentures to extent of $16,000 for the erection of a new public school in the North Ward and the building of an addition to the South Ward school, and the other is to provide for the issuing of debentures to the amount of $30,000 for a new Collegiate Institute building. The polling places are as usual at the Mission School House, the Old Music Hall, Metherall Bros. shop, corner of George and Murray-sts., and at Lee's shop. Those who are entitled to vote are free-holders and those who are lease-holders for twenty-one years, the length of time for which the debentures run. Not a great deal is to be heard as to how the vote is likely to go, very little interest being manifested.

A Wedding at St. Peter's.

A happy ceremony was performed at St. Peter's Cathedral at 8.30 this morning, when Miss Teresa Hurley, eldest daughter of Mr. Tim. Hurley, was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Dr. R. Coughlin, of Hastings. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of friends of the bride, the church being well filled. Rev. Father Tiernan, of London, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Father McEvay, while Miss Minnie Hurley, sister of the bride, performed the duties of bridesmaid and Dr. Chas. Coughlin, a cousin of the groom, assisted the groom. After the ceremony the bridal party were driven to the residence of the bride's father where an elaborate wedding breakfast was partaken of, and the happy couple left on the 11.45 train for an extended tour east. The congratulations of a large number of warm friends will be extended to the bride and groom and the best wishes for a long and happy future will be theirs. Miss Hurley is an accomplished young lady of considerable musical ability, and that she has many friends in town who wish her happiness was attested by the numerous and handsome presents of which she was the recipient.

"Let Him Have it Three Times."

Lawrence Smith laid an information against Martin Potter at the Police Court this morning, charging him with assault. Potter is a bricklayer and it seems has done some work for Mrs Smith which did not satisfy her husband's idea of good bricklaying and he has been saying as much to some of his friends. Potter heard of the stories that Smith was circulating about his work, and last night he called to Smith and stopped him at the corner of Stewart and Edinburgh-sts. and asked him what he meant by talking about his work in the manner he had, and after some words he struck Smith three times. As a result of the blows Smith appeared in court with a bandage over his left eye. According to his story he did not attempt to defend himself, but Potter says that Smith, after some words about the brick work he had done for his wife, gave him a shove and then, as he said, "let him have it three times." There were a couple of eye-witnesses of the affair and the case was enlarged until to-morrow to allow these witnesses to be summoned.

"CANADA'S FIRST PARTY"

AN ENTHUSIASTIC AND INTERESTING MEETING.

An Eloquent and Brilliant Address by Rev Dr. Sutherland, of Toronto Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., and Mayor Stevenson, M.P., Drawn out Mr. John Carnegie, ex-M.P.P., Gives no Uncertain Sound—Local Divines Speak.

The Opera House was filled last evening with a mixed audience of ladies and gentlemen to hear the address of Rev. Dr. Sutherland, of Toronto, in the interests of Canada's New Party. The address of the evening was a most admirable effort, and from time to time the speaker was interrupted with most uproarious applause and vociferous cheering. Before the meeting closed a person would imagine that he was at an election meeting in the heat of a political campaign from the enthusiasm and cheering of the audience.

Around the hall streamers had been hung up on which were inscriptions of the different planks of the new party's platform, in condensed form, such as "Equal rights for all, exclusive privileges to none"; "A vote for women"; "Retrenchment in public expenditure"; "Prohibition of the liquor traffic"; "A national sentiment, our country first"; "Civil service Reform"; "An Elective Senate"; "Righteousness and truth in public affairs"; "Manhood suffrage" A number of cartoons taken from Grip also adorned the wall of the hall. The Y.M.C.A. band was in attendance and played several selections in good style.

OPENING THE MEETING.

Mr. Geo. Hilliard occupied the chair and before taking his seat he asked the members of Parliament and all the ministers who might be present to take seats on the platform. To this invitation Mr. J. R. Stratton, M P.P., and Rev. Messrs. Shorey, Huff, Pearson and Wilson responded and were greeted with applause. Then the chairman invited all ex-M.P.'s to come upon the platform and to this Mr. John Carnegie rose and proceeded to the platform amid great applause. Later on Mayor Stevenson, M.P., came in and also took his seat on the platform amid great applause and cheering.

The meeting then opened with the hymn "To the Work, To the Work," and a brief prayer by Rev. Mr. Huff. The chairman then made a few remarks in which he said that the time had arrived when matters of great importance to their country had to be faced, but he had not considered sufficiently the new party to make up his mind as to whether it should be his party, but he knew that there should be a reform in the government. After speaking briefly of the several mottoes hanging around the hall, the sentiments of which he echoed, he introduced the speaker of the evening.

DR. SUTHERLAND'S ADDRESS.

Rev. Dr. Sutherland rose amid great applause. After a few introductory remarks he said as he stood there he felt that he had a heavy contract on his hands, for a man could talk to men on almost any subject he pleased and would be listened to good-naturedly provided he did not step heavily on their political corns, in which direction they were very sensitive. But, he said, he had of necessity to speak of Canada's New Party or, as the chairman had aptly called it, "Canada's first party," and he would give them what information he could. Surely such a meeting as that was of most profound significance, showing that the people of this Province were becoming alive to the many evils that partizan politics had brought to our country, to the dangers that threatened their civil and religious liberty and that they desired new movements entirely upon new lines. He stood there not as a minister but as a citizen, and he held that he had a right to his own convictions and also a right to express his honest opinion on matters of public interest upon suitable occasions. They stood face to face with a serious national danger, for they had in this Dominion men who were not citizens but whose chief allegiance was not to the constitution here but to a foreign ecclesiastical constitution. (Cheers). He did not see any reason why all these questions could not be discussed quietly and impassionately with a view to the country's interests and not of that party to which they might be allied. There were some matters which required consideration more at the present time than ever before in the history of the country, but they were asked what was going to be that was now going over the country. Was it going to expend itself in newspaper articles, platform speeches or resolutions and were they, when an election came, going to fall into the old lines and vote on the old party ticket. If this was to be the result he thought the agitation would prove a national calamity, for they should settle all the evils in public affairs before they cast a vote for the government which permitted them. This would not be the result, for he believed the people were awakened, and he had noticed when Anglo Saxons were awakened and found that things were were wrong and required straightening they usually straightened them and for some time to come. There were things to be straigntened and he hoped the people would not turn away until they had removed the evils that existed amongst them to-day. They were now face to face with a state of things which showed that on certain public questions by changing from one party to the other they only had the exquisite pleasure of getting out of the frying pan into the fire. (Laughter and applause.) It was like the waiter who brought the traveller who ordered an egg for his meal two eggs with the remark "Well, sir, I brought you two eggs which are both rotten, but you can take your choice." If this was the condition of affairs it seemed reasonable that somebody should offer the country one fresh egg. (Renewed laughter and applause.) Some thought it was an exceedingly fresh one they were offering them and thought the men were more fresh who talked of organizing a new party, but he said there was nothing in the British North America Act or the Act of Confederation that limited the political parties of the country to two. In a certain sense there were only two parties, for when any important question was brought up all must fall into line for or against that question. But they were experiencing now what had been experienced in English public affairs and there was only the same means for them to employ as had been employed in English affairs, and that was called an effusion or re-adjustment. He believed they should now have

THE RESULT OF THE AGITATION

A RE-ADJUSTMENT.

(Cheers.) Some, he said, were asking why have a new party? His answer was that the attitude of the two political parties towards some important public questions was unsatisfactory to a large number of the people of the Dominion. This he knew for he had an opportunity of judging as he travelled from one end of the Dominion to the other, and the people were asking if they could not get a re-adjustment in the interests of the country. The new party, he wished to explain, had not originated in the last few weeks, on account of the Jesuit agitation, but was organized over a year ago when a certain number of gentlemen realized that the only way to get a re-adjustment was to part with the old parties and form a new one. They did, he said, something that he never knew of having been done before by either of the other parties. They drew up a distict and definite platform and published it to the world. The rev. gentleman then proceeded to touch upon several questions upon which the attitude of the present political parties was not satisfactory to a large number of the people. The first of these was "The prohibition of the liquor traffic." He dwelt on this at some length, pointing out how each party looked at this question with an eye to part interests and not to the best interests of the the country. He said they did not want to say what any man should eat or drink, but they said the liquor traffic does incalculable injury to the country and therefore should be prohibited, and in doing this they only followed the rule that the personal privileges of a few should give way to the interests of the majority. The next question which was unsatisfactorily dealt with was that essential principal of equal law for all creeds and classes of people. The attitude of both parties towards this great principle, he said, was not satisfactory to a large number of the people of Canada and they had to express it in some way that would be understood and that it would be impossible to misunderstand. People were saying what a pity over an issue of this kind. So did he, but who was responsible for the forcing upon the people this issue? In the history of more countries than this, he said, there had been periods when similar powers and influences have been twining themselves around the people's interests and privileges, and the men who opposed them were called alarmists and people asked why arouse sectarian strife. But, he said, anything was better than to have their rights trampled under foot or loss of liberty, and if this conflict had to come the sooner it came the better, for the more would they be able to save of what was valuable in our country and its institutions. He said he wished it understood that the conflict was not a strife between Protestants and Roman Catholics, for they had not anything to say about the Roman Catholic religion, and had not any disposition or desire to inclose the rights of Roman Catholic citizens within narrower limits than our own, but by the Legislature of their neighboring Province there had been established a society which, in every country where it had been established, had been an enemy of the interests of society and free government. It was said that it was a mere local matter of the Province of Quebec and that they had nothing to do with it. If it was twenty years ago, when the Provinces were scattered, this might be the case, but confederation had put them on the road to nationality and that which affected one Province affected all, and that which was against the rights of one was against the rights of all. They were opposed to this legislation, not on sectarian, but on public principles, and because if that kind of legislation was allowed to go on there would be no safeguard to national liberty, for this was only one small step toward carrying out a programme which had been once published and never retracted and which summed up was that they wanted to recover that state of affairs in which the over the State, and all matters of secular or public interest shall be subordinate to matters that are ecclesiastical and religious. There had been, he said, a great deal of shirking of responsibility in this matter, and on a good many public questions politicians had got on the fence, and they had better say, gentlemen, get down or we will pull the fence down and you, too. Then the rev. gentleman spoke of another question which the position of the two political parties gave dissatisfaction—the question of Canada's political destiny. This had been dealt with, he said, in a slip-shod way. Some talked of Imperial Federation, but he did not know what that meant. There was a motto on the wall which contained his sentiments on this point, "Our country first." If to stay as they were was the best for them, then he would say remain as we are. If Imperial Federation was to be the best, he would go in for that. What he wanted was what would be for the best interests of the whole country. Then the speaker proceeded to deal with the different planks in the platform of the new party as they were to be read on the mottoes around the hall, and closed his eloquent address with the verses of Charles Mackay, which began, "Men of thought, be up and stirring." The rev. gentleman resumed his seat amidst a storm of applause.

TO RAISE SECTARIAN STRIFE

The band then played a selection and a collection was taken up to defray expenses of the hall. The Chairman then called upon Mr. J. R. Stratton, M. P. P.

THE LOCAL M. P. P.

Mr. Stratton said when he came to the meeting he did not expect to deliver an address, but expressed himself as being pleased to have been present to listen to such an eloquent address as that of Dr. Sutherland's. With regard to his general remarks, Mr. Stratton said he agreed with him on a great many points. As for a vote to women he had given his vote in the House for this, and if he was there again he would record his vote in the same way. He believed in retrenchment, and as regarded an elective Senate, he favored an abolition as he believed it was a useless expense to the country. Manhood suffrage had been given by the Government which he supported, but he believed that it was a questionable and debatable point whether there should be educational qualifications or not. He thought the civil service should be reformed and the national sentiment of our country first he believed everyone would endorse. As for Prohibition, he said he had never recorded a vote which was not in accordance with that sentiment. (Several ominous whistles came from the rear of the hall.) The motto of equal rights for all and exclusive privileges for none was, he said, one with which all would agree.

THE DOMINION MEMBER.

Mayor Stevenson, M.P., was next called upon, and he rose amidst the greatest applause and cheering. He said he came there to listen and not to speak, but he was satisfied that if they had their leaders of the political parties there they would subscribe to all the mottoes which decorated the walls. (Laughter). But the question was would they carry them out? (Renewed laughter.) Mr. Stevenson then pointed out how the Ministers were obliged to conform to what the majority of the caucus said and said if the new party was made the first party there would only be two parties, for there would always be the majority and the minority. There were two political parties at Ottawa.

A Voice—There was only one the other day. (Laughter.)

Mr. Stevenson told his interrupter to come on the platform and went on to say that there were two parties at Ottawa and always would be. There were only two parties in Great Britain and the United States and in Canada the party in power could be turned out at any time by the vote of the Opposition. As for Prohibition he said he believed there were fifty members in the House who would vote for that measure if they could see how to do it. But where would they get a revenue? Sir John had said again and again that he wished they had Prohibition, but where would they get a revenue. When he went to Parliament, Mr. Stevenson said, he had promised he would vote for Prohibition and he would do that every time. He admitted that the civil service should be reformed and also endorsed the national sentiment of our country first. They had sent him to Ottawa to support the Government and he had done it. (Applause.) He had worked in the interests of the town—(cheers)—and he thought no man should desert his Chief.

MR. CARNEGIE SPEAKS OUT.

Cries of Carnegie! Carnegie! were then heard and the chairman called upon that gentleman.

Mr. Carnegie on coming forward was received with loud and continued applause. He said it seemed to him like drawing the badger, for they had first drawn out Mr. Stratton and then Mr. Stevenson and then called on him. He was in a peculiar position, for if drawn out he would not be found standing on the old platform. (Cheers.) The last time he appeared on the platform he had been shoulder to shoulder with his friend Mr. Stevenson, but he was not there that night. (Cheers.) He might say that if he had been at Ottawa he would have made the glorious thirteen number fourteen. (Loud and continued cheering.) It was true that, no doubt, he would have been charged with deserting his leader but from his twenty years experience while he looked to the opinions of his leader yet he did not understand that a man was to go it blind and be a political Jesuit. (Loud applause and great cheering.) He never understood that a man was not to use his own judgment, but if he saw his leader going wrong, he believed he should vote for what he believed to be right. (Cheers.) He said he had no hesitation in saying that he believed the thirteen gave a right vote at Ottawa. (Loud cheering.) He endorsed the motto over his head, "Equal rights to all and exclusive privileges to none," and said that while neither party had done the right thing at Ottawa, he did not lay all the blame on Mr. Stevenson and the other members, but blamed them, the electors, who had not acted as they should. He told them they should go to the ballot box and do their duty as good Protestants (Cheers.) He believed in giving equal rights to Roman Catholics as well as to Protestants and not one iota more. Mr. Carnegie sat down amid great cheering and cries of "Go on!" "Go on!"

RESOLUTIONS OF THANKS.

Rev. Mr. Pearson then rose to move a vote of thanks to the speaker of the evening, and before doing so made a few remarks in reference to Prohibition and spoke a few words of eulogy of the eloquent address and the gentleman who delivered it.

Mayor Stevenson seconded the resolution, after which Rev. Mr. Shorey rose and spoke a few words in support of the vote of thanks and said that he might tell the audience that Dr. Sutherland had sat under his preaching for three years and they might now know what to expect of his ministration as he had both the members of Parliament were in his congregation here.

Rev. Mr. Huff also spoke briefly and then Dr. Sutherland acknowledged the resolution of thanks in a few appropriate remarks and the meeting closed with "God Save the Queen."

CONSECRATION OF A BISHOP.

The Ceremony of Consecrating Bishop-Elect O'Connor at St. Peter's To-morrow.

To-morrow will be an eventful day at St Peter's Cathedral and the sacred edifice will be the centre of attraction for thousands. It will be the occasion of the consecration to the Bishopric of this Diocese of Bishop-elect Dr. O'Connor. The ceremony will be a most solemn one and at the same time will be interesting and impressive. Dr. O'Connor has arrived and before to-morrow morning it is expected that there will be some ten bishops and one hundred priests here, who will take part in the ceremony of consecration. The ceremony will commence at 9.30 in the morning and will be performed by His Lordship Bishop Cleary, of Kingston, assisted by Archbishop Fabre, of Montreal, and Archbishop Duhamel, of Ottawa. After the ceremony the consecration sermon will be preached by His Lordship Bishop Walsh, of London. At the conclusion of the sermon the clergy will adjourn to the Murray-st. school, where an elaborate dinner will be awaiting them. After the ceremony addresses of welcome will be presented to His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, and the services throughout will be of a most solemn and impressive character.

This evening the clergy of the diocese will present a farewell address to His Lordship Bishop Dowling, who, accompanied by Rev. Father McEvay, will take the evening train for Hamilton, where the installation of His Lordship takes place on Thursday.

HONORING THE BISHOP ELECT.

"The priests of the Archdiocese of Toronto," says to-day's World, "took the opportunity of Bishop-elect O'Connor's presence in the city yesterday to present him with the insignia which, as Bishop of the Peterborough Diocese, he will have to assume. The articles consisted of the pectoral cross and chain, crozier, mitre and amethyst ring such as bishops wear. Accompanying the gift was an address signed by all the priests of the archdiocese, and handsomely illuminated, in which was set forth the sorrow of his brother priests in losing his companionship, and at the same time their joy and satisfaction at his elevation to the episcopate. Rev. Father McCann made the presentation in the presence of the two very reverend administrators and all the priests stationed in Toronto.

"In his reply the Bishop elect thanked his old fellow-laborers for their affectionate and complimentary address, for which he felt deeply grateful. He believed that the joy expressed rose not alone out of personal regard for himself, but because the archdiocese has been honored by the selection of one from its body of priests for the hierarchy. He trusted that his own elevation might prove an incentive to those whom he addressed to labor with even greater zeal and earnestness in the discharge of their duties and holy vocation. It was a great consolation for him to know that after exercising his sacerdotal functions in the archdiocese for more than a quarter of a century he had not forfeited the confidence, love or esteem of his fellow-priests. It was to be hoped that the future prelates of this country would be selected from their ranks. His sympathies, affections and interests had been centered in the archdiocese of Toronto, where he had passed his days from early infancy, and now when called to labor apart he felt most acutely the severance of the ties."

Question.

A "Topic Party? What is a Topic Party? This is the question that has been agitating the minds of many since it was announced that the members of the "Y" are to give a very unique entertainment under that name at the residence of Mrs. Early, George-st., Thursday evening, May 2nd. Let all the curious attend and become enlightened. Tickets 25 cents. 2d108

Raising the Question of a Bonus.

The departure of Mr. A. W. Brodie and the removal of his mill machinery and of a number of his employees to Hespeler, has brought up the question that had a bonus been offered would he have remained. Possibly not, as Mr. Brodie is taking hold of a business of larger proportions and one which we hope will prove remunerative. Whether a bonus is essential to establishing manufactories or assisting those in operations to enlarge their borders is doubtful but on the other hand the fact remains that at M. Sullivan & Co's. dry goods of latest styles are sold so cheap that a bonus would not lower prices one cent. Ladies looking for summer dresses should call. The newest and most stylish goods fairly rivalling the best city stocks now on the shelves. Give Sullivan & Co. a call. d26tf

Remember the Date.

On the evening of May 7th the people of Peterborough will have the opportunity, through the enterprise of the P.A.A.A., of enjoying one of the richest treats. On that evening the Spanish Students, a company of unsurpassed musicians, will give an entertainment in the Opera House. They are excellent soloists, and in the concerted pieces also their weird music is captivating and has delighted hundreds of audiences. They will appear in their native costumes, and with their native instruments produce music of the most pleasing kind. They are accompanied by Prof. Ryerson, a humorist of great powers, whose refined witticisms and character representations are in themselves a delight. No one should miss this opportunity. The P.A.A.A. is an organization that should be encouraged, and apart from that the entertainment will be one that will well repay those who attend.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER

She was not unreasonable in the least, although she would not be put away from her father's side when she felt that he needed her the most; but she stood aside to let them carry him into the house and up the wide stairs to his own room.

"He will recover from this a good deal after an hour or so, my dear," said Sir George.

"No, Sir George, he will never be any better," she said, mournfully. "He has not strength enough to bear up against a shock like that—he is so old and so frail.

Even Sir George could not think of anything to say—and, in his heart of hearts, he confidently believed that his old friend was dead already. There was the sound of a hansom dashing up to the door, and then the doctor came hurrying in.

"Yes—I've heard all about it," he said, as Nancy met him. "A pity—a pity. A shock like that is a nasty thing to fight against at Mr. Earle's age; however, I'll go straight up, if you please, Miss Earle. Well, yes—I think you had better let me go first. I won't keep you in suspense or away from him a moment longer than is absolutely necessary." Then he, too, disappeared up the stairs, and Nancy sat down on the sofa again to wait for news with the best patience she might.

"You want to be going—your dinner," she said, wearily, to Sir George.

"No—no—I am dining at the club—any time will do. I could not leave without hearing what the doctor says, in any case," he replied, hastily; and so they sat on side by side while the clock in the corner ticked steadily on, not speaking much—rather, indeed, holding their breath to listen for the first sound that should come to them from the hushed and quiet chamber above. Dr. Davies did not keep them waiting very long, for in about twenty minutes he came down again, treading quietly, as medical men do. Nancy rose and went to meet him.

"We can do nothing at present," he said, gently; "for an hour or so your father must be kept perfectly quiet; but I have given Darby complete instructions what to do until the nurse comes. I will send one in at once, unless you like to wire to St. John's House for one—use my name, and ask for Nurse Provis if she is there. I will come back again in an hour."

"I may go up to him?" Nancy asked.

"Oh! yes; but have you dined? No? Then get a glass of wine and some strong soup, or something of that kind before you do so; and do not touch him or disturb him in any way, even if he seems uneasy and restless. He knows nothing, and, at present, suffers nothing whatever."

"Very well," said Nancy, obediently.

Sir George St. Leger bade her good-by then, saying that he would look in on his way home later in the evening and ask after his old friend. "And if there is anything that I can do, you will command me?" he added.

"Oh! yes, Sir George, I will indeed, and thank you so much," returned Nancy.

And at last she was free to go upstairs into her father's room, to go and sit beside him, to watch him as he lay helpless and unconscious upon his bed, with Darby, his faithful man, at hand to do all that medical skill could advise, until the nurse should come. And after a while she came. A small, slight, brown haired woman, with a fair, pleasant face, and good, bright, hazel eyes. She came in as if she had lived in the room all her life, her footsteps making no sound, her light gown no rustle, and she stood beside the bed and looked down upon her new patient, while Darby repeated in a whisper the instructions which the doctor had given him.

And then Darby went down to get his supper, and Nancy crept round to her side.

"Do you think he will die, nurse?" she asked, with a world of entreaty in her looks and tones.

The nurse turned her bright eyes upon her.

"I think that he is very ill," she said, guardedly.

"But do you think he will die?" Nancy persisted.

"With great care he might pull round again," returned the nurse, unwilling to commit herself one way or the other.

So Nancy went back to her place again and took up her occupations of watching the set gray face on which the darker shadows were fast stealing. She knew only too well what the nurse's unwillingness to speak conveyed, and there was no hope—no hope!

Oh! what sad, sad hours they were, with the old man who had been so much to her dying before her, and in her mind the continual thought of that other one stricken down in the full measure of his youth and strength, and lying—if it were not all over before this—in discomfort and misery, without one loving hand to help him. And then she thought of the unhappy, headstrong, passionate boy, who was not 30 years old yet, but who had wrecked her life and had sent her brave and gallant lover to his death—for had there not risen up that obstacle to the marriage, Jim Beresford would have left the service or have exchanged into a home regiment many months ago.

Darby crept into the room again after awhile, and the nurse put up a warning finger that he might make no noise.

THE CENTENNIAL OPENED.

New York Arrayed in Bunting and Thronged with Multitudes.

NEW YORK, April 30.—To-day began the leading celebration of the centennial festivities. Never before in the history of the country has there been such a display of flags and bunting as that which greeted the citizens this morning. The arrangements for the naval parade were carried out to the letter. The spectacle along the river front was a beautiful one, the long procession of steamers being impressive. Following the example of the illustrious Washington, President Harrison was rowed ashore in a barge. As he stepped out of the boat the Presidential salute of 21 guns was given. The President was received by Governor Hill, Mayor Grant, Hamilton Fish, President of the Centennial Committee, and W. G. Hamilton, Chairman of the Committee on Stages. The line of march was directly up Wall-street to the Equitable Life Building, via Broadway, and from there to the City Hall via Broadway.

When the President and his party reached the Broadway entrance to the Equitable building the guard of troops under Major MacCrea moved into the grand court of the building, followed by the New York commanders of the Loyal Legion under Col. Church and the G.A.R. commanders under Col. Walton. Upon the entrance of the President the troops presented arms and the full choir of Trinity Church, led by Dr. Messiter, descended the main staircase, which had been laid with a velvet carpet. The hymn "Before the Lord We Bow" was chanted and followed by the doxology, accompanied by a full corps of trumpeters. The President and his party then ascended by the elevators to the suite of rooms occupied by the Lawyers' Club on the fifth floor. Mr. Hamilton introduced President Harrison to the President of the club, W. Allen Butler, jr., and others. Mr. Butler conducted the President to his seat on the dais in the reception room and Secretary Borrowe followed with Vice-President Morton.

The Floor Committee conducted the governors of the states and territories, in the order of admission to the Union or formation, to places on each side of the President's position. The Floor Committee was presented to the President in a body and then the guests of the club entered two by two, passed through the reception room bowing to the President and out to the dining room. There was no handshaking, and the dignity and formality of Colonial Receptions were observed. The President and his party were then conducted to the private dining hall of the Cafe Savarin on the third floor. Here exquisite taste had been displayed in the decorations of the table. As the President entered the lights flashed brightly, presenting a fairy-like scene of beauty. Covers were laid for 50 guests. The other guests were served with luncheon in the Club dining-room and at a huge buffet.

When the party were seated, Wm. G. Hamilton, the great-grandson of Alexander Hamilton, addressed President Harrison in a neat speech. President Harrison merely bowed in recognition of the remarks. The reception and lunch at the Equitable building were scheduled to end at 2.30 p.m., and ten minutes later to the air "Hail to the Chief" by Cappa's band, President Harrison emerged from the massive granite portals and again entered his carriage for the journey to the City Hall. As the various organizations arrived at the City Hall they drew up in line before it. From the foot of the marble stairs leading to the municipal building and stretching away into the rotunda was a double line of white clad public school and normal college girls, each with a basket of flowers from which they strewed the path of the distinguished personage. There were fully 200 scholars, among them being two colored girls. Arrived at the top of the stairs President Harrison was tendered an address of welcome delivered by Miss Anna Abrahams, at the conclusion of which he was given a monster bouquet of LaFrance roses.

President Harrison, arm in arm with Mayor Grant, Governor Hill with Hamilton Fish, Vice-President Morton and Commodore Gerry and three members of the Plan and Scope Committee then entered the City Hall. The distinguished party were escorted to the Governor's room, where the President began receiving the visitors. He stood on a slightly raised platform which was decked with a brass railing and in the rear of which was the President's chair. Beside this was Washington's writing desk. President Harrison took his position on the right hand side with Vice-President Morton, Governor Hill and Mayor Grant beside him to the left in the order named.

The throng of people was at once admitted and came on in a steadily moving body for nearly an hour. President Harrison bowed to each couple that passed. The throng was largely made up of strangers in the city, a fact which was too patent in many instances. The sexes were about equally represented. At 4.55 the President returned to his carriage, and with the Vice-President, the Governor and Commodore Gerry, was driven to Mr. Morton's residence under the same escort that attended him from the Equitable building. Deafening cheers went up as he was being driven away.

The grand centennial ball took place at the Metropolitan Opera House to-night. All that money and keen sense of patriotism could do to carry out the immense scheme that was to give a night of pleasure to 6000 people was done. The result attained was highly satisfactory.

THE ATTRACTION AT TURNBULL'S.

MILLINERY.—No wonder flowers hold so high a place in Millinery Trimmings—as real to the eye as if raised by the hand of Nature. Everything, from the Daisy that gems the sod, to the Rose that blushes under glass. A gingle of Untrimmed Hats and Bonnets, stacks of Straws every shape you would think to ask for, and designs you would never dream of. Milans, Fancy Straws, Lace, both materials mixed, Chip, Leghorns. Novelties of all kinds; and this is a season of Novelties.

KID GLOVES—Have tumbled into a line of tan. Kid Gloves, stitched backs, we can sell for 35 c. a pair; some people buy them by the ½ doz. Come early if you want this Bargain. We are in a shape to sell a great number of Women's Silk and Taffetas Gloves, in the next few days. Our Gloves always fit, so they say. Assortment, Quality, Price—the tandem team will give their go.

Such a range of Styles of Hosiery is scarcely ever seen in one place. Sizes to fit Everybody.

SASH RIBBONS—In Handsome Brocades, at 30c. a yard.

DRESS GOODS.—New shades of Henrietta Cloths to fill up the gap the quick sales of the past few weeks have been making. SMOKE GREY, like the silver sheen of the atmosphere of a light, grey day by the sea. SUEZ GREEN.—Why Suez? Only that the oddity of the name may mentally fit the color—the color so beautiful in combination with other colors. OLD ROSE.—The name suggests the fading leaf, lost beauty, expired fragrance—and yet it stands for a tinting shade of red so delicate that to call it red would be an insult. The colors are primary, of course. All told, we have about Thirty-six Good Shades of Dress Goods to select from, in materials from 10c. to $1.00 a yard. New girdles and trimmings to match.

Fashion is always turning a new corner, and we with it. This spring it is fashionable for men to wear Striped Suiting. We have them in good variety, and will save you money in every suit you buy.

Fresh Styles of New York Domestic Patterns to hand. Every lady can have a new Fashion Sheet that asks for it.

THE DISASTER AT THE "Y"

PROBABLY MORE LIVES LOST THAN HITHERTO REPORTED.

Relatives of Supposed Victims Viewing the Charred Bodies—Some of the Watches and Jewelry Identified.

HAMILTON, April 30.—The railway accident of Sunday morning is still the general topic of conversation throughout the city. The work of identifying the bodies has commenced, and probably in a short time it will be known positively who they are from the relics found among them in the wreck, but with one or two exceptions it is doubtful if any relatives will ever be able to distinguish which of the remains represent their deceased friends. This morning Mr. Alexander of the superintendent's office and a reporter went carefully through two cigar boxes full of watches and other jewelry taken from the wreck. Many of the watches, like the bodies of their unhappy owners, were burned into an unrecognizable lump; others, again, were simply melted or bent in such a way as to render it very difficult to open the cases; and a few were comparatively preserved. Most of them had to be opened with a knife. The following were the only definite marks found on them:

A silver shield bearing the name R. A. Pitulay, 326 Broadway, New York. A handsome gold watch with the name Morgan Russell Scullen, Chicago, Ill. An A.O.U.W. shield, bearing the inscription James G. Carnick, P.M.W., Leni Leoti Lodge No. 43, Evansville, Ind., July 1, 1884.

In addition to these there is a lady's handsome gold watch with the monogram C. I. G. on the case, a Grand Army locket, a silver watch, No 29823, a brass Monarch watch, No. 2975, two watches bearing the maker's monogram M. O. M. inside and the words: "Don't open the case unless you are a practical jeweler," two Waterbury watches with no marks, and a large old-fashioned brass watch about an inch thick, with three concentric rings with a star in the middle. The remainder of the watches are melted into lumps.

No inquiry has been received regarding Pitulay, but as he was not on the train going east it is certain he is among the dead. Mr. Scullen of Chicago is missing, and his friends have been wiring inquiries, so his death may be regarded as certain, as is also that of Mr. Carnick of Evansville, Ind. His son, Theodore Carnick of Chicago, arrived on the 2 o'clock train to-day in search of him, and was met at the station by a reporter. He identified the shield as belonging to his father, and said: "My father was a retired merchant of Evansville, Ind., but has been living in Chicago for the past three months. He was about forty-three years of age. He was on his way to New York to meet my uncle, a banker there, and they were going into the banking business." The young man's name is Theo. Carnick, 514 Royal insurance building, Chicago.

George Grummet of Chicago also arrived this afternoon and identified the lady's gold watch with the monogram C.I.G. as that of his wife.

One strange thing about the relics is that there are about twenty watches among them. The watches of Ederer and Gurney were found on the bodies, so it looks now as if the loss of life was greater than at first supposed and that some bodies were wholly consumed in the wreck.

So far enquiries have been received for John Kelly, Chicago; Mrs. George Grummet, Chicago; E. W. Manderville, Chicago; J. L. Carnick, Chicago; M. R. Scullen, Chicago; O. J. Fraser, Toronto; J. B. Sterns, Campden, Maine, and J. S. Hall, Kankakee, Ill.

Mr. Fraser of Toronto was traveling on a pass, and a telegram has been received from J. S. Goodrich, passenger agent of the Wabash route, stating that the pass was used on Saturday night over that route, so there is little doubt that he is one of the victims.

It seems probable also that David Booth of Toronto, who is supposed to have been on the train, is one of the killed. His brother-in-law, Mr. Weller, examined the charred remains at the undertaker's yesterday and thought he recognized one of the calcined bodies as that of Mr. Booth.

J. B. Hanna of Kankakee, Ill., has identified among the remains of the killed that of his father-in-law, J. S. Hall of the latter city.

George McKenzie of Chicago recognized a watch and pin belonging to his sister and aunt, both of the latter city.

Opinions among the railway officials are divided in regard to the broken axle which was discovered yesterday. One of the officials of the road said to a reporter to-day that the broken axle might have been the cause of the accident, or that the accident might have caused the broken axle.

Mr. W. A. Robinson, formerly mechanical superintendent of the old Great Western Railway, an expert in the working of iron and steel, was appointed to inspect the track and make an examination of the wreck, including the broken axle. In company with Mr. John Hoodless, foreman of the jury, he went to the scene yesterday afternoon and inspected the axle. He will give his opinion to the jury to-morrow night. Mr. Hoodless is of the opinion that the broken axle was the cause of the accident, and he thinks that Mr. Robinson will give a similar opinion.

Mrs. George Sanders, 72 Market-street, this city, thinks that her husband was killed. He went to London last Wednesday to look for work and she has not heard from him since.

Dr. Rodgers, chief medical adviser; Herbert Wallace, chief mechanical superintendent; John Bell, Q.C., solicitor, and A. H. Smith, assistant mechanical superintendent, inspected the wreck this morning.

General Manager Hickson left Ottawa this afternoon on his way to this city. He will conduct a rigid investigation.

While the workmen were engaged removing the debris at the scene of the wrecked train to-day another body was found. This swells the list to twenty killed.

Snowstorm in Michigan.

PARNELL ON THE STAND.

THE IRISH LEADER DENIES ALL THE CHARGES AGAINST HIM.

He Never Suggested Revolution but Had Urged Boycotting Under Certain Conditions—General Cable News.

LONDON, April 30.—The Parnell Commission resumed its sitting to-day. Mr. Parnell took the stand, and gave his testimony in a clear voice and in a deliberate manner. He testified that he did not know Peter Delaney was connected with the Amnesty Association. He had never heard of any attempt being made on Justice Lawson's life. He was never a member of a secret society. Mr. Biggar was a Fenian until 1877. He advised Mr. Biggar to resign his seat in Parliament, but Mr. Biggar refused.

Mr. Parnell said he did not communicate with Ford or Fenian convicts in America, neither did he meet them there. He first heard of the Clan-na-Gael in America. He doubted that the convention at Cincinnati advocated the destruction of the link between England and Ireland, which was so opposed to his opinion. He did not leave his interests in America in the hands of Ford and Fenians but in the hands of Mr. Dillon and a body representing the party co-operating in America with a party in Ireland. He had urged boycotting under certain conditions but never intimidation. Mr. Parnell forgot the alleged interview with Le Caron in 1881. He said it might have occurred.

He had not said he believed that only force would redeem Ireland. He did not doubt that by constitutional parliamentary action the Irish leaders would succeed. He never suggested a revolution nor discussed the means by which a revolution could be effected. He had not been asked to authorize the payment of £20,000 to "remove" officials. He had never sanctioned outrages. He did not know of payments for the committal of outrages. He did not approve of a suggestion by Mr. Egan that Earl Cowper, Mr. Foster, Under Secretary Burke, Justice Lawson and many others be "removed." He could not have approved of such a suggestion, Mr. Egan never having made it. He had never heard proposals from any quarter for the "removal" (meaning murder) of Earl Cowper, Mr. Foster and others.

He did not know of the existence of the Invincible conspiracy until after his arrest in 1883, when he was liberated from the Kilmainham Jail on parole to attend the funeral of his nephew in Paris. He met in Paris Mr. Justin McCarthy and Messrs. Quinn and Byrne. He did not know that Byrne had been a Fenian. He did not communicate with Mr. Egan directly or indirectly when he was in Paris, thinking that his parole precluded communications with any of his political friends. He had always regarded the Phoenix Park murders as the greatest possible calamity to Ireland. He had never been able to obtain the slightest evidence connecting the League with those murders excepting unreliable statements made by the informer Carey. He did not believe the stories about Mr. Egan supplying the Invincibles from the League funds. The payment of £100 to Mr. Byrne was made in response to a letter asking for an advance for the purposes of the Land and Labor League and not for the purpose of enabling him to make his escape. He had not the slightest suspicion that Mr. Byrne was engaged in any conspiracy.

A Vote of Censure.

LONDON, April 30.—In the House of Commons this evening a motion of Samuel Smith (Liberal) censuring the Government for fostering spirit drinking in India was carried by a vote of 113 to 103.

They Will Deliberate in English.

BERLIN, April 30.—It is understood a subcommittee of the Samoan conference will undertake the settlement of the details of the controversy. Count Herbert Bismarck, at the session yesterday, disavowed on behalf of Germany any idea of aggrandizement inconsistent with existing treaties. Count Herbert spoke in French. Sir Edward Malet and Mr. Kasson followed in a similar strain. Mr. Kasson hinted that the United States Government hoped the question would be settled on such a basis as would preserve the autonomy of the Samoan Island. On Mr. Kasson's proposal it was agreed to hold the discussion in English. Count Herbert Bismarck has invited the members of the conference to dine with him on Friday. Emperor William received a personal report of the sitting. At the next meeting he will receive the report of the subcommittee. All the delegates appeared to be satisfied with the proceedings thus far.

The Berlin Tagblatt states that at the Samoan conference yesterday Mr. Kasson asked whether a secret treaty existed between England and Germany to partition between them the Tonga and Samoa islands. Sir Edward Malet, the British Ambassador, and Prince Bismarck categorically denied that such a treaty existed.

SIXTY THOUSAND MARCHED.

The Centennial at New York—A Brilliant Banquet.

NEW YORK, April 30.—To-day's centennial program included thanksgiving services at St. Paul's with a sermon by Bishop Potter, literary exercises at the Sub-Treasury, comprising an invocation by Rev. Dr. R. H. Storrs, a poem by John Greenleaf Whittier, a speech by Chauncey M. Depew, an address by President Harrison and the benediction by Archbishop Corrigan. There were nearly 60,000 soldiers in the parade led by Major-General John M. Schofield.

The grand centennial banquet took place at the Metropolitan Opera House to-night. The stage and auditorium connected in one continuous floor were the foundations of over twenty-five tables arranged in horseshoe fashion with a seating capacity for 800. Nearly 8000 wine glasses were placed at intervals along the tables and there were 300 well drilled waiters. The expenses of the dinner were said to have been $35,000, the wine alone causing an expenditure of nearly $16,000.

Governor Hill delivered an address of welcome. The toast "George Washington" was drunk in solemn silence. The People of the United States was responded to by ex-President Cleveland, Gov. Lee of Virginia spoke to "The States," Chief Justice Fuller to "The Federal Constitution," John W. Daniel to "The Senate." Ex-President Hayes speaking of "The Presidency" maintained that the results of 25 terms had vindicated the wisdom of the fathers who established it. "The Judiciary" was responded to by Senator Evarts, "The Army and Navy" by Gen. W. T. Sherman, "Our Schools and Colleges," President Eliot of Harvard University, "Our Literature," James Russell Lowell, "The United States of America," President Harrison.

Other Celebrations.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Despatches received here state that the centennial of Washington's inauguration was celebrated at Washington, Baltimore, Richmond, Charleston, S.C., Lexington, Va., Nashville, New Orleans, Milwaukee, Denver, Indianapolis, San Francisco and every other considerable place in the country by the suspension of business, displays of bunting, religious and other exercises.

The Senator Laughs.

OTTAWA, April 30.—Senator McCallum laughs at the idea of being sued for his utterances in the Senate by Superintendent Ellis of the Welland Canal. He says he has handed certain letters to the government and that these will be used in the official investigation.

A SENSATION AT GUELPH.

The Central Exhibition Treasurer Disappears—Over [illegible] Unaccounted for.

GUELPH, April 30.—The city was considerably surprised this morning when it was found that George Murton, coal dealer, had made an assignment of all his effects and placed his affairs in the hands of Macdonald & Macdonald for the benefit of his creditors, on account of the failure of his brother in Hamilton. Little attention was paid to this outside of those interested until the rumor became current that his bookkeeper, Robert Mackenzie, had left the city rather suspiciously.

It leaked out in this manner: Mayor Gowdy, who is a director of the Guelph Central Exhibition, went to Mackenzie's house this morning to consult him about having bills printed for the exhibition, when he was informed that Mr. Mackenzie was not at home. Mayor Gowdy was handed a parcel of books addressed to him. These were the bank pass-book and savings bank book of the Agricultural Society.

Mr. Gowdy made an examination of the books and found that there was only $204 to the credit of the society, whereas at the last audit there was about $1254. The bank book showed that on Jan. 17 $600 had been drawn and on Jan. 23 another $500, and that a few days before the books of the society were audited $400 had been placed in the bank to the credit of the society and that two days after about the same amount had been drawn out again.

When this became known a number of other societies, for which Mackenzie is secretary became alarmed for fear that they had been let in for different sums. Among others he was the secretary of the new Skating Rink Company and had control of the funds. Other societies have not as yet discovered any defalcation in their books or funds. As far as can be ascertained the Agricultural Society and a few private accounts are the greatest loss.

Mackenzie was a prominent member of St. George's Church and this following so close after the Harvey murders causes a great sensation in church circles.

$5000 DAMAGES.

A Celebrated Crim. Con. Case at Belleville—Verdict for the Full Amount.

BELLEVILLE, April 30.—The cause celebre of Ashley v. Brenton was tried at the Assizes to-day. It was a case of [illegible] of damages for crim. con. and alienating Mrs. Ashley's affections. There was no defence beyond the calling of witnesses in mitigation of damages.

Plaintiff discovered his wife and Brenton in flagrante delicto in the latter part of November, 1887, but did not bring action until March 20, 1889. His wife had lived with him since, but their marital relations had been suspended. Mrs. Ashley has been married sixteen years and has two children. Brenton is married and has one child. The parties are next neighbors, and have always been intimate friends.

Mr. Ashley was Deputy Reeve of Thurlow for three years, Reeve for fifteen years, was once defeated for the Commons and once for the Legislature, was Warden of the county and is now Clerk of the Division Court in Belleville.

The jury gave a verdict for the full amount claimed, $5000, and costs.

After Supposed Murderers.

HAMILTON, April 30.—This morning Chief McKinnon received a telegram from Oswego, N.Y., to arrest Michael Donovan and Wm. Putnam, alias Billy Britt, who are wanted on a charge of murder. The men were supposed to have left Oswego on Ald. Williamson's schooner St. Louis, which carries coal from that point. On receipt of the telegram Detectives Doyle, McKenzie and Reid went to the beach and arrived there shortly after the schooner had entered the piers. The detectives searched the vessel and were convinced by Capt. Reardon that the men were not nor had they been on the schooner.

Charged With a Serious Crime.

WINDSOR, April 30.—Thos. Banks, arrested yesterday on a charge of leading astray Annie Boyd, a 15-year-old sister of his wife, some time ago, lived in Windsor and moved to Toronto. Here his sister-in-law came to live with him, and a few months ago Banks' wife, alleging improper conduct on his part as the cause, left him, returning to Windsor. He returned yesterday and was arrested and brought before the magistrate and remanded to May 5. Sureties were on hand and quickly signed the bond. Aug. 1 was the day named for hearing the case.

Four tons of powder in the drying house blew up, wrecking all the mills and employers' houses completely, overturning one and imprisoning a man and his wife until help came. No one was hurt. Had it occurred in the day time it must have resulted in serious loss of life. The loss amounts to about $5000.

BERLIN, May 1.—Mr. Bates and Lieut. Parker were refused admission to the exhibition opened by the Emperor yesterday because they wore frock coats instead of dress suits.

CHARLTON'S LAST CHANCE

HE FAILS TO GET HIS JESUIT MOTION BEFORE THE HOUSE.

Winding Up the Business of the Session—The Senate Amendments to the Anti-Combines Bill Concurred In.

OTTAWA, April 30.—Contrary to the general expectation yesterday prorogation will not take place to-morrow. There will be a morning sitting to-morrow and thus it is expected that the business remaining to be passed will be put through so that it may be considered by the Senate in time to permit of prorogation on Thursday afternoon. There were some lively discussions to-day and a good deal of business was put through.

On motion of Sir John Macdonald, the House went into committee on the proposed resolution providing for the construction of the railway from Harvey to Salisbury.

Mr. Weldon of St. John, on motion to adopt the report of the committee, moved an amendment declaring it inexpedient to authorize the construction of the road until proper surveys have been made, and also because it has not been shown that an adequate communication with Halifax does not now exist. This was lost on division [illegible] 34.

Another amendment by Sir Richard Cartwright, providing that the Grand Trunk shall have over the proposed road running powers equal to those granted to the Canadian Pacific Railway, was declared lost on a division.

A bill founded upon this resolution was then introduced and [illegible]. After discussion, in which the objection [illegible] that the agreement with the Canadian Pacific Railway for the lease of the [illegible] had not been printed and distributed, Sir John Macdonald pointed out that the House was not now being asked to ratify the agreement and would not [illegible] until next session, by which time it would be printed and fully understood. The agreement [illegible] be ratified by the shareholders of the company and by Parliament.

After recess the bill providing for the railway subsidies authorized by [illegible] was carried after considerable discussion.

The act relating to bills of lading was read a second and third time and passed.

The Senate amendments to the Anti-Combines Bill were concurred in, Mr. Wallace stating that he would not oppose the amendments because he believed that were the bill sent again to the Senate it might not get through this session.

Hon. G. E. Foster then moved the House into Committee of Supply. Mr. Ross, Mr. [illegible] and Mr. Charlton rose simultaneously to address the Speaker, or rather the Deputy-Speaker, for Mr. Colby was in the chair. Mr. Ross proceeded directly with his speech and [illegible] Mr. Charlton appealing for a decision between their respective claims to the floor, Mr. Colby awarded it to Mr. Ross. Mr. Ross after a few words of explanation of his complaint moved an amendment:

That this House regrets that no proposal for a land subsidy in aid of the [illegible] Southeastern Railway Company has been [illegible] before Parliament.

Mr. Charlton followed. He said that yesterday he had spoken to the Speaker and had been promised that he would receive recognition if he rose to move an amendment to the motion to go into Committee of Supply. He had spoken to-day to the Deputy Speaker and had been told that the member for Yale had already spoken for recognition. Now he found that not that member but another rose and claimed the floor, and as an amendment had been moved he could not follow it with that of which he had privately given notice to the Government. He would, however, now read what he had intended to move. This was:

That the House is of the opinion that the Government of Canada should without delay obtain the opinion of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on the constitutionality of the Jesuits Estates Act.

He held the Government responsible for burking this resolution and declared that in his experience in Parliament he never saw such a dodge before.

Sir John Macdonald said the dodge was on Mr. Charlton's side. The right to address the Speaker could not be pre-empted by any member, but belonged to whoever caught the Speaker's eye.

Mr. Charlton: "I caught his back, his eye was turned in the other direction."

Sir John, continuing, said it seemed that Mr. Charlton had been running round to the Speaker and Deputy Speaker so as to prevent any independent member of Parliament catching the eye of the Speaker so as to bring before the House any subject to which he wished to direct attention. He thought it was a piece of presumption on his part to suppose that everybody should stand aside and do him reverence. As to the amendment offered by Mr. Ross, the application on behalf of the road mentioned had been made too late to enable it to be considered in time for [illegible] at this Parliament and he therefore hoped the resolution proposed would not carry.

Mr. Charlton: "Perhaps the hon. Premier will answer a question?"

Sir John Macdonald: "No, I won't answer any question. He has no right to put the question in this manner. There is a proper way, which should be followed."

After observations from Mr. McMullen, Mr. Scriver and Sir Richard Cartwright sympathizing with Mr. Charlton in his loss of opportunity the House went into Committee of Supply. On the appropriation of $12,500 for the purchase of a home for the commandant of the Royal Military College, Hon. Peter Mitchell denounced the college as an institution for the education of the sons of rich men only.

On the vote of $5000 in aid of the reception of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, to meet at Toronto this year, Mr. Somerville objected that such grants should be made while the convention of the Knights of Labor and other organizations of workingmen were not so assisted.

Mr. Cockburn and Mr. Mulock defended the grant and pointed out the advantages derivable by the country from the advertising which such a meeting gave it.

The vote of $60,000 for steamship service between Halifax and the West Indies was adopted after brief discussion, and the committee having reported the passage of the above items they were concurred in.

The House then went into committee to consider the resolutions respecting a contract proposed to be entered into with the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake and Saskatchewan Railway and Steamboat Co. A bill founded on the resolution was passed.

The bill amending the Northwest Mounted Police Act was passed.

Before adjournment Sir John said, in answer to a question, that there would be no tariff changes this session and no [illegible] of any kind proposed save that now on the order paper.

The House adjourned at 3 o'clock.

OTTAWA, April 30.—A writ has been issued for an election in Compton County to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Hon. John Henry Pope. The nomination will be on May 9 and polling May 16. County Registrar Orr is named as returning officer.

One Taken and the Other Left.

HAMILTON, April 30.—Yesterday afternoon the police received a telegram from Toronto to arrest Wm. McElroy and John Freeman, two schoolboys, who ran away from home. Constable Cable arrested McElroy at 34 [illegible]-street north. Freeman was also there, but when he heard that a policeman was after him he skipped out, leaving his hat behind.

The Seventeen Burned Victims.

Dr. Rodger, surgeon of the Grand Trunk Railway, passed through Toronto last evening from Hamilton, where he had been in connection with the recent accident. Dr. Rodger said to The World that after a careful survey of the charred remains found in the wreck he had put the number of victims down at seventeen, in addition to the two that were recovered before the train took fire.

Three Men Drowned.

THREE RIVERS, Que., April 30.—Yesterday while twelve men and a little girl were crossing the Nicolet River at St. Clothilde, County of Drummond, in a skiff the boat upset and three of their number were drowned. THE CLERGY'S FAREWELL.

BISHOP DOWLING AND REV. FATHER M'EVAY'S GOOD-BYES.

The Clergy of the Diocese Present His Lordship and Father McEvay with Farewell Addresses and Souvenirs—The Replies in Full.

The clergy of the diocese of Peterborough met in the vestry of St. Peter's Cathedral last night for the purpose of paying a farewell tribute to His Lordship Bishop Dowling and their confrere, Rev. Father McEvay, and of expressing their sorrow at the severance of the ecclesiastical ties that have existed between them. There were present Vicar-General Laurent, of Lindsay; Very Rev. Father Brown, of Port Hope; Rev. Fathers McCloskey, Toronto; Casey, Campbellford; T. O'Connor and Jas. O'Connor, of Victoria Road; Flannery, of St. Thomas; Sweeney, of Brumley; Conway, of Norwood; Quirk, of Hastings; Kloippi, Berlin; Rev. Father Scoetti and others.

ADDRESS TO HIS LORDSHIP.

The address to His Lordship Bishop Dowling was read by Vicar-General Laurent, and was handsomely engraved and accompanied by a golden communion chalice. It read as follows:—

To the Right Rev. Thomas Joseph Dowling, D.D., Bishop of Hamilton.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR LORDSHIP:—Two years ago, on the occasion of your Lordship's installation, we the priests of the diocese of Peterborough, assembled in this cathedral to welcome you to your episcopal city. Our hearts were then full of joy. We thanked God, who had sent so able, learned and eloquent a bishop to rule over our beloved diocese.

We looked forward to many years of loving and fruitful labor in the Lord's vineyard under your prudent guidance and wise administration. Our diocese was young—in its infancy almost. It was not, however, as without hope, that we looked forward to the time when it would possess the fulness of its strength, when we should see, erected by your energy and fostered by your care, those institutions of learning and charity, which all the world over gives so great glory to God and lustre to our holy religion. You have, indeed, accomplished much within a short space of time.

Soon, too soon alas! the call has come for your Lordship to "return to your own country," to the diocese which has been the cradel of your priesthood, and has become endeared to you by over twenty years of noble service in the sacred ministry. You are returning to a clergy who are well acquainted with your Lordship's great ability and exalted virtues, have more than once publicly expressed their admiration, and are even now preparing to receive you with acclamations of joy. But no clergy will love and esteem your Lordship more than do the priests of the diocese of Peterborough.

When your Lordship came to us, you found great and holy work for your hands to do. Your cathedral was far from finished. It was your desire to make it a model of artistic taste and beauty. Already you have embellished the interior, beautified the surroundings and given to it a grander and more imposing appearance. In doing this, your congregation became your first care. For, while instructing them in the knowledge of faith and the practice of virtue, you have secured for them comfort and accommodation in the House of God, by introducing a thorough system of heating, and increasing its seating capacity.

You found your Cathedral clergy without a suitable dwelling. They, too, became your special care. Providence soon placed it in your power to provide for them. The opportunity was not lost. To-day, Your Lordship leaves to your successor a parochial house worthy of Peterborough, and an Episcopal residence, which may well be the envy of many an older diocese. To complete this diocesan work, Your Lordship appealed to the parishes. It is with pleasure, we can say, that gladly and loyally did they answer the call.

In Your Lordship's visits to the various parts of your vast diocese (and from Port Arthur to Lake Ontario you have left no place unvisited), it has been a joy and a happiness to welcome you. The words of piety, learning and wisdom, which fell from your lips on those occasions, sank deeply into the hearts of all, and the lessons then received shall be long remembered and cherished by them. While instructing them by preaching, and strengthening them by the administration of the sacrament, you have, above all, edified them by your pious and exemplary life. Long, indeed, shall Your Lordship's episcopal visitations be remembered, and bear fruit in the Diocese of Peterborough.

We will not offend Your Lordship's humility by endeavoring to enumerate your many public works. They are known to all. Their silent praise is far more eloquent than any word of ours can be. There is, however, one work, the last you have undertaken, which, on an occasion such as the present, we cannot pass over in silence. With the hospital of St. Joseph Your Lordship's name shall ever remain united, even when the generations of those who saw you with solemn ceremonies, in the name of the Most Holy Trinity, bless and plant its foundations, shall have passed to their reward. Your zeal for God's glory, your love for the poor, your sympathy for the suffering, will find lasting remembrance in that monument of Christian charity. In the midst of your laborious duties in the wider field to which you are now called, Your Lordship will find encouragement and consolation in the thought, that from within its walls, the blessings of the poor and afflicted, the thanksgivings of the sick and the maimed, and the prayers of the widow and the orphan, will continually ascend to heaven in your behalf. To us who know how sincerely your heart has been in the good work, St. Joseph's Hospital shall ever be a fond reminder of Your Lordship's great zeal and charity.

You are about to leave us. We must now say FAREWELL. We have learned to love you, and your departure leaves us without words to express our grief. We ask your acceptance of this chalice as a sincere though inadequate token of the high esteem and veneration in which we have ever held Your Lordship.

You go at the call of Christ's Vicar, Our Holy Father, Leo XIII, who in this, as in all else, has sought the greater glory of God and the welfare of His Church on earth.

Our best wishes for your temporal and eternal happiness go with you. May Almighty God pour down on you the rich abundance of His grace! May He always bless your work! May you be long spared to the diocese which now claims you as Bishop! is the fervent prayer of the priests of the Diocese of Peterborough.

With Your Lordship's parting blessing for ourselves and our parishioners, we humbly ask a place in your memory and in your prayers.

HIS LORDSHIP'S REPLY.

Bishop Dowling replied in the following words:—

REVEREND AND DEAR FATHERS:—The occasion which calls us together this evening is indeed a sad one, but it is also one of edification—sad, inasmuch as we are to say to each other that sorrowful word farewell, and edifying as much as we are here to give expressions to mutual and unbroken affection that has existed between Bishop and priests for the last two years, during the short but happy term of my humble administration.

It is the holy will of God that Bishop and priests as well as others should occasionally meet with trials which it is not pleasant to endure, and among the many trials incident to a Bishop, it seems to me that there is none so painful as that of parting with a loving priesthood who have shared with him his responsibilities, co-operated with him in his undertakings and lightened the burdens inseparable from his office. Such is my trial to night and it is a severe one. For a long time I have thought of it, and even endeavored to avert it, not only by prayer but by supplication to the only tribunal on earth that could prolong my stay amongst you. Even as our divine Lord prayed His heavenly Father that the chalice of His suffering might pass away, so I humbly asked the Vicar of Christ that he might spare me this pain of premature separation. In that petition, among other things, I told the Holy Father, as I take pleasure in telling you to night, how dearly I loved my priests, using for that purpose the most forcible expressions I could find in the Latin tongue, clerum populumque hugus diocesca Peterborgusis valde diligo, adding, however, the words our divine Lord, in regard to my removal "non autem mea sed divina voluntas fiat." and now "Roma locuta est, quaestio finita est. Sad as I am in parting from you I am consoled by the thought that I am following the direction of the Vicar of Jesus Christ, and therefore have every reason to believe that I am doing what every good bishop and priest is expected to do at all times, the holy will of God.

For all the kind words you have been pleased to say of me, I am extreemly thankful. The virtues you are pleased to ascribe to me are only mine to a very limited extent. Without your co-operation I could have done very little indeed, but thanks be to God since the first day I came amongst you that co-operation never failed me. Whenever I went through the diocese you received me with open arms and not only encouraged and cheered me, but invited your flocks to come to my aid, setting yourselves a noble and rare example of self-sacrifice by generously contributing out of your own limited incomes towards the reduction of the diocesan debt. Your sympathy sustained me, your approval encouraged me and your generosity enabled me to purchase and to pay for the bishop's house of which it may be said that you are not only the benefactors but the builders.

In my relations towards you as Bishop I am glad to bear testimony to your loyal fidelity, to your zeal and to your discipline, and thank God to be able to state that since I came amongst you there has not been a single instance of disobedience, of disloyalty or of insubordination. I rejoice further to know that your new Bishop is one of my most devoted friends and a prelate who will be to you a true and loving father, sure to supply my many defects and shed additional lustre on the diocese of Peterborough. From you, dearest fathers, I may bespeak for him a loyal and hearty welcome and a continuation of that cordial co-operation you have always extended to me.

I share with you in the joy of having helped to lay the foundation of St. Joseph's Hospital, promising you always to take a fatherly interest it it, and I earnestly commend that most excellent institution to your charitable patronage.

In conclusion I wish to say that if I ever did to any of you an unkind or harsh act, I am heartily sorry for it. I should regret to give pain to anyone. In thanking you for your gold chalice, I accept it as a symbol of the golden virtue of charity, and as often as I shall use it at the holy altar you shall have a place in my prayers.

As His Lordship finished the clergy knelt and received his blessing.

ADDRESS TO FATHER MCEVAY.

Rev. Father Brown then came forward and read the following address to Rev. Father McEvay, which was accompanied by a purse containing two hundred dollars:—

To the Rev. F. P. McEvay, Chancellor and Rector of the Cathedral:

REV. AND DEAR FATHER,—We beg to assure you that it was with feelings of heartfelt regret that we learned some days since, that you were about to sever your connection with the diocese of Peterborough and unite your lot with that of Hamilton. It is not our province to enquire into the reasons that influenced you in this decision, but of one thing we are quite certain that they must have been strong, creditable, and praiseworthy. The good priest ever regards it as a sacred duty to obey the wishes of those whom the Holy Ghost has appointed to govern the church, and we feel satisfied that it is to show your ready compliance with this duty, that you are now making a generous sacrifice of your own personal feelings and bright prospects in the diocese.

We cannot, however, allow you to depart from amongst us to enter upon another sphere of labor without placing on record the great love, esteem, and respect in which you are justly held by your brother priests. For seven years you have been exercising the holy ministry of the priesthood in this diocese. During that time we have had many opportunities of studying your character, of observing your ways and mode of acting, and truth requires us to say that words fail to adequately express our admiration of the noble gifts of head and heart with which God has richly endowed you. While on the one hand, your well-known ability, unerring judgment, fervent piety and stainless life have made us regard you as an ornament to the diocese; on the other, your unfailing kindness, your readiness to oblige and assist, and your courteous and gentlemanly demeanor have secured for you a firm and abiding hold upon our dearest affections.

Immediately after your ordination you were appointed to the parish of Fenelon Falls, which then comprised a large number of townships. There were four churches to be attended at long distances apart, the roads were difficult of travel, and your people were scattered over an extensive area of territory. But your truly apostolical zeal easily overcame all these obstacles. The five years of your pastorate there were marked by such assiduous labor, such self-sacrificing devotion to duty, such tact and administrative ability, that Bishop Dowling wisely decided to give you another field for the exercise of these splendid qualities, and, accordingly, named you for your present responsible position of Rector of the Cathedral and Chancellor of the Diocese.

His Lordships choice was universally approved. The verdict from every lip on your appointment was, "The right man in the right place." We are happy to be able to say, Rev. and Dear Father, that your prudent, upright and honorable course has amply justified the confidence of the bishop and the expectations of the priests and people. Your work, whether in the confessional, in the pulpit, in ministering to the wants of the sick and indigent, or in the more arduous task of managing the finances and temporalities of the diocese, has been crowned with brilliant success from the moment you took charge of this parish till the present day.

Ever since you came to reside in Peterborough you have been of great assistance to the Ordinary of the diocese, who, at a moment's notice could have the benefit of your experience, learning, and practical common sense, when he desired your advice on matters of importance. To the visiting clergy you have been a perennial source of pleasure and happiness, for they felt at home with you, and highly appreciated your sprightly, entertaining, and edifying conversation. You have also been the people's pride and comfort for you cheerfully responded to their every call, heartily supplied their every want, and for the sake of promoting their general welfare you were always willing to sacrifice your own ease, means and precious time.

To bid farewell to one so loved by his confreres, one so idolized by his people, so trusted and honored by his Bishop and so useful to the diocese at large, is indeed a sad and painful task for us. Gladly would we spare ourselves the torture, happy would we be to keep you with us, but fate, stern, inexorable fate, compels us to utter the dreaded word. So farewell, dear Father McEvay, but though leaving us, rest assured we shall not forget you. We shall ever continue to take a loving interest in yourself and work in your new home, and if it should happen that the future has in store for you far greater honors than any yet conferred upon you, none shall be prouder to hear it than your sincere friends and well-wishers—the priests of the diocese of Peterborough.

In conclusion we respectfully request your acceptance of the accompanying purse as a parting souvenir and as a true though feeble expression of the love and friendship we shall never cease to cherish for you.

REV. FATHER M'EVAY'S REPLY.

Rev. Father McEvay replied as follows:—

VERY REVEREND AND BROTHER CONFRERES.—Sometimes we look upon addresses as rather formal affairs, but I can assure you that I fully appreciate the importance of your beautiful and touching address, representing, as it does, the sentiments of the priests of this diocese, from the Vicar-General down to the last priest ordained. And I appreciate it the more keenly as I have just reason to know, the honesty, integrity and sterling worth of the priests of the diocese of Peterborough—priests whom I have known for many years, whom I have labored with since my entrance into the holy ministry, and whom I have always esteemed and loved. To answer your address as it deserves to be answered I will not attempt to-night. You, true priests that you are, know that it is our duty, in a spiritual manner, to obey our prelates whom the Holy Ghost placed on earth to rule the Church of God, and whatever success you are pleased to attribute to my feeble efforts either here or in the scattered missions connected with Fenelon Falls, must be attributed to the blessings which attest the work of any priest who carries out, as far as he knows how, the doctrines and suggestions of his Bishop. And it is in accord and with the directions of my ecclesiastical superiors that I am now leaving the diocese of Peterborough.

To say that I feel no grief at bidding farewell to a diocese wherein I have so many friends, both lay and clerical, would be to say what is not true. My years with you have been very happy and I shall always continue to take the deepest interest in everything connected with the diocese and especially with its noble band of priests who have always been a true model of unity of action, of devotion to duty, of obedience to authority and of the many other virtues which form the character of true priests. In conclusion I thank you most sincerely for your very generous purse. I thank you for the many acts of kindness you have showered on me during the past years of my priesthood and I am deeply gratified for the loving sentiments and good wishes expressed in your magnificent address. I now bid you a loving farewell and trust you will sometimes kindly remember me during your memento at the Holy sacrifice of the Mass.

CONSECRATION SERVICE.

RT. REV. DR. O'CONNOR CONSECRATED AS BISHOP.

An Imposing and Impressive Service Welcomed by the Priests of the Diocese and Parishioners of St. Peter's—A Large Number of Prelates and Priests Present—Eloquent Sermon by Bishop Walsh.

To-day was a memorable one in the history of the Catholic church of this diocese more especially, and of the Diocese of Toronto. For the first time in the history of the diocese of Peterborough the most imposing, solemn and august rites in the ritual of the Catholic church was celebrated in St. Peter's Cathedral—the consecration of a Bishop. The essential ceremony by which the power of the Episcopacy is communicated, the imposition of hands with prayer, but the examination, the delivery of the emblems of pastoral authority and the many other ceremonies, formed a whole which was at once magnificent and impressive. About two years ago Bishop Dowling was installed into the office of chief pastor of this diocese and the installation services were witnessed by an immense gathering of of people, both Protestants and Catholics, and this morning the consecration of Dr. O'Connor to the episcopal seat attracted another immense congregation which filled St. Peter's to its fullest capacity. The gathering of clergy was the largest ever held in Peterborough and there were ten Bishops and Archbishops present. The audience was not composed entirely of Peterborough people, for an excursion arrived here last night from Barrie with quite a large number on board and the surrounding towns all contributed to the multitude which turned its feet cathedral-ward and sat and witnessed the impressive ceremony, which lasted over three hours, with great interest and attention. The scene within the altar rail was one of magnificence and pomp, the Bishops in their purple, the officiating Bishops with their scarlet robes trimmed with gold, and the white robes of the minor clergy and acolytes, made a gorgeous and imposing show, while besides the high altar, a smaller for the use of the Bishop-elect throughout the ceremony stood to the right of the episcopal throne. Bishop Foley, of Detroit, Bishop LaFleche, of Three Rivers, Bishop Walsh, of London, and Bishop Dowling, of Hamilton, were among the prelates occupying seats within the rail who did not officiate in the ceremony.

THE CEREMONY.

At ten o'clock sharp the procession entered the church from the vestry, and passed down the east isle and up the centre to the altar rail. It was led by the crossbearers and acolytes, then came the minor clergy, then the Bishops, then Bishop-elect O'Connor, and the senior and junior Assistant, Archbishop Fabre, of Montreal, and Archbishop Duhamel, of Ottawa, and the Consecrator, Bishop Cleary, of Kingston and his chaplains brought up the rear. The officiating clergy were as follows:—

CONSECRATOR.—Bishop Cleary of Kingston.

CHAPLAINS.—Rev. Father Kelly, of Kingston, and Rev. Father Murray of Cobourg.

FIRST ASSISTANT.—Archbishop Fabre, of Montreal, with Rev. Fathers Martin and Leclerc, of Montreal, as Chaplains.

SECOND ASSISTANT.—Archbishop Duhamel, of Ottawa, with Rev. Fathers Whalen and McGivern of Ottawa.

CONSECRANDUS.—Dr. O'Connor.

CHAPLAINS.—Very Rev. Father Laurent, V. G., of Lindsay, and Very Rev. Father Brown of Port Hope.

ASSISTANT PRIEST.—Very Rev. Father Rooney, of Toronto.

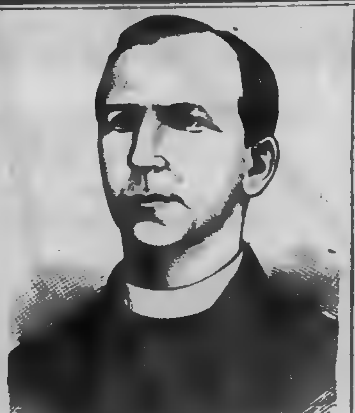
FIRST MASTER OF CEREMONIES.—Father Kloepfer, of Berlin.

SECOND MASTER OF CEREMONIES.—Mr. Sauriol, of Berlin.

CHANTERS.—Father Chandler, of Toronto, and Very Rev. Father Laurent, V.G., of Toronto.

The Consecrator, Bishop Cleary, was vested in full Pontifical's and the Bishop elect had on the amict alb, cincture and stole, crossed upon his breast as a priest, and the cope. The two assisting Bishops were in rochets, stoles, copes and mitres. The procession arriving at the altar the consecrator took his seat before the altar and the Bishop-elect was presented to him. The Apostolic commission was then read and the oath taken on bended knees. Then the examination followed. The examination being closed, the assistant bishops led the elect to the Consecrator before whom he knelt and reverently kissed his hand. The Consecrator then laid off his mitre, turned to the altar and commenced the mass as usual, the elect being at his left hand and the assistant Bishops in their seats. After the confession, the Consecrator continued the mass to the last verse of the sequence, when he again took his seat before the altar. The Bishop-elect, after the confession, with the assistant Bishops and attendants proceeded to the smaller chapel where he laid aside his cope, and opening the stole he put on the petorial cross and girded on the stole without crossing it on his breast. He was also vested with the tunic, dalmatic and chasuble and put on the sandals, and then standing at his altar between the assisting Bishops said the mass. The Consecrator and elect having each read the epistle and the first part of the sequence, the assistant Bishops led the elect before the former, and, all having saluted the Consecrator, sat down. The Consecrator and assisting Bishops resting forward in their seats and the elect lying prostrate at the left hand of the Consecrator and the others kneeling, the Litanies of the Saints were sung. The Litanies finished, the elect knelt before the Consecrator who took the book of the Gospels and placed it on the shoulders of the elect where it was so held until given to the elect. It was placed inversely, the bottom of the page being turned towards the Consecrator. The instruction conveyed by this rite is apparent—the Gospel must not be for him a sealed book, the duty of unfolding the truths which it contains especially pressing upon him. This rite is very ancient, being found in all the ancient rituals, Latin, Greek and Syraic. The imposition of hands immediately follows the placing of the gospel on the shoulders of the elect, and after several prayers for general blessings, the consecrator, placing his hands on the crown of the head of the elect, offered up a prayer.

After this he took the Gospel and, placed it on the holy table, and put the humer aloramant on the new Bishop, with the words "he is worthy." The prayers which followed are very ancient, and determine the laying on of hands to signify and confer the grace and power of the episcopacy. The head of the Bishop-elect was then bound with linen clothe to prevent the oil with which the crown of the head was annointed from dripping to the ground, and then, after a short prayer, the sacred canticle was sung. At the end of the first verse, while the choir continued singing the hymn, the consecrator made the sign of the cross with holy chrism on the head of the Bishop elect and anointed the crown with the words, "may thy head be anointed and consecrated with heavenly benediction in the Pontificial Order, in the name of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." The anointing of the hands then followed with the recital of the 132 Psalm. The hands were then joined and placed in a linen scarf, suspended from the neck, through reverence of the oil with which they were anointed. Then the Book of the Gospels was taken from the shoulders of the consecrated by the consecrator and the assisting Bishops and handed to the new Bishop with the words:—"Receive the gospel, go preach to the people committed to thy care, for God is powerful, that he may increase to thee His grace, who liveth and reigneth, world without end." Then the consecrated received the kiss of peace from the consecrator and the assisting Bishops. The newly consecrated Bishop then retired with the assistant Bishops to the smaller chapel where the oil was rubbed off with the crumb of bread. Having washed his hands he proceeded with the mass, to the offertory exclusively, as also did the consecrator, after which the Consecrator again seated himself before the altar, and the consecrated prelate, attended by his assistants, presented himself and offered two lighted tapers, two ornamental loaves and two small ornamental barrels of wine and kissed the Consecrator's hand as soon as the offering was received. Then the Consecrator having washed his hands, went to the altar and the Bishop-elect went to the episcopal side, each having his own missal, and read together, there being only one host and one chalice for both. The kiss of peace was given as usual by the Consecrator, and after mass had continued as usual, the Consecrator gave his blessing and seated himself before the altar, the newly consecrated prelate also seating himself in front of his own altar.



BISHOP O'CONNOR.

THE SERMON.

Bishop Walsh, of London, then rose at this stage of the ceremony, to deliver the consecration sermon. His Lordship is a man whose hair is grey with the march of time but who, nevertheless, speaks with a vim and fire and his sermon to-day was an excellent one and was listened to intently. He opened by referring to the occasion upon which they were gathered which was one of absorbing interest, not only to the clergy of the diocese, but also to the clergy of the diocese of Toronto. The ceremony of elevating a priest to the episcopate was full of meaning, instruction and edification. He then went on to speak of the duties and of the importance of the office of a Bishop. He dwelt at length on the Apostolic succession of the clergy of the Catholic Church and said that outside of the Apostolic college there was no commission to preach or teach the gospel, no commission of Christ to administer the sacrament or offer the services of the church, and any one who dared to do so was not entering in by the straight way but was attempting to go in as a thief or a robber. The head of the Apostolic College was the Vicar-Peter, who was to the church what the foundation stone was to a building. He pointed out that it was encumbent upon all who claimed to be ambassadors of Christ to prove their mission and he said every Catholic had the assurance that he was a member of that church which the Son of God had built with the apostles and which was instituted by God himself. They knew that by the apostolic genealogical tree they could trace the long line of Popes and Bishops back to the apostles and they could connect Pope Leo XIII. in the Vatican at Rome to-day with St. Peter who had been given the divine command by the Saviour. He again referred to the ceremony they had just witnessed and spoke in eulogistic terms of Bishop O'Connor and asked for him the co-operation and obedience of the people. In closing he spoke a few kind words of the Bishop of Hamilton, Bishop Dowling, and of the great prosperity and progress which this diocese had enjoyed under his administration.

CONCLUDING THE CEREMONY.

At the conclusion of the sermon, the final rites of consecration was proceeded with: namely the blessing of the mitre, of the crozier and of the gloves, after which the ceremony of placing the new Bishop on the Episcopal throne was performed and as the Te Deum was sung the new Bishop passed through the church blessing the people as he moved along. The ceremonies which are of such a character that a description giving a proper conception of them, with their solemnity and impressiveness cannot be given, were watched with interest and amid impressive silence by the immense audience.

WELCOME FROM THE CLERGY.

When His Lordship Bishop O'Connor had retired to his episcopal seat, the clergy gathered around him, and Very Rev. Father Laurent, V.G., of Lindsay read the following address from the clergy of this diocese:—

To the Most Rev'd Richard Alphonsus O'Connor, D.D., Bishop of Peterborough.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR LORDSHIP,—

We, the priests of your Diocese hasten to offer our homage, and wish you ad multos annos as Bishop of Peterborough. In Peterborough for the first time has been celebrated to-day the gorgeous rite which 2000 years ago was celebrated for the first time in Jerusalem, Antioch, Rome and Constantinople. This gorgeous rite has transformed you into a Bishop of the Holy Catholic Church, and well may we exclaim "By the Lord hath this been done, and it is wonderful in our eyes." The mitre tells of your Pontificial dignity, and seems to say "Obey your Prelates." The Crozier tells of your Pastoral authority, and seems to say, "He that heareth you, heareth me." The ring tells of your indissoluble union with the spouse of Christ, and seems to say "Christ loved the Church, and delivered Himself up for it." The Sandals tell of your commission as a lawful descendant of the Apostles, and seems to say, "How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace." In one word we behold you clad in the panoply of a Christian Bishop, and we hear, "Jesus, the author and finisher of faith," solemnly declaring "As the Father hath sent me, I also send you." The eminence on which you stand would be under other circumstances a giddy height, but the cross near your heart tells of the humiliations of our crucified Lord, and seems to say, "God forbid that I should glory but in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ."

The Diocese deplores the departure of Dr. Dowling, but rejoices that his successor is a Bishop who, during all the years of his priesthood has been remarkable for his piety, prudence, learning, and administrative ability. Your consistent and brilliant career as a priest, culminated naturally in your merited elevation to your present exalted position. Always sincere, unselfish and conscientious your appointment to the Episcopate has been hailed with satisfaction wherever high character is appreciated. Your pastorate of more than a quarter of a century is an open book where he who runs may read of your prudence and your administrative ability. The fact that you have been called to the high and holy position of a Bishop is moreover evidence of piety and learning. Your whole life has been the life of a student, and a continuous invocation of "the Lord who is the God of all knowledge." The knowledge you have so anxiously sought, and which you to-day possess in an eminent degree, is not the knowledge that "puffs up" but the knowledge that is power; the knowledge that is efficacious in promoting the glory of God, and procuring the salvation of souls.

The piety, also, for which you were always remarkable will now, in the fertile soil of the Episcopate, "yield fruit a hundred-fold," and bring forth that ardent charity which is the special attribute of the Catholic Bishop, and which, in the words of the Apostle "never faileth, whether prophecies shall be made void, or tongues shall cease, or knowledge shall be destroyed." Every best gift and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the "Father of Lights" and we reverently thank Him for having vouchsafed to constitute you Angel of the Church of Peterborough.

In the next place, we thank our gloriously reigning Pontiff, the immortal Leo XIII., who holds the highest position on earth, the successor of St. Peter, the only Apostle who in the full sense of the word yet lives and rules in the person of his successor, and from his unfailing Chair imparts to all who seek it the truth of Christian faith. In the next place we thank your illustrious colleagues in the Episcopate who are the honor and glory of their respective dioceses in this province of our beloved Canada, and who would add lustre to Episcopal Sees in any portion of Christendom.

At the time of your appointment as Bishop, you were ministering in the same parish where, many years ago, labored as an humble missionary the late lamented Doctor Jamot, the sainted founder of your Diocese. How consoling the communion of Saints! From his heavenly abode he still interests himself in the welfare of those who in this world were his spiritual children.

Always and everywhere the Catholic Church has been the friend of education. The Bishops who preceded you were indefatigable in their efforts in this blessed cause. Your diocese is famed for the excellence of her Catholic schools. Under your jurisdiction are also several pious confraternities. Also, the St. Vincent de Paul conference is flourishing. There are likewise several Catholic Associations, the object of which is to supply our young men with the means of innocent amusement and mental culture; to encourage in all habits of industry, thrift and sobriety.

Your illustrious predecessor laid the foundations, broad and deep, of St. Joseph's Hospital, where in the near future Christian charity shall care for the afflicted of all creeds and classes.

You will be pleased to learn that in your Episcopal city Catholics and non-Catholics dwell together in peace and harmony. The duties of a Bishop are many and various and difficult, but always and under all circumstances you may rely upon the good-will and co-operation of your clergy. This thought will tend to lighten the load so solemnly laid to-day upon your shoulders.

We ask your blessing, and in conclusion our fervent prayer is that your reign over us may be long, happy and glorious. Quod felix faustum que sit.

HIS LORDSHIP'S REPLY.

Bishop O'Connor, in replying, thanked the clergy for their kind words of welcome, and for the very complimentary reference to him in the address. He said there were trials and labor surrounding the Episcopate, but they, as priests, knew of those, and he would expect their co-operation. He spoke of the encouragement he felt in assuming his duties with clergy of such zeal and piety about him, and referred in very kind terms to the prosperity of this diocese, under the late lamented Bishop Jamot, and Bishop Dowling.

WELCOME FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Committee from the parishioners then entered the altar rail and Mr. Thos. Cahill read the following address of welcome to his Lordship from the parishioners of St. Peter's:—

To the Right Reverend Richard Alphonsus O'Connor, Bishop of Peterborough:—

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR LORDSHIP:—We the parishioners of your cathedral parish of Peterborough approach your Lordship upon this most important epoch in your life to convey to you the expression of our profound homage and of our heartfelt joy at your elevation to the episcopate. It is ever a gratification to Catholics to learn that one of their priests has received Pontifical recognition by having the exalted dignity of the Episcopate conferred upon him, and it was with deep pleasure that we heard that His Holiness Pope Leo the Thirteenth had bestowed the crozier on your Lordship, who is so fitted by a cultured mind and a life of sanctity to worthily wield it as one of the Princes of the church.

Your predecessor, the Right Reverend Thomas Joseph Dowling, during his brief tenure of the Episcopal office, has won for himself profound respect and enduring love from all with whom he came in contact. His activity in diocesan affairs is evidenced by the vigorous spiritual life everywhere manifested throughout this portion of the Lord's vineyard. We regret to part with a prelate we have learned to love, but bow submissively to the decision of the centre of Catholic unity in the changes promulgated in the interest of Catholicity. Our sorrow is, however, lessened when we remember that the successor of the Right Reverend Doctor Dowling has been chosen on account of his special fitness in education and training to govern with efficiency and acceptance the diocese of Peterborough. An elevation to the hierarchy in the selection of one whose training and aspirations are identified with the people over whom he is chosen as chief pastor is a source of profound gratification to the laity and we cordially thank His Holiness for having made an appointment which has given such universal satisfaction.

Many of us, although not enjoying heretofore a personal acquaintance with your Lordship, have watched with admiration your upward and onward course in the sublime avocations. Your energetic association with educational, religious and charitable institutions in the Archdiocese of Toronto have already aroused bright anticipations for the future progress of the diocese committed to your care. We need scarcely assure your Lordship that you are heartily welcomed, not only by your cathedral parishioners assembled here to-day, but also by the faithful of every part of your diocese with a warmth of feeling that language inadequately expresses, and in your efforts for the cause of the church militant you will find the people of the diocese of Peterborough ever ready to strengthen your hands in the extension of God's Kingdom on earth.

Permit us in conclusion to felicitate you on the sublime dignity to which you have been elevated, praying that the Giver of all good may guide and preserve you through lengthened years and that you may be spared long to labor successfully for the glory and happiness of the clergy and people committed to your episcopal charge. We humbly ask for ourselves and our families your Lordship's episcopal benediction.

Signed on behalf of the St. Peter's Cathedral church.

E. Phelan,	T. Kelly,
J. Hackett,	H. LeBrun,
J. Doherty,	T. Dolan,
B. Morrow,	J. Lynch, sen.,

J. Nervin.

In replying His Lordship spoke in a voice so low that reporters failed to catch his words. However, he thanked them for the address and spoke of the prosperity of the diocese and expressed the wish that God would bless them spiritually and temporarily.

The immense gathering then dispersed and the clergy adjourned to the Murray-st. school where an excellent dinner had been prepared.

The choir was assisted throughout by Prof. Doucet's orchestra and the singing was excellent.

A PEN SKETCH OF THE BISHOP.

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, of the diocese of Peterborough, a first-class portrait of whom is presented above, has had a most successful career, his progress being ever onward and upward, and a brief pen sketch of his life may be of interest in connection with such a memorable and crowning event as that which was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral to-day. Richard Alphonsus O'Connor was born in Listowel, Kerry, Ireland, on the 15th of April, 1838. Coming out to this country, he attended St. Michael's College from 1852 to 1858, receiving there his classical and part of his theological education. His theological studies were completed at the Grand Seminary, Montreal. The various minor orders were conferred upon him by Bishop Bourget, and the sub-deaconship, deaconship and priesthood, by Archbishop Lynch. After his ordination as a priest in 1861, he did duty in the gore of Toronto as curate to Rev. Father Mulligan, whom he succeeded in 1862. He afterwards was parish priest of Niagara Falls and of Adjala, and on October 29, 1870, he was appointed to succeed Father Northgraves in Barrie. There he has been laboring up to the present time, and through his zeal and efforts he leaves behind him at that place a fine church and convent as monuments which will always keep fresh in the memories of the Barrie parishioners the name of Rt. Rev. R. A. O'Connor.

Personal.

Col. Lewis, of Brockville, Brigade Major, is in town to-day inspecting the armories of the 57th battalion.

The Police Court.

An assault case was withdrawn at the Court this morning, and a case of drunkenness postponed. Martin Potter was fined $10 for assault.

A Successful Sale.

The sale of useful and fancy articles held by the ladies of St. Andrew's Church, yesterday afternoon and evening, was very successful. The attendance was quite large, and the articles offered for sale were freely purchased. Tea was served in the evening, and enjoyed by a large number. As a social affair the gathering was a success, and the proceeds amounted to a tidy sum.

Vital Statistics.

The number of births, marriages and deaths registered with the Town Clerk during April were:—

Births	22
Marriages	7
Deaths	11

The number of marriages this month will be larger, as there were eight marriages in town yesterday.

Methodist Conference.

The Bay of Quinte Conference will meet at Belleville on June 6th. The Rev. M. L. Pearson, President of the Conference, will be one of the speakers at the reception service on the evening of the 7th and will preach the ordination sermon on Sunday, June 9th. Rev. S. J. Shorey will preach on Sunday evening in the West Belleville Church, of which he was formerly pastor.

Celebration on the 24th.

A meeting of the officers of the 57th Battalion was held last evening, at which it was decided to co-operate with the P. A. A. A. in arranging for and carrying out a programme in celebration of the Queen's birthday. A committee, consisting of Captain Brennan, Denniston and Hill and Lieutenant Mason and Lech was appointed to confer with the P. A. A. A. These two organizations managed a successful celebration last year, and are looking forward to a more successful one this year. Among the other business transacted at the meeting was the ordering of more new music for the band.

The Place to Buy.

The public are well aware that Elliott & Tierney's is the place to get the best Value in Groceries; their goods require no puffing. The bargains in all lines of goods are wonderful. Call at the Palace Grocery for square dealing and good articles at lowest prices. A full line of Vanderous & Holmes (New York) biscuits, very fine goods.

Raising the Question of a Bonus.

The departure of Mr. A. W. Brodie and the removal of his mill machinery and of a number of his employees to Hespeler, has brought up the question that had a bonus been offered would he have remained. Possibly not, as Mr. Brodie is taking hold of a business of larger proportions and one which we hope will prove remunerative. Whether a bonus is essential to establishing manufactories or assisting those in operations to enlarge their borders is doubtful but on the other hand the fact remains that at M. Sullivans & Co's. dry goods of latest styles are sold so cheap that a bonus would not lower prices one cent. Ladies looking for summer dresses should call. The newest and most stylish goods fairly rivalling the best city stocks now on the shelves. Give Sullivan & Co. a call. d26tf

WEDNESDAY, MAY 1, 1889.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER

"Is he worse?" the man asked, and in an awed whisper, but the nurse only closed her lips a shade tighter, and kept her eyes fixed on the sunk and haggard face.

Dr. Davis came very soon, having no need to ask questions or make examination, only, indeed, raising his eyebrows a little as he cast a glance at the unconscious figure.

But he did not go away. He stood at the foot of the bed and waited. But not for long! The minutes passed slowly by. The little clock on the dressing table ticked steadily on, and the hands pointed hard on the hour of midnight; no one moved or stirred. Nancy sat just where she had sat for several hours, her hands pressed hard together, but no sound escaping her lips or any tears falling from her eyes. And then the little clock began to chime the midnight hour, and ere the twelfth tiny stroke had rent the air, the last of the Earles had passed away, killed by the news of harm to the son who had never been but a shame to him, and without word or look for the daughter who was only a girl, who was born an Earle, yet an Earle that did not count.

CHAPTER XXX.

WAITING.

Early the following morning Sir George St. Leger came to ask for Nancy, and to find out if there was anything he could do to serve her, or in any way lighten the duties which lay immediately before her

"There is something that you could do for me, Sir George," she said, when she had answered his greeting, "and it is to telegraph out to Burmah for me, to get the last news. The servants are very good, and anxious to do all they can, but none of them know whom to send to and where to send, and I cannot tell them. But I thought you would be sure to know, or be able to find out."

"To be sure, to be sure," Sir George made haste to reply. "I will do it at once."

"I can give you the last address I had, if that would be any use."

"Oh! no. I'll go down to the war office and get the latest information as to route and so on."

"And, Sir George, it would be best, I think, not to send my brother any news from here," Nancy said, hesitatingly. "You see it might be told to him suddenly, and just turn the scale with him, if he is very badly wounded, as they say."

"I will be sure to word the message very carefully," said little Sir George, feeling a very suspicious lump rising in his throat at the thought of the double sorrow which had come upon this fragile girl with the golden head and dove's eyes.

There was a moment's silence.

"And—and would you also inquire especially after Mr. Beresford?" she said, flushing a lovely shell like pink over her sweet face.

"Mr. Beresford—that was the other man who was wounded," Sir George exclaimed. "Is he a friend of yours, my dear? Did you know him?"

"I am going to marry him some day," she said, then she at once began to sob piteously, "if—if"——

"No—no—let us hope for the best. Don't think of that," the little man cried, almost beside himself with distress. "While there's life there's hope, you know, my dear, and they are both young and strong—not like our dear old friend who went away from us yesterday, but young men in the very flower of their strength. The chances are a thousand to one in their favor; but I'll go along at once, my dear, and then your mind will be more at rest about them," and off the good hearted little man went, and Nancy was once more left alone.

There was a great deal for her to do naturally, but it was really only in the way of giving orders. The family solicitor came as soon as he received the news of Mr. Earle's death, and all the weight of arranging for the funeral and the other business fell upon him.

The day wore slowly away, but Sir George did not return with news from Burmah. Then Darby brought in the evening papers, and Nancy saw from the expression of his face that the worst had happened to one or both out at the front.

"Which is it, Darby?" she asked, faintly, feeling a deadly numbness stealing over her.

"Miss Earle," he said, very gently, "you are the last of the name now. Mr. Stuart only lived a few hours after they got him into camp."

"And Mr.—Beresford?" Nancy whispered.

"No mention of him, ma'am," the servant answered, "so he is alive at all events;" and then he put the paper into her hand and pointed to the place where she would find what she wished to see.

It was so short, cruelly short, as war dispatches always seem to those who are the most keenly interested, just saying that Lieut. Stuart Earle and one private of the Blankshire regiment had died, shortly after reaching camp, of wounds received in an engagement with Dacoits on the —th.

And there was not a single word about the condition or fate of Lieut. James Beresford. However, in a certain sense, there was relief in the very fact; at all events he was not dead, so that there was a chance for him yet.

To be Continued.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

The Balloon Burst.

BOONEVILLE, April 30.—Yesterday Harry Street, an attache of a Wild West show, attempted an ascension in a balloon and a parachute. When the balloon reached an altitude of 300 feet it suddenly burst and made a rapid descent to the earth. The aeronaut landed upon the edge of a roof and was mortally injured.

Our Hats are Inimitable

Every day now adds its emphasis to the judgment of gentlemen as to the beauty and excellence of our spring Hats. They're buying them. They're not doing it without having first compared and decided that we bear away the prize for shapeliness and quality as well as for faultless making and moderate prices. Gentlemen are critical when it comes to getting a light weight Hat. They are a necessity in these spring days—a necessity in which they esteem style as essential. Witness the demand for our Genuine Cooksy, Woodrea and Elwood Celebrated Zephr weight Hats made especially for us. There is something peculiar and inimitable about the gracefulness of our Hats.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette

THE ATTRACTION AT TURNBULL'S.

MILLINERY.—No wonder flowers hold so high a place in Millinery Trimmings—as real to the eye as if raised by the hand of Nature. Everything, from the Daisy that gems the sod, to the Rose that blushes under glass. A single of Untrimmed Hats and Bonnets, stacks of Straws every shape you would think to ask for, and designs you would never dream of. Milans, Fancy Straws, Lace, both materials mixed, Chips, Leghorns. Novelties of all kinds; and this is a season of Novelties.

KID GLOVES—Have tumbled into a line of tan. Kid Gloves, stitched backs, we can sell for 25 c. a pair; some people buy them by the ½ doz. Come early if you want this Bargain. We are in a shape to sell a great number of Women's Silk and Taffeta Gloves, in the next few days. Our Gloves always fit, so they say. Assortment, Quality, Price—the tandem team will give their go.

Such a range of Styles of Hosiery is scarcely ever seen in one place. Sizes to fit Everybody.

SASH RIBBONS—In Handsome Brocades, at 30c. a yard.

DRESS GOODS. New shades of Henrietta Cloths to fill up the gap the quick sales of the past few weeks have been making. SMOKE GREY, like the silver sheen of the atmosphere of a light, grey day by the sea. SUEZ GREEN.—Why Suez? Only that the oddity of the name may mentally fit the color—the color so beautiful in combination with other colors. OLD ROSE.—The name suggests the fading leaf, lost beauty, expired fragrance—and yet it stands for a tinting shade of red so delicate that to call it red would be an insult. The colors are primary, of course. All told, we have about Thirty-six Good Shades of Dress Goods to select from, in materials from 10c. to $1.00 a yard. New girdles and trimmings to match.

Fashion is always turning a new corner, and we with it. This spring it is fashionable for men to wear Striped Suitings. We have them in good variety, and will save you money in every suit you buy.

Molly Matches Goes Scot Free—His Wife Would Shoot—A Fashionable Wedding.

TORONTO, May 2.—John Larney, alias Molly Matches, and Joseph Dubuque, alias Barrett, were charged at the Police Court yesterday with picking pockets. Miss Lillie Powers gave evidence that as she was entering a car at the Union Depot she was jostled against by the prisoner Matches, and when she took her seat in the car she found that her pocketbook containing $2.10 had been taken. She complained first to the conductor after the train started and on her return to Toronto she complained to the police. She positively identified Molly as the man who jostled up against her. Mrs. Amy R. Owen, a sister of the previous witness, gave corroborative evidence. The Magistrate did not think the evidence strong enough to convict and discharged both prisoners. They were then charged with picking the pocket of E. M. Bell and taking $160. There was no evidence against them and they were discharged on that count also, the $160 having been returned to Bell and he having left town.

When the woman who claims to be Mrs. Mollie heard that Mollie had been captured in Toronto she left Cleveland post haste for Canada. She was in court yesterday morning when Mollie and Joe Dubuque came up on remand, and expressed the greatest possible joy when the Police Magistrate ordered their discharge. Sergeant Detective Reburn thought he would give Mollie a piece of wholesome advice as to his stay in the city, and collaring him after he left the office marched him out to the corridor. Mrs. Mollie rushed between them, and shaking her fist in Reburn's face, exclaimed: "By——, I will put a hole through you as fast as I look at you." "Now, old girl," replied the officer, "just keep quiet, you cannot bluff me worth anything, and if you open your mouth to me again I will put you where I have put Mollie." This quieted her down and she began to make apologies, when she was ordered out of the building. Mollie and Joe left for Detroit last night. Mrs. Mollie is a fine looking woman, 30 years of age, fine eyes which blaze up when she is mad, and wears red hair.

Before Judge Macdougall yesterday David Cox was charged with larceny and housebreaking, the complainant being J. H. Brown of Lloydtown. Cox pleaded guilty to the offence, which was committed on April 21 last. He was remanded a week for sentence. John James Lesson was charged with bigamy. On April 17 Lesson married Mary Smith at Aurora. He, it is alleged, had a wife at the time living at Sturgeon Bay. Upon pleading not guilty he was remanded one week for trial.

Sir John Lister Kaye is in the city. He says ranching and farming in the Northwest pay as conducted by his company. They expect to bring out a large number of emigrants next year and people all the territory between their farms.

There was a gay and fashionable wedding in St. George's Church at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when one of the wealthiest young men of Toronto took to himself a wife. The newly made husband was Mr. Eber B. Ward, son of Mrs. Alexander Cameron and of the late Captain Ward of Detroit, while the fair bride was Miss Eudia Hugel, daughter of Baron von Hugel of Port Hope, a young lady who has for several seasons been a visitor in Toronto and an active participant in the gaiety of the Queen City's society. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. D. Cayley, rector of St. George's. Chief of all the many valuable presents was a check for $20,000 from Mr. Ward to his bride and a $5000 check from Mrs. Alexander Cameron.

There is considerable excitement in Shaw-street over the mysterious disappearance on Tuesday of a 15-year-old girl named Alice Arthurs, who resided with her father, William, at 192 on that thoroughfare. Alice went for a walk in the afternoon and has not been seen since. She is described as stout, fair complexion, with short cropped hair. Her parents express the greatest anxiety as to what has become of her.

TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER FIRST.

The Harvey Embezzlement Case at Guelph Adjourned Without Day.

GUELPH, May 1.—The oft-adjourned Harvey embezzlement case has at last arrived at a conclusion. This afternoon at 3 o'clock the case was called before Police Magistrate Saunders. At the opening of court Crown Attorney Peterson said that after consultation and explanations given by the Deputy Attorney-General the case could not proceed until the charge of murder had been disposed of.

Mr. Guthrie, counsel for Lyon, said when the charge was laid he believed it to be true and still believed it, and that while he did not want to be harsh he desired to vindicate Mr. Lyon's position and make public the evidence, as Harvey's friends desired that the charge be investigated and thought it would be better for all parties concerned.

Mr. McLean, counsel for the prisoner, said that Mr. Harvey was not particular whether the trial went on or not, as he was not guilty of any embezzlement. On the question being asked if the prisoner was ready to go on with the trial it was answered by Mr. McLean that if the Crown so desired he would be cheerly, but thought that the case should stand over.

The Police Magistrate said he would not give an order to have the prisoner brought before him and on the suggestion of Mr. Guthrie as to taking the evidence in the presence of the prisoner at the jail, His Worship would not do that, but said that after he had examined the books he was satisfied that Mr. Lyon had a prima facie case for laying the charge and that it was wrong for the people to impute anything to the contrary.

Mr. Guthrie then said in accordance with the views of His Worship he would not press the case unless the prisoner desired it, and the case was adjourned sine die.

[illegible] ENGINE WHEEL.

[illegible] THE JUNCTION CUT DISASTER.

General Manager Hickson Interviewed—A Thorough Investigation to be Made—Another Victim Identified

HAMILTON, May 1.—This morning there was considerable agitation apparent among the railway authorities here. General Manager Hickson had arrived to ascertain why so many people had been killed on the southern division lately. He came in on the 9.20 train from Toronto, and the fine large engine Princess was attached to his car to take it out to the scene of the accident. Mr. Armstrong appeared with an immense armful of maps and plans, and the general manager, accompanied by Chief Engineer Joseph Hobson, W. W. Pope of the Solicitor's office, Chief Clerk Joseph Wallace and Samuel Barker (superintendent of the Northern and Northwestern division), started for the scene of the wreck and spent an hour there looking over the ground. Then they returned and examined the debris which is piled on cars in the yard.

Mr. Hickson was seen by a reporter after his examination was concluded and asked if he had decided what caused the accident. "I have seen all that is to be seen in connection with the accident," he said, "but I really can't undertake to express any opinions while the matter is in the hands of the coroner. I would be glad to afford the press any information but it would not be right for me to express an opinion until the jury has given its verdict. I may say that when the inquest is over a rigid investigation will be made independent of that by me in the interests of the company."

"I understand you are also going out to St. George this afternoon," said the reporter. "Will the investigation which you propose to make cover both disasters?"

"I think I will go out to St. George before I return, but that has already been investigated."

"As a result of this disaster at the cut will any change be made in the road at that point with a view to taking off part of that sharp curve at the foot of the grade?"

"No, I don't see that there is any necessity for that. The fact that there was an accident there does not prove that the spot is dangerous. The track has been the same there ever since it was built, and no accident ever happened at that particular spot before."

"It has generally been considered dangerous, though. I understand Senator Sanford wrote to you some years ago pointing out the fact and suggesting it be altered to lessen the curve?"

Mr. Hickson smiled: "You know how that sort of thing is. If you were to see the number of letters I get in a year offering gratuitous advice you would appreciate the fact that running a railroad is something like running a newspaper."

"It is said, Mr. Hickson, that the locomotives used on the Grand Trunk fast trains are not of a sufficiently good class for the purpose, and that to this fact the recent accidents are attributable?"

"All nonsense. The engines we use on our fast trains are as good as any on the continent. In fact they are the best that can be got. The engine on the limited express was built in Kingston on the best model, and had only been in use six years."

Mr. Hall, locomotive superintendent, has discovered that in addition to one axle of the engine truck being broken, the outside, or north wheel in front, had five pieces broken off it, and the fragments were found and brought in from the wreck this afternoon. The pilot of the engine was buried seven feet down in the sand. It is now thought that the accident was caused by the front outside wheel breaking and taking the guide rail instead of the proper one.

One by one it is being discovered, though not to a certainty, who were the victims of the disaster. The remains cannot be identified, but from the personal effects found and from the fact that their owners have not been found nor can they be heard of, it is surmised that their remains help to make up the contents of the cases at the undertaker's.

The railway authorities have been having the contents of the unclaimed baggage saved from the wreck investigated, with a view to ascertaining who the dead folk are. This morning they obtained the following list: H. Levy, Chicago; Mrs. Smith (no address); Capt. Butler, Cook County Insane Asylum, near Chicago; F. Randall Orr, Omaha, Neb. Also another piece of baggage belonging to a lady, in which the owner's name does not appear.

Some of the passengers who were uninjured themselves lost some of their effects. Mr. M. Crum of Alverton, O., told a reporter that he had lost his watch and all his luggage. Mr. D. Forbes of Grand Rapids said he missed his watch when he got to Hamilton, though he was scarcely scratched himself. The watch, he thinks, was jerked out of his pocket. The finding of more watches than bodies is also accounted for by the fact that one of the pieces of baggage is said to have contained several samples of watches and cases.

A. Colvin, 550 Warren-avenue, Chicago, arrived here this morning in search of the body of Morgan B. Scullin of 781 West Lake-street, Chicago. Mr. Colvin examined the burnt remains and identified a body as that of Mr. Scullin by a fragment of the coat and waistcoat. The body was the one thought to be that of Mr. Curnick yesterday. Mr. Colvin left for Chicago with the remains this afternoon.

This morning Chief McKinnon received a letter from William Long of New York inquiring about Henry Pringle, a young man from Chicago, who is supposed to have been killed. He had about $180 in gold in his possession.

Mr. Doherty, the traveler for J. M. Williams & Co., has been heard from. His wife received a telegram from Wiarton saying he is all right.

Mrs. McLeod, a Toronto lady, came to this city from Stratford yesterday and examined the remains of the charred bodies. Her brother-in-law, Mr. H. H. Stone, and his wife, of Marquette, Mich., left Detroit on Saturday, intending to go on to New York to the Centennial celebration. They have not since been heard from. Mrs. McLeod could find no traces of her relatives among the remains of the dead. This morning she examined the watches and jewelry in the superintendent's office, but nothing there bore any resemblance to any of the jewelry worn by Mr. Stone or his wife. It is believed that they were not on the train. Probably they went through by an earlier train.

Eugene P. Newhall, formerly of The Spectator staff, and now of Omaha, arrived in the city this morning in search of his brother-in-law, C. J. Fraser of Toronto. Mr. Newhall traced the missing man as far as Detroit, and when he arrived here he found that Fraser's watch had been found in the debris and identified by a Toronto relative, so that there is no doubt whatever that Fraser was one of the victims.

THE INQUEST.

Captain Hall and David Walker Give Details of the Accident.

HAMILTON, May 1.—At the coroner's inquest to-night Mr. Joseph Hickson asked permission to speak and it being granted he said it was a matter of the deepest regret on the part of the company that the accident had happened and he hoped no efforts would be spared to get to the very bottom of it.

Captain Hall and Mr. David Walker of Toronto were sworn. Their evidence was largely of the nature of details of the accident. Both said that the train was not making more than 25 miles an hour at the [illegible] outside before the accident. They also said that the groaning and cries for help had ceased before the cars took fire. The inquest will be continued on Friday.

PARNELL UNDER FIRE.

The Cross-Examination of the Irish Leader Commenced.

LONDON, May 1.—The direct examination of Mr. Parnell was concluded at to-day's session of the Parnell Commission. Mr. Parnell declared he had conducted the Irish agitation constitutionally. His cross-examination was begun.

Mr. Parnell on cross-examination denied that The Irish World ever collected monies for the Parliamentary party. The Irish World had been hostile to himself and to the Parliamentary party since 1882.

Attorney-General Webster produced extracts from The Irish World praising Mr. Parnell's action in Parliament after 1882.

Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, put in extracts adverse to Mr. Parnell. The cross-examination was then continued. Mr. Parnell admitted knowing Mooney, otherwise known as "Transatlantic." He did not know whether Mooney contributed to the Parliamentary fund. Mooney wrote violent articles. Still witness would not object to receiving Mooney's tribute to assist the party if he did not publish articles advocating murder. Witness had held no communication with Patrick Ford since 1881. Mr. Parnell emphatically denied that his Irish schemes ever included a coalition with the Fenians in order to expel landlords from Ireland. He certainly aimed to destroy landlordism but not to drive individuals from the country and never had any idea of resorting to illegal means. He did not recollect meeting Mr. Davitt and John O'Leary in 1878 and discussing with them a possible alliance between the Nationalists and the Fenians. He had no notion that the national fund in America and the skirmishing fund were identical.

Attorney-General Webster read a violent manifesto signed by John Devoy and others and issued at Dublin.

Mr. Parnell declared he had never heard of it before. He had met Devoy, Breslin, Finnerty and Alexander Sullivan and a number of physical force men. He said he would frankly avow that he felt it was no part of his duty to exclude anybody from the League on account of their antecedents. He wanted to include in it all Irishmen, trusting that every section would accept the new constitutional form of agitation. He had aimed at asking the physical force men to abandon their movement and to accept his. To shut the constitutional door in their faces because they did not immediately agree would have been very foolish. He did not recollect making a speech at Lynn, Mass., in which it was alleged he had said that when England was beaten to her knees the time would have come to realize the idea of the Nationalists. He admitted that if he had used these words he must have been thinking of methods of warfare in the event of constitutional agitation failing. At Troy somebody offered him $5 for bread and $20 for lead. He did not object to the offer because he thought the offerer only meant $5 for charitable work and $20 for League work. This statement caused laughter.

The commission at this point adjourned.

A Lease Purchase Bill Rejected.

LONDON, May 1.—The House of Commons to-day rejected the bill introduced by Sir Wilfred Lawson proposing to give urban leaseholders power to purchase their leases. The vote stood 186 against the measure to 157 in its favor.

Judge Dugas Brings a $25,000 Libel Suit Against Mr. Vanasse and His Paper.

MONTREAL, May 1.—Judge Dugas has instituted an action for $25,000 damages against Le Monde and its editor, Mr. F. Vanasse, M.P., for alleged libel. Judge Dugas complains that Le Monde, by a series of insidious and malicious articles, attempted to throw ridicule on his actions while he was out in Compton County fulfilling a public mission concerning the arrest of Donald Morrison. He also complains that Le Monde insinuated that he had failed in his military duties while an officer of the 65th Battalion during the Northwest rebellion.

ADMITTED TO BAIL.

Maloney and Phillips Liberated on Giving $4000 Bonds Each.

MONTREAL, May 1.—The writ of habeas corpus in the Maloney-Phillips case was returned this afternoon. Judge Davidson, after argument, held that the offence was a bailable one and fixed the amount at $4000 each, $2000 by each of the accused and $1000 by two bondsmen for each. James Baxter and J. C. Laird signed Harry Phillips' bond and J. C. Laird and George Kooster signed Andy Maloney's. The accused were then liberated.

A DAY OF DISASTERS.

Chicago's Centennial Celebration Crowded with Calamities.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Lehman's Windsor theatre was burnt last night, only the walls being left standing. The loss is $40,000, fully insured. Three firemen were injured, but not dangerously. The fire was caused by sparks shot into the flies from rockets fired on the stage during the evening performance.

One hundred thousand people assembled in the park on the lake front last night to witness a display of fireworks. Two huge suspension pieces shot into the crowd burning everybody in their course. Women fainted everywhere, and were trampled on by the surging multitude.

After the fireworks were over, the people starting homeward came in collision with multitudes who had been unable to see the display. The crush was fearful. Fifty persons in all are said to have been seriously hurt, a number perhaps fatally.

Another panic, attended with disastrous results, happened almost at the same time in the north division of the city. When the fireworks had ceased in Lincoln Park, the thousands of people rushed out pell-mell in a mad race for seats on the street cars. A wooden sidewalk about 500 feet long gave way, and several hundred people fell five or six feet. In the scramble to get out the women and children were trampled upon, and many were painfully, but it is reported none fatally, injured.

A BIG PARADE.

Close of the Centennial Celebration in New York.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The parade to-day was a magnificent turnout. The Columbia College students created much amusement as they passed the grand stand by repeating in unison the cry "Who was Gen. George Washington?" and accompanying the answer by a "break down."

The mighty army from the fields of labor and industry formed a spectacle which for grandeur and impressiveness transcended anything ever witnessed in this country. There were quite 100,000 men in line.

KEEPING UP THE AGITATION.

Gabriel Dumont Stirring Up the Halfbreeds—A Rumored Resignation.

WINNIPEG, May 1.—Gabriel Dumont, replying to the Metis' address at St. Vital, said his people were only seeking their rights and the agitation would be kept up till all wrongs were righted. The damage done at Batoche, most of which was wilful, should be paid for.

It is stated to-night that Treasurer Jones has sent in his resignation.

A young man charged with forgery swallowed the checks while the case was in progress to-day.

Rumor has it that the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba and the Northern Pacific Railways have made traffic arrangements.

[illegible] McLeod died last night and the remains were sent to High Bluff for interment.

A body, supposed to be that of an Icelander named [illegible], was found to-day by the Military School while skirmishing in Fort Rouge. The body was sitting against a tree with a revolver in its hand. There was a bullet hole in the head and the pockets were turned inside out. It was evidently a suicide.

The Deadly Razor.

KANSAS CITY, May 1.—During a drunken fight between negroes which became general in a low quarter of the city last night, Annie Edwards was cut in the throat, James Sevell was dangerously cut near the heart and several others received wounds. The woman died this morning.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

WINDING-UP OF THE BUSINESS OF THE SESSION.

The Bill for the Construction of the Harvey and Salisbury Road Given the Six Months' Hoist in the Senate.

OTTAWA, May 1.—The House met at 11 o'clock this morning and the business remaining to be disposed of was speedily put through.

In the absence of Mr. Charlton, in whose name the question stood, Sir Richard Cartwright asked: What are the names of the six Pagans returned for the Parish of St. Elizabeth in the County of Joliette, Que., in the census returns of 1881, as appears from the original schedule of the enumerator for that parish?

Not having the desired information Sir John Macdonald answered the inquiry by pointing his finger across the House and declaring: "They are all over there." This was greeted with roars of laughter at the expense of the Opposition.

During the morning Hon. A. G. Jones strongly condemned the practice of allowing the greater number of members of the House to return home before the business of the session was done and blamed Sir John Macdonald for having sanctioned the departure of many members last week.

In reply Sir John said his consent as leader of the House had been given in but two instances of early departure, the members being Mr. Yeo of Prince Edward Island and another of the Opposition.

Mr. Trow, the chief Opposition whip, rose to corroborate this statement, declaring that there had this session been no departure from the usual practice and that his consent had been obtained before the full sessional allowance was paid the departing members. This statement drew upon Mr. Trow the censure of Sir Richard Cartwright, Mr. Lovitt, Mr. Mulock and Hon. Mr. Jones.

Having adjourned for lunch the House met again at 2.15 p.m. and wound up the business as far as possible, pending the return of bills expected from the Senate. Opportunity was then taken to question the Government on some undetermined matters which have been discussed.

Mr. Mulock asked what was the intention of the Government with respect to the demand from the milling interest for a readjustment of the wheat and flour duties. He asked also the view of the Government with respect to testing in the courts the constitutionality of the Jesuits Estates Act.

With respect to the wheat and flour duties Sir John Macdonald said the tariff as at present arranged had when settled upon been quite satisfactory, and the unfair discrimination now claimed to exist had been brought by subsequently changing conditions. The Government realized the force of the contention for a readjustment and had given the matter serious consideration, but had come to the conclusion not to deal with it until after another season's consideration. It was the intention to call Parliament together early in January next year, and if in the meantime it was still considered that there should be a change Parliament could then deal with the matter.

As to the Jesuits Estates Act he did not think that the moment a constitutional question arose the Government should submit it to the Privy Council. The Parliament of Canada was a proper tribunal to decide upon matters of constitutional law, and after the overwhelming majority by which this Parliament had pronounced the act constitutional, the Government would be wanting in respect to the House were it straightway to appeal to the courts for another decision. He saw by the press, however, that steps were now being taken to test the constitutionality, so that there was a likelihood of a settlement without the Government sending the decision of Parliament for review.

Hon. Peter Mitchell asked what truth there was in the rumor that there were to be six sessions of this Parliament. He for one would not be sorry to learn that it was true, and it seemed to him that the Government were working in that direction by making each year's session earlier than the last.

Sir John Macdonald said the matter having thus been brought to their attention, the Government would take it into consideration to see what could be done in this direction. [Laughter.]

At 3.30 the House took recess until 5.30 o'clock. Upon meeting at 5.30 the House received a report from the Senate that certain bills had been passed and then adjourned until 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

SLAIN BY THE SENATE.

The Harvey and Salisbury Railway Measure Given the Six Months' Hoist.

OTTAWA, May 1.—The Senate to-night gave the six months' hoist to the bill to authorize the construction of the Harvey and Salisbury Railway, an amendment to that effect moved by Senator Miller from Richmond, C. B., being carried by 22 to 11. There was a long debate on the subject, in which those opposed to the bill urged that the proposed expenditure was uncalled for and that the new line would seriously interfere with the Intercolonial.

Speaking in support of the measure Hon. Mr. Abbott said there was no truth in the rumor that had been circulated in the corridors that the Government were apathetic about this bill. He knew, from having been present when it was discussed in Council and from conversations he had had with members of the Government, more especially with the First Minister, that it was the earnest desire of the Government to construct the road, their faith and the faith of the country being pledged to it. He admitted the spirit of independence which the members of the Senate had exhibited in this debate, but he would like to see not only independence but consistency displayed. On two previous occasions the Senate had formally declared in favor of the construction of this road when it was proposed that a company should build it. The attempt to have it built by a subsidized company had failed and the Government therefore wished to undertake the work themselves. No argument which had been advanced against its construction now was not in existence upon the two previous occasions when the Senate had voted for its construction.

The division on the amendment giving the six months' hoist resulted as follows:

HASTINGS HAPPENINGS.

Diphtheria in the Neighborhood—The Fire Brigade's Baptism.

DIPHTHERIA.—Diphtheria is reported to exist in our immediate neighborhood, in fact it is said there are actually two cases in the village. The Board of Health should take immediate steps to investigate the cause and adopt prompt measures to prevent the disease from becoming epidemic.

SUDDEN DEATH.—A peculiarly sad and sudden death occurred last Saturday. William Walsh, second son of Mr. John Walsh, Asphodel, was seized with diphtheric symptoms on the Sunday previous, and breathed his last, without a moment's warning, on the evening above mentioned. The young man was nineteen years of age, and the remains were interred in Asphodel cemetery on Monday. The afflicted family have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.

FIRE.—The Fire Brigade was called into active service last Monday morning. At 2.30 a. m., the clanging of the fire bell awoke the citizens, and in an incredibly short time the brigade, fully equipped, was proceeding to the scene, which was located on the north-west corner of Front and Victoria-sts., the roof of the Albion hotel being in a blaze. The maiden efforts of the firemen were crowned with success, and covered themselves with glory, charcoal and plaster. The engine worked splendidly, and soon flooded the building from garret to cellar. The building is owned by Dr. Coughlin and occupied by Mr. B. Smith. The damage to the building is estimated at between [illegible] and [illegible], and the contents, owned by Mr. Smith, are damaged by fire and water, both being covered by insurance. The fire originated through some defect in the attic in the north chimney, and soon spread along the roof inside. Mr. Smith was awakened by the crackling of the wood work, and gave the alarm. There is no doubt but that the engine on this occasion prevented a serious conflagration.—Star.

OTONABEE OCCURRENCES.

A Regular Township Council Meeting—Fences to be Removed.

Correspondence of the Review.

THE Council met on the 15th of April. Lots 11 and 12, con. 11, were put on road Division No. 45, and east half lot 29, con. 3, on Division No. 6. The Clerk was instructed to notify Walter Thompson to remove his fence off the road allowance between lots 6 and 7, con. 9, also off the concession line opposite lot 7, con. 9, and Joseph Manly, D. P. McFarlane, Walter Renwick, jr., off the concession line opposite their lots, con. 8; and Hugh McFarlane and Peter J. McFarlane opposite their lots, con. 9. The taxes for 1888 on west quarter lot 17, con. 5, was ordered to be refunded to R. Humphries, as said lot was assessed to both R. and J. Humphries and taxes paid by both for said lot. REVIEWS.

THE METHODIST MAGAZINE.—(Toronto: William Briggs.)—The first illustrated article in the May number is a very well written one by the Rev. S. P. Rose, on "Holland and its People," a subject always full of interest. The Editor contributes another copiously illustrated article on "Round About England," devoted chiefly to some of the old cathedral cities, of which Canterbury and Norwich are types. An article on Studies in Art with charming reproductions of some of Raphael's great masterpieces, will be read with much interest. Dr. Carman continues his important papers on "Methodism and the Itinerancy," which are exceedingly timely and are attracting much attention. Senator Macdonald's articles on Early Methodism and Presbyterianism in Toronto possess an autobiographic and historic character which gives them a permanent value. The Rev. A. W. Nicholson's sketches of Mining Life in Nova Scotia reveal the perils and heroism of the life of those underground toilers in a very instructive manner. The Rev. S. B. Dunn continues his admirable studies of Shakespeare, and Rev. W. S. Blackstock pursues the important discussion of the "Gift of Tongues" at Pentecost. "Saxe Holm's" charming story, "Draxy Miller's Dowry," is brought to a close—one of the most beautiful character studies ever published in this Magazine, which makes a specialty of such studies. Another Orkney story of absorbing interest by Mrs. Amelia E. Barr, a writer who is justly attracting a great deal of attention, is begun.

One of the reasons why Scott's Emulsion has such a large sale is, because it is the best. Dr. W. H. Cameron, Halifax, N. S., says: I have prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for the past two years, and found it more agreeable to the stomach and have better results from its use than any other preparation of the kind I have ever used." Sold by all Druggists, 50c. and $1.00.

SOBRIQUETS OF WOMEN.

NICKNAMES BORNE BY SOME OF EUROPE'S FAMOUS LADIES.

Many of Them Were Merely Complimentary, and Did Not Signify Anything in Particular — Some Were Appropriate, While Others Said Too Much.

An excursion into the realm of history and biography shows that sobriquets have not been bestowed upon women in any such degree as upon men. Yet a considerable number may be collected. For the most part they are far less expressive and typical of character than those given to the male sex. Many of them are simply complimentary terms in reference to their beauty or accomplishments, and were bestowed by chivalrous gentlemen.

"Bloody Mary," as Mary, queen of England, was called, is certainly anything but a flattering cognomen. Historians differ as to whether she deserved the name. Some assert that the responsibility for the sanguinary acts of her reign should rest with her counselors, who are known to have approved and projected them; others say, that, having permitted these barbarisms, Mary well merits the title history has fastened upon her. However this may be, it is well known that she signed the death warrant of Lady Jane Grey with reluctance, and absolutely refused to put her sister Elizabeth and the Earl of Devonshire to death. She often interfered in behalf of those whom her ministers wished to deprive of their lives. The renewal of the old laws against the Lollards is charged directly to her, though some historians claim that many of the details of their persecution were kept from the knowledge of the queen. Mary was ill most of the time during her reign, and her condition was often taken advantage of by her ministers.

Mary was succeeded on the throne by her sister Elizabeth, who was known in history as "Good Queen Bess." Quite a different title from that borne by Mary. The normal disparity between the two was not, however, so great as the sobriquet would indicate. Mary seems to have been credited with less goodness than she possessed, and Elizabeth more. But it cannot be denied that the reign of Elizabeth was very successful, and one of the most glorious and most celebrated epochs in English history. It was an era of statesmen, scholars, warriors and poets of the highest renown. Considering the times, Elizabeth was probably good enough to warrant her title. She was a good queen, as queens go. Elizabeth is also called "The Virgin Queen."

A PAIR OF FEMALE WARRIORS.

Mary of Modena, the unfortunate queen of James II of England bore the title of "Queen of Tears." Samuel Noble wrote: "Her eyes became eternal fountains of sorrow for that crown her own ill policy contributed to lose." To the average reader, however, that misfortune would seem to be slight in comparison with that of being yoked for life to a personage so stupid and unreasonable as James.

Joanna, the beautiful daughter of Edmund, Earl of Kent, gained the sobriquet of "Fair Maid of Kent." She was three times married, the third time to Edward, the Black Prince. King Richard II of England was their son.

Elizabeth Barton, a supposed seeress of the Sixteenth century, was known as the "Holy Maid of Kent." She was executed at Tyburn, April 21, 1534, on the charge of high treason, in having prophesied that great calamities would fall upon England, and that Henry VIII would die a speedy and violent death should he divorce Queen Catherine and marry Anne Boleyn. Her prophecy does not appear to have been fulfilled.

Elizabeth, queen of Bohemia and daughter of James I of England, was called the "Queen of Hearts," from her kind and engaging manner. Through all her trouble and ill fortune, of which she had more than her share, she preserved her dignity and goodness, and commanded the love and admiration of all who were brought in contact with her.

"The Semiramis of the North" was a sobriquet bestowed upon Margaret, daughter of Waldemar III, king of Denmark, for her warlike qualities. She seems to have fairly earned it. After her father's death she became queen of Denmark. On the death of her husband, Haco VIII, king of Norway, she became the ruler of that country also. She then conquered Sweden, and was acknowledged its queen. In the latter country she was unpopular, and her name is still held in loathing by the Swedes, who accuse her of having been cruel and oppressive. Some historians deny this charge. At any rate, Margaret was a queen of great executive ability. The sobriquet "Semiramis of the North" has also been given to Catherine II, empress of Russia, for the same reasons that it was given to Margaret, and with equal appropriateness.

Another woman of military renown was Augustina Zaragoza of Spain, who earned the sobriquet, "The Maid of Saragossa," by her bravery during the defense of Saragossa against the French in 1808-9. Her most celebrated act of heroism was taking the station of her lover, who had fallen, in one of the batteries and working the gun in his place. Byron has immortalized her in "Childe Harold."

FOR THE GOOD THEY DID.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fry, the benevolent English woman, who wrought so many reforms in the management of jails and prisons in her own and other European countries, was called "the Female Howard," in recognition of the similarity of her life work to that of the illustrious prison reformer, John Howard. The great amount of good accomplished by these two unselfish lovers of humanity cannot be calculated. It is felt today, and will be felt until the end of time.

Another benevolent English woman was Florence Nightingale, upon whom Longfellow bestowed the title, "St. Filomena." In his poem of that name the poet pays the highest tribute to the character and work of Miss Nightingale. Her name is held in reverence by the whole population of Great Britain, and especially by the soldiers.

The peculiar sect, or society called Shakers had for their leader and founder in America a woman named Ann Lee. She was regarded by her followers as the "spiritual mother," and hence was always called "Mother Ann." By some she was, and still is, considered a manifestation of Christ in the female form. Jesus is recognized as the male manifestation. "Mother Ann" was a woman of much ability. She died in 1784.

Jenny Lind, the famous singer, bore the appropriate name of "the Swedish Nightingale." This title is a deserved compliment to her sweet voice and a reminder of her native country.

Louise Labe, the French poetess, who lived in the Sixteenth century, was called "the Beautiful Ropemaker." She was an accomplished linguist and wrote in three different languages. She also distinguished herself by her remarkable courage at the siege of Perpignan.

"The English Sappho" was a sobriquet given to Mary Darby Robinson, who acquired a reputation for beauty, wit and poesy during the reign of George IV.—James M. Adams in Detroit Free Press.

Millionaire Prussians.

Americans are not the only people in the world who enjoy big incomes. A report presented to the Prussian landtag on personal taxation for 1889 discloses the fact that Herr Krupp's income for last year was 4,[illegible],000 marks, or, say, nearly $1,[illegible],000, while Rothschild comes next, admitting an income of only a few thousand dollars less. It may interest the Universal Peace society to know that one of these gentlemen derives his income from the sale of implements of war, and the other from loaning money to nations that want to fight.—Boston Herald.

Treasurer Mackenzie of the Central Fair Writes a Letter to Guelph's Mayor.

GUELPH, May 1.—A peculiar feature developed to-day in connection with the flight of Secretary-Treasurer Mackenzie and the shortage in the funds of the Agricultural Society. Mayor Gowdy received a letter from Mackenzie to the effect that he drew the $1000 to tide Murton over his financial difficulties and after the assignment he could not see his way clear out of the difficulty and came to the conclusion to skip out. It is reported that an effort will be made to settle the matter and bring Mackenzie back to take charge of the books of the society again, as the confidence in his integrity is not shaken in the least.

Murton's liabilities will amount to between $18,000 and $19,000, assets $6000, which will pay between 20 and 30 cents on the dollar.

Our Hats are Inimitable

Every day now adds its emphasis to the judgment of gentlemen as to the beauty and excellence of our spring Hats. They're buying them. They're not doing it without having first compared and decided that ours bear away the prize for shapeliness and quality as well as for faultless making and moderate prices. Gentlemen are critical when it comes to getting a light weight Hat. They are a necessity in these spring days—a necessity in which they esteem style as essential. Witness the demand for our Genuine Cooksy, Woodrow and Elwood Celebrated Zephr weight Hats made especially for us. There is something peculiar and inimitable about the gracefulness of our Hats.

"The Blythe Woollen Mfg. PRESENTATION.

Mrs. James Whyte Receives an Address Before Coming to Peterborough.

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church, of Campbellford, met at the residence of Mrs. James Waters, on Monday evening last, says the Herald, and presented Mrs. James Whyte with handsome curtains, poles and curtain chains, and an address. Mrs. Whyte has been a valued member of the Ladies' Aid, and has just taken her farewell of Campbellford to reside in Peterborough. Refreshments were served and a very enjoyable evening was spent by all, through the kind hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Waters. The following is a copy of the address:—

To Mrs. Jas. Whyte:

DEAR FRIEND.—As you are about to leave Campbellford, we, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Church, cannot allow you to go without showing in some degree the esteem and affection in which you are held by all the members of this Society. It is now eight years or more since you came amongst us. In all that time as a Christian lady, as a true friend, as a devoted member as well as President of the Ladies' Aid, you have always been unsparing of yourself and faithful to the best interests of the church. Your kindly consideration for all associated with you in this Society or out of it, your thoughtfulness at all times for the feelings of others, and your Christian kindness shown in many ways in the congregation at large, have endeared you to our hearts, and made us feel that your departure is a great loss to the Society over which you have so efficiently presided, and to the congregation of which you were ever a devoted member. In slight recognition of our appreciation for what you have done in the extension of Christ's cause and all that is good in this village, we desire you to accept these accompanying gifts along with this address. We wish you may be spared many years in your former home, and that God's best blessing may be richly given to you and yours. Our fervent and united prayer, dear friend, is that being used by the Lord wherever you go, you may at last have the blessing of the Master pronounced upon you, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Signed on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society, MARIAN GIBB.

Another Club in the District.

The Checker Lacrosse Club, of Beaverton, was reorganized last night and officers elected, and, therefore, this will add another club to the list for this district. The Beaverton's Checkers will have two representatives at the district meeting here to-morrow, Messrs. J. Birchard and P. McMillan.

Let There be One, by all Means.

At last there has been a move made in the direction of forming a baseball club in town for this season. A meeting was held last night when the matter was considered and it was decided that an effort would be made to organize a first-class club, as sufficient material is to be had for a good nine. A meeting will be held at the Commercial House to-morrow night when all those who are enthusiastic or at all interested in the game are invited to attend.

Gone to Hamilton.

The town which was alive with the clergy who were participating in the consecration ceremonies at the Cathedral yesterday has almost deserted by the priestly order last evening. His Lordship Bishop Dowling and Rev. Father McEvay left on the special train at 6 10 in the evening and were accompanied by all the clergy, including His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, who have gone to Hamilton to witness the installation of Bishop Dowling which takes place to-day.

As it should Be.

The Spanish Students concert promises to be largely attended, as a number of reserved seats have already been marked by lovers of good music, who have taken time by the forelock. Their example should be followed. There are a number of good seats open and the excellent musical entertainment and Prof. Ryerson's humorous entertainment should be heard by all who appreciate good music, refined humor and well-directed enterprise on the part of a meritorious local organization.

American Science Association.

The authorities of the American Association for the Advancement of Science have chosen Toronto as their next place of meeting, and that important body will accordingly convene in the Capital of Ontario, on the 27th August next, to remain in session one week. This gathering of probably a thousand prominent scientific men will prove an interesting event for all who desire the diffusion of systematized knowledge, and its outcome cannot fail to be of benefit to the whole province. Prof. J. Loudon, Secretary of the Toronto committee, informs us by circular that it is probable that considerable parties of the members will visit parts of the Province where manufacturing industries and mineral interests can be investigated.

East Riding Licenses Granted.

The East Peterborough Board of License Commissioners, Messrs. Wilson, Drummond and Moher and Inspector Darling, met at the Temperance House yesterday and completed the work of granting the licenses of that riding. The full list of granted licenses is as follows:—

ASHBURNHAM.—Geo. Lipsett, Jno. O'Connor, Mrs. Swanson, (beer and wine); shop licenses, J. C. Sullivan and Wm. Collins.
KEENE.—John Gall and M. Kenncaley.
NORWOOD.—O. A. Brennan, Chas. McDonald and Hugh N. Drain.
HAVELOCK.—Edward Chrow and Daniel Flynn.
BURLEIGH.—Mrs. John Holmes.
WESTWOOD.—John Doherty.

JULIEN'S LANDING.—Mrs. Glynn.

A number of applications were laid over. The Commissioners also ordered a large number of accounts to be paid. The estimates of the expenditure for the year was fixed at $1,134 and the following resolution was adopted:—Moved by Mr. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Drummond, "that all persons who are licensed by this Board and convicted of selling during prohibited hours and also to minors, in accordance with the license act for the first and second offence, that this Board shall not grant any license in future to any one guilty of the same."

A Dog and Lamb Story.

Another illustration showing the remarkable sagacity of the canine race has been reported. This time the scene of the story is the Township of Cavan, and the canine which has gained renown for himself and the dog population in general is owned by a well known farmer of that township. It was not the lion and the lamb that laid down together, but the next thing to it—the dog and the lamb. The story is something like this: The well known farmer had a ewe, which was blessed with two lambs, which is itself was not extraordinary. But these two woolly offsprings were, it will seem, not of the same constitution, for while one was frisky and thrived, the other apparently did not see enough in life to stimulate it to strive to live, and it became sickly and weak. On the latter the dog story hangs, for the ewe left her weakling in the field and with the frisky half of the twins sought pastures new, leaving her lamb in the field to die. But the dog, which must have had a mother's heart beneath his shaggy coat, found the sick lamb, and when the farmer came into the barn yard the next morning, he found the faithful canine lying in a snug corner with the weakling of the flock under his care. The lamb was cared for and, strange to say, received a new lease of life and is now one of the most frolicsome of the flock. The farmer considered the dog's sagacity most remarkable, as he must have carried the lamb a good distance in his mouth through several fields, and he wishes this dog's act of kindness put on record, probably for the purpose of teaching a lesson to some members of the human family who, when even a brother is down, are more willing to put their foot on his neck and assist him downward than they are to give him a hand and attempt to elevate him.

VOTE ON THE SCHOOL BY-LAWS.

The Collegiate Institute By-law Defeated and the Public School Carried.

The result of the voting on the two school by-laws yesterday resulted in the one providing for the $10,000 for the new school in the Fourth Ward and an addition to the South Ward school being carried by a majority of 93, while the other providing for $20,000 for the new Collegiate Institute building was defeated by 32 votes. The vote polled was very small, showing that the ratepayers had interested themselves but little in the matter. That the public school by-law would carry no one doubted, but it was prophesied by many that there would be more ballots marked against the Institute by-law than for it, and this proved true. This now settles the question of Collegiate Institute for a time at all events, and the present building will have to be made to answer the purpose of an Institute no matter what its deficiencies may be. From the voting it will be seen that as far as the public school question was concerned there was little opposition, but in two wards a majority was returned against the Institute by-law. The vote was taken very quietly, there being many who almost forgot that it was voting day. The returns from the four wards were as follows:—

Gone to Learn a Trade.

Victor Milburn was taken to the Kingston penitentiary yesterday where he has splendid probabilities of remaining for the next four years and where he will also have brilliant opportunities of learning a trade. Irvine Roraback, the Millbrook forger, was also taken down to the Limestone city to serve his two years and a half.

Personal.

We are pleased to learn that Rev. C.B. Kenrich is recovering from his indisposition and will return to town on Saturday.

The Port Hope Guide of Wednesday says:—"Mr. Wm. Stevenson, sr., aged 93 years, is in town from Peterborough, superintending the repairs on his house on Protestant Hill. He steps around and is as active as a youth of twenty-five."

A Bachelor no Longer.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. George Buchan was united in marriage to Miss Albertie M., eldest daughter of the late Robert Harper. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's mother by the Rev. S. J. Shorey, and was witnessed by a few of the personal friends of the contracting parties. Miss Minnie Wilson, of Otonabee, was bridesmaid, and Mr. A.C. Nixon assisted the groom. Mr. Buchan, who has for several years past had charge of the REVIEW press room, will receive the best wishes and congratulations of his friends on leaving the ranks of bachelorhood and the REVIEW hopes that success will attend him. His fellow employees remembered him, and expressed their congratulations in a very appreciable manner, and the bride was also the recipient of many handsome presents. The happy couple left last evening for a trip westward.

Walter Kerr in Limbo.

Walter Kerr, the young man who is sole proprietor of "the city peanut stand," which occupies the corner of George and Simcoe-sts., has become entangled in the meshes of the law and his heart is sad. Walter was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of having about March 1st feloniously received one gold watch knowing the same to have been stolen. Walter is well-known around town and of late has been trying to lead an exemplary life, but trouble has overtaken him. He evidently felt very badly over his misfortune of having to sleep in the cells all night, for his tears flowed copiously as he was seated on the prisoner's bench at the Police Court this morning. It is alleged that a young lad in town took a sixty dollar gold watch from his house and disposed of it to Walter for fifty cents, but in the absence of an important witness the case was enlarged until to-morrow when the particulars of the case will come out, as the accused elected to be tried summarily by the Magistrate. Mr. R. E. Wood appeared for the Crown and Mr. R. M. Dennistoun for the prisoner.

Little John's Officers.

At the meeting of Court Little John No. 92, C.O.F., last evening Bro. H. W. Watson, D.D.H.C.R., assisted by Bros. Geo. Rose, P.C.R., W. M. Green, P.C.R. and Robert Thornton, acting as H.C. officers, installed the following officers of the Court for the ensuing term:—

FINANCE COMMITTEE.—Bros. A. E. Kemp, Geo. Rose and Wm. Drake. Hall Committee—Bros. W. M. Green, Geo. Rose and Robert Thornton. Auditors—Bros. Robert Thornton and W. M. Green. The Recording Secretary, Mr. Lithgow, is such an efficient officer that he has been elected to that office every term, since the organization of the Court several years ago, except two, and those two terms he filled the higher offices of Chief Ranger and Junior Past Chief Ranger. As a member of a benevolent institution this record is a very creditable one.

—The district lacrosse meeting will be held here to-morrow.

—A drunk was allowed to go at the Police Court this morning.

—A congregational reunion will be held this evening in St. John's church.

BRIDGENORTH.

Corner Stone of a New Church to be Laid—A Matrimonial Event.

Correspondence of the Review.

NEW CHURCH.—The corner stone of the new Methodist church at this village will be laid on May 24th. Mr. Jopling has the contract for the building which is to be 32x46, with an alcove 9x15 in the rear of the pulpit for the choir. The building will be constructed of brick and will have a basement the full size. It will be beautifully situated on a lot containing seven-eighths of an acre, on a high elevation, and with a street on three sides of it. The cost will be about $2,600.

MATRIMONIAL.—A very pleasant social event took place at the residence of Mr. Thomas Young, Smith, on the afternoon of Wednesday, April 24th, being the marriage of his daughter, Miss Mary Maggie Young, and Mr. James Mann, of Bridgenorth. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Ewing in the presence of a large number of the friends of the young couple. Miss Lily Young, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Scott assisted the groom. After the ceremony the company sat down to an excellent wedding supper. The evening was very pleasantly spent by all present, music and amusements filling up the time and all regretted it when the time for separating came. The bride received a large number of beautiful presents, which attested the high esteem in which she is held by her acquaintances. Mr. and Mrs. Mann have the very best wishes of a large circle of friends for their continued happiness through life.

A NEW SOCIETY.

A Lodge of the Sons of Canada Organized in Peterborough.

Last evening another was added to Peterborough's long list of secret and benevolent societies, when a lodge of the Sons of Canada was organized in town. For several weeks past Mr. Joseph Maclean, of Toronto, who is Supreme Grand Organizer of the Order in Ontario, has been here working the society among the men of the town and making arrangements for the institution of a lodge here. His efforts have been successful, and the lodge was organized last night in the lodge room of Peterborough Lodge, I. O. O. F., under most encouraging auspices. There are some twenty-two charter members, all of whom are enthusiastic in the new society and intend to make it flourish in our midst. The society is only in its infancy, the first lodge having been organized only four years ago in Toronto. Since then there have been, including the new lodge here, thirteen lodges instituted throughout Canada as follows:—In Toronto, six; in Parkdale, one; in Toronto Junction, one; in Barrie, one; in Hamilton, one; in Oshawa, one; in Lindsay, one; in Peterborough, one. The society is a benevolent one with objects much the same as the Sons of England and all Canadians are eligible for membership. It is the only society that is purely national, and Canadians undoubtedly should have a society of their own of some kind. Mr. Lewis T. Walker, of Toronto, Supreme Grand President, came down and performed the installation work last night.

OFFICERS INSTALLED.

The officers installed were:—
PAST PRESIDENT.—F. Mason.
PRESIDENT.—Thos. Rutherford.
FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT—W. C. Mudge.
SECOND " " —Chas. N. Brown.
REC. SECRETARY—H Dixon.

The local lodge will be known as Peterborough Lodge No. 13, and the next meeting will be held in about two weeks.

BENSFORT BRIEFS.

A Piece of Road that Needs Repairing—Spearing Tackle Seized.

Correspondence of the Review.

SPRING SEEDING.—The spring seeding is pretty well through in this locality, the condition of the land being favorable for rapid progress with the work.

A SUGGESTION FOR THE COUNCIL.—It would be a good idea for our Township Council, when they take their annual excursion for the inspection of roads and bridges, if they would call around and hold a sitting upon the hill on quarter line between lots 6 and 7 on the 3 concession, better known as Mr. Rutherford's hill. A reasonable amount of money could be very wisely expended in putting this hill in a better and safer condition for the travelling public. This is on the main road to Peterborough for the south and south-eastern portion of the township. It has already been the scene of two or three escapades that might easily have proved very serious accidents. The roadway should be made wider both at the top and foot. A strong post railing should be erected on both sides at the bottom of the hill. The public convenience and safety demands that something be done to put this hill in better shape than it is at present.

ILLEGAL FISHING.—Fishery Inspector Glichrist is keeping a sharp eye upon the fish poachers upon the river and lake. Already several spears have become government property. If some of the boys are not careful they will become government property too.

LIVELY.—There was an Indian concert and war dance in Bensfort one night last week.

ALL SAFE.—A few of the old youngsters had a jambouree and a shooting match on the river bank last Friday afternoon. A big time is reported. Nobody hurt.

CHEESE FACTORY.—The proprietors of the cheese factory intend to commence operations about the second week of May.

IMPROVEMENTS.—No. 3 school yard is to be improved with a new fence on one side and also with some more trees planted. Mr. E. Slavin has the contract.

EARLY BIRDS.—A nest of young birds hatched out this spring was found in the middle of a plowed field on the 23rd of April. They must have been hatched quite a few days before this, for they were nearly half feathered when found.

Adoring a Flower.

The universality of plant worship in the east in former times is evidenced by the fierce denunciations found in various parts of the Bible against the adoration of trees, but it is somewhat surprising to find in our own times a system of flower worship still kept up in various parts of Persia and India. A recent traveler in India gives the following description of flower worship as practiced by the Persians in Bombay: "A true Persian, in flowing robe of blue, and on his head a sheep skin hat—black, glossy, curly, the fleece of Kar-Kal—would saunter in, and stand and meditate over every flower he saw, and always as if half in vision. And when the vision was fulfilled, and the ideal flower he was seeking found, he would spread his mat and sit before it until the setting of the sun, and then pray before it, and then fold up his mat again and go home. And the next night, and night after night, until that particular flower faded away, he would return to it and bring his friends in ever increasing troops to it, and sit and play the guitar or lute before it, and they would altogether pray there, and after prayer still sit before it sipping sherbet and talking the most hilarious and shocking scandal late into the moonlight, and so again and again every evening until the flower died. Sometimes, by way of a grand finale, the whole company would suddenly arise before the flower and serenade it, together with an ode from Hafiz, and depart."—Folk Lore of Plants.

Tara's Hall.

"The Harp that Once Through Tara's Hall" commemorates one of the most terrible and far reaching curses that was ever pronounced. The curse was laid in 554, or 1,335 years ago, and Irish politics has felt the influence of it ever since. It was done in the reign of Dermid, who was lapsing back to active sympathy with the Druids, and who, unlike his predecessors since St. Patrick's constitution had been instituted, violated with impunity the immunities that instrument had patented to the clergy. At last he committed a most flagrant act by seizing a prisoner at the altar of Temple Ruadan, county of Tipperary, dragging him from the protection of the sacred precincts and putting the victim to death.

St. Ruadan, the patron priest, was exasperated, and gathering his immediate clergymen journeyed to Tara. Marching slowly, three times around the royal rath or king's palace with awful solemnity, they excommunicated the aggressive monarch, and chanted a malediction against the rath so terrible that when, two years after, Dermid was slain by Black Hugh, of Ulster, the place was deserted, and has never been occupied since. It is said that his favorite bard clung to the halls for years, and that, so thoroughly ostracised was the place that his skeleton was found beside his faithful but broken harp by a wandering bard who visited the spot years after having fled from it in terror.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Signs of Inebriety.

Young Waiter (at a medical dinner)—Them doctors use a lot of wine, but I 'spose they kin stand it.

Old Waiter—Dunno about that. I'm thinkin' they're getting pretty tight already.

"They don't look so."

"No, but they're beginnin' to agree."—Philadelphia Record.

CROCHETING LACE.

Weaving the white thread in and out
With the shining little hook,
And as I watch you, darling,
With your earnest, steadfast look,

I think of your life, my darling,
Which is only just begun,
And while you are crocheting
These thoughts in my brain have been spun.

A space, then a block, my darling—
A block of solid work;
'Twill be so in your life, little daughter;
There's many a place to shirk.

But I pray there be more blocks, darling,
For solid work wears the best;
But full and smooth may you finish it, dear,
If so it seemeth best.

But work with a will, my darling,
Keep the thread still pure and white,
And the hand that guides you, my darling,
Will finish the work aright.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER

She had to wait a long time, or what seemed so to her, poor girl, before she got any definite news about him, for although the papers contained various short dispatches he was not mentioned in any of them.

Still no news was good news, and at last Sir George St. Leger came to her in triumph with a telegram which had come by various stages right from the fountain head.

"Maj. Seton to Sir George St. Leger: Earle died almost immediately after reaching camp. Beresford badly wounded in head and arm, but is going on very well. If no fever every chance of his getting through it. Will wire to you if there is any important change."

And after this Nancy had no choice but to sit down and wait. Still she was not and could not be idle, for there was much to be done. The putting of a large household into mourning, the hearing and approving of arrangements for a funeral which was almost a public one, of the melancholy journey down to Earles Hope, the ordering of baked meats and so on for the tenantry who would attend it, the answering of letters, the receiving and arranging of the dozens of wreaths and other remembrances, of flowers which came from far and near to show the affection and respect in which the old man had been held; all these offices fell upon her.

Then the day before that of the funeral came, and early in the afternoon they went down to Earles Hope, and the last of the Earles was carried into the house of his fore-elders for the last time. Yes, the last of the Earles after all, for young Stuart had been dead already some hours when the news of the engagement in which he had been wounded reached his father and sister. So the long sad evening wore away, and the following day, amid blinding snow, the lengthy procession passed from hall to graveyard, and Nancy, the one who had never been of any account before, was the only Earle left of all the proud old race who had ruled at Earles Hope for many and many a year.

She was the last of them all, the owner of that wide estate, of all their great rent roll; she was the sole mistress of everything around, free and unencumbered to do exactly as she chose—to come and go as she liked—to remain an Earle to the end of her days, or to wed with whom she pleased.

And Jim Beresford, the man she loved most in all the wide world, was lying at that moment hovering between life and death on the other side of the globe, lying in discomfort and misery, to endure the cruel torture of ghastly wounds inflicted by the weapons of Burmese Dacoits—a striking instance of the irony of fate.

It was several days after Nancy had returned to town that Sir George came to her, in something like triumph, with a dispatch, or more correctly a telegram, from Maj. Seton.

"Great news, my dear—great news!" he said.

And so it was. For it told that, after a sharp attack of fever, Beresford had taken a decided turn for the better, and if he went on as he gave every promise at that time of doing, he would be moved homeward in about a fortnight or so. By homeward he meant to say that they would get him down to Calcutta, where he would be able to have more comforts and a better chance of recovery.

"Sir George," said Nancy suddenly, "I am going out to Calcutta by the next steamer!"

"Alone, my dear?" asked the little man, somewhat in dismay.

"Oh! no, I shall take servants with me; but I shall go," she answered.

"And you will be married out there?"

"It is very likely."

"But you cannot go alone."

"Oh! yes. Mrs. Seton is there; I shall go to her. If not, there are plenty of other people who will be friendly to me. Any way, he is ill, and must want me—and I am going."

CHAPTER XXXI.

TOGETHER.

For perhaps the first time in all the twenty-two years of her life, there was apparent in Nancy Earle's behavior a spice of that daredevil, headstrong self will which had sent her younger brother to his ruin! And having made up her mind to go out to Calcutta, and yet further, to reach her Beautiful Jim's side if he didn't happen to be there, she did not let the grass grow under her feet, but set about making her preparations at once for the journey.

In vain did Sir George St. Leger represent to her that for a young unmarried lady of great personal attractions to undertake so long and so formidable a journey was a very, very serious matter—that the world would look upon such a proceeding as altogether out of the common, and——

"But it is out of the common," said Nancy, looking straight at him with her wonderful, clear devil's eyes. "I am going to be married to Mr. Beresford very soon, and he has been very severely wounded. He must have the most dire need of me."

"But people will think it altogether so odd," the little man persisted.

"The Earles have never troubled themselves much about what people might think," said Nancy, rather proudly. "As to my going out there, I know he would approve of that, and besides, you know, I am not going out to strangers. Mrs. Seton is in Calcutta, and I am going straight to her."

"But supposing she has left it when you get there?"

"I shall telegraph to her at once. If she has to leave before I get there she will have made the way smooth for me, never fear."

Then Sir George gave up the conflict, seeing that Nancy was proving herself to be a real chip of the old Earle block, and that he was but wasting his breath in arguing with her.

To be Continued.

THE "BLUE JEAN TRAMP."

Sad Romance of a Man Robbed of Intended Wife, Money and Reason.

During the debate in the house on the bill recently making a crime for a man to become a tramp, Mr. Ney, of Lebanon, rose in opposition to the measure, and in the illustration of his position alluded to a poor unfortunate in his vicinity, known as the "Blue Jean Tramp." It was merely a reference, but it awakened in the mind of a writer now connected with The Times a desire to know more of the story of the man, and subsequent inquiry has developed a story as thrilling as any that has been made public about the "Old Leather Man."

The story, as picked up from various sources, is as follows: Way back in the thirties there resided in a town in the northern part of this state a family of the name of Hicks, consisting of John Hicks, a wife, a daughter, Jennie, and Dwight, a son. The young children were given all the advantages possible in those times, for Hicks was a well to do farmer and not at all stingy. He was proud of his children, and nothing that money could buy was wanting to make their lives complete. There was one sorrow that disturbed the old man, however, and that was the envious nature of his daughter. She embodied the very principle itself of "getting all you can and keeping all you get."

There was no charity, no generosity in her nature. She would take the belongings of her brother and without compunction appropriate them to her own use. Her brother, however, was almost diametrically opposite—free hearted and generous to a fault were the fundamental principles that underlay his nature. This wide divergence of the two was the cause of so much trouble between them. She grew to hate her brother with unnatural hatred, and he grew bitter and indifferent, but was of too happy a nature to acquire the aspect of more than forgetfulness.

In this way they grew to manhood and womanhood, and Jennie married the man of her choice. Then the father and mother died, leaving the two children equal portions in the estate. This galled the spirit of Jennie. Her avaricious nature could not be contented with half, but she wanted the whole. Then began a scheme which robbed her brother of three things—his intended wife, his money and his reason.

A year after the parents' death Dwight became enamored of a pretty miss named Ida Arnold. She had been a resident of the town but a short time, and she reciprocated his affection. Now it happened that Dwight's sister had taken a violent dislike to Ida, and, with apparent friendship, she whispered cruel words into her promised sister-in-law's ears. They bore fruit. Suspicious as most women, the vile slanders grew to certainty, and she renounced almost at the altar the man she had promised to love. Dwight, confounded and crazed, left the house. Drink was the solace for his sorrow, and into dissipation he plunged.

His sister, without compunction or fear, then began a systematic method to gain his wealth. His brain gradually softened under the influence of alcohol. Returning one day to the house of his sister with whom he had lived he was spurned from the door without a dollar in the world. What little of Dwight's reason remained was shattered and he left, a homeless man, without reason or money to sustain life, and left to the tender mercies of a cruel world. In his demented condition he began his tramp from door to door. For years he tramped, going over and over the same route until now he has become a regular caller in Lebanon, always wearing a blue jean jumper, which has won for him the sobriquet of the "Blue Jean Tramp." No one fears him; every one pities him and welcomes him to the fireside. Retribution has overtaken his sister. A few years ago she was thrown from a carriage and killed. Such is the story of the "Blue Jean Tramp," the clew to which fell from the lips of Mr. Ney, of Lebanon.—Hartford Times.

Right of Way.

It is of course generally understood that all the interest that the public owns in the land over which our highways pass is simply the right of way. The land belongs, as it did before the road was located, to the several estates from which it was taken. If at any time the road is discontinued, the land goes back to those estates.

Plain as this principle is, there are curious questions of right arising from time to time. An interesting one came up in connection with fishing rights a few years ago. An English road had crossed a little stream by a ford from a time so early that no one knew the beginning of the usage.

In later years when fishing rights became valuable, the owners of land along the stream made its waters private property, as they had a right to do. The ford, however, belonged to the public as a thoroughfare. Could the traveler cast his line for a fish while passing through the water? Clearly this would be an act of trespass.

But this did not settle all the points at issue before the public yielded. A bridge was built over the stream just below the ford. No formal discontinuance of the old passage could, however, be obtained. People continued to drive through the stream, to the serious injury of the fishing rights above and below.

Naturally the owners of the land tried to prevent travel through the water. It was contended, on the other part, that the horses were accustomed to drink on their way by the ford, and that the bathing of their legs in the water refreshed them. These were held to be conveniences of travel, and were not surrendered by the building of the bridge.—Youth's Companion.

Royalty on the Rail.

Among the curiosities of Queen Victoria's railway journeys are the time tables supplied to her majesty, these being printed in violet ink, on hand made paper with gilt edges. They contain the exact times of the stoppages at all points, and give other information of interest. The Prince of Wales has, perhaps, the finest railway coach in Europe. It contains seven rooms, a study with a library, a couple of bedrooms, a dressing room and a bathroom. The bedroom is most luxuriously furnished in old gold silk, being lighted by electricity, and the paneling is beautifully painted.—Detroit Free Press.

A LEGAL BOMBSHELL.

HOW COBOURG INTENDS TO KEEP VICTORIA UNIVERSITY.

Sudden Termination of the Proceedings of the Advisory Committee and the Board of Regents Yesterday.

TORONTO, May 3.—The Board of Regents and Advisory Committee appointed by the General Conference of the Methodist Church to deal with matters pertaining to University Federation, met yesterday morning in one of the parlors of the Metropolitan Church, Rev. Dr. Williams, General Superintendent, occupied the chair. Mr. G. A. Cox, treasurer, reported cash received by him amounting to $105,005.37. The Secretary said the amount for expenses which had been paid out of the subscription was $6269—so that the amount to the credit of the building fund was within a very small sum of the $100,000. Dr. Potts reported the total subscriptions to be $282,833.25, and of this amount the Secretary explained that $85,000 was for endowment and $177,000 for the building fund. The tenders for the erection of the college building were submitted, the lowest being $130,641, including heating and ventilation. The architect's estimate of the cost of the residence, to afford accommodation for 100 students and two resident professors, is $30,000. After a long discussion and voting on several amendments, this resolution was carried, 25 to 13:

That whereas at a meeting of this Board held on Oct. 11 last it was decided that as soon as $100,000 of subscriptions applicable to the building fund was paid over to the treasurer the contract for the buildings in Queen's Park should be entered into;

And whereas the sum of $104,105 has been placed in the hands of the treasurers: Be it resolved that as soon as the title to the site is completed and the decision of the arbitrators as to its value is accepted by the Building Committee, in our judgment the contracts should be let, so that the main building may be finished at as early a date as possible.

At the evening session this motion by Chancellor Burwash was carried 322 to 14:

Whereas, at the meeting of this joint board on Oct. 11 it was resolved that the proper steps be forthwith taken to place Victoria University in federation with the Provincial University by giving the required notice to the Provincial Secretary, provided we have assurance that by special act of the Provincial Legislature or otherwise Victoria College should continue to exercise the power to confer degrees as heretofore, until the date of actual removal to Toronto, and that all such graduates be included in the provisions of Sections 7 and 11 of the Federation Act as graduates of Victoria University;

And whereas an act of the Provincial Legislature has been passed which provides for all that was asked in the above resolution as presented by the committee appointed to wait upon the Minister of Education;

And whereas it is necessary that Victoria shall formally enter federation before we can occupy and build upon the site in the Queen's Park;

Be it therefore resolved that the requisite statutory notice be given to the Provincial Secretary as soon as the valuation by the arbitrations is accepted by the Building Committee.

Up to this time all had gone in favor of federation. The Board of Regents had been declared in session, the evening was far advanced and it was thought that after some ordinary routine had been gone through with an adjournment would be made. But just about 9 o'clock a messenger entered and laid upon the table before Rev. Dr. Carman a package of papers. They were glanced over, and it was at once announced that an injunction had been served upon the board. The documents were all handed to the Chancellor, and were read by him amidst a breathless silence. The reading of the papers revealed the fact that a suit had been commenced by the Town of Cobourg and by Andrew Hewson, John Vance Gravely and William Kerr on behalf of themselves and other subscribers to the building at Cobourg known as Faraday Hall; also by William Kerr and Henry Hough on behalf of the senate of the university. The injunction was issued on behalf of these three separate interests restraining the Board of Regents from taking any action, that is restraining the defendants, the Board of Regents and Victoria University, from removing the university from the town of Cobourg and from taking any steps to that end, and from carrying on the work of the university in any place outside of or other than the town of Cobourg, and from expending any money on the college buildings at Toronto and from federating with the University of Toronto and from giving any notice to the Provincial Secretary for that purpose. This injunction prevails until May 7, when a motion will be made at Osgoode Hall to continue the restraining order.

THE BISHOP OF HAMILTON

INSTALLATION OF RIGHT REV. DR. THOMAS JOSEPH DOWLING.

An Impressive Ceremonial — Addresses from the Clergy and Laity—Important Changes in the Diocese Announced.

HAMILTON, May 2.—In St. Mary's Cathedral two years ago yesterday, with all the pomp and splendor which in the Roman Catholic Church attends such ceremonies, Rev. Thomas Joseph Dowling, for twenty-three years parish priest at Paris, Ont., was consecrated Bishop of Peterboro by the late Archbishop Lynch, and to-day in the presence of a large number of church dignitaries and clergy and a vast throng of the laity which crowded the sacred edifice the good Bishop, transferred to the Diocese of Hamilton, was installed in his cathedral church of St. Mary's. Bishop Dowling, who was accompanied by several distinguished prelates and many priests, arrived in the city by the 9.40 train from Toronto. He was welcomed at Oakville by a number of prominent laymen, who went down in a special car for that purpose, and was greeted at the station here by a crowd of about 3000 people. From the eagerness of the people and the expressions that fell from their lips it was evident that the appointment of Dr. Dowling as Bishop of Hamilton is a popular one.

BISHOP DOWLING.

The ceremony of instalment, which was a most impressive one, was participated in by Archbishop Fabre of Montreal, Bishop Walsh of London, Bishop Cleary of Kingston, Bishop O'Connor of Peterboro, Bishop Foley of Detroit, Vicar-General Heenan and Chancellor Craven of Hamilton, Administrators Laurent and Rooney, Fathers L. Brennan, Murray (C.S.B.), J. F. McBride, J. J. McCann, J. R. Teefy, M. M. C. O'Reilly, J. L. Hand, H. J. McPhillips, C. Vincent, (C.S.B.), D. Cushing, L. K. Cherrier, L. Brennan of Toronto, and nearly seventy others of the clergy of the province.

The Te Deum having been sung, and the Bishop of London having said the prayer for the Pope, Bishop Dowling was enthroned by the Bishop of London, the senior Bishop of Ontario. On his way to the Throne Bishop Dowling walked between Bishop Walsh and Archbishop Fabre. Being seated, and his mitre removed, the new Bishop received the address of the clergy of the diocese, who gathered in a group before the throne. Vicar-General Heenan read the address, which extended to His Lordship a most hearty welcome to his Episcopal See, promised reverence, obedience and co-operation, and referred in happy terms to Dr. Dowling's labors in the diocese as a parish priest and as Vicar Capitular, to which position he was elected by the votes of the priests of the diocese.

In reply Bishop Dowling said that there was no welcome more grateful to him than this cordial greeting of his diocesan clergy. His only regret was that he was not amongst them as of old, a simple priest of the diocese.

His Lordship having finished his reply, all the clergy, in order of seniority, knelt before him and kissed the episcopal ring in token of obedience.

Then His Lordship's chair was taken to the front of the sanctuary, facing the vast audience, and when he was seated the address of the laity was presented to him. It was read by Henry Arland, and presented the homage and reverence of the people, tendering a hearty welcome to the cathedral city.

His Lordship in replying alluded feelingly to his life in Hamilton and his happy relations with the clergy and the people.

The Regina Coeli having been sung by the choir, Bishop Dowling, who had resumed his seat on the throne, rose and again addressed the people. He said:

You are probably aware that when the Bishop dies the office of Vicar-General, the office of Dean, Chancellor and all other offices cease. These appointments rest with me. I consider it my first duty to give Father Heenan the best parish in the diocese, and the parish most convenient to my home, connected with the city, that I and his friends here may have the pleasure of seeing him often. I request him to take charge of the parish of Dundas, which is now practically a part of the city of Hamilton. He is not Vicar-General yet, but if he accepts this parish I shall know my duty. Do you accept it, Father Heenan?

Father Heenan: "I do."

The Bishop: Now, I wish to give honor to whom honor is due. I hereby appoint Very Rev. Father Heenan vicar-general of the diocese, and appoint him also one of my council and my chief councillor. I cannot do any more at present, but any further honors I can bestow on him I will do so with the greatest pleasure. I will ask Father Keough to make a sacrifice. It is not the first time he has done so. Two or three times he has given up his parish in obedience to his bishop. Are you prepared to give up the parish of Dundas?

Father Keough: "Yes."

The Bishop: As a reward I appoint you also Vicar-General, and send you back to my old home in Paris. There is a debt upon the parish, but I know your energy and that you will soon have that removed. I appoint Father O'Connell in charge of the deanery of Walkerton, and I charge him to carry out the instructions of the late bishop to build a separate school there, for I am told that the good priest has not accomplished that. Out of respect for him, the aged Father Lotz shall remain a dean of the diocese until I find a proper parish. Rev. Father Funcken, the venerable principal of St. Jerome's College, is appointed archdeacon of the diocese and a member of my council. Rev. Father Craven of St. Patrick's will act as chancellor of the diocese in place of Father Keough. Father McVey has come with me from Peterboro merely to act as my private secretary. Father McCann will return from Walkerton to the cathedral, and in a short time I will consult my senior priests with reference to him, but let it be understood once forever that I am the parish priest of the cathedral and any priest in authority there is simply my representative.

CHICAGO, May 3.—One of the most important cases up before the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association was that of W. G. Complaint was made and an application for an order filed as to the decision of the association's judges in the 2.35 race of July 4 last. The association having been ordered to appear and show cause why it did not pay the money won by the contestants in the race, and having failed to do so was suspended.

Explosion of 10,000 Pounds of Dynamite.

HASTINGS-ON-THE-HUDSON, N.Y., May 2.—At O'Dell station, three miles from here, shortly after noon to-day 10,000 pounds of dynamite exploded in a factory where the explosive is made for use at the new aqueduct. Damage to the amount of about $25,000 was done, but nobody hurt.

COMING OUT UNSCATHED.

Cross-Examination Fails to Smirch Mr. Parnell's Character.

LONDON, May 2.—The cross-examination of Mr. Parnell was continued before the Parnell Commission to-day. Mr. Parnell admitted that Condon was connected with the Manchester murders. Condon was chairman of the Reception Committee at Washington. Witness always repudiated the dynamite and physical force party in America and denounced them in the House of Commons. He was not aware that The Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette reported verbatim the speech he made at Cincinnati, and in which he is said to have referred to the severance of the last link between Great Britain and Ireland, or that its report was like that in The Irish World. Mr. Parnell admitted he had not found fault with the past action of the Invincibles. He quoted from his speeches and his manifesto of 1881, denouncing outrages and unconstitutional action by Irishmen.

Mr. Parnell said that he advocated the buying out the landlords in Ireland and making the tenants the owners of the land.

The cross-examination of Mr. Parnell proceeded through a mass of detail and was aimed to connect him with the Fenians and also to show that he must have known of the plots to commit murder. Nothing, however, was elicited from the witness to show that he was in any way connected with the Fenians or that he had any knowledge of murderous conspiracies. Attorney-General Webster cited menacing speeches made by W. Redmond.

Mr. Parnell listened to the Attorney-General and remarked that old heads could not be put on young shoulders. Again pressed by counsel as to whether he had ever denounced outrages, Mr. Parnell read extracts from speeches delivered by him in 1879, such as, "Let us remain within the law and constitution"; "I hope the people will not be tempted to imitate the violence and illegal attitude of the Government;" "the League is perfectly peaceable and constitutional and there is nothing behind it." Mr. Parnell further said that in 1880 he denounced the shooting of agents as unnecessary and prejudicial where there was a suitable league organization, but admitted that such denunciation was insufficient to stop such outrages. He denied that he was responsible for the violence of the articles which appeared in United Ireland and said that Mr. O'Brien had supreme control over that paper.

Refused to Ride in the Black Maria.

DUBLIN, May 2.—Dr. Tanner and Messrs. O'Connor and Condon, M.P.'s, whose sentences were confirmed to-day, were conveyed from Tipperary to Clonmel. At the railway station at Clonmel they were enthusiastically received by the people. A prison van was waiting at the station to take the three gentlemen to jail. They refused to enter the vehicle and a desperate struggle ensued. The crowd became frantic and the police to prevent a riot finally allowed the prisoners with the exception of Dr. Tanner to walk to the jail. Dr. Tanner was severely injured in the foot during the struggle and was unable to walk.

Goschen's Budget Approved.

LONDON, May 2.—The House of Commons to-day approved of the main proposals of the Budget.

Caused by a Blundering Despatch.

LONDON, May 2.—The false report that the North German Lloyd steamer Weser had yellow fever on board was due to a blundering despatch. The yellow fever occurred on the German steamer Berlin which arrived in the Weser River yesterday from Bahia.

A Wurtemburg Intrigue.

STUTTGART, May 2.—It is stated the King of Wurtemburg insists upon the return of Baron Savage, his American adviser. It is believed that an intrigue is on foot for the dismissal of Prime Minister von Mittnacht.

The King of Holland Restored to Power.

THE HAGUE, May 2.—Owing to the improvement in the health of the King of Holland, Parliament to-day by unanimous vote passed a resolution restoring his power. The announcement was received with cheers. The Duke of Nassau, now Regent of Luxembourg, will retire.

THE GUELPH MYSTERY.

Report of the Accountants With Reference to Harvey's Alleged Embezzlement.

GUELPH, May 2.—The full report of Messrs. Henry Lye, W. H. Cross and John Mitchell, the accountants who examined the books of J. W. Lyon in connection with the alleged embezzlement by W. H. Harvey, is now made public. The result of the examination is thus stated:

"The books have been wretchedly kept. But whether this arose from incapability, indifference or design we cannot determine, as the data necessary to enable anyone to arrive at a definite conclusion is not available. It is certain, however, that if Harvey had the necessary ability and time the accusation made by Mr. Lyon is amply justified by the condition of the books, and yet it is quite possible that no actual embezzlement was committed, and time may furnish more definite information."

ANOTHER BODY RECOGNIZED.

The Victims of the "Y" Accident Slowly Being Identified.

HAMILTON, May 2.—The victims of the railway accident are slowly being identified. So far four bodies have been claimed and sent away, and another body was identified this morning. F. C. Oviatt, attorney of Chicago, arrived to-day in search of his brother—B. L. Oviatt, a student in the college of physicians and surgeons, New York—who was in Chicago on business and left there on the Wabash line Saturday afternoon. Mr. Oviatt examined the relics and found a peculiar shaped ring, a steel measuring tape and a bunch of keys, with a caliper on the key-ring. He is positive that these articles belonged to his brother, having seen the measuring tape in his possession on Friday. He examined the bodies in the charnel house, but could not identify any of them. He is satisfied that his brother was killed, but will not claim any of the remains unless he can find means of identification. H. P. De Forest of New York, room-mate of the young man, will be here to-morrow. B. L. Oviatt was about 26 years old.

Edward Kelly of Chicago went to Blachford's this morning and recognized one of the bodies as that of his brother, John H. Kelly, fifty years tracer on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad of Chicago. Among the articles found he saw a gold watch and indentified it by the number. This watch was picked up by two firemen near a body which they also found. They remembered the appearance of the charred remains, and pointed it out to Mr. Kelly as the one they found the watch beside. The dead man was a Canadian, born at Bothwell, and had lived in Chicago for some time. He was on his way to New York. He was married and left a wife and daughter. The body will be sent to Bothwell.

Geo. W. Stearns, jr., of Brooklyn, N.Y., is here looking for E. Randall Orr of Peekskill, N.Y. An unclaimed trunk containing a number of letters addressed to the missing man were taken from the wreck.

Additional inquiries were made about Capt. L. L. Butler, Cook county insane asylum, Dunning, Ill. An unclaimed trunk bearing that name was found. It contained letters and papers addressed to Capt. L. L. Butler.

The wounded passengers at the hospital are getting along nicely. Antonio Marta, the Italian from Wisconsin who was on his way to Italy and had his head badly cut, left the hospital this morning. He went east.

A piece of a tie bearing the name of "—lesinger & Mayer, London, mfr.," was found on one of the bodies. The first letter of the name was not legible. It may lead to the identification of the remains. The missing letters are probably "Sc."

Disappearance of a Church Treasurer.

SANDWICH, Mass., May 2.—The community is considerably stirred up over the mysterious disappearance two weeks ago of Samuel Fessenden, Treasurer of the Cape Cod Canal Company. He was also treasurer of the Unitarian Church and had in his possession funds belonging to the Episcopal Church. The money of the Canal Company is all gone and Fessenden has left a large number of unpaid bills and notes. His family has also disappeared, mysteriously. This will probably end the canal enterprise for the present at least.

THEIR LABORS ENDED.

PARLIAMENT PROROGUED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Measures which Received the Royal Assent —The Text of the Governor-General's Speech.

OTTAWA, May 1.—When the House met at 11 o'clock this morning, after the transaction of routine business from the Senate, Hon. A. G. Jones inquired what the Government intended to do in view of the rejection by the Upper House of the Harvey and Salisbury line.

Sir Hector Langevin said the Government had not yet considered what course they would pursue, as the action of the Senate had not been anticipated.

The House having adjourned met at 3 in the afternoon when the usual farewell speeches were made, that of Mr. Trow, the senior Liberal whip, being particularly felicitous.

In response to the summons from the Usher of the Black Rod the House proceeded to the Senate chamber, where His Excellency the Governor-General signified the Royal assent to the following measures passed since the assent was last signified this session:

To incorporate the Supreme Court of the Independent Order of Foresters.
To incorporate the Union Railway Company.
To amend the revised statutes, chapter 77, respecting the safety of ships.
For the relief of George Macdonald Burwell.
For the relief of William Henry Middleton.

To amend the Copyright Act.

To authorize the granting of subsidies in aid of the construction of the lines of railway therein mentioned.
To authorize the granting of subsidies in land to certain railway companies.
For the relief of the Corporation of the Town of Cobourg.

The Supply bill was then presented by the Speaker of the House of Commons and the Royal assent signified with the customary formalities.

After this His Excellency the Governor-General closed the third session of the sixth parliament of the Dominion with this speech:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:
Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In relieving you of the arduous labors which the present session of Parliament has imposed on you, I rejoice that I am able to congratulate you on the number of important and useful measures which have resulted from your deliberations.

I have reason to hope that the authority which you have conferred on my Government will enable them to conclude an arrangement for effective steamship communication with Europe and with Asia, whereby the trade and commerce of Canada will be widely expanded and the traffic passing over her lines of communication greatly developed.

You have again made liberal provision for extending the railway facilities of the Dominion and for increasing their efficiency.

The act relating to the electoral franchise will, I believe, be found an important improvement, tending to economy and certainty in the administration of that branch of the law.

The measure by which the system of speedy trials for criminals has been extended to the Maritime Provinces is likely to prove a valuable addition to our criminal procedure.

It is gratifying to know that your address referring to the boundaries of Ontario will lead to the speedy settlement of the principal question which has remained unsettled to the present time between that province and the Dominion in a manner entirely satisfactory to all concerned.

The amendment of the laws relating to copyright will, it is hoped, remove some of the embarrassments under which the printers and publishers of Canada have labored for some years past; without doing injustice to authors in this or other countries.

You have provided for greater efficiency and economy in the postal service, for giving greater facilities for the settlement of our lands in the Northwest Territories, and for increasing the safeguards of life and property on our ships.

Many of the other measures, although of a minor character, will be found of great usefulness in conducting the affairs of administration.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

You have liberally provided for the various requirements of the public service.

Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate:
Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In taking leave of you I congratulate you on the indications of prosperity which appear in all parts of Canada, and on the increasing revenue which promises amply to meet the appropriations for the year. I sincerely hope that in the season which is now opening the labors of our people may be blessed by Divine Providence, and that when it shall be my duty to summon you again I shall be able to renew the congratulations which I have already expressed on the marked welfare and progress of the Dominion.

RAT PORTAGE'S CHIEF COP.

The Alleged Fur Thief Discovered and Surrounded by Constables.

WINNIPEG, May 2.—Walter Redden, Chief of Police of Rat Portage, accused of stealing furs from the Hudson Bay Company's store, was discovered by two constables last night on the mainland eight miles from Rat Portage with some miners.

Redden saw the constables approaching and ran into the woods, but the miners were arrested and the boats and provisions confiscated.

Redden is now surrounded by constables, and he will probably be taken.

Drowning Accident Near Midland.

MIDLAND, May 2.—A drowning accident occurred on Tuesday between here and Victoria Harbor. A party comprising Henry E. Jeffery and Robert Little of Midland and a young man named Meredith from Barrie left Midland on Tuesday for Victoria Harbor and at Dollarville, a suburb of this town, took on James P. Anderson, who resides at the old fort. There being a stiff northwest wind [illegible] that day and they not returning [illegible] night no trouble was anticipated by their respective families, but not returning yesterday a tug was sent out this morning, when they found the sailboat, with sails set, on the beach at Methodist Island, opposite Victoria Harbor. A searching party immediately started out and found Robert Little's overcoat [illegible] an overcoat and [illegible] to James P. Anderson, which [illegible] of the fate of the whole [illegible] parties went out last night with [illegible].

GOT HIMSELF IN A BOX.

The Minister of Education, while opposing a resolution of the Conservative Opposition that English should be the standard language of all public schools in Ontario, referred to the teaching of the Welsh language in Wales to convey the impression that the British Government maintained schools in which that was the language taught. Even if this were true the positions would not be analogous, but Mr. Ross' statement did not pass uncontradicted and he or his organ has had considerable trouble in endeavoring to make good his assertions. To support Mr. Ross evidence is quoted to show that Welsh is taught in Wales as a "specific subject." Very likely, and German, Latin, French, and Greek are taught in Canadian institutions of learning as "specific subjects." But that is widely different from making Welsh the standard of the schools, employing teachers who speak that language fluently and who have only an indifferent knowledge of English and having the schools inspected by a man whose knowledge of English was also limited. Foreign languages are appropriate subjects to be taught to those who desire a knowledge of other languages in addition to that of the country, but the Queen's English should be the standard language in all schools receiving public aid in Ontario, and Mr. Ross has not improved matters for himself by referring to conditions that do not exist in other parts of the British dominions.

NORWOOD NEWS.

A Large Addition to a Factory—An Accident on a Drive.

COMMENCED WORK.—Last week Mr. Mullins commenced work on his new block on Peterborough-st. The building will fill the entire space between the stores of Messrs. W. H. Stephenson and Richardson Bros., and when completed will no doubt, greatly improve the appearance of the street. The two stores which it will comprise have already been rented at good figures.

ANOTHER LARGE ADDITION.—Messrs. John Finlay & Son informs us that in the course of a week or so they purpose commencing the erection of a large addition to their factory. The proposed addition will be sixty feet long by thirty-six feet wide and will be used for the manufacture of wheels. This new departure will give employment to a large number of workmen. We wish them every success in their venture.

ANNIVERSARY SERMON.—Sunday evening the Oddfellows of the town attended divine worship in the Methodist church in commemoration of the seventieth anniversary of the Order. The brethren assembled at their lodge room on Colborne-st. and marched in a body to the church. The sermon, which was preached by the pastor, the Rev. J. S. Clarke, was both able and instructive.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—Mr. Phillip Clarke, of this place, while engaged in breaking a jam of logs on Jack's Creek last week, had the misfortune to meet with a serious accident. It appears that he had attached the "dog" to a log and was in the act of walking away to a safe distance when the team, starting suddenly, caused it to slip. The "dog," swinging around, caught him in the calf of the leg, mangling and tearing the flesh in a horrible manner. He was removed to his home in this village on Thursday and is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

REVIEWS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—The dominions of the Czar are a subject of great interest to this part of the world so distant from them, and the article in the May number of Harper's on "Social Life in Russia," by Viscomte Eugene M. de Vogue, is one of absorbing interest, which is heightened by the admirable illustrations accompanying it. "A Meadow Mud-hole," by Dr. C. C. Abbott, is a fine paper on the flora of waters. In "A Chapter from My Memoirs," Mr. de Blowitz, the famous London Times correspondent, gives an account of his labors at the Berlin Congress, with capital pen sketches of members, and accompanied by reflections containing his opinions on other subjects. "The Western Outlook for Sportsmen," by F. Satterthwaite, will be eagerly read by those to whom it is addressed, and "The Dramatic Outlook in America," by Brander Matthews, will be of great interest to those interested in the American stage. "Agriculture as a Profession," by Joseph K. Reeves, is a thoughtful article on an important subject. Col. F. Grant contributes an excellent article on "The Royal Academy," which is accompanied by numerous illustrations of great merit. The stories of the number are good, and the poetry is up to the standard, while the departments are replete with good things.—Harper Bros., New York.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Chapter of Accidents—Toronto University Patronage.

TORONTO, May 3.—Yesterday afternoon the Ontario Cabinet granted a lengthy audience to a committee from the Senate of the University of Toronto. The committee asked in effect, as far as can be learned, that the Government agree to the appointment of a patronage committee selected by the Senate for the disposal (subject of course to the approval of the governor-in-council) of the patronage in connection with the University, especially as regards the appointment of professors. At present the Minister of Education is the dispenser of the patronage in question, though of course he consults the university authorities and finally his colleagues. What stand the Cabinet took other than to promise careful consideration, could not be learned.

Two men tried to beat the proprietor of an eating-house on Adelaide-street out of the price of a meal at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. John Geck, a waiter, followed them, when one of the pair turned on him and struck out with a pair of long paper-hangers' scissors. The blades went through the fleshy part of Geck's right arm, near the shoulder. The fellow ran, but his companion remained and gave the name of Geck's assailant as Flynn, who is yet at large.

Mrs. Herring of Scarboro was thrown out of her buggy on King-street yesterday morning, sustaining slight injury and the loss of a satchel containing $100 in cash and a check for $20.

The scaffold in front of some new houses in course of erection on Tranby-avenue, a thoroughfare running off Avenue-road, collapsed between 9 and 10 o'clock yesterday morning, two workmen named William Jackson, of 93 Elm-street, and William Trelesley being precipitated head foremost to the ground, a distance of over twenty feet. The unfortunate men fell on a pile of bricks and stone and were taken up unconscious. Both appear to suffer from serious internal injuries. They were removed to the Hospital in the double ambulance.

Yesterday morning in the Police Court Edward McLaughlin, for having stolen a bicycle from William B. Moreland, was sent to the Central Prison for one year.

Miss Cusack, better known to fame as the Nun of Kenmare, will visit Toronto next week.

A recently repaired crane was being used yesterday forenoon in the Polson Iron Works to raise a 22-ton fly wheel, which had just been cast for the Electric Light Company of Montreal. Frank Forbes, a machinist, 28 years old and unmarried, stood under the crane to guide the wheel as it was lifted, when suddenly the former collapsed and the poor fellow was instantly pinned beneath the wheel. When released life was found to have departed.

Detective Slemin and Acting-Detective Watson last night arrested two little girls who are charged with several petty larcenies. They are Minnie Roland of 15 [illegible]-street, and Maud Sylvester of 7 [illegible]-street, aged 14 and 10 respectively, who are charged with having stolen a clock and other articles from the premises of John Croker, 177 George-street. These children it is believed have been doing a good deal of petty stealing.

By 2000 votes to 10 a crowded audience in Shaftesbury Hall last night affirmed that having heard the evidence the members of the new sect, the Christian League, were justified in leaving the Salvation Army. All the speakers had been officers in General Booth's world-wide organization, and pitiful, if not blood-curdling, were the tales they unfolded of hardships, privations, insolence, bullying, autocracy and cupidity on the part of Commissioner Coombs and his division officers. The matter revealed to the sympathetic audience last night was part and parcel of that printed in War Cry Editor Sumner's suppressed book, which it was averred by more than one speaker last night the Commissioner made a burnt sacrifice of.

SUICIDE AT THE FALLS.

A Buffalo Man Leaps From Goat Island Bridge and Goes Over the Precipice.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., May 2.—To-night about 8 o'clock as J. L. Ryan and wife of Holly were standing on the sidewalk near the American end of the Goat Island Bridge they saw a man leap from the upper side of the bridge into the river. The lady screamed and attracted the attention of Samuel Smith of the reservation police, who stepped to the bridge railway and saw distinctly a man floating in the current below. He was out of reach and soon was swept over the brink near Prospect Point.

The policeman found on the bridge near the spot where the man was seen to jump a Derby hat containing the label of Stafford & Paul, 371 Main-street, Buffalo, a leather pocketbook containing a key ring and Music Hall fair ticket, No. 2365, bearing the name of Jacob Blessing, 763 Seneca-street, Buffalo.

INHUMAN BRUTALITY.

How Robert Burns was Beaten to Death in the Cook County Insane Asylum.

CHICAGO, May 2.—At the coroner's inquest to-day into the cause of the death of Robert Burns, a patient in the Insane Asylum at Jefferson, Attendants Richardson, Crogan and Pecha, charged with beating him to death, were present. Charles Beck, a reporter who played the insanity dodge and was admitted to the asylum, detailed the repeated acts of brutality which the accused inflicted upon Burns. He declared the patient was not unruly, but seemed to be dazed. Beck testified that Burns was ordered to sit on a bench. He seemed not to understand and did not do so, whereupon he was violently thrown down upon it. Rising in a dazed way Richardson kicked him violently in the abdomen. Burns again arose, when Richardson caught him by the collar and threw him to the floor and so the brutality continued, the accused kicking the helpless lunatic in the side and stomach, striking and cutting and bruising his face with their fists. They undertook to dress his wounded leg, jerking him about roughly and causing him excruciating agony, meantime continuing their blows.

Crogan picked up Burns' shoe and taking it by the toe beat the patient over the head with the heel, cutting great gashes and covering the victim with blood. By this time Burns was in a semi-comatose condition. He was then jerked out of his seat, which was covered with blood that had run from his head. That night Burns was ordered to remove his clothes, but not complying, was slapped and cuffed. Finally the attendants stripped him and Richardson kicked him in the abdomen, knocking him across the seat.

At another time witness heard blows in Burns' cell and loud cries from Burns lasting several minutes. Attendants Schubert, Crogan and Richardson were there. Then a mop and a pail of water were brought and the door was closed and locked. The attendants concluded witness was too inquisitive and he was removed to another part of the building. The reporter came out of the asylum at the end of 16 days. Burns was then reduced to a skeleton and was a sallow, hollow-eyed idiot.

The reporter told how, when friends secured his release, Dr. Kiernan, Superintendent of the Asylum, shook his head ominously and advised against it. He declared the reporter was incurably insane, he knew this because he had watched the case closely. Dr. Schubert, of the staff, concurred in this opinion.

Our Hats are Inimitable

Every day now adds its compliments to the judgment of gentlemen as to the beauty and excellence of our spring Hats. They're buying them. They're not doing it without having first compared and decided that we bear away the prize for cheapness and quality as well as for fashion making and moderate prices. Gentlemen are critical when it comes to getting a light weight Hat. They are a necessity in these spring days—a necessity in which they esteem style as essential. Witness the demand for our Genuine Cooksy, Woodrow and Ellwood Celebrated Zephr weight Hats made especially for us. The Entrance Exams.

The midsummer examinations for entrance to the Collegiate Institute will be held on the 4th, 5th and 6th July next. This is the exam that is usually anticipated with fear and trembling, hope and doubt by the pupils of the higher divisions in the Central and ward schools, so now that they have the date they can go ahead and prepare accordingly.

For Yourself.

If you esteem a good article buy where quality is secured and at a reasonable price. In teas, for instance, quality is what tells. To be absolutely sure as to quality give Hawley Bros. a call. Every grade you can fancy on sale. At the prices asked every grade is good value. Handling teas exclusively they buy to advantage, they buy well and with care. Ask for a sample and test it with what you have been using. Remember the only exclusively tea depot in town is at Hawley Bros. d36

Happily not Correct.

A telegraphic paragraph dated Detroit, which appeared in all the papers and which told of the suicide by drowning of an unknown young lady whose description was given, led a mother whose daughter is now absent from home to fear that it was her girl, the description tallying so well with that of the absent one. Chief Roszel communicated with the police at Detroit, and this morning received an answer stating that the drowned female had been identified as Margie DeGrace, a Detroit woman.

Overrun With Applicants.

A gentleman remarked in the REVIEW office, "For heaven's sake is this country breeding cats? I casually mentioned that I thought of getting a cat and I've been almost run to death ever since I made the incautious remark." It was only the other day he spoke of the cat opening, and the time for filling the vacancy was not stated, but he says he hadn't mentioned it two hours until the house was almost besieged with applicants, and he's had dozens since. He didn't advertise in any of the local papers, either—which is pretty good evidence of the supply of cats and the readiness of people to respond to a personal appeal.

After the Salt Manufacturers.

Mr. Wm. Johnson, District Inspector of Weights and Measures, returned home from the west on Thursday after ten days absence, says the Belleville Intelligencer, during which time he has either personally or through Weights and Measures officers at different points, seized between three and four thousand barrels of salt for being under the standard weight of 280 lbs. gross, the deficiency being from 14 to 20 lbs. The barrels were all [illegible] by four manufacturers, so that [illegible] has evidence of from six to [illegible] violations of the Act by each manufacturer. [illegible] were laid against three firms, and on their pleading guilty and promising before the courts to have all the light barrels repacked up to the 280 lbs., and to obey the law in future, only one charge was pressed against each firm. In each case the court inflicted a penalty of $10 and costs. When the salt is repacked it will be released from seizure. Seizures have been made at Quebec, Hamilton, Dresden, Windsor, Alviston, Toronto, Lakefield, Newburg, Picton, Peterborough, Marmora, Harold, Ivanhoe, Sarnia, Amherstburg. This prompt action of the Minister of Inland Revenue well entitles him to the thanks of the tens of thousands of consumers of salt, and will, it is to be hoped, be a lesson to all the manufacturers of salt, teaching them that the Government is determined to enforce this and similar Acts which protect the public from fraud.

No lady of taste should miss tasting a cup of M. R. Kidd's Superb Tea. d36

BURGLARY AT HASTINGS.

The Station Safe Blown Open and a Parcel of Watches Taken.

Burglars paid a visit to the village of Hastings last evening and burglarized the safe in the station of the Grand Junction Railway. It appears that the burglars, as is usual with those engaged in such work, did not carry tools with them, and they first went to the carpenter shop of Mr. Rear. They forced an entrance into it and took what tools they wanted for the job they had laid out for themselves for that night. The station building is on the south side of the river and some little distance from any other building. It is of the usual style and construction of village stations, the agent's office being in the east end and the baggage room occupying the western part, the front of the building facing the main track to the north. It was left locked as usual last night. The burglars through a rear window of the agent's office, by taking out the upper part of the window. Once inside they had access to the safe, which was a strong one, but of the kind that is opened by a key. The key-hole being already there, the thieves did not find it necessary to drill the iron. They had evidently been prepared to operate on a safe of this kind, and had a cotton bag, about the size of a little fingure and a foot long, filled with an explosive. They inserted an end of this bag into the key-hole and worked it down into the door, and by this means the door of the

FORCED AN ENTRANCE

SAFE WAS BLOWN OPEN.

The remnants of the cotton bag revealed the means by which the forcing of the safe was accomplished. The door was badly broken by the explosion, but it was not forced off the hinges. The burglars then made an examination of the safe. They took possession of and made off with $1.30 in cash and an express parcel of watches worth about $80. The watches had been sent c.o.d. to Hastings by a Toronto firm. The parcel was opened and the wrapper which had enclosed the timepieces was left on the floor. The noise made by the explosion was not heard and the burglars were not disturbed at their work. Nothing was known of the midnight visit until the assistant station agent went on duty at 6.30 o'clock this morning, when he found the safe open and all its contents, except what the thieves had carried away, scattered about the floor.

A Good Scheme.

The Berlin Daily News says:—"Other towns and cities may well follow the experiment that is now being enacted in Berlin, requiring all youngsters to be off the streets at 9 o'clock in the evening. Here it works like a charm. The boys and girls who have not passed 16, are afraid of their lives the police will catch hold of them, even if sent on messages. It's a good scheme."

The Collegiate Cadets.

Yesterday afternoon was the day of drill for the Collegiate Institute cadets and for the first time the officers of the company appeared in uniform, and presented quite a soldierly appearance. The uniforms consist of dark trousers, a short parade jacket of the service material, and a Glengary cap. It is the intention of the members of the company to all procure uniforms and when this is done they will be quite an acquisition to the military display of the town.

A Douro Drunk.

John McMurray was locked up early this morning suffering from the effects of too heavy libations of old rye. When he appeared before the Magistrate this morning he acknowledged that he had been drunk and said he was from Douro and was working on the railway or almost anywhere he could find work. The Magistrate told him he allowed him to go but warned him not to be found in town to-day or he would be locked up again and would not get off so easily.

A Great Mistake

is made very often by merchants advertising goods at very low figures and when the public call to price the goods they are much higher than the prices their advertisement calls for, or they are just out of the goods. Now, it is altogether different with W. J. Morrow. When you see his advertisement you can rely on procuring the goods at the price stated, just so long as he can get the goods, but of course when we are out you must make an allowance. We have another consignment of beautiful 3 lb. tin Peaches at 15 cents per tin. 3 lb. tin Tomatoes, 3 for 25 cents. W. J. Morrow, 346 George-st.

The Spanish Students Quintette.

This splendid musical organization appears in the Opera House on Tuesday evening, May 7th. The Toronto Globe, in reporting their appearance in that city, refers to the large audiences they attracted and speaks in the warmest terms of the nature of the performance. The several numbers were heartily app'auded and encored. Particular praise was given the humorous selections of Prof. Ryerson, and the Postillion de Rioja, with castanets and tambourine, by the Spanish Students. While the musical merit of this organization is great, the novelty of the music forms an additional attraction. Remember, at Bradburn's Opera House, Tuesday evening, May 7th. Popular price—25 and 50 cents. Reserve seats at Schofield's drug store.

Bluster, loud talk, and Bluff show lack of merit. Kidd draws and retains his customers on the quality of Tea he sells. d36

St. Andrew's Society.

The May quarterly meeting of the executive committee of the St. Andrew's Society was held in their new hall last evening, and it is said by those who were present that it was the most successful and encouraging meeting that has been held for many a year, a new interest and enthusiasm in their national society seemingly having been imbued into the local sons of the heather clad hills by the procuring of the new hall and the other improvements which are proposed in the workings of the society. The hall is now being arranged for the special meeting of the Society which is called for Thursday evening next for the discussion and consideration of important business. A goodly number of new names were added to the membership roll and it is expected that there will be further additions at the next meeting. During the evening the hall committee was heard from, and a report was prepared, setting forth the work done by the committee, which will be submitted for the approval of the Society at the meeting next week. Vigorous measures were also set on foot for increasing the membership, and with a view of arousing all Scotchmen and those of Scottish descent to their duty of becoming members. A new form of membership card was also ordered to be printed, which will be presented to each member on his payment of $2.00 for membership fee.

ASHBURNHAM'S PROSPERITY.

A Few Figures from the Assessment of Peterborough's Suburb—Town Figures.

The assessment rolls of the village of Ashburnham have been returned and a few of the principal figures from the recapitulation of the returns are interesting. The village has been on the increase during the year, although the increase may not have been of that pronounced and remarkable character that some of its most ardent admirers would wish. But it must be remembered that the year 1888 was not one of remarkable prosperity in any of the towns or smaller cities of Ontario, and, therefore, Peterborough's flourishing suburb makes a good showing. The population has not increased to any great extent, but the value of the real property has gone up to the extent of some $30,000, the building operations having been brisk last year. The amount of taxable income is small, which is accounted for by the fact that many of the residents who enjoy the largest incomes are rated for income in Peterborough. The following are a few of the principal figures from the recapitulation:—

POPULATION.

Total resident population	1,472
Number of ratepayers	463
Non-resident	152

ASSESSABLE PROPERTY.

Value of resident and non-resident lands	$ 417,674
Value of personal property	12,100
Amount of taxable income	2,300
Total value of assessed property	$432,074

There are 401 children in the village over 5 years of age and under 16, and 152 over 16 and under 21, while 219 are over 7 and under 13. There are also 119 dogs, 116 cattle and 67 horses in the village.

1888 FIGURES.

For the sake of comparison, the following figures from last year's returns are given:—

Total population	1,488
Total value of resident and non-resident land	$ 387,884
Value of personal property	16,085
Amount of taxable income	2,300
Total value of assessed property	$ 414,879

THE TOWN FIGURES.

Mr. Aldrige, the assessor, has completed his work in town but the full and detailed returns cannot be procured to-day as the recapitulation is not completed. However, it appears the population according to the returns will be 9,364 against 9,069 of 1888, an increase of 295. The total value of assessed property is $3,897,375 an increase of $107,320 over 1888, when the total was $3,789,955.

BLEECKER'S CAVE.

Searching for Mythical Wealth in the Township of Belmont.

Many new instances of "low foolery," says a correspondent of the Campbellford Herald, might now be given relative to recent researches for "Bleecker's Cave." Now just one as it is. About 18 years ago there lived near here a young man then well up in his teens. So strongly was he convinced of the existence of the renowned "Bleecker's Cave," and so sure was he that the non-success of the hundreds of searchers was due to their lack of wit and knowledge of minerals, that he then made a solemn vow that if ever he became the possessor of a hundred dollars he would return (for he then went west) and make a systematic and manly hunt for "Bleecker's Cave" and show to all that it could be found. About three weeks ago the man returned here, having five hired men with him, and they have been operating in the usual way, viz., down on all fours, scratching leaves and turning lime stones. The man told a friend of mine, last week, that if he failed to find the cave he was ruined, as he had paid heavily to "Dimon-lookers," and it would require more than the balance of the $100 to pay his five men. He also stated that he has come upon the very tree which Dimon-lookers told him leans over the spot and even to the rock over the cave, but they all get bewildered and cannot for the life of them find the way in. The party left a few days ago, and as yet failed to give the public any tidings as to the location of "Bleecker's Cave." I will try, dear Editor, and give you the news as soon as the cave is found.

Confirmation Class.

Rev. J. C. Davidson will hold a special Confirmation class in the school house this evening at 8.15, after the usual Friday service. All candidates for Confirmation, both men and women, are invited to be present, except those who attend the Thursday afternoon class. This joint meeting will take the place (for to-night) of Rev. Mr. Kenrick's class.

Charlotte-st. Y. P. A.

The devotional meeting in the school room of Charlotte-st. Methodist church this evening will be conducted by the young people. All the young people of the congregation are invited to be present. In connection with this meeting, the study of the Sunday school lesson for the coming Sunday will be briefly taken up. Let there be a large attendance at this first devotional meeting.

College Federation.

Mr. Wm. Johnson in conversation with Rev. John Potts, Toronto, was informed that $100,000 had already been raised towards college federation, says the Ontario. A thousand dollars was given in Belleville. Mr. T. P. Pearce on Thursday placed in the hands of Rev. John Learoyd a $50 check towards the scheme. The building will be started at once although it will take $450,000 to cover the entire expenditure.

Arbor Day.

To-day was Arbor Day in the schools of the rural districts and villages and the scholars were given a holiday, and in many places carried out the regulations of the department of Education and occupied the day in planting trees and otherwise beautifying the school grounds. In the school in Ashburnham the children enjoyed a holiday and the grounds around the building were cleaned, although no tree planting was indulged in this year, that having been done a year ago.

Death of Mrs. Saulter.

Word was received this morning of the death of Mrs. Saulter, wife of Mr. James Saulter, of Toronto and formerly of Peterborough, which occurred unexpectedly last night. Mrs. Saulter was a daughter of Mr. Simon Smith, of Otonabee, and was born in that township in April, 1834. She was married to Mr. Saulter about twenty-four years ago and leaves four sons who with her husband mourn the unexpected death of a loving mother and wife. The funeral will take place on the arrival of the 11.40 C. P. R. train to-morrow from the station to the Little Lake Cemetery. Mr. Saulter and family will receive the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends in Peterborough.

Successful Topic Party.

The "Topic Party" given by the "Y" at the residence of Mrs. G. J. Early last evening proved a most successful and enjoyable affair, although many who went did so wondering what the programme would be. It is a very simple arrangement and very pleasant withal. It is known in some circles as a "conversational German." The topics are called out as the names of dances are at a ball, partners are chosen and while music is played the conversation is to be carried on upon the topic announced. The programme was as follows:—Explanation of "Topic Party," by Mr. W. J. Herbison, master of ceremonies. "The Weather," —duet by Miss Wrighton and Mr. Norton. "Corns"—piano solo by Miss Lillie Wynn. Song, "Dolly's Revenge," by Miss Fawcett. "True Womanhood"—instrumental duet by the Misses Wrighton. "The Ideal Man"—duet, violin and piano, by Masters McKee and Duff. "New Political Party"—piano solo by Miss Maud Jones. "Promenade"—instrumental solo by Miss Winnie Dobbin. "Giggling"—piano solo, and a song by Mr. M. Bowman. "Sunday Letter Writing"—duet, piano and mouth organ, by Miss Wrighton and Mr. Norton. "Quotations"—piano solo by Miss Clarke. "Ambrosia and Nectar for the Gods"—instrumental duet by Mrs. and Miss Duff. Song by Miss Pearson. "Conversation Cards"—piano solo by Miss Wrighton. "Chess." Promenade, "Home, Sweet Home"—song "Home, Sweet Home," by the audience. A few slight changes were made in the programme to accommodate some of the performers, but in the main it was carried out as above. There was over one hundred present.

A CONGREGATIONAL RECEPTION.

The Ladies of St. John's Give a Most Enjoyable Entertainment and Social.

The reception tendered by the ladies of St. John's Church to the members of the congregation last evening was a most enjoyable affair and the large number who attended were most emphatic in sounding the praises of those ladies who had the arrangements under their control. There was no admission fee charged, the object that the ladies had in view and which was attained was simply that of promoting a social feeling among the members of the congregation, which could only be followed by beneficial results. The evening was more for social intercourse and conversation, but this was also interspersed with songs and instrumental selections. The Sunday school room where the reception was held presented a most inviting and attractive appearance. The ordinary seats had been removed and with furniture, rugs, curtains, flowers, etc., the aspect of the room was entirely changed and had more the appearance of a large drawing room than a Sunday school room. The programme comprised several excellent numbers. The first was a trio, composed of Mrs. Lewis (piano), Mr. Butcher (flute) and Prof. Doucett (violin), which was very pleasing and was greatly appreciated. Then Miss Yeksme contributed an excellent violin solo, and was accompanied by Miss Claxton on the piano. A chorus was rendered by members of the choir, and Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Dunsford gave an instrumental solo, followed by a pretty violin solo by Master Harold Lewis. Mr. Butcher gave a well-executed flute solo and, after another chorus by members of the choir, Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Dunsford gave a second instrumental duet. The chorus chosen by the choir was "Good-night Ladies" and the evening closed with "God Save the Queen."

WHO ARE TO BE THANKED.

The evening was pronounced one of the most enjoyable that the congregation have spent for some time past. The ladies who contributed towards its successful arrangements were as follows:—

MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE.—Mrs. Beck, Mrs. Belcher, Mrs. Weller, Mrs. Poussette, Mrs. Boucher, Mrs. Clementi, Mrs. Archer, Mrs. Best, Mrs. Geo. Burnham and Mrs. Vernon.

REFRESHMENTS.—Mrs. Merrick, Mrs. Somerville, Mrs. Pope, Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Stapleton and Mrs. Perry.

DECORATION.—Misses Hatton, Halliday, Boddy, Wallis, Gilchrist, Stewart, Kirkpatrick and Burnham.

MUSICAL.—Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Dunsford and Mrs. G. A. Smith.

The District Meeting.

The meeting of the representatives of clubs in the Eastern district of the O.L.A was opened at the Phelan House this afternoon. The delegates present were:—Mr. P. McMillan, Beaverton; A. J. Eaton, F. C. Stephenson, J. A. Harper, and F. J. Baldrick, Norwood; Dr. Brennan and J. Phelan, Riversides, of Peterborough. Madoc was not represented and a message was received from Port Hope, stating that that club had decided to drop out of the association this season.

Women as Book Enemies.

Sorry am I to admit it, but women must be classed among the "enemies of books;" that is, from a bibliophile's standpoint. What a mighty list could be made out by merely enumerating the "Strange Things Women Have Been Known to Do with Books," e. g., cover up a cup of cough mixture with a valuable binding, lay a wet muff on a handsome book, read while eating candy, exchange a fine old tooling for a holiday volume with rich design in stamped gold, send a tall copy to the binders to have its edges trimmed even and gilded, cut out an ex dono and paste it in her autograph album, remove a book plate, open up an uncut de luxe with the blade of her shears, amuse the baby with a volume of fine engravings, etc.—The Booklover.

FRIDAY, MAY 3, 1889.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER]

"I might be walking down the street," she cried, "and a chimney pot might fall on my head and crack it; or I might miss my footing at the top of the stairs and tumble down and break my neck; or I might," with a sudden change of tone, "I might stop here and eat my heart out, and he might die without seeing me—and oh! Mr. Moore, don't try to keep me; I should go right out of my mind if anything like that were to happen."

So she won the day and carried her point, and the preparations for the journey went briskly on. She decided to take her maid, who had been with her three years and was a very steady, reliable kind of woman, well accustomed to traveling, and also to keep Darby, who had been her father's valet for something like four times that period. With her own woman and with Darby, she would, she knew, be more safe and also travel in greater comfort than with half a dozen fine society ladies to do chaperon. And, moreover, she gave a thought to the journey back and to the comfort and help that Darby would be to her Beautiful Jim on the voyage home. And with such indomitable energy did she work that by the time the very next P. and O. steamer went out to the shining East, she was on board, feeling, it is true, a little more lonely than she would for all the world have admitted to the group of friends who had gone to see her off—waving a rather tearful farewell to them and her native shores.

But that was a feeling which very soon passed off. The novelty of her surroundings was good for such sad thoughts as hers necessarily were, and though in a general way an unusually good sailor, she began, after a few hours, to feel certain very uncomfortable sort of qualms, which sent her off to her berth without any desire to spend more time gazing at the fast receding shores of her own country. And after that she lived the ordinary life on ship board, coming in for a large share of admiration and attention in spite of the fact, which soon became known among the passengers, that she was engaged to be married to a man in the Blankshire regiment, who had been badly wounded in an affair with the Dacoits in Burmah, and that she was going to Calcutta, and possibly even further, to nurse him.

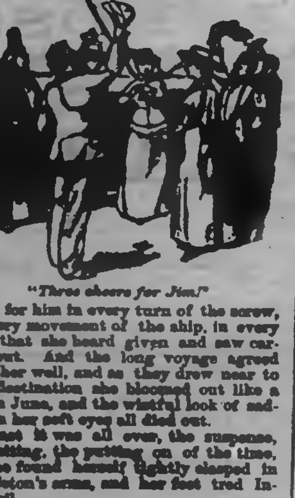
They knew, too, that her brother had been killed in the same affair, and that her father had died about the same time—that she was a great heiress and the last of her name. And they all said, men and women alike, that the fellow in the the Blankshire regiment was just the very luckiest man who had ever been born, if, indeed, he had not been so unfortunate as to die of his wound.

There was quite a wave of excitement on board when at Suez a telegram from Calcutta was brought on for Miss Earle, who, poor girl, had hardly courage enough to open it. It was short, but inexpressibly sweet:

"Jim much better—on his way here.
"SETON."

Nancy tried hard to laugh over the good news, and very nearly succeeded in breaking down into a storm of tears, the relief was so great. Then some one called out "Three cheers for Jim—long life to him!" and straightway three rousing shouts went up for the hero they had never seen; and his lovely sweetheart, in spite of a certain dewiness about her dove's eyes, managed to turn the threatened outburst into smiles after all!

Strangely enough, the journey did not seem particularly long to her, nor the time half so wearisome as sitting at home waiting for Jim's return would have been. There was a sense of doing something for him in every turn of the screw, in every movement of the ship, in every order that she heard given and saw carried out. And the long voyage agreed with her well, and as they drew near to their destination she bloomed out like a rose in June, and the wistful look of sadness in her soft eyes all died out.



"Three cheers for Jim!"

At last it was all over, the suspense, the waiting, the putting on of the time, and she found herself tightly clasped in Mrs. Seton's arms, and her feet trod Indian soil.

"He is well?" she asked, breathlessly. "He is with you?"

"Dear child, yes; where should he be?" the little woman cried. "Not exactly well, you know, but getting—getting on. Not well enough to come to meet you, but so awfully impatient for you. I only told him yesterday. I thought he would worry himself to a shadow if he knew that you were on your way. Now, I wish I had told him a few days earlier. And about your baggage? Oh! you have a man and maid! Then give up your keys and come along at once. They will manage it all far better without you. Why, child, how you are trembling! Ah! I know—I know—you have gone through so much since we parted," and then she drew Nancy into the carriage which was awaiting her, and bade the coachman drive straight back to the hotel.

Poor Nancy could hardly breathe for the excitement, and although she knew as little and wanted to know as much, not a question came into her mind or rose to her lips. She only kept one hand in Mrs. Seton's and pressed the other hard upon her breast, to try to still the mad beating of her heart.

But happily it was not for long. They drew up before a large hotel, and the little woman by her side said, in a tone of intense relief, "Here we are," and went before her into the house. "You will not expect to see him looking very robust, will you, dear child?" she said, by way of preparation.

"Oh! no—no!" Nancy answered.

"And if it is rather too much for him, if the meeting upsets him a little, you won't be frightened?"—anxiously.

"I will be very good every way," said Nancy, trying to smile.

By this time they had reached the door of Jim's room, and Mrs. Seton opened it.

"Here she is," she announced, and gently pushed the girl in and closed it behind her, with an imperative sign to the native in attendance to betake herself out of the way.

And Nancy went in to find a ghost—or what seemed so to her in the first shock of surprise—a gaunt skeleton lying helplessly back on a couch, with a punka waving to and fro over his head. And then this gaunt skeleton stretched out a skinny hand to her, and she realized that it was her love—her Jim—whom she had come so far to help; and then there was a rush, a scuffle, and the next moment she was down upon her knees beside him, holding his head upon her breast, and it was all right!

Somehow, now that I have got to this point, I cannot tell more about that meeting; it is too sacred a theme for me to write or you to read—it belongs to themselves alone, and you and I are in reality only outsiders, though I have loved Beautiful Jim dearly, very dearly, and I hope that you have loved him too.

But I can and will tell you just what happened afterward—how the happy days slipped by, and with each one Jim got a little stronger and shook off more and more of the weakness and lassitude which he had brought as his portion out of Burmah. How he began, after awhile, to totter about in an uncertain, baby sort of fashion on his very own feet, with only the slight support of Nancy's slim young arm to help him—how they began to take lovely drives in the early mornings and in the cool of the evening, and best of all, how one day she said, quite simply and unconcernedly, "If you go on improving like this, dear, we shall be able to be married ever so much sooner than I thought."

And then poor Jim blurted out the last faint shadow of his doubts and the sorrows of their past.

"My darling," he said, trembling in spite of himself, "do you think I am quite free to take advantage of—of—circumstances?"

Nancy looked, as she felt, startled.

"Why not, Jim?" she asked, her thoughts flying wildly to some obstacle of which she was in ignorance.

"Of course we can please ourselves; but your father's objection was possible danger and trouble to you in the future," Jim answered. "And, of course, young Tommy is dead now, poor chap, and I don't want to say or feel anything against him; but supposing poor Owen's death was brought up again and they fixed upon me? I might find it very awkward and"— But Nancy had risen and gone out of the room, and while Jim was still wondering at the suddenness of her movement, she came back with a sealed packet in her hand.

"I foresaw something of this," she said, quietly, as she broke the seals, "and that last day at Blankhampton I made Stuart leave your safety in my hands;" and then she gave him the paper, and he read the poor dead lad's passionate confession.

A few days later the heiress of the Earles and Beautiful Jim, of the Blankshire regiment, were wed, very quietly and simply, with only Mrs. Seton and a man who had been very, very good to him in the first days of his long illness, to witness it; so it was over.

All was ended now, the hope, and the [illegible] sorrow,
All the aching of heart, the restless [illegible] longing,
All the dull, deep paid, and constant patience.

THE END.

An Exclusive Organization.

Probably the most exclusive, the most retired and modest organization in this country is the O'Shea club. It was so called in honor of a celebrated Irish patriot born in Carrick-on-Suir. The membership is not limited, but so very few are found to be eligible for admission that the growth of the club is necessarily slow. In this city it has only six members, and they meet occasionally to discuss any and every question of public interest. Their deliberations are not made public in any way, and any action they may take in regard to matters which come before them is never made known to the outside world. One of the members recently told me that though the total membership of the clubs throughout the country was less than 1,000, there had been a very considerable sum contributed to the Parnell defense fund, as well as to home charities. He also stated that it would be impossible almost for any one to find out anything about the club's work, inasmuch as the members scarcely recognized one another outside the club meetings, and that no two meetings were ever held in the same place. The meetings are called at the will of the president. The local club is anxious to secure another member so as to have an odd number, but has failed to find any one who could satisfactorily answer all the questions propounded in regard to birth, antecedents, habits of life, and moral and financial standing.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Scarcely a day passes but we receive packages of New Goods especially in Millinery and Millinery Trimmings. New Shapes taking the place of those bought earlier, and at lower prices. To keep posted in what is being shown, you need to visit our establishment weekly.

Like an opening rose, our Dress Goods and Trimmings show beauty at every sight, the colors blend together so perfectly; Moss, Sage and Nile Greens, still hold in favor. Terra Cotta Blue, Grays, Dove and Reseda Shades are as much sought after as ever. In our Black Goods department we are showing a new voile [illegible], fine light and durable, just the dress for an old lady, much nicer than the nuns veilings.

It needs to be repeated and remembered that in all goods and most emphatically in Cotton Goods we keep a most complete stock. Where will you find the variety of Cottonades, Shirtings, Ticks, &c., you find with us, not less than sixty different patterns of Shirtings at prices as low as the lowest. At the Ribbon counter you are almost always sure to find exactly what you want for Dress or Millinery use.

Our Stock of Neck Frilling is very choice, being different to what is usually shown, we import them from a different mark t.

When house-cleaning you may find you require a new carpet. We show a beautiful Tapestry at 50c. Lower and higher qualities according to good value.

The rush is on us in our Tailoring Department. Our Stock of Tweeds and Worsteds please the eye and pockets of our patrons. Best satisfaction in a fit always given.

THE TORONTO BUDGET.

MICHAEL MALLORY COMMITTED FOR TRIAL FOR ARSON.

The Farquhars Ordered to Pay the Costs of the Big Libel Suit—The Victoria University Injunction.

TORONTO, May 4.—In the litigation connected with the Victoria College injunction the Master in Chambers yesterday made orders for the examination of Chancellor Burwash, George A. Cox and others. The [illegible] solicitor for Victoria University in the injunction case, consists of the following members: the General Superintendent, the Secretary of Education, the Chancellor of the University and the Bursar. The committee at their meeting yesterday morning added the name of Rev. Dr. Dewart.

Arbor Day was felicitously celebrated at the Normal and Model Schools yesterday, trees being planted by Miss Marjorie Campbell, Mrs. Mowat and others.

At Osgoode Hall yesterday morning Justice Rose gave judgment in the matter of costs in the recent libel suit of E. & C. Farquhar against John Ross Robertson, proprietor of The Evening Telegram. The defendant was allowed full costs of litigation, including the costs of the special jury, and amounting, it is estimated, to some $15,000. It is generally supposed that other prominent contractors will assist in payment. Mr. Robertson is congratulated on all hands over his complete victory.

Michael Mallory, the Queen-street merchant arrested for arson in setting fire to one of his own buildings for the insurance, was committed for trial yesterday morning in the Police Court.

The Police Commissioners are investigating the charges made by Broker Priestman against Inspector Archabold in connection with the raid made by the latter upon the former's office. The main point in which Mr. Priestman thinks he has Inspector Archabold "on the hip," is that the judgments and deliverances of the superior courts in previous cases of a like character decidedly and emphatically state that even a breach of the provisions of the Bucket-Shop Act would not entitle officers of the law to treat offenders as keepers of common gaming houses, and in the face of this Mr. Priestman's arrest was made and he was put in the cells like a common felon.

The Ontario Gazette to-day will contain these appointments: J. H. Radford, Galt, associate coroner of Waterloo; J. K. McLeod, Teeswater, notary public; J. C. Wells, Gore Bay, bailiff of the Fourth Division Court of Manitoulin.

Letters Patent have been issued incorporating these companies: The London Medical [illegible] Company, with a capital [illegible]; The C. Beck Manufacturing Company of Penetang, with a capital stock of $[illegible]; The Ontario Basket Company of Walkerville, with a capital stock of $12,000; The Windsor Crimped Clay Company, with a capital stock of $10,000; The Hawkesbury Milling Company, with a capital stock of $15,000; the corporation of Toronto Church School with a capital stock of $[illegible],000.

Yesterday afternoon three boys broke the window of Alfred Fagin's store, 101 Queen-street east, and stole two revolvers and a shotgun. Later in the evening Detective John Cuddy arrested Nicholas Hendry, Frank Wells and Edward Wells, the latter two being 8 and 10 years old. The Wells children were arrested in bed in their [illegible], 182 Adelaide-street west, and [illegible] sleeping peacefully in their [illegible] with a revolver below his pillow.

The police were notified last evening that four boys had broken out of the Mohawk Institute, on the Indian reserve at Brantford during the day. One is a fullblooded Indian, Peter Henhawk, and other three, Lewis Lane, Thomas Shaw and John Ross, are halfbreeds.

WOODSTOCK NEWS.

Many Persons Poisoned by Eating an Unwholesome Cheese.

WOODSTOCK, May 3.—A remarkable case of poisoning has just come to light in town. Two of the children of Samuel Craighton were taken ill with every symptom of poisoning. After a severe struggle the little ones were brought around. On the same night the children of George Clark and those of Mr. Barton were taken ill in exactly the same way. On examination it was found that all the parties named had purchased cheese at the same store. The cheese is being analysed.

About 150 have professed conversion at the revival services being held here by Crossley and Hunter.

Both sides are conducting the Scott Act contest on the mail [illegible] principle.

Deputy-Sheriff John Perry and Constable Martin left to-day for the penitentiary in charge of Aaron M. Farnsworth, the young fellow sentenced at the assizes to three years for committing an unmentionable crime.

Samuel Drury was charged yesterday with having robbed Amos Adams of a sum of money and also with having stolen a rubber coat from J. R. Oliver. The case was adjourned.

Sentenced to the Central.

BRANTFORD, May 4.—Charles Hart and Francis Taylor, for breaking into a bonded car at the Grand Trunk station, were yesterday sentenced at the Police Court to three months in the Central Prison, and W. Duker, their companion, was fined $4.65.

The Slaughter of the Innocents.

MONTREAL, May 4.—A man was walking along Longue Pointe-road yesterday when he saw a dog devouring the dead body of an infant in an advanced state of decomposition. The body was removed to the morgue, but an inquest was considered unnecessary.

THE IDOL'S FEET OF CLAY.

MR. PARNELL ADMITS THAT HE DELIBERATELY LIED.

The Sang Froid With Which He Confesses to Making a [illegible] Misstatement in the Commons [illegible].

LONDON, May 3.—The cross examination of Mr. Parnell was continued before the Parnell Commission to-day. Mr. Parnell testified he had often reproved Mr. O'Brien, editor of United Ireland, for the violent articles that appeared in that paper. He had not publicly repudiated the articles because he did not consider that to be the way to effect the alterations he desired in the tone of the articles. Mr. Parnell said he considered Mr. O'Brien's teachings to be in advance of his own.

Mr. Parnell denied that he knew "Number One" under the name of Tynan or any other name, and said he had never heard of Mr. Egan's being associated with "the martyrs' fund" for the benefit of the families of Phoenix Park murderers. He saw nothing criminal in the fund, and rather thought it was right to assist the innocent victims. "The martyrs' fund" might not, however, have been the most appropriate name for such a fund.

He could not, he said, recollect denouncing outrages between 1878 and 1881. He believed the outrages perpetrated to have been the work of small secret societies. Witness was then asked whether if secret societies adverse to the League had existed and if a vast majority of the people had belonged to the League there would not have been ample evidence obtained to convict the perpetrators of outrages, but he parried the question, saying that this might or might not have been the case.

Here occurred the most remarkable incident in the witness' cross-examination. Attorney-General Webster quoted a statement made by Parnell in the House of Commons, during the debate on Mr. Forster's bill in 1881, suspending the writ of habeas corpus, to the effect that secret societies had then ceased to exist in Ireland. "Did you believe that when you said it?" asked the Attorney-General.

"No," replied Parnell. "At any rate it was a grossly exaggerated statement."

There was a [illegible] of surprise throughout the court room at this response.

"Did you or did you not," continued the Attorney-General, "intend to misstate the fact when you made that statement?"

"I have no doubt I did," was the reply.

The Attorney-General: "Deliberately?"

Mr. Parnell: "Yes, deliberately."

The Attorney-General: "You deliberately made the statement, knowing it to be untrue?"

Mr. Parnell: "Yes, or if not untrue, very extravagant and boastful."

The Attorney-General: "And you have never since withdrawn it?"

Mr. Parnell: "No, I have not."

The nonchalance with which the witness made these admissions astonished the audience and elicited hisses.

"Probably," added Mr. Parnell, "the statement was meant to mislead the House. I am afraid it did not, for the bill was passed. My purpose was to exaggerate the effect the League had in reducing the number of secret societies. The League undoubtedly diminished the number of secret societies, though it had not swept them away as I stated."

Mr. Parnell was next asked what had become of the Land League's books. He explained that some were brought to London and were before the Commission. The cash-books and ledgers had disappeared, he did not know where. Neither were Treasurer Kenny, Mr. Egan nor any other of the League officials able to tell what had become of them. The letter books and files of letters had also vanished.

Presiding Justice Hannen here impressed upon the witness the fact that the Court attaches great importance to the missing documents and Mr. Parnell promised to try and find them.

How King John Met His Death.

LONDON, May 3.—Advices from Massowah give details concerning the recent death of King John of Abyssinia. On March 10 the [illegible] an attack on the dervishes in the [illegible] at Metemneh and [illegible] were defeated, the King being badly wounded. Two days afterward the dervishes made an assault and completely routed King John's army, killing the King and his generals, Ras-area and Ras-alula. The King of Shoa then proclaimed himself negus and marched upon Adowa.

Many Arrests in St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 3.—Arrests of officers in this city connected with the [illegible] political revolutionary society continue. It is declared that the association is not aiming at attacks upon the person of the Czar.

It was won by the favorite Mr. Vyner's bay filly Minthe by Camballo-Mint Sauce with Mr. E. Benson's Wrinkle second and Lord Cadogan's Polka third.

AMONG THE DEAD.

The Search for Missing Friends Among the Calcined Bodies at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, May 3.—The best preserved of the seventeen bodies have been identified, or rather those that have the most clothing attached to them. There are two bodies, one man and a woman, which are comparatively well preserved, and unless the relatives turn up pretty rapidly they will be too late, as the remains will soon begin to go the way of all flesh. So far no steps have been taken to have the bodies preserved for the purpose of identification, and they are just as they came out of the wreck.

To-day Mr. Jewell, 285 King-street west, Toronto, arrived to look for his son Thomas Jewell. Young Jewell was on his way back from California, where he spent the past four months, and was to have arrived here on the Sunday morning express. He telegraphed ahead on Saturday night that he had decided to stay over with an aunt in Detroit, and his friends in Toronto were congratulating themselves on his escape, but have since received word that he did not stay over as intended, and as he has not turned up they are convinced that he is dead.

Mr. Oviatt, Mr. Stone and Mr. Dufoe, of New York examined the bodies in search of the remains of E. Randall Orr of Peekskill, N.Y., and I. B. Oviatt, secretary of Judge Rushmore, New York, and found two bodies which they think are the ones, but have wired for information to friends about some clothing found. Mr. Dufoe thought he identified one body by the size and shape as that of Mr. Oviatt, with whom he was very well acquainted, having roomed with deceased in New York. Mr. Orr's body was identified by a neck tie and some underclothing.

Chief McKinnon has an inquiry from Mrs. [illegible], 1229 State-street, New York, about Harry Everett of Forepaugh's show, who was on his way to Philadelphia. He left Chicago all right, and as he has not reported in Philadelphia yet and his papers were found in the wreck, it may be concluded that he is dead. The friends of Henry Pringle were also enquiring about him. His brother, A. Pringle, lives at 62 Bond-street, Toronto.

All the injured at the Hospital will recover.

LOUIS COMBREMANT'S FATE.

A New York Jewelry Traveler a Supposed Victim of the Disaster.

TORONTO, May 4.—Probably the body of L. Combremant, New York agent of a Swiss watch firm, is among the charred remains of the victims of the horror at the Y. The workmen, in clearing away the wreck, came across a sample case of watches. Up to date nobody has claimed it, and the local jewelers have now reason to believe that the owner perished in the accident, and that he was Louis Combremant. On April 25 P. W. Ellis & Co. and A. Kleiser both received cards from him with the information that he would be in town on the 27th. He did not come then nor has he come since. Jewelers who have seen the sample case pronounce the watches Swiss. Mr. Houghton of P. W. Ellis & Co. has written to friends of the missing man in New York, to inform them of his fears. Combremant was well known and well liked by the Toronto jewelers, making regular monthly visits to the city. So far as known he was a single man. His New York address was 3 John-street.

PAUNCEFOTE AND HARRISON.

The British Minister and the President Say Pretty Things to Each Other.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Secretary Blaine appeared at the State Department this morning looking very well and showing no traces of his illness. Soon after his arrival, Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Minister, came to the department, accompanied by Mr. Edwards, Charge d'Affaires, and Secretary Herbert with several other attaches. The new minister was introduced to Secretary Blaine, who immediately proceeded with the party to the White House, where Sir Julian was formally presented to the President. Sir Julian said:

MR. PRESIDENT: Sir, I have the honor to place in your hands a letter from the Queen my august sovereign accrediting me as her Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States. In fulfilling this pleasing duty I desire to express my sense of the distinguished character and special importance of the mission which Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to confide to me, and to assure you that no effort shall be wanting on my part worthily to discharge so great a trust. My utmost endeavors will be devoted to the object which Her Majesty and her people have much at heart: the maintenance of the relations of peace and friendship which happily subsist between Great Britain and the United States, and the strengthening if possible of the bonds which unite these two great English-speaking countries destined to exercise a most beneficial influence for the advancement of civilization and the promotion of happiness throughout the world. I believe that the citizens of the United States reciprocate the feelings of amity and good will I have expressed and are animated by the most kindly sentiments toward Her Majesty and her people. I am also convinced that in my relations with the Government of the great country over which you preside I shall meet with that spirit of justice and conciliation for which her statesmen are so eminently distinguished. Such qualities will ever be my earnest wish to emulate, and the circumstances that I enter upon my diplomatic functions at the time of the Washington centennial, when a national tribute is being offered in this country to the greatest of her sons, will ever be associated in my memory with the distinguished honor I have had this day of being presented to the chief of the State. I beg, sir, in conclusion to offer you the assurance of my highest respect and esteem.

The President replied:

MR. MINISTER: The pleasure I have in receiving from your hands the letters whereby Her Britannic Majesty accredits you as her Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States is enhanced by the earnest assurance of good will with which you have accompanied their delivery. It is gratifying that Her Majesty's choice of a representative charged with the expression of sincere amity between the two nations has fallen upon one whose official station for many years past has induced an intimate acquaintance with the relations between the United States and the British Empire. I am happy to assure you in return of no less zealous efforts on my part and on the part of those who are associated with me in the Government to perpetuate the relations of peace and friendship between the United States and Great Britain. It is especially pleasing to know that you, as the representative of the British people have been an interested and friendly observer of our national commemoration of the inauguration of the first President of the Republic. To yourself personally, Mr. Minister, I am glad to offer the greeting due to your distinguished reputation and eminent qualities.

A Subterranean Waterway.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., May 4.—A remarkable subterranean waterway was discovered yesterday at the Salamonie stone quarries twelve miles north of here. By a system of dykes the course of the Salamonie River has been changed and the quarries underlie the old bed of the stream about 40 feet below it. Yesterday the foreman discovered a stream of water 12 feet wide and six deep, the stiff current of which was at right angles to the course of the river. The next layer of rock will completely uncover the subterranean waterway. The quartz in several places shows the effects of violent volcanic action and from the formations in the vicinity there is thought to be a cave of which the stream is the outlet. Five miles west there is a lake of great depth which it is thought gets its supply by subterranean inlets.

They Report the Cash Short.

GUELPH, May 3.—W. S. Andrews, auditor for Mr. Lyon who examined the books of The World Publishing Company from November, 1887, to March, 1889, in connection with the alleged embezzlement by Wm. H. Harvey, who now lies in jail awaiting trial for the murder of his wife and two daughters, reports a deficit in the cash of $[illegible]. The books of The Oconee Publishing Company appear to have been correctly kept. Messrs. Gowdy of Guelph also examined the books and make the same report.

Changes in Telegraph Rates.

NEW YORK, May 3.—By orders issued by the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies a large number of long distance rates have been reduced, while for short distances the rates have been advanced slightly. All the Mutual Union offices are by the new orders closed or turned into Western Union offices.

PRICES AND PROSPECTS.

BRADSTREET'S REPORT OF THE STATE OF TRADE.

The Volume of Business Checked in the United States by Cold Weather and the Centennial Celebration.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's indicate that the volume of general trade has been checked at nearly every city of special commercial importance during the week. At the larger eastern centres the New York centennial celebration was largely responsible. But St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph and New Orleans report less activity in demand and distribution for both seasonable goods and staples. Savannah, St. Paul and Chicago have enjoyed a moderate activity. Cold weather has checked demand in regions tributary to Cleveland, Louisville and St. Louis.

Another vessel has been chartered to load wheat for Australia at San Francisco. Cattle at western markets are 25 to 30 lower with free offerings. The breadstuffs markets all tend downward again. Flour prices are off 5 to 15 with wheat. After Friday's rally wheat is 1-8c lower on the week with a bearish west in spite of stronger cables and renewed exports. Freer shipments and offerings of corn depressed prices 3-4c and similar influences put oats down 1-4 net on the week. Reports of stocks of wheat at nearly 1000 points of accumulation east of the Rocky Mountains show 34,[illegible],000 bushels as held last Saturday, a decrease of 5,[illegible],000 bush. during April and 14,000,000 bush. less than were held a year ago. Indian corn stocks are 15,[illegible],112 bushels or [illegible] per cent. less than April 1. Stocks of wheat flour are [illegible],000 barrels larger in excess of stocks held May 1, 1888. Hog products excepting lard, which is heavy, are generally active and firmer. Exports of flour and wheat this week are equal to only [illegible],000 bushels of wheat against 1,[illegible],000 bushels last week and 1,[illegible] bushels in the like week last year.

New York trade has been greatly curtailed. Exceptions are shown in the stronger local demand for country produce and fruits. Groceries, naval stores, building materials, dry goods, furniture, boots and shoes and rubber goods are quiet. Wool, paper, glassware and china, machinery and leather are [illegible]. [illegible] in good demand. Crude rubber and building materials are strong and tend upward.

A bullish temper animates the New York stock market, based on good crop prospects and favorable net earnings reports for March by Western railroads. Bonds are strong on active investment demand. Money at New York is easy, call loans 2½ per cent.; foreign exchange is dull and strong. On Friday $2,750,000 gold was engaged for export. Demand sterling $4.88 to $4.88½.

There were 61 strikes, involving [illegible],100 strikers, reported to Bradstreet's during April, against 123 strikes, with 29,007 strikers, in April, 1888. Since Jan. 1, 1889, there have been reported 221 strikes and 46,[illegible] strikers against 313 strikes and 97,000 strikers in the four months of 1888 and 396 strikes and 1[illegible],000 strikers in 1887.

Several orders for steel rails have been placed for $28 at the mill, a cut of $1 in price causing surprise in the trade. There is no improvement in pig iron. Unfavorable weather and holidays have curtailed dry goods sales at New York and Boston but the latter part of the week has witnessed a good trade in job offerings at New York. Commission men report no change. April trade at Boston was of satisfactory volume, prices are unchanged except for print cloths which are 1-16 cent higher on steady demand and increasing cost of cotton which in town is ⅛ higher on light crop movement, good demand and increasing speculative interest. Raw wool is quiet and unchanged, the new clip is reported to be of good quality. Raw sugar advanced ⅛c. at New York although extreme dullness characterized the market owing to the interruption to business the first half of the week. The movement of refined was very quiet and prices left off as one week ago. The price of coffee in speculative circles advanced ⅛ to ¼c. Thursday on stimulating cables after a very dull week in all lines.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Business failures reported to Bradstreet's number 151 in the United States this week against 181 last week and 156 this week last year. Canada had 29 this week against 25 last week. The total failures in the United States from Jan. 1 to date is 4396 against 3[illegible] in 1888.

A TORONTO FIRM'S LOSS.

W. D. Matthews & Co.'s Malt House at Lenox, N.Y., Burns—Loss $[illegible].

LENOX, N.Y., May 3.—At 7.05 to-night flames were seen issuing from the cupola of W. D. Matthews & Co.'s large malt house situated in Church-street. The alarm was sounded by the company's whistles and in a short time two heavy streams were in operation. After some time the fire was subdued but an immense quantity of malt by which the building was filled was thoroughly soaked and spoiled. The damage to the building and contents will, it is believed, amount to about $[illegible],000, which is covered by insurance. This malting establishment is one of the largest in the country. The company also own malt houses at Toronto and Palmerston, Ont.

Other Fires.

FORRESTON, Ill., May 3.—Fire here to-day destroyed three business blocks. It originated in a grain elevator. Loss $[illegible],000.

FRANKFORT, Ky., May 3.—The Kentucky Feeble Minded Institute was burned here today. The 125 inmates were got out without accident. Loss $[illegible],000.

Passed a Bogus Check.

BUFFALO, May 4.—[illegible] Warner, proprietor of the Tremont House, was complainant in a grand larceny case before the Police Magistrate yesterday morning. John Green, jr., defendant, who was arrested by Detective Mockel and Quinn, was charged with passing a bogus check on Mr. Warner in payment for a $20 board bill. The check was drawn on the Bank of Toronto in favor of Warner and Knight and payable at sight. Green pleaded not guilty and waived examination, to go before the grand jury. He was jailed.

Indian Bones Dug Up at Port Colborne.

PORT COLBORNE, May 3.—In excavating for the foundation of three summer houses on the lake shore about a mile west of here on the Steel farm the workmen dug up skulls and bones and arrowheads, supposed to be the remains of Indians who were killed in a fight around Sugar Loaf Hill years ago, an event still talked about by some of the old settlers.

Attempted Highway Robbery.

BERLIN, May 3.—At 5 o'clock to-day as Mr. E. Michener, [illegible] agent, of Berlin, 23 years of age, was driving on the town line between Brantford and Bright a person stopped him and asked for a ride. After riding for two miles the stranger asked him if he could change a $5 bill, Michener told him that he had only a $5 bill and some small change. The stranger then asked if he would sell his horse. Michener said he would take $50 for it. Upon reaching Banting's corners, a mile from this village, the man said he would take the horse without pay, at the same time [illegible] a pistol at Michener's breast. Michener clutched the pistol, when it went off, the ball going into his hand. He pulled out the ball with his knife, and got Dr. Lake to dress the wound. The scoundrel jumped from the conveyance and made for the swamp. He is a man of 25 years, of slender build, 5 feet 9 inches in height, red mustache, wears a gray sack coat and black pantaloons with a light stripe in them.

THE TORONTO BUDGET.

MICHAEL MALLORY COMMITTED FOR TRIAL FOR ARSON.

The Farquhars Ordered to Pay the Costs of the Big Libel Suit—The Victoria University Injunction.

TORONTO, May 4.—In the litigation connected with the Victoria College injunction the Master in Chambers yesterday made orders for the examination of Chancellor Burwash, George A. Cox and others. The committee of consolidation with Mr. Bobbins, solicitor for Victoria University on the injunction case, consists of the following members: the General Superintendents, the Secretary of Education, the Chancellor of the University and the Bursar. The committee at their meeting yesterday morning added the name of Rev. Dr. Dewart.

Arbor Day was felicitously celebrated at the Normal and Model Schools yesterday, trees being planted by Miss Marjorie Campbell, Mrs. Mowat and others.

At Osgoode Hall yesterday morning Justice Rose gave judgment in the matter of costs in the recent libel suit of E. & C. Farquhar against John Ross Robertson, proprietor of The Evening Telegram. The defendant was allowed full costs of litigation, including the costs of the special jury, and amounting, it is estimated, to some $15,000. It is generally supposed that other pavement contractors will assist in payment. Mr. Robertson is congratulated on all hands over his complete victory.

Michael Mallory, the Queen-street merchant arrested for arson in setting fire to one of his own buildings for the insurance, was committed for trial yesterday morning in the Police Court.

The Police Commissioners are investigating the charges made by Broker Priestman against Inspector Archabold in connection with the raid made by the latter upon the former's office. The main point in which Mr. Priestman thinks he has Inspector Archabold "on the hip," is that the judgments and deliverances of the superior courts in previous cases of a like character decidedly and emphatically state that even a breach of the provisions of the Bucket-Shop Act would not entitle officers of the law to treat offenders as keepers of common gaming houses, and in the face of this Mr. Priestman's arrest was made and he was put in the cells like a common felon.

The Ontario Gazette to-day will contain these appointments: J. H. Radford, Galt, associate coroner of Waterloo; J. K. McLeod, Teeswater, notary public; J. C. Wells, Gore Bay, bailiff of the Fourth Division Court of Manitoulin.

Letters patent have been issued incorporating these companies: The London Medical Dispensing Company, with a capital stock of $2000; The C. Beck Manufacturing Company of Penetang, with a capital stock of $25,000; The Ontario Basket Company of Walkerville, with a capital stock of $12,000; The Windsor Crimped Stay Company, with a capital stock of $10,000; The Hawkesbury Milling Company, with a capital stock of $15,000; the corporation of Toronto Church School with a capital stock of $50,000.

Yesterday afternoon three boys broke the window of Alfred Fagin's store, 101 Queen-street east, and stole two revolvers and a shotgun. Later in the evening Detective John Cuddy arrested Nicholas Hendry, Frank Wells and Edward Wells, the latter two being 8 and 10 years old. The Wells children were arrested in bed in their father's house, 182 Adelaide-street west, and were found sleeping peacefully in their little cots each with a revolver below his pillow.

The police were notified last evening that four boys had broken out of the Mohawk Institute, on the Indian reserve at Brantford during the day. One is a fullblooded Indian, Peter Henhawk, and other three, Lewis Lane, Thomas Shaw and John Ross, are halfbreeds.

WOODSTOCK NEWS.

Many Persons Poisoned by Eating an Unwholesome Cheese.

WOODSTOCK, May 3.—A remarkable case of poisoning has just come to light in town. Two of the children of Samuel Creighton were taken ill with every symptom of poisoning. After a severe struggle the little ones were brought around. On the same night the children of George Clark and those of Mr. Burton were taken ill in exactly the same way. On examination it was found that all the parties named had purchased cheese at the same store. The cheese is being analyzed.

About 150 have professed conversion at the revival services being held here by Crossley and Hunter.

Both sides are conducting the Scott Act contest on the still hunt principle.

Deputy-Sheriff John Perry and Constable Martin left to-day for the penitentiary in charge of Aaron M. Fansworth, the young fellow sentenced at the assizes to three years for committing an unmentionable crime.

Samuel Derry was charged yesterday with having robbed Amos Adams of a sum of money and also with having stolen a rubber coat from J. R. Oliver. The case was adjourned.

Sentenced to the Central.

BRANTFORD, May 4.—Charles Hart and Francis Taylor, for breaking into a bonded car at the Grand Trunk station, were yesterday sentenced at the Police Court to three months in the Central Prison, and W. Dukar, their companion, was fined $4.25.

The Slaughter of the Innocents.

MONTREAL, May 4.—A man was walking along Longue-Point-road yesterday when he saw a dog devouring the dead body of an infant in an advanced state of decomposition. The body was removed to the morgue, but an inquest was considered unnecessary.

THE IDOL'S FEET OF CLAY.

MR. PARNELL ADMITS THAT HE DELIBERATELY LIED.

The Same Would Which He Confesses to Making a Gross Mis-Statement in the Commons [illegible] Times.

LONDON, May 3.—The cross examination of Mr. Parnell was continued before the Parnell Commission to-day. Mr. Parnell testified he had often reproved Mr. O'Brien, editor of United Ireland, for the violent articles that appeared in that paper. He had not publicly repudiated the articles because he did not consider that to be the way to effect the alterations he desired in the tone of the articles. Mr. Parnell said he considered Mr. O'Brien's teachings to be in advance of his own.

Mr. Parnell denied that he knew "Number One" under the name of Tynan or any other name, and said he had never heard of Mr. Egan's being associated with "the martyrs' fund" for the benefit of the families of Phoenix Park murderers. He saw nothing criminal in the fund, and rather thought it was right to assist the innocent victims. "The martyrs' fund" might not, however, have been the most appropriate name for such a fund.

He could not, he said, recollect denouncing outrages between 1878 and 1881. He believed the outrages perpetrated to have been the work of small secret societies. Witness was then asked whether if secret societies adverse to the League had existed and if a vast majority of the people had belonged to the League there would not have been ample evidence obtained to convict the perpetrators of outrages, but he parried the question, saying that that might or might not have been the case.

Here occurred the most remarkable incident in the witness' cross-examination. Attorney-General Webster quoted a statement made by Parnell in the House of Commons, during the debate on Mr. Forster's bill in 1881, suspending the writ of habeas corpus, to the effect that secret societies had then ceased to exist in Ireland. "Did you believe that when you said it?" asked the Attorney-General.

"No," replied Parnell. "At any rate it was a grossly exaggerated statement."

There was a hum of surprise throughout the court room at this response.

"Did you or did you not," continued the Attorney-General, "intend to mislead the House when you made that statement?"

"I have no doubt I did," was the reply.

The Attorney-General: "Deliberately?"

Mr. Parnell: "Yes, deliberately."

The Attorney-General: "You deliberately made the statement, knowing it to be untrue?"

Mr. Parnell: "Yes, or if not untrue, very extravagant and boastful."

The Attorney-General: "And you have never since withdrawn it?"

Mr. Parnell: "No, I have not."

The nonchalance with which the witness made these admissions astonished the audience and elicited hisses.

"Probably," added Mr. Parnell, "the statement was meant to mislead the House. I am afraid it did not, for the bill was passed. My purpose was to exaggerate the effect the League had in reducing the number of secret societies. The League undoubtedly diminished the number of secret societies, though it had not swept them away as I stated."

Mr. Parnell was next asked what had become of the Land League's books. He explained that some were brought to London and were before the Commission. The cash books and ledgers had disappeared, he did not know where. Neither were Treasurer Kenny, Mr. Egan nor any other of the League officials able to tell what had become of them. The letter books and files of letters had also vanished.

Presiding Justice Hannen here impressed upon the witness the fact that the Court attaches great importance to the missing documents and Mr. Parnell promised to try and find them.

How King John Met His Death.

LONDON, May 3.—Advices from Massowah give details concerning the recent death of King John of Abyssinia. On March 10 he made an attack on the dervishes in the stronghold at Metemmeh but his forces were defeated, the King being badly wounded. Two days afterward the dervishes made an assault and completely routed King John's army, killing the King and his generals, Ras-area and Ras-alula. The King of Shoa then proclaimed himself negus and marched upon Adowa.

Many Arrests in St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 3.—Arrests of officers in this city connected with the peaceful political revolutionary society continue. It is declared that the association is not aiming at attacks upon the person of the Czar.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT.

LONDON, May 3.—This was the fourth day of the First Spring Meeting at Newmarket. The attraction was the One Thousand Guineas Stakes for 3-year-old fillies over the Rowley Mile. It was won by the favorite Mr. Vyner's bay filly Minthe by Camballo-Mint Sauce with Mr. E. Benson's Winkle second and Lord Cadogan's Polka third.

AMONG THE DEAD.

The Search for Missing Friends Among the Calcined Bodies at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, May 3.—The best preserved of the seventeen bodies have been identified, or rather those that have the most clothing attached to them. There are two bodies, one man and a woman, which are comparatively well preserved, and unless the relatives turn up pretty rapidly they will be too late, as the remains will soon begin to go the way of all flesh. So far no steps have been taken to have the bodies preserved for the purposes of identification, and they are just as they came out of the wreck.

To-day Mr. Jewell, 265 King-street west, Toronto, arrived to look for his son Thomas Jewell. Young Jewell was on his way back from California, where he spent the past four months, and was to have arrived here on the Sunday morning express. He telegraphed ahead on Saturday night that he had decided to stay over with an aunt in Detroit, and his friends in Toronto were congratulating themselves on his escape, but have since received word that he did not stay over as intended, and as he has not turned up they are convinced that he is dead.

Mr. Oviatt, Mr. Sterne and Mr. Deforest of New York examined the bodies in search of the remains of E. Randall Orr of Peekskill, N.Y., and L. B. Oviatt, secretary of Judge Rushmore, New York, and found two bodies which they think are the ones, but have wired for information to friends about some clothing found. Mr. Deforest thought he identified one body by the size and shape as that of Mr. Oviatt, with whom he was very well acquainted, having roomed with deceased in New York. Mr. Orr's body was identified by a neck tie and some underclothing.

Chief McKinnon has an inquiry from Mrs. Ida Myers, 1?? [illegible]-street, New York, about Harry Everest of Forepaugh's show, who was on his way to Philadelphia. He left Chicago all right, and as he has not reported in Philadelphia yet and his papers were found in the wreck, it may be concluded that he is dead. The friends of Harry Pringle were also enquiring about him. His brother, A. Pringle, lives at 66 Bond-street, Toronto.

All the injured at the Hospital will recover.

LOUIS COMBREMANT'S FATE.

A New York Jewelry Traveler a Supposed Victim of the Horror.

TORONTO, May 4.—Probably the body of L. Combremant, New York agent of a Swiss watch firm, is among the charred remains of the victims of the horror at the Y. The workmen, in clearing away the wreck, came across a sample case of watches. Up to date nobody has claimed it, and the local jewelers have now reason to believe that the owner perished in the accident, and that he was Louis Combremant. On April 25 P. W. Ellis & Co. and A. Kleiser both received cards from him with the information that he would be in town on the 27th. He did not come then nor has he come since. Jewelers who have seen the sample case pronounce the watches Swiss. Mr. Houghton of P. W. Ellis & Co. has written to friends of the missing man in New York, to inform them of his fears. Combremant was well known and well liked by the Toronto jewelers, making regular monthly visits to the city. So far as known he was a single man. His New York address was 2 John-street.

PAUNCEFOTE AND HARRISON.

The British Minister and the President Say Pretty Things to Each Other.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Secretary Blaine appeared at the State Department this morning looking very well and showing no traces of his illness. Soon after his arrival, Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Minister, came to the department, accompanied by Mr. Edwards, Charge d'Affaires, and Secretary Herbert with several other attaches. The new minister was introduced to Secretary Blaine, who immediately proceeded with the party to the White House, where Sir Julian was formally presented to the President. Sir Julian said:

MR. PRESIDENT: I have the honor to place in your hands a letter from the Queen my august sovereign accrediting me as her Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States. In fulfilling this pleasing duty I desire to express my sense of the distinguished character and special importance of the mission which Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to confide to me, and to assure you that no effort shall be wanting on my part worthily to discharge so great a trust. My utmost endeavors will be devoted to the object which Her Majesty and her people have much at heart; the maintenance of the relations of peace and friendship which happily subsist between Great Britain and the United States and the strengthening if possible of the bonds which unite those two great English-speaking countries destined to exercise a most beneficial influence for the advancement of civilization and the promotion of happiness throughout the world. I believe that the citizens of the United States reciprocate the feelings of amity and good will I have expressed and are animated by the most kindly sentiments toward Her Majesty and her people. I am also convinced that in my relations with the Government of the great country over which you preside I shall meet with that spirit of justice and conciliation for which her statesmen are so eminently distinguished. Such qualities it will ever be my earnest wish to emulate, and the circumstances that I enter upon my diplomatic functions at the time of the Washington centennial, when a national tribute is being offered in this country to the greatest of her sons, will ever be associated in my memory with the distinguished honor I have had this day of being presented to the chief of the State. I beg, sir, in conclusion to offer you the assurance of my highest respect and esteem.

The President replied:

MR. MINISTER: The pleasure I have in receiving from your hands the letters whereby Her Britannic Majesty accredits you as her Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States is enhanced by the earnest assurance of good will with which you have accompanied their delivery. It is gratifying that Her Majesty's choice of a representative charged with the expression of sincere amity between the two nations has fallen upon one whose official station for many years past has induced an intimate acquaintance with the relations between the United States and the British Empire. I am happy to assure you in return of no less zealous efforts on my part and on the part of those who are associated with me in the Government to perpetuate the relations of peace and friendship between the United States and Great Britain. It is especially pleasing to know that you, as the representative of the British people, have been an interested and friendly observer of our national commemoration of the inauguration of the first President of the Republic. To yourself personally, Mr. Minister, I am glad to offer the greeting due to your distinguished reputation and eminent qualities.

A Subterranean Waterway.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., May 4.—A remarkable subterranean waterway was discovered yesterday at the Salamonie stone quarries twelve miles north of here. By a system of dykes the course of the Salamonie River has been changed and the quarries underlie the old bed of the stream about 40 feet below it. Yesterday the foreman discovered a stream of water 12 feet wide and six deep, the stiff current of which was at right angles to the course of the river. The next layer of rock will completely uncover the subterranean watercourse. The quartz in several places shows the effects of violent volcanic action and from the formations in the vicinity there is thought to be a cave of which the stream is the outlet. Five miles west there is a lake of great depth which it is thought gets its supply by subterranean inlets.

They Report the Cash Short.

GUELPH, May 3.—W. S. Andrews, auditor for Mr. Lyon who examined the books of The World Publishing Company from November, 1887, to March, 1889, in connection with the alleged embezzlement by Wm. H. Harvey, who now lies in jail awaiting trial for the murder of his wife and two daughters, reports a deficit in the cash of $634.29. The books of The Oceanic Publishing Company appear to have been correctly kept. Messrs. Gamsby of Guelph also examined the books and make the same report.

Change in Telegraph Rates.

NEW YORK, May 3.—By orders issued by the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies a large number of long distance rates have been reduced, while for short distances the rates have been advanced slightly. All the Mutual Union offices are by the new orders closed or turned into Western Union offices.

PRICES AND PROSPECTS.

BRADSTREET'S REPORT OF THE STATE OF TRADE.

The Volume of Business Checked in the United States by Cold Weather and the Centennial Celebration.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's indicate that the volume of general trade has been checked at nearly every city of special commercial importance during the week. At the larger eastern centres the New York centennial celebration was largely responsible. But St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph and New Orleans report [illegible] activity in demand and distribution for both seasonable goods and staples. Savannah, St. Paul and Chicago have enjoyed a moderate activity. Cold weather has checked demand in regions tributary to Cleveland, Louisville and St. Louis.

Another vessel has been chartered to load wheat for Australia at San Francisco. Cattle at western markets are 25 to 30 lower with free offerings. The breadstuffs markets all tend downward again. Flour prices are off 5 to 15 with wheat. After Friday's rally wheat is 1-8c lower on the week with a bearish west in spite of stronger cables and renewed exports. Freer shipments and offerings of corn depressed prices 3-4c and similar influences put oats down 1-4 net on the week. Reports of stocks of wheat at nearly 1000 points of accumulation east of the Rocky Mountains show 34,2??,000 bushels as held last Saturday, a decrease of 5,293,000 bush. during April and 14,000,000 bush. less than were held a year ago. Indian corn stocks are 15,6??,112 bushels or 25 per cent. less than April 1. Stocks of wheat flour are 80,000 barrels larger in excess of stocks held May 1, 1888. Hog products excepting lard, which is heavy, are generally active and firmer. Exports of flour and wheat this week are equal to only 9??,000 bushels of wheat against 1,894,000 bushels last week and 1,5??,000 bushels in the like week last year.

New York trade has been greatly curtailed. Exceptions are shown in the stronger local demand for country produce and fruits. Groceries, naval stores, building materials, dry goods, furniture, boots and shoes and rubber goods are quiet. Wool, paper, glassware and china, machinery and leather are dull. Paints and oils continue in good demand. Crude rubber and building materials are strong and tend upward.

A bullish temper animates the New York stock market, based on good crop prospects and favorable net earnings reports for March by Western railroads. Bonds are strong on active investment demand. Money at New York is easy, call loans 2½ per cent.; foreign exchange is dull and strong. On Friday $2,750,000 gold was engaged for export. Demand sterling $4.88 to $4.88½.

There were 61 strikes, involving 13,193 strikers, reported to Bradstreet's during April, against 123 strikes, with 29,007 strikers, in April, 1888. Since Jan. 1, 1889, there have been reported 221 strikes and 46,334 strikers against 313 strikes and 97,980 strikers in the four months of 1888 and 300 strikes and 150,000 strikers in 1887.

Several orders for steel rails have been placed for $26 at the mill, a cut of $1 in price causing surprise in the trade. There is no improvement in pig iron. Unfavorable weather and holidays have curtailed dry goods sales at New York and Boston but the latter part of the week has witnessed a good trade in job offerings at New York. Commission men report no change. April trade at Boston was of satisfactory volume, prices are unchanged except for print cloths which are 1-16 cent higher on steady demand and increasing cost of cotton which in town is ⅛ higher on light crop movement, good demand and increasing speculative interest. Raw wool is quiet and unchanged, the new clip is reported to be of good quality. Raw sugar advanced ⅛c. at New York although extreme dulness characterized the market owing to the interruption to business the first half of the week. The movement of refined was very quiet and prices left off as one week ago. The price of coffee in speculative circles advanced ¼ to ⅜c. Thursday on stimulating cables after a very dull week in all lines.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Business failures reported to Bradstreet's number 151 in the United States this week against 181 last week and 156 this week last year. Canada had 29 this week against 25 last week. The total failures in the United States from Jan. 1 to date is 4306 against 3929 in 1888.

A TORONTO FIRM'S LOSS.

W. D. Matthews & Co.'s Malt House at Leroy, N.Y., Burnt—Loss $200,000.

LEROY, N.Y., May 3.—At 7.45 to-night flames were seen issuing from the cupola of W. D. Matthews & Co.'s large malt house situated in Church-street. The alarm was sounded by the company's whistles and in a short time two heavy streams were in operation. After some time the fire was subdued but an immense quantity of malt by which the building was filled was thoroughly soaked and spoiled. The damage to the building and contents will, it is believed, amount to about $200,000, which is covered by insurance. This malting establishment is one of the largest in the country. The company also own malt houses at Toronto and Palmerston, Ont.

Other Fires.

FORRESTON, Ill., May 3.—Fire here to-day destroyed three business blocks. It originated in a grain elevator. Loss $125,000.

FRANKFORT, Ky., May 3.—The Kentucky Feeble Minded Institute was burned here today. The 135 inmates were got out without accident. Loss $75,000.

Passed a Bogus Check.

BUFFALO, May 4.—Alfred S. Warner, proprietor of the Tremont House, was complainant in a grand larceny case before the Police Magistrate yesterday morning. John Green, jr., defendant, who was arrested by Detective Mochel and Quinn, was charged with passing a bogus check on Mr. Warner in payment for a $30 board bill. The check was drawn on the Bank of Toronto in favor of Warner and Knight and payable at sight. Green pleaded not guilty and waived examination, to go before the grand jury. He was jailed.

Indian Relics Dug Up at Port Colborne.

PORT COLBORNE, May 3.—In excavating for the foundation of three summer houses on the lake shore about a mile west of here on the Steel farm the workmen dug up skulls and bones and arrowheads, supposed to be the remains of Indians who were killed in a fight around Sugar Loaf Hill years ago, an event still talked about by some of the old settlers.

Attempted Highway Robbery.

BRIGHT, May 3.—At 5 o'clock to-day as Mr. E. Michener, Bible agent, of Berlin, 20 years of age, was driving on the town line between Brantford and Bright a person stopped him and asked for a ride. After riding for two miles the stranger asked him if he could change a $5 bill. Michener told him that he had only a $3 bill and some small change. The stranger then asked if he would sell his horse. Michener said he would take $80 for it. Upon reaching Burk's swamp, a mile from this village, the man said he would take the horse without pay, at the same time holding a pistol at Michener's breast. Michener clutched the pistol, when it went off, the ball going into his hand. He pulled out the ball with his knife and got Dr. Lake to dress the wound. The scoundrel jumped from the conveyance and made for the swamp. He is a man of 25 years, of slender build, 5 feet 9 inches in height, red mustache, wears a grey sack coat and black pantaloons with a light stripe in them.

SATURDAY, MAY 4, 1889.

WHAT! ALWAYS?

The speech made by Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., at the New Party meeting in the Opera House caused not a little amusement on account of the almost sublime assurance displayed in it. As an instance of this, read the following passage of the speech as reported in the Examiner:—

"He agreed heartily in most of the Doctor's remarks, and in the main with the platform of the third party. For instance, he had always supported woman suffrage, and in the House had the pleasure of voting for it, as he would always do on all occasions when opportunity offered."

Those who heard or read this and who were not familiar with Mr. Stratton's brief political record might see nothing wrong in that statement, and yet it is—well, one requiring further explanation on the part of that gentleman.

In 1887, Mr. Stratton's first session in the Legislature, a bill was introduced by Mr. Waters to give women further opportunities for taking part in public affairs. It was voted down, and the name of the member for West Peterborough affairs among those who voted against it. This bill was to allow certain women to have votes at municipal elections, but not satisfied with having cast a silent vote Mr. Stratton published his opinions in the Examiner in the form of an interview. The following is an extract form that "interview":—

"Mr. Stratton:—You must remember that the spheres of the sexes are quite distinct. Man's proper sphere is public life; woman's domain is the home. In every instance that can be cited, it will be found that the true woman, who possesses the ornament of her sex, a gentle, refined nature, will shrink from all public and political excitement, other than a moral interest.

"Rep.—Then you do not consider that the adoption of this bill would be beneficial?

"Mr. S.—Now as a matter of fact, supposing such a measure became law, we should not have the influence of true women in politics, any more than we now have."

Mr. Stratton proceeded to say that "masculine government is the best for women as well as men," and that women were unenfranchised, not as a class, but as a sex. The interview continued:—

"Rep.—You do not seem to think women are adapted for politicians?

"Mr. S.—No: My opinion is that women are made and meant to be not men but mothers of men. A noble mother and a noble wife, are the titles in which we find the highest ideals of noble womanhood. Woman was formed to be man's helpmate, not is rival, one who should sustain or comfort, not lead or guide him."

In the face of these publicly expressed opinions how could Mr. Stratton say that he "had always supported woman suffrage"? Holding such opinions, how has he been able to swallow himself and vote to "drag women into politics"?

If he is going to aid in extending the franchise to women, he should explain to the trembling male sex who is to attend to the domain of the home, who is to be man's helpmate, who is to comfort and sustain him, when woman becomes his rival, his leader and his guide. And, gravest question of all, when Mr. Stratton brings about the revolution he has described in such lurid colors, who are to be the mothers of men? If true women (and Mr. Stratton made the statement emphatic by the use of italics) will not take part in politics, do not want votes and would not go to the polls, as he has stated, on whose behalf does he profess to be working?

Verily, Mr. Stratton's views of woman suffrage need further explanation.

Perhaps he will withhold it, however, until he faces those friends of his to whom in a political meeting he stated views similar to those in the "interview" quoted from and who passed a resolution approving of them. Perhaps he will ask them to rescind that resolution.

Mr. John Carnegie has joined the "third" party.—Lindsay Post.

Is it not singular that the Post should think Mr. Carnegie had joined the "Third" party when he expressed approval of only one plank of its platform, while it does not seem to think Mr. Stratton has joined that party, although he professed to endorse every plank in its platform? Perhaps it does not think Mr. Stratton was sincere, while it knows that what Mr. Carnegie says he means.

REVIEWS.

Scribner's Magazine.—The May number well sustains the reputation of this excellent periodical. The series of articles published are well calculated to interest the average reader, who desires something not as heavy as the quarterlies and free from the lighter tone of many of the less well-known magazines. The technical series are read with interest by the professional men of the different industries, the Railroad articles command the attention of the vast army of employees and are a veritable text book in their own department, that on "The Freight Car Service," in the May number being well calculated to make the peculiar conditions, under which a large amount of business is done, clearly understood. A review of the contents of the number would be but to enumerate a large number of literary papers, all of great merit. The magazine should have a wide circulation and to gain that end no expense is spared to fill it from cover to cover with what will interest and instruct. Scribners & Sons, publishers, New York, and for sale by all booksellers.

Miss Eugenie Hugel, daughter of Mr. A. V. Hugel, formerly General Manager of the Midland Railway, and Mr. Eber B. Ward, were married at Toronto on Wednesday.

The Catholic Congress.

Vienna, May 3.—The Austrian Government, it is said, will very likely declare the Catholic Congress a private assembly and will therefore give no heed to the recent telegrams to the congress from the Holy Father in one of which the Pope informed the delegates of the great consolation he received from the demands of Catholics for the restoration of his temporalities.

Run Down by an Engine.

Berlin, Ont., May 3.—Last night about two miles north of here on the Grand Trunk, a man, supposed to be a tramp, was struck by the engine of a freight train while walking on the track. The man was so badly injured that he died shortly afterward. His name is unknown.

The Banquet to Mr. Taillon.

Ottawa, May 3.—Sir John Macdonald and Hon. J. A. Chapleau have accepted invitations to attend the banquet in honor of Hon. L. O. Taillon in Montreal on May 8.

Ottawa, May 3.—Peters, an Italian arrested yesterday for stabbing Constable McFall on the arm, elected this morning to be tried by a jury. He was sent down to jail.

HANDS OF PROMINENT WOMEN.

Kate Field has the hand of the gypsy.

Clara Morris has a hand so soft that it seems to melt away in your clasp.

Mrs. Hodgson Burnett has an angular hand, not averse to holding the reins.

Lotta has a supple little hand, which always seems as ready to cuff as to caress.

Amelie Rives has a facile hand, more in harmony with the "quick" than the "dead."

Fanny Davenport has a fat, chubby hand, covered with oases of dimples and diamonds.

Mrs. General Logan's hand lingers in yours as if seeming to say: "I'm in no hurry to go."

Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe has a thin, sinewy hand, expressive of great nervous energy.

Mrs. Langtry's hand is as delicately veined as a leaf, and makes one loth to part with it after clasping it.

Mrs. James Brown Potter has a slender hand, with shapely digits, which are daily manipulated by a manicure.

Despite its jewels Modjeska's hand shows marks of early struggles. It is a strong hand, however, full of character.

The hand of Ella Wheeler Wilcox looks as if the good, hard shake of a brawny hand would crush it, bones and all.

The symmetry of Adelina Patti's hand is lost sight of in its dazzling display of jewels. She spends a fortune in gloves.

When "Marion Harland" puts her plain, honest hand in yours she seems to say: "Here's my hand, and my heart's not far off."

The only mark of difference between Sara Bernhardt's hand and a skeleton's is that one is invested with flesh and blood and the other isn't.

The whiteness of Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnson's hand is the envy of all her young acquaintances. It is a hand that would grace a scepter.

Mrs. Commodore Dahlgren has the sort of hands which, if they were a man's, could conquer lions. They are neither large nor small, but forceful.

Mrs. Frank Leslie has a sensitive hand, whose touch makes the blood bound faster through one's veins. She is authority on the subject of gloves.

Miss Frances E. Willard has a good, honest hand, whose hearty grasp seems an echo of the cordial greeting which she bestows on all whom she meets.

Mrs. Benjamin Harrison has a good, motherly hand, made for use. It has been a true and trusty companion in its family relations, chastening as well as caressing.—New York Evening Sun.

THE INDUSTRIAL WORLD.

A wave motor, for utilizing the force of the tides, is in semi-successful operation at Point Lobos, Cal.

Spindles in the town of Oldham, England, have grown in the last ten years from 7,000,000 to more than 11,000,000.

Pulp mills have so multiplied in Maine that there is fear of an over supply unless new mills are put up to turn the pulp into paper.

The process of electric bleaching now used in the big paper plants is from 60 to 70 per cent. cheaper than the use of chloride of lime.

Thirty years ago there were near one hundred lightning rod factories in the United States. Now there are but four, yet they turn out as many rods as came from their so numerous predecessors.

Arkansas' state geologist reports the coal of that state to be worth, at $1.50 per ton, the sum of $3,937,800,000. He says further that the state contains more sorts of coal than any other in the Union.

Steel, which is rapidly taking the place of iron, is likely to be even more widely used now that it is known that the addition of manganese in considerable quantities gives great hardness and strength without loss of malleability.

The experimental coke ovens now being built at Mansfield, Pa., will have false bottoms, worked by hydraulic pressure. It is claimed that these will greatly reduce the labor cost of coke, as a man can draw twenty-five of them a day. Four is the limit of the old pattern.

A steel paving block, said to be more durable and less costly than stone, is composed of corrugated strips 2½ by 1 inch, and weighing 11 pounds to the yard. It is to be laid upon a bed of gravel five inches from center to center, and the space filled in with a compound of pitch and cement.

Children for the Ballet.

Mme. Katti Lanner, the directress of the National Training School of Dancing, talking to an interviewer in her school, said: "The instruction here is quite free, but the parents of the child sign an agreement giving me its services for a certain number of years. It is almost essential that ballet training should be begun early in life. I prefer to begin at 5 years old, when they are most teachable; after 10 years old it is too late. As to payment, these little mites of 5 and 6 get salaries of nine and ten shillings a week as soon as they appear on the stage, and in a couple of years they can get fourteen and fifteen shillings a week."—New York Telegram.

Our Hats are Inimitable

Every day now adds its emphasis to the judgment of gentlemen as to the beauty and excellence of our spring Hats. They're buying them. They're not doing it without having first compared and decided that we bear away the prize for shapeliness and quality as well as for faultless making and moderate prices. Gentlemen are critical when it comes to getting a light weight Hat. They are a necessity in these spring days—a necessity in which they esteem style as essential. Witness the demand for our Genuine Cooksy, Woodrow and Elwood Celebrated Zephr weight Hats made especially for us. There is something peculiar and inimitable about the gracefulness of our Hats.

A handsome electric light transparency has been erected before the palace grocery store of Messrs. Elliott & Tierney, and was lighted up for the first time last evening. It is a beacon which can be seen for some distance on George-st. and is of a very attractive appearance.

The Baseball Club.

The meeting for the organization of a baseball club did not take place, owing to several of the leading spirits being unable to attend. However, the club will be organized in the near future, and it is expected that a first-class nine will be placed on the diamond. Several good men have taken the matter up and will push it to a successful end.

Crossley and Hunter at Woodstock.

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review of May 2nd says:—"It was found necessary last evening by the union committee having in charge the revival services to announce that the remainder of the meetings will be held in the Central Methodist Church, the other churches being too small to accommodate the crowds that nightly attend. The interest in the meetings is evidently increasing and each evening the number professing conversion is increasing. Already about one hundred and fifty have gone to the penitent form."

The following is the programme of meetings of the Salvation Army for the week:—Saturday night—Practical Religion, by Col. Dowdle. Monday—Afternoon, holiness meeting at 3 p. m. Evening, public meeting, Col. Dowdle will speak. Wednesday—Holiness meeting in afternoon as well as evening meeting. Gone to the Western States.

Mr. James A. Ellis, who has for the past five years filled the position of operator and ticket agent at the C.P.R. station here and who by his obliging disposition and courtesy has made for himself many friends, has resigned his position with the C.P.R. and left this evening for the Western States. Mr. Ellis during his five years at the "key-board" and the wicket at the station here has made a large circle of warm friends for himself who will sincerely regret his departure and will unite in wishing his family and himself God-speed and prosperity. As a railroad operator Mr. Ellis is the peer of any, and that success will attend him in his new home under the Stars and Stripe none doubt.

The Hastings Safe Robbery.

There is as yet not the slightest clue as to the perpetrators of the "gopher" job at the Grand Junction station at Hastings yesterday morning. On closer examination it was found that the door of the safe was not blown open by utilizing the key-hole to insert the explosive, but it appears that the safe was drilled and in a remarkably clever manner. The hole was made in the top of the safe, and it is supposed that a dynamite cartridge was dropped through this hole and the force of the explosion was sufficient to blow the ponderous door of the iron box open. The only suspicious character that had been observed around the station the night previous to the burglary, was a man who came around about dusk and was questioning the little son of the station agent, but when the little boy's father put in an appearance the man took his departure. The station agent did not get a sufficiently close look at the man to describe him, but says he only remembers that he was of sandy complexion.

PETERBOROUGH'S PROGRESS.

The Town Continues to Increase in Population and Assessed Value.

Assessor Aldridge was busy to-day closing up his books, and, although all the detail figures could not be obtained, still those which are of the most importance were obtained, and from these it is shown that Peterborough's onward march has been continued during the year 1888 and that a most excellent increase has taken place in both population and assessed property. The figures of last year and this are given below, and a comparison will show that although we have experience no great boom, the growth has been a healthy one and one which is not likely to result in stagnation or a retrograde movement. The increase in our population has been 385, and in our ratepayers 278, while the total assessment has increased by $16[illegible]. The value of real property has increased by some $224,850 and there has also been an increase of a little over $1,000 in the amount of taxable income, while the value of personal property has decreased by some $[illegible].

With Peterborough's population at 9,294, which on a special census would easily go nearly to the 10,000, and Ashburnham's 1,472, would be a city of 11,000 of a population, and the question will undoubtedly be suggested, "Will they annex?"

The programme for the two years as far as could be obtained are as follows:—

	1888	1889
Real Property	2,[illegible]	2,444,775
Personal property	[illegible]	[illegible]

PETERBOROUGH, May 1st, 1889.

To Mr. J. J. Turner, Sail, Tent and Awning Maker, Peterborough:

Settled but had to Pay the Costs.

The assault case of Lynch vs. Drake, the two hackmen, was ventilated at the Police Court this morning, the defendant appearing and stating that the case had been settled. The magistrate remarked that he did not object to cases of this kind being settled out of court, but he did object to parties coming there and having official make out papers and go to considerable trouble and then have the case settled out of court, without even with common courtesy acquainting the court. He would allow the case to drop, but Lynch would have to pay all the costs of the court.

Mud Lake Bridge to Have a Swing.

The Mud Lake Bridge Committee of the County Council met at the Court House this morning to consider the matter of putting a swing opening in the bridge. There were present Councillors Sanderson, Kidd, Moloney, Stewart, Brown, J. Burnham and the County engineer, Mr. J. E. Belcher. The matter was considered and finally, on motion of Councillor Moloney, seconded by Councillor Kidd, the following motion was adopted:—"That the County engineer be authorized to make a swing opening for navigation in the Mud Lake Bridge, as close as practicable to the Ennismore route of the lake, at a cost not exceeding five hundred dollars."

Comrades at the Table.

"The annual canoe club dinner came off with great eclat on Tuesday evening at the Royal restaurant," says the Lindsay Post, "and was greeted with a large attendance of members and others, about forty ardent canoeists and guests being present. An attack was made on the viands set forth by host McConnell, which included almost every known delicacy, about 9.30, and execution was kept up for a period too long to divulge to the public. The usual loyal toasts were of course duly honored. After the cloth had been removed a well arranged programme of speeches and songs was given a start. Among the visitors present were Col. Harry Rogers, of Peterborough, Commodore A. C. A., P. H. Dobbin, Peterborough, and Mr. J. F. Campbell, of Toronto. Letters of regret at inability to attend were read from Messrs. R. B. Edwards, of the Peterborough Canoe Club, and J. Z. Rogers, of the Peterborough canoe company. Rattling speeches were made by Col. Rogers and Messrs. Dobbin, Stewart, Campbell, Martin, Hill, Macgachen, Dr. Burrows and others. Mr. J. Britton recited a poem about the difficulties of the would-be sailor that "brought down the house." The songs and choruses all breathed a patriotic spirit, as was to be expected. The National Anthem opened and Auld Lang Syne closed the evening's festivities. We regret that want of space prevents a fuller mention of what was certainly the most successful festive meet held under the club's auspices." Speaking of the dinner the Warder says:—"On the right and the guest of the evening, the Commodore of the American Canoe Association, Col. Harry Rogers, of Peterborough, who, whether on tented field in the gay uniform of a Canadian hussar, or by tented forest in the less pretentious but more airy costume of a canoeist is ever found a gentleman and a right hearty good fellow."

THE EASTERN DISTRICT.

THE MEEEING OF THE DELEGATES OF THE LACROSSE CLUBS.

The Prospects for a Good Season and an Exciting Contest—Preventing Disputes—The Schedule of Championship Games Adopted—Official Referees Appointed.

The representatives of the clubs composing the Eastern District of the Canadian Lacrosse Association met yesterday at the Phelan House, when the delegates present were C. J. Phelan, secretary, and F. H. Brennan, M.D., of the Riversides, Peterborough; P. McMillan, secretary of the Checkers, Beaverton; J. A. Harper, of the Norwoods, Norwood. Mr. Orr, of Madoc, was to have been present as the delegate of that club, but a telegram was received stating that he had missed train connections. Mr. J. Phelan presided as chairman.

THE PROSPECTS.

Now that the district meeting has been held and a schedule of games mapped out, the lacrosse season may be said to be opened and the local players should at once prepare for the season's struggle. According to the schedule adopted each club plays six games, three of which will be played at home. An effort was made by the local delegates to have a game scheduled for here on the 24th of this month, but it was unsuccessful, although one of the home games of the Riversides falls on Dominion Day, July 1st, which should prove a drawing card and a paying one for the club. The contest for the championship pennant promises to be an exciting and interesting one, as the entering of the Checkers, of Beaverton, has added a strong team to the list, and one which will make the fight a little harder and, therefore, more interesting. Although the first schedule game of the Riversides does not come until the 8th of June, nevertheless the local players should commence practice at once, and not allow the championship trophy to be taken from them through procrastination on their part in regard to practice. It is hoped and an effort will be made to have a friendly match arranged for the 24th of May and the boys should get in trim and make their first match a victory. The Port Hope club has not entered the district league, but Madoc and Norwood both have teams which are not easily walked over, while, as said before, the Beaverton men are said to be hard to play around. The Riversides should go in to win and if they do the citizens will undoubtedly take an interest and turn out to see them do it. The team which the Riversides will put on the field will be largely composed of old members, but some new and younger blood will also appear this season, and it is confidently expected that the team will be a strong one and will keep up the club's reputation. Each club will have a different uniform so that the players may be easily distinguished.

PREVENTING DISPUTES.

At the meeting yesterday considerable business was done. It was decided to adopt the series system and that the home club should take all the gate receipts and visiting clubs should pay all their own expenses. This will do away with considerable wrangling which arose formerly about gate receipts and expenses.

Another source of frequent disputes was also considered and future disputes prevented. It was in regard to the Association rule which reads as follows:—"On the day selected, if one club only put in an appearance it shall be entitled to claim a victory by default. If its opponent's refuse to fulfil their engagement or do not appear upon the ground in the specified time, the club complying with the terms agreed upon shall be declared the winner of the match, unless satisfactory reasons are given to the Judicial Committee and twenty-four hours notice be given to the opposing team. The defaulting team shall pay all legitimate expences of their opponents in connection with this match and shall forfet their membership in the Association and all rights thereto until the expenses are paid." It was in reference to the last clause that the disputes arose, the claim for "legitimate expenses" sometimes caused some trouble. It was therefore decided to fix these "legitimate expenses" at the sum of ten dollars in all cases.

THE SCHEDULE OF GAMES.

The schedule adopted was as follows:—

May 24th—Madoc vs. Norwood, at Norwood.
June 8th—Norwood vs. Peterborough, at Peterborough.
June 7th—Madoc vs. Beaverton, at Beaverton.
July 1st—Beaverton vs. Peterborough, at Peterborough.
July 1st. Norwood vs. Madoc, at Madoc.
July 12th—Beaverton vs. Norwood, at Norwood.
July 16th—Peterborough vs. Madoc, at Madoc.
July 26th—Norwood vs. Beaverton, at Beaverton.
August 8th—Peterborough vs. Beaverton, at Beaverton.
August 29th—Madoc vs. Peterborough, at Peterborough.
September 5th—Peterborough vs. Norwood, at Norwood.
September 5th—Beaverton vs. Madoc, at Madoc.

OFFICIAL REFEREES.

The following official referees were appointed to act in their respective towns. Madoc's referee was not appointed, owing to the absence of its delegate:—

Peterborough—Messrs. J. J. Sheehy and R. H. Fortye.
Norwood—Mr. W. H. Mullen and Dr. Pettigrew.
Beaverton—Messrs. F. Madill, M.P., and D. McNabb.

The Riversides will probably commence practice next week.

She Could not Hold her Peace.

Mrs. James Farley had Robt. Pettick, a farmer from South Monaghan, summoned before the Magistrate at the Police Court this morning on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences. In her evidence she said that on Saturday, April 13th, she bought a bag of potatoes from the accused and paid him for them on the market, but when Pettick brought them to the house he denied that he had ever been paid and she gave him the price of the potatoes, forty-five cents, as she said, a second time. Mrs. Farley was seemingly much riled on the wrong or supposed wrong which she had suffered from the hands of the yeoman, and she called her husband, James Farley, as a witness. The first question, after swearing the witness, that the Magistrate put to him was "Do you see the man who brought the potatoes to your house in this room? Look all around." Farley, who through some misfortune on his march through life has lost one of his eyes, brought his only remaining optic to bear on the crowd and, in fact, apparently on every person in the court, but he failed to recognize the alleged dishonest farmer, notwithstanding that Pettick was seated not three feet in front of him looking him straight in the face. Mrs. Farley was greatly excited with the fear that her husband would not spot the right man and a couple of times ejaculated "There's the man right there!" The magistrate told her to hold her peace or he would have her put out of court, but just as her husband remarked that he did not see the man in the room, his wife could contain herself no longer but remarked "Why there he is!" The Magistrate was much irritated by the woman's persistency in giving her husband a pointer, and on the spot dismissed the case.

SATURDAY, MAY 4, 1889.

A MARVELLOUS FIND.

The Peculiar Animal that Disturbed a Young Lady's Slumbers.

WALLACEBURG, May 4.—The Herald-Record says: A most important discovery was made one day this week at the residence of Preserved Thompson, on Wallace-street, South Wallaceburg. Some nights ago Thompson's daughter complained that she felt nervous and was unable to go to sleep. She said she felt as though there was some sort of warm animal in her pillow. The girl's mother chided her for her seemingly foolish fancies, but the girl persisted that though she could not feel anything moving in the pillow yet she was satisfied that there was something more lively than feathers in there. Finally, to convince her restless daughter of her mistake, Mrs. Thompson emptied the feathers out of the pillow, and to her great surprise found one of the greatest animal curiosities that has ever been seen in this section. A reporter of The Herald-Record visited the Thompson's house yesterday morning, asked to see the strange creatures, for the second one had been found in another lot of feathers that had been emptied from ticks and pillows.

As the request of the scribe Mrs. Thompson brought forth the mysterious creatures, which were encased in a box of feathers. An exact description of the creatures it would be difficult for us to give our readers. In the first place there is no sign of life in either beyond the fact that both are substances that give forth a considerable heat. The larger of the two is about the size of an ordinary chicken at five months old. The body is a little larger than an oyster and of a yellowish white color. No head or limbs can be found on it, and the body itself is a shapeless mass. From all parts of this peculiar creature's body hair about a foot long is growing. The hair is of a strange reddish color and as stiff as a hog's bristles. Springing from the body the hair grows straight out about half an inch and then coils around the body in large circles. The strange part of the matter is that from the body and entwined in these coils of long hair is growing as pretty a coat of feathers as ever a chicken boasted of. There is not the least doubt in the world that the feathers that the industrious creature uses as a coat to its ungainly form are those of a duck and had been put in the pillow last spring by Mrs. Thompson. The feathery covering is handsomely made. The grey, brown and white feathers are carefully assorted and resemble an ordinary fowl's back. The whole mass is probably three inches thick, eight inches in diameter and about twenty in circumference. Being for the most part feathers and hair the mass would not weigh perhaps more than three-fourths of a pound. It is really a very peculiar animal and is a source of much wonder to the crowds of people who have during the past couple of days gone to see it.

THE MISSING JEWELRY.

F. W. Ellis & Co. Unable to Find Part of the Valuables Lost by Von Reinolds.

MONTREAL, May 3.—M. C. Ellis of F. W. Ellis & Co. of Toronto is in town to-day for the purpose of recovering the jewelry lost by Von Reinolds. For that purpose it is understood a conference took place between him and the accused, Maloney and Phillips. One-third of the total amount lost is in the hands of the High Constable and can probably be recovered by a seizure before judgment. Two-thirds, however, are still missing and the boasts on the part of some persons connected with the prosecution, that they knew where it was and could lay their hands on it whenever they chose, have not been substantiated. A civil action will probably be taken for their recovery.

Belleville Briefs.

BELLEVILLE, May 4.—Customs collections for April compare as follows with those of the same month last year: Imports, $27,394, increase $10,457; duty collected, $4023.30, decrease $1148.28; exports, $39,704, increase, $22,589.

Wm. Kane, shoemaker, fell from a box on which he was standing yesterday and broke his hip bone.

The Gun and Rifle Club has dropped that title and become the Forest and Stream Club. It has a large membership and voted to join the Dominion Gun Alliance. Mr. Corby, M.P., the President, and Mr. S. B. Burdett, M. P., the Vice-President, offer liberal prizes for trap shooting. The club offer prizes for rifle shooting and will spend a considerable sum in enforcing the game and fishery laws.

The Medical Board have decided to recommend a pension to Barney Hudgins, who served in the Northwest and contracted while on duty a cold which disables him.

A co-operative cigar factory will be started here shortly.

Arbor Day was not observed here.

Wm. Templeton, Vancouver, B.C., is purchasing a carload of half-bred Percheron horses for export to that place.

The License Commissioners have granted the usual number of licenses, excepting the four in Trenton that are held over.

A Murderous Blow.

MONTREAL, May 3.—A murderous attack occurred in the basement of the new Imperial Insurance building opposite the Place d'Armes this afternoon. A Scotchman named James McIntyre, a fitter by trade, was engaged at his work, when, according to McIntyre's friends, a carpenter named F. Labbee without any provocation came up, raised a heavy plane and struck McIntyre a murderous blow across the temple. The Scotchman fell as if dead but will probably recover.

Guthrie Booming.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Postmaster Flynn at Guthrie, Oklahoma, telegraphs that the daily sale of postage stamps there amounts to $60. The eleven clerks in the office are busy from 5 a.m. until midnight. When the mail is ready for delivery there is usually a line of men half a mile long waiting for it. About 3000 letters and 1000 newspapers are delivered from that office daily. There are five banks and six newspapers in town.

Grand Trunk Earnings.

MONTREAL, May 4.—The traffic returns of the Grand Trunk Railway for the week ended April 27 were:

Freight train earnings	[illegible]	[illegible]
Total earnings	$344,[illegible]	$[illegible]

One of the reasons why Scott's Emulsion has such a large sale is, because it is the best. Dr. W. H. Cameron, Halifax, N. S., says: "I have prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for the past two years, and found it more agreeable to the stomach and have better results from its use than any other preparation of the kind I have ever used." Sold by all Druggists, 50c. and $1.00.

A "FLY" MONGOLIAN.

How He Got the Nickel He Claimed from the "L" Ticket Agent.

A Mongolian, who had evidently not long been a sojourner among the western barbarians, got into an altercation with a ticket seller at one of the elevated railroad stations the other day. He had purchased a ticket, but was under the impression that he had paid the agent a dime and that therefore five cents was still due him. The agent was firmly convinced that the Chinaman had given him only five cents, and therefore had no right to demand any change.

The Chinaman's knowledge of English was exceedingly limited, but he was endowed with all the persistency that characterizes his race. He continually used the phrase "Cheese it," evidently in the faith that the words were barbaric "cuss words" of marvelous potency.

"I tell you, John," said the agent, soothingly, "you gave me only a nickel; you've got your ticket and it's all right."

"Cheese it! Give me five cents," yelled the Mongolian.

"I'm treating you dead square. I don't owe you anything."

"Cheese it! Give me five cents."

"You've got your ticket; that's your five cents."

"Cheese it! Give me five cents."

So the colloquy went on. To everything that the agent said the Chinaman made only the one reply with increasing vehemence:

"Cheese it! Give me five cents."

The agent, at length perceiving that it was useless to attempt to persuade the Chinaman that he had not been wronged, ceased paying any attention to him. Then the Chinaman changed his tactics. Retreating into a corner he quietly watched the passengers as they bought their tickets.

An old man came forward and planked down a dime. The ticket agent thrust forward a ticket and a nickel for change. The old man fumbled with the ticket, trying to pick it up from the smooth glass projection in front of the ticket seller's little window.

It was the Chinaman's opportunity. Like a cat after a mouse he darted forward and grabbed the nickel.

"Come here, you thieving heathen, and bring back that nickel," shouted the enraged agent, while the old man was simply rendered speechless with astonishment.

"Cheese it," yelled the fleeing Chinaman as he rushed through the open door; "me got five cents; you heap dam fool."

He hopped on board a train and was carried away, while the agent, after giving the old man another nickel, thus soliloquized:

"Talk about being fly! Them Chinamen can beat the devil. If they are allowed to come here an honest white man won't have any show to make a living. I'm dead against importing 'em."—New York Herald

Gentlemen's Dress Fifty Years Ago.

Fifty-six years ago American gentlemen wore blue broadcloth coats with high rolling collars, short waists, gilt buttons and long tails, with skirts cut away over the hips. Their waistcoats were very short, and their pantaloons—there were no "pants" or trousers in those days—were very long and tight. Yellow nankeen was the material of the former, drab or buff mole skin of the latter. It was a perpetual mystery how a man got into his pantaloons, and once in how he got out. They came down to the very bottom of his heel and buttoned beneath his instep, giving him an uncomfortable strapped up appearance. His collar was of the big "side board" type and his cravat was either an enormous stock of black satin or a couple of yards of white lawn wrapped in ample folds about his throat. Tight sleeves to his coat, with turned back cuffs, a heavy cane, an enormous white beaver hat and a clean shaven face, made up his ensemble. Nobody were mustaches then, and a man with whiskers was followed in the streets by a crowd.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Remarkable Restoration.

A remarkable story comes from Cardiff, Wales. A collier named David Davies, of Treherbert, was a sufferer by a great explosion that occurred in 1882. For four years after he was confined to his bed. He then gradually got about, but remained deaf and dumb from the shock. A doctor advised him to try a shock somewhat similar to that which had caused his infirmity. A little while ago he placed himself near where six shots were to be fired in the Bute Pit, and strange to say, at the sixth shot his hearing returned to him. Still he was dumb, but on a subsequent Sunday the Rev. E. Rowland, missionary to the deaf mutes, said something to Davies which put him in a passion, and he involuntarily or instinctively made an attempt to express his anger. To his amazement the power of speech came back, and he now talks freely. He, however, says that speaking makes his throat sore, and his tongue is made sore by his teeth.—Chicago Tribune.

A Pickpocket Trick.

What I suspect as a new pickpocket trick was tried on me night before last, while going home on the Benton-Bellefontaine Street Car line. Directly next to the seat occupied by me a lady sat. We were crowded pretty closely, as the car was packed with passengers. After the car had gone about a mile I felt a hand moving very cautiously in the side pocket of my overcoat. I was astonished to see that it was the hand of the fair lady who sat next to me. As soon as she saw that I had detected her hand she drew it out of my pocket, and blushingly said: "Excuse me, sir, but we sat so close together that I thought I was putting my hand into the pocket of my cloak. You can see that I have a pocket on the outside of my cloak, on the same side that the pocket is on your coat. It was an embarrassing mistake, but one I could not avoid." I excused her, and after riding about two blocks further she left the car.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

NEWS OF THE DOMINION.

THE MANITOBA LAUNCHED AT OWEN SOUND.

A Canadian Yard Builds the Finest Steel Steamship Afloat on Fresh Water—Morrison's Sanity Questioned.

OWEN SOUND, May 4.—The new steel steamship Manitoba, being constructed here for the Canadian Pacific Railway, was successfully launched to-day. A very large number of people arrived by trains and boats to witness the event, which took place at 1.45 p.m. and was very successful. The ship slid from the ways into the water easily and without mishap. The Manitoba is the finest steel steamer on the great lakes. She is 305 feet in length, constructed of plated steel, and has a carrying capacity of 73,000 bushels. Her passenger accommodation is 400. The model and general lines of the vessel are of the finest, while the workmanship is unprecedented in shipbuilding architecture. The Manitoba will be finished and ready to take her place on the Canadian Pacific Railway between here and Port Arthur in about six weeks.

SCRAWLED ON A BOX.

An Alleged Complaint from a Central Prison Convict.

WINNIPEG, May 5.—A croquet box received with a consignment of goods from Toronto had a badly written scrawl to the effect that it came from the Central Prison, where the prisoners did not get enough to eat, and asked the receiver to write and ask the Governor-General if the Government couldn't send a little more provisions.

A young English boy named Acord has been brought in from near Cartwright suffering from hydrophobia.

Manager Miller of the Merchants' Bank will be presented with a gold watch and silver service before his departure for Toronto.

A land agent named W. J. Robinson has been arrested in Dakota for embezzlement of half-breed scrip, and a warrant is also out for him here for contempt of court.

MR. BALFOUR'S RESIGNATION

A South Essex Liberal Deputation to Interview Mr. Mowat To-morrow.

WINDSOR, May 5.—The deputation appointed by the South Essex Liberal Association to wait on the Ontario Government in regard to the resignation of Mr. W. D. Balfour, M.L.A., will meet the members of the Government in Toronto on Tuesday next. An effort is to be made to obtain a bonus from the Government to aid in constructing a railroad from Amherstburg along the river border to Windsor.

The Jesuits v. The Mail.

MONTREAL, May 4.—Trudel, Charbonneau & Lamothe, attorneys for the plaintiffs, have produced a motion in the Jesuit-Mail suit asking that certain portions of The Mail's preliminary plea be struck out as being irregular, illegal and incomplete, and that further information be given in other allegations. Argument will be heard on Monday in the Practice Court. Speaking of the motion Mr. Lamothe says: "We shall first make a general defence en droit to show that the method employed to test the constitutionality of the law is illegal and not one presented by the code of civil procedure. Then we shall make some special objections, which can only be given when drafted. The statute of Elizabeth never applied to the colonies, and is a dead letter even in England, where Catholics enjoy the greatest freedom. It looks now as if the case was to go to the Privy Council on preliminary objections as to the constitutionality of the law, and not on the merits of our original declaration based on The Mail's article headed, The Jesuit Oath."

Wiman at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, May 4.—Mr. Erastus Wiman arrived here to-day in relation to litigation before the Supreme Court. He addressed a meeting under the auspices of the Board of Trade on the trade relations of Canada with the United States. Mr. Wiman said that as a colony the progress of Canada has been far behind that of the United States. The reason was that the unrestricted intercourse between the states had been the cause of their development and growth, and nothing would so much contribute to the continual growth of the United States and the progress of Canada as to obliterate the customs line between them. The best asset that Canada could possibly have was the market for the national products which the United States would afford and there was no asset within the control of the United States which would so greatly augment her present wealth as the development, marketing and manufacturing of the enormous stores of raw material which Canada possessed.

A Mysterious Murder.

PORT BLAKELY, W. T., May 5.—Mr Silber was found to-day hanging to the mast of a small boat drifting about in the bay. In the middle of the forehead was a bullet hole. The deceased was well dressed and seemed to have plenty of money. He came to Port Blakely a few days ago and hiring a small boat went out into the bay. Nothing more was seen of him until the body was discovered suspended from the mast. The murder is supposed to have been committed by smugglers or pirates.

Suicide of a Steamship Surgeon.

JERSEY CITY, May 5.—Dr. Sydney J. Armstrong, surgeon of the steamship City of Berlin, committed suicide to-day by taking morphine. He was 27 years old and was the son of an Episcopal clergyman of Nottingham, Eng.

THE PARISIANS ARE VEXED

FOREIGN MINISTERS WILL NOT ATTEND THE SHOW TO-DAY.

The American Duchess Received a Court — Renewed Interest in the Parnell Commission.

LONDON, May 5.—The French officials are in a state of despondency not unmixed with indignation at the action of the various powers with regard to the opening of the Exposition. Owing to the combined pressure of Germany and the clerical element even the Belgian Minister has been ordered to absent himself from the opening ceremonies to-morrow, and the result is that charges d'affaires will represent all of the foreign embassies and legations save that of Russia. The wives of all the Ambassadors and Ministers, however, with the exception of the Baroness von Mohrenheim, wife of the Russian Ambassador, will witness the great spectacle, including the passage of the President from the Trocadero under the Eiffel tower to the Central Hall. The keenest regret is felt at the absence of Lord Lytton, the British Ambassador, as the French have long looked upon England as sympathizing with their detestation of a despotic form of government. What expression of resentment the French Government may make in retaliation for the action of the various powers in withdrawing their representatives nobody can tell, and possibly no notice will be taken of it; but the people are outspoken in their opinions as to the insult.

Fired a Blank Cartridge at Carnot.

PARIS, May 5.—A man who gives the name of Perrin and who says he is a marine store keeper, fired a blank cartridge at President Carnot to-day, when the latter was leaving the Elysee Palace to attend the centenary celebration at Versailles. Perrin was promptly arrested. He was taken to a police station, where he made a statement. He explained that he had no desire to kill the President, he merely wished to expose the fact that he (Perrin) was the victim of injustice. The crowd that had gathered in the neighborhood of the Elysee to witness the departure of the President became greatly excited and threatened to lynch the prisoner. The police, however, gathered in force and drove back the indignant citizens. President Carnot and party proceeded through Chaville, where the President was enthusiastically greeted. Upon reaching Versailles the President inaugurated the memorial tablet fixed to the building in which the States General met 100 years ago to-day.

The President and his escort then repaired to the Hall of Mirrors in the Palace, where there was a good assemblage of deputies and senators. At the palace Mr. Leroyer delivered the address of welcome to the President. In the course of his speech he said: "It is no longer humble deputies of the third estate to whom even the privilege of standing upright was denied, but elected representatives of the nation who, bowing before their freely elected chief, pay tribute to the great dead to whom we owe our liberty. It becomes those old strugglers for liberty to remind us that the revolution bequeathed not only doctrines but lessons. If the revolution stained by the audacity of its dreams we sin by our want of self-abnegation, by our incomplete knowledge of our duties, by hesitation as to our policy. If the revolution flew too high, we drag too low. The date of 1889 invites us to realize a union of hearts in love for our country and its institutions."

President Carnot replied as follows: "With ardent hope for the future I greet in the palace of the monarchy the representatives of a nation that is now in complete possession of herself, that is mistress of her destinies and that is in the full splendor and strength of liberty. The first thoughts on this solemn meeting turn to our fathers, that immortal generation of 1789 by dint of courage and many sacrifices secured for us benefits which we must bequeath to our sons as a most precious inheritance. Never can our gratitude equal the grandeur of the services rendered by our fathers to France and to the human race. The revolution was based upon the Rights of Man, it created a new area in history and founded modern society. After many cruel shocks France has finally broken with the personal power of one man whatever title he may take. She now recognises as sole sovereign the laws enacted by the representatives of the nation. Under the ægis of the republic let us seek in a spirit of mutual forbearance and concord the irresistible strength of a united people and thus enable France to maintain her post in the vanguard of nations. Vive la Republique."

Sir Richard Scored a Point.

LONDON May 5.—The Parnell Commission is now entering upon another interesting phase. The Attorney-General seems to be reserving his most searching questions for the closing hours of Mr. Parnell's cross-examination. The most damaging incident was his admission that when opposing Mr. Foster's bill of 1881 he wilfully deceived the House of Commons. How many times Disraeli, Mr. Gladstone and other statesmen have done the same thing history recordeth not. Sir Richard Webster nevertheless scored a point over this part of the cross-examination.

The Recent Ministerial Defeat.

LONDON, May 5.—The Ministerial defeat on Tuesday night on the sale of liquors in India was a matter of no importance, and was discussed in a House of never more than 220 members. Through defection some Unionists helped to put the Government in a minority. No attempt was made by the whips to avoid defeat.

The American Duchess Presented.

LONDON, May 4.—The chief interest of yesterday's drawing room was the presentation of the Duchess of Marlboro by the Dowager Duchess. She wore among other jewels the diamonds worn by the first Duchess of Marlboro on her presentation to Queen Anne.

Dr. Knappe's Complaint.

BERLIN, May 4.—Dr. Knappe complains that toy flags and handkerchiefs, on which are imprinted the American colors and the portrait of the President of the United States, have been hoisted promiscuously over native houses since the outbreak of the civil war in Samoa. He also says that American and British flags were hoisted on plots of land pledged by the "rebels" in lieu of cash in payment for arms and ammunition. The commander of the British cruiser at Apia, he says, declined to support claims to land thus pledged.

The Samoa conference sat to-day from 4 to 5.30 o'clock. The land report was the subject under discussion.

A Boycotted Newspaper's Suit.

ROCHESTER, May 5.—Papers were served yesterday in an action brought by The Post-Express Printing Company against members of the Central Labor Union, who, it is charged, have placed a boycott on their business, and damages to the extent of $10,000 besides costs are asked.

Riotous Strikers.

BERLIN, May 5.—Miners on strike at Gelsenkirchen, Westphalia, engaged in a riot to-day and wrecked a number of shops. The police dispersed them with drawn swords and order was restored with the assistance of a detachment of troops.

WINNIPEG SCORCHED.

The Nickel Plate Hotel, Jewish Synagogue and Five Stores Burnt.

WINNIPEG, May 5.—The Nickel Plate Hotel, the Jewish Synagogue, Bell's grocery, Parmenter's stationery store, Baskerville's hardware store and a couple of second-hand stores were burnt down to-night.

A Blaze at Kincardine

KINCARDINE, May 5.—At 3 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the brick block in Queen-street west owned by Thos. Wilson and occupied by Dr. Wilson, veterinary surgeon, and R. Hicks, stationer. The firemen responded quickly to the alarm and succeeded in confining the flames to the veterinary surgeon's office, where the fire originated. Mr. Hicks' stock is badly damaged. Loss on stock and building about $800, covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is not known.

Fire at Owen Sound.

OWEN SOUND, May 5.—About 4.30 this morning a fire broke out in the furniture store in Baker-street occupied by George Ross. The fire made such headway that before the brigade could control it nothing was left but a heap of ashes. The building was of brick, owned by J. H. Little and insured for $500. The stock of furniture, tools, etc., owned by Mr. Ross was valued at nearly $3000 and insured for $600.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Arrested for Theft—The Civic Estimates—Mallany Bailed.

TORONTO, May 6.—Detectives Saturday morning arrested W. J. Barber, of King-street east, on a telegram from Waterford which alleged that he committed theft in that town. Barber and a companion have been selling a map of Ontario in that vicinity.

Mrs. C. L. Van Wormer, wife of the late proprietor of the Grand Pacific Hotel, has instituted proceedings against several firms for wrongful distress and eviction. She claims $10,000 damages.

Gertie Stevenson, a little 4-year-old girl, fell down stairs at her home, corner of Sumach and Carlton-streets, and fractured her right arm.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the City Council Saturday morning the City Treasurer submitted the estimates for the year. The expenditure, as estimated, will amount to $6,640,636, an increase of 25 per cent. over last year's. According to these figures the rate of taxation will be over 16 mills.

Justice McMahon Saturday morning granted Michael Mallany bail in two sureties of $2000 each. Mallany is charged with arson and is accused of having set fire to his own house for the purpose of getting the insurance on it.

Market Gardener Charles Karbyson on Saturday afternoon left St. Lawrence market about 5 o'clock to drive to his home at Jones-avenue and Hunter-street. He was crossing the G.T.R. track about two hours later at the former street when he was caught between the G.T.R. express from the east and a G.T.R. freight going east. The passenger train struck the wagon, knocking the unfortunate man out of the vehicle up against the freight, which ground him terribly beneath the wheels. He was killed instantly, the wagon smashed to atoms, but strange to say, the horse escaped without a single scratch. The body was taken to the dead man's late residence in Hunter-street. There will be no inquest.

A FATAL RIOT.

Five Hundred Men Engaged in a Fight Over a New Jersey Railroad.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., May 5.—Last night and this morning a fatal riot occurred at the Sayerville brick yards, five miles below this city. Agent E. P. Hendrickson with 100 men started last night to put in a spur from the main line of the Raritan River Railroad across the land of ex-Freeholder Edward Furman down through the brick yards to William F. Fisher's yard. Furman was opposed to their crossing his land and called out his men. The railroad men were reinforced by brick yard men favorable to the railroad, until by midnight 500 men were engaged in the fight. Furman's men attacked the railroaders and burnt the ties, material and a car. Pistols, clubs and stones were freely used. George Kissenger, one of Furman's laborers, was killed outright. He was knocked down with a club and a sharp pointed crowbar was jammed through his head. John Kennedy, a railroad man from South Amboy, was so badly injured that he died in an hour.

At 4 o'clock this morning Sheriff Fick of Middlesex County called out a posse of fifty men and went to the scene. When they reached the place all was quiet and the railroad men had stopped work to recruit their force. The Raritan River Railroad is a new enterprise running from South Amboy to Boundbrook. General E. T. Ripley of New York is President. Furman complains that the company is crossing his land without his consent, which the company claims he had given. Up to 6 o'clock this evening all was quiet but the railroad men who are encamped in the woods near the disputed spot are being heavily reinforced from all along the line and trouble is expected to-night as both parties are determined.

Murdered the Mayor.

COVINGTON, Tenn., May 5.—A warrant having been issued for the arrest of Henry Donaldson, a negro charged with attempting to outrage a white woman, Mayor W. T. Douglass and a posse of nine men went last night to the negro's house to arrest him. They found his cabin closed and called upon him to open the door. Receiving no answer they warned him that unless the door was opened they would break it down, and informed him they had a warrant for his arrest. At this point a gun was thrust through the door and discharged. The contents struck Douglass killing him instantly. The posse retreated and Donaldson escaped. Mayor Douglass was very popular. He was about 27 years old. If Donaldson is caught he will probably be lynched.

Murder Will Out.

PALESTINE, Tex., May 5.—One night 20 years ago Polk Ables was shot and killed by concealed assassins while on his way to a dance. Melain, Oscar and Henry Fields and John Parker were arrested on suspicion. It was rumored that Ables had detected the prisoners in running off a number of stolen horses. For some reason they were not tried. During the past 20 years 30 persons connected in one way or another with the murder have died including Parker, Oscar Fields and Melain. Melain on his deathbed some time ago confessed that he and Parker did the shooting while the two Fields notified them of Ables' approach by a blast on a horn. The grand jury has now indicted Fields for murder and he was bailed in $5000 yesterday.

A Boston Scheme.

BOSTON, May 5.—Prominent citizens of Boston propose to form a stock company to establish a factory in one of the poorest districts in Ireland to furnish employment to evicted tenants. The plan will be submitted to Messrs. Parnell, Davitt and O'Brien for approval. It is proposed to manufacture boots, shoes, clothing and underwear. There is already a flourishing underwear factory in Mullingar run upon this principle. Some of the stock is held by Boston friends of the Irish cause.

THE "Y" DISASTER VICTIMS

COMPLETE LIST OF THE KILLED IN THE RECENT ACCIDENT.

The Remains of Seven Fully Recognized—The Unknown Bodies to be kept as Long as Identification is Possible.

HAMILTON, May 4.—From the names on the unclaimed baggage, the identified bodies and jewelry and circumstantial evidence connected with the disappearance of friends, the following are doubtless the names of the victims of the lamentable accident of Sunday, April 28, at the Junction Cut:—

Rudolph J. Ederer, Chicago, body identified.

L. S. Gurney, New York, body identified.

John H. Kelley, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway, Chicago, body identified.

E. Randall Orr, law student, Peekskill, N.Y., relics found in the wreck and identified as his.

Capt. L. L. Butler, Cook County Insane Asylum, near Chicago, baggage unclaimed and owner missing.

R. A. Peterlay, 326 Broadway, New York, relics found in the wreck and identified as his.

C. G. Fraser, stenographer, Toronto, watch found in the wreck and identified as his.

Fred Duthie and wife, Kansas City, known to have been on the train and now missing.

H. Levy, Chicago, baggage unclaimed.

Mrs. Smith and two young daughters (no address), baggage unclaimed.

M. R. Scullen, 781 West Lake-street, Chicago, body identified.

J. S. Hall, retired merchant, Kankakee, Ill., body identified.

Dan Ferguson, joiner, Boston, Mass., baggage unclaimed.

Harry Pringle, Chicago, known to have been on the train and missing.

Harry Evarts, "little giant orator" Forepaugh's show, known to have been on the train, cards found in the wreck, and man now missing.

B. L. Oviatt, medical student, New York, body and relics identified.

Mrs. Grummett, Chicago, body identified.

As will be seen from the above list seven of the victims have been identified and thirteen remain unidentified. It is thought that the Mrs. Smith whose name appears on some unclaimed baggage had two young daughters with her, but no one has arrived yet to look for the bodies, nor has there been any inquiry for missing children.

One of the bodies, the sex of which the doctors could not determine, has been found to be that of a man from the remains of the braces and the pad of the coat, under the sleeve.

The relatives of J. L. Carnick of Chicago object to the removal of any bodies unless identification is certain. They wish to have them interred here and a stone erected in memory of the unidentified.

As yet there have been no arrangements made for a public burial. The remains will keep for a long time, owing to their burned condition, and as long as there is any possibility of identification they will be kept.

The coffins and all expenses in connection with the bodies are at the cost of the Grand Trunk. The company is also fitting up the wounded "regardless," including silk hats.

Mr. Combremont is Still Whole.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Louis Combremont, who, it was alleged, was killed in the disaster was found by a reporter sitting at his desk in his office, No. 2 John-street yesterday afternoon, and he seemed considerably annoyed by the notoriety the rumor had occasioned. Mr. Combremont is the agent of the Dubois Watch Case Company, and he said that he had learned that the rumor had originated through a member of the firm of P. W. Ellis & Co. of Toronto, who had found a sample case in the ruins, by the side of the charred and unrecognizable remains of one of the victims of the disaster, and as he (Mr. Combremont), had written to P. W. Ellis & Co. his intention of visiting Toronto about that time, it was concluded that he was one of the victims, and that it was his body that had been discovered.

Memphis' Cotton Exchange Celebrates.

MEMPHIS, May 4.—Receipts of cotton at Memphis since Sept. 1 aggregate 709,201 bales. This exceeds by 38,923 bales the entire receipts for any previous year. The crossing of the 700,000 line was the occasion of a big jollification by members of the Exchange this forenoon. The blackboards were elaborately decked with blue ribbons and champagne flowed as freely as water. Memphis is not only the largest interior cotton receiving city in the world, but is the second largest receiver of spot cottons, being only surpassed by New Orleans. The receipts for the year ending Aug. 31 will approximate 720,000 bales.

A Run Caused by Pratt's Flight

ANOKA, Minn., May 5.—A run on the Anoka National Bank occurred yesterday. Less than $20,000 was drawn out, and the bank had over $100,000 to meet it. The money was drawn out by farmers. Business men kept on depositing. The run is supposed to be due to the panicky feeling prevalent since the Pratt embezzlement and rumors of the closing out of the Anoka lumber business.

Business on the Bourses.

LONDON, May 5.—During the past week at the Stock Exchange business was restricted but the tone was firm. The English railway boom was checked by realizations. The advance in American railroad securities steadily continues, dealings being largely those of investors.

Business at the Continental Bourses during the past week was quiet.

Is Morrison Sane?

MONTREAL, May 4.—Detective Arcand, who arrived home from Sherbrooke last evening, paid a visit to the Sherbrooke jail and saw Morrison, the Megantic outlaw, in his cell. He says that he is progressing favorably, and when asked, "Do you think he is sane or insane?" replied: "Well, I must tell you, that I thought his eyes denoted a certain vagueness which had the appearance of insanity, and I shall be very much mistaken if that is not the ultimate verdict pronounced upon him. He speaks rationally, but when his wrongs are touched upon his whole nature undergoes a great change and he is not the same man. The people out that way seem to be very glad that he has been arrested."

The Postal Changes.

OTTAWA, May 4.—The changes contemplated under the amended postoffice act of last session will take effect on Wednesday next. On and after that day the charge for drop letters in the cities which have the benefit of a free delivery system by letter carriers will be two cents. The registration fee for all letters will from that date be five cents, and the weight of letters which will be carried for three or two cents is increased to an ounce.

A Big Libel Suit.

BOSTON, May 5.—S. W. McCaul, chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Massachusetts Legislature, as counsel for Samuel Fessenden, Treasurer of the Cape Cod Ship Canal Company, has sued The Boston Traveler for libel, laying damages at $100,000, on account of the publication of the despatch from Sandwich, May 2, alleging that Fessenden had mysteriously disappeared and hinting at financial irregularities.

THE ORGAN'S FLOP.

THE REVIEW has been asked upon what dates the Toronto Globe said that the Liberal party would not disallow the Jesuit Estates Act, if it did say that. It is a little surprising to learn that anyone doubts that the Globe for some time opposed the disallowance of that measure. Its columns for weeks contained arguments opposed to the demands for the exercise of the veto power and it pictured the disastrous results it believed would follow if the act were disallowed. On February 7th last the Globe first took up the subject of disallowance and discussed it in a long article in the course of which it said:—

"This situation and the fact that the Conservatives spoke distinctly against and voted down the principles enunciated, show conclusively that the Liberals, if they were in power, could not consistently disallow the Jesuit bill."

The organ further said that if the Government vetoed the bill "the effect would be to send Mr. Mercier to the country for a triumphant return," and the agitation would endanger confederation. On February 14th it made use of strong language towards those asking for disallowance. On February 23rd it again sounded a note of warning, as follows:—

"So that those Ontarians who insisted that Quebec shall be dominated by Protestant opinions are logical in declaring that they are willing to have the confederation smashed into its original fragments. There could be but one other issue from an attempt to coerce Quebec—i. e. a distinct legislative victory for Quebec."

On March 7th the Globe had not yet changed its mind. Referring to the Orange Grand Lodge resolutions it said:—

"Many Liberals and many Tories may think that the Grand Lodge, in demanding disallowance, demand what would bring the country into a heap of trouble. We think and have said and say now again that the upshot of disallowance would probably be the destruction of the confederation. * * * Liberals, whether they regard the bill as good, bad or indifferent, are bound by their invariable contentions as to the constitutional limits of the veto power to hold that it cannot be disallowed if it be within the exclusive powers given by the B.N.A. Act to the Provincial Legislatures. A LIBERAL GOVERNMENT, were one in power, COULD NOT CONSISTENTLY DISALLOW THE ACT."

That was the position of the Globe up to March 18th, when it took a right about turn, similar to its famous flop on the Riel question. On that date it first demanded the disallowance of the bill and threatened to "entirely and absolutely dissociate" itself from "politicians prominent or politicians obscure" who would vote against disallowance. The flop was so sudden that several Liberal papers could not follow it at once. The Ottawa Free Press said that "the Globe's sudden demand for the disallowance of the Jesuits Estates Act, after arguing for months that the act was quite constitutional and ought not to be interfered with, places that paper in a most ridiculous position," and it added;—"Perhaps the Globe may be found defending the Jesuit bill to-morrow." Under the heading of "The Poor Old Globe" the Belleville Ontario said:—"The vacillating policy of the Toronto Globe of late years on almost every public question is without precedent in Canadian journalism." Even the Port Hope Guide thought things "had come to such a pretty pass" that it should speak out and declared:—"It is doubtful whether a more humiliating spectacle was ever witnessed in journalism—certainly nothing more disgraceful ever occurred in Canada."

But the Globe was determined to be opposed to the Government, and when it found that the bill was not disallowed it had little hesitation in taking a position diametrically opposed to its own utterances. It was right in saying that if the bill had been vetoed Mr. Mercier would have gone to the country—that is Quebec—for a triumphant return. That is what he wished for. He purposely made the wording of the bill as obnoxious as possible in the hope that it would be vetoed, so that his party would have an election cry, and Mr. Mowat would be able to send another telegram of congratulation to "my dear Mercier."

CROWDED PROFESSIONS.

ADMONITION TO YOUNG MEN FROM ONE WHO IS EXPERIENCED.

Difficulty of Choosing the Right Road. This Age Has No Room for the Non-Producer—To Succeed Men Must Work, Whether They Have Diplomas or Not.

Do you wonder then that, coming back to you after an experience of nearly thirty years in one of these overcrowded professions, I sound a note of warning against choosing a profession hastily, and caution you that, unless you have unusual endowments and extraordinary luck, no matter which profession you may select, you will probably find yourselves, in five years, much in the condition of the traveler who, coming to certain cross roads where the finger boards indicated four different roads as leading to the place which he desired to reach, asked a countryman which was the best road, and was told: "Wall, stranger, ye kin jist take yer choice, but whichever on 'em ye take, before ye've gone more'n a mile, ye'll be derned sure to wisht ye'd taken some other!"

If you could know how many, how very many, men in my profession are not earning, and never will earn, a decent living, although many of them possess every quality deserving of success, except the power to command it; and how large a proportion of them do not, and probably never will, earn as good a living as a first class carpenter, bricklayer or machinist could easily earn; if you could know, as you will know in ten or twenty years from now, how many college educated men have suffered, and will continue to suffer, shipwreck on the rocks that lie in the way of a professional career, you would understand why I have felt it to be my duty to utter some words of warning for the benefit of those who have ears willing to hear.

THEY NEVER WENT TO COLLEGE.

Do not misunderstand me. I have no thought of underestimating the great advantages of a college education, for no college man is likely ever to do that; but I do warn you against the stumbling block of overestimating its importance, and of supposing, as too many students did in my day, that a college diploma is of itself a species of title of nobility, the open sesame to fame and fortune, and that its holder, being too well educated to work, must necessarily adopt some profession.

Remember that a very large proportion of the most successful and illustrious men whom this country has produced were not college educated men, and some of them did not even have the advantage of a fair common school education. Ten of the twenty-three presidents of the United States—Washington, Monroe, Jackson, Van Buren, Taylor, Fillmore, Lincoln, Johnson, Grant and Cleveland; two of the chief justices of the supreme court of the United States—the great John Marshall and John Rutledge; ten of the fifteen chief justices of the supreme court of Pennsylvania; Benjamin Franklin, Patrick Henry, Henry Clay, Washington Irving, John Greenleaf Whittier, Horace Greeley, Thurlow Weed, James Gordon Bennett, John Sherman, Allen G. Thurman, and hundreds of others whom I might mention, whose names are part of the history of this country, had none of the opportunities which you are enjoying. And probably not one in ten of the self made millionaires of this country, the bank presidents, the merchant princes, the railroad kings, the great financiers, or the responsible editors of our great newspapers, were ever inside of the doors of a college.

The world will not ask whether you have a diploma, but it will ask what you can do; and the only way that you can satisfy it on that point is to do something that conclusively demonstrates your capacity.

Superior physical strength is no longer at a premium, for machinery has to a great extent taken its place, but intellectual superiority never commanded so high a premium as it does today. The man who is intellectually but half an inch taller than his fellow men is bound to forge to the front. There never was an age in the history of the world when there was so good a market for brains, but they must be the genuine article. The world is not easily humbugged, and the man who attempts to hoodwink it is bound to "get left." It wants scholars, not sciolists; poets, not poetasters; statesmen, not politicians; inventors, not imitators. It demands, above all things, originality. It will be satisfied with nothing less than the very highest degree of excellence, in scholarship, in mechanical pursuits, in business, in literature and in each of the several professions.

GOOD MATERIAL IN DEMAND.

But there never was a time when the world was willing to pay such high prices as is will pay today for what it needs. I know lawyers, doctors and editors with incomes of from $25,000 to $50,000 a year; but they are few, and they are worth every dollar that they get. Popular preachers command salaries that make an average lawyer's mouth water. The author who can write books that will compel people to read them can get prices the tenth part of which would have made Homer, Milton and Shakespeare bonanza kings. Milton received £10 in his lifetime and his widow £8 after his death for "Paradise Lost." Rider Haggard can today get $10,000 for a single story of 300 pages, and our leading magazines have paid popular authors as high as $100 a page. Scores of college graduates apply in vain every month for situations on newspapers, but let one of them write but ten lines or even a head line that indicates real talent for newspaper work, and he can immediately get a good situation and can soon command a salary of $5,000. The man who wrote Wanamaker's advertisements a few years ago was paid $12,000 a year for that work, and any one who can write equally good advertisements can easily get as good a salary to-morrow.

But whatever line of intellectual work you may resolve to do or whatever profession you may adopt, remember that the secret of success consists in doing thoroughly whatever you attempt, and in doing it better than any one else has ever done it. No man ever succeeded greatly in business, or politics, or literature; in law, or medicine, or preaching, in any other way. Genius is the happy faculty of selecting the particular kind of work for which one is specially fitted; of doing only that which one can do best, and doing it to the utmost measure of one's ability. There is no such thing as genius which can accomplish great results without work. The story of it is a fairy tale, which self conceit tells as an apology for indolence and incapacity. Believe me, the world is not waiting for your graduation to crown you with laurel wreaths, or to lay the treasures of fortune at your feet. Whatever measure of success you may achieve must be won by patient toil and pre-eminent merit.

The only person whom this age has no room for is the non-producer; but there never can be a surplus of bread winners or of brain workers who are worthy of the name.—From Rufus E. Shapley's Address Before the Union Philosophical Society of Dickinson College.

"That's a pretty bird, gramma," said a little boy of this town. "Yes," replied she, "and he never cries." "That's because he's never washed," rejoined the youngster.

Spirits in France.

The quantity of alcoholic spirits extracted in France by distillation from wine has been gradually diminishing, owing to the effects of phylloxera and mildew on the vines; and in consequence the production of spirits from molasses, beet root juice, grape skins and from farinaceous substances, especially maize and potatoes, shows an increase. The consul general of the United States at Paris states that the spirits produced in France are now for the greater part distilled from molasses, and the annual production reaches 12,[illegible],000 gallons. The distillation of beet root juice is also very important, producing alcohol of a good quality. The quantity is about 12,[illegible],000 gallons, but the production is decreasing slightly, and is being replaced by spirits made from grain. The production of grain spirits is close on 13,000,000 gallons.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Our Hats are Inimitable

Every day now adds its emphasis to the judgment of gentlemen as to the beauty and excellence of our spring Hats. They're buying them. They're not doing it without having first compared and decided that we bear away the prize for shapeliness and quality as well as for faultless making and moderate prices. Gentlemen are critical when it comes to getting a light weight Hat. They are a necessity in these spring days—a necessity in which they esteem style as essential. Witness the demand for our Genuine Cooksy, Woodrow and Elwood Celebrated Zephr weight Hats made especially for us. There is something peculiar and inimitable about the gracefulness of our Hats.

Trying to Arrange a Match.

The Riverside Lacrosse Club are now trying to arrange a match here on the 24th with the Young Torontos, the intermediate champions. Should the club be successful in their efforts, the citizens will have an opportunity of witnessing a good game, as the Young Torontos are good men.

Who Owned the Dogs.

The police are now trying to find out the owners of the dogs which got into the cattle pen at the C. P. R. station on Friday night and worried a drove of sheep owned by Mr. Harry Winch which were waiting to be shipped. The poor animals were badly used up, one being killed outright, two more worried almost to death, two more had their legs broken and another cut an eye. If the owners of the dogs cannot be found, and it will be a difficult matter to trace them, the town will probably have to pay for the sheep, or at all events will have to make good two-thirds of their value to their owner.

Judgment Given.

Justice McMahon gave judgment on Saturday in the case of Hall vs. Fortye, and it is thus reported in the Empire:—"Judgment in action tried at Peterborough at the recent assizes. Action to restrain the defendants from selling under an assignment to him of the goods, etc., of insolvent debtors for the benefit of creditors, and for the delivery over of the estate to the plaintiff, who is the sheriff of Peterborough, and a subsequent assignee of the debtors. The claim of the plaintiff to supersede the defendant as assignee was based upon the fact that the defendant's assignment did not receive the assent of creditors at the time it was made, although it was recognized and adopted thereafter at a meeting of the creditors held before the assignment to the plaintiff. The learned judge followed the decision of Boyd, C, in the same case (26 L.T. Occ., N. 169) upon the motion for an interim injunction, and dismissed the action with costs. Poussette, Q.C., and Johnston (Peterborough) for the plaintiff. Watson and R. E. Wood (Peterborough) for the defendant."

The Farmers' Picnic.

The Farmers' Institute Union picnic, under the auspices of the Institutes of East and West Peterborough, East and west Northumberland, and Durham will be held at Jubilee Point, Rice Lake, on June 12th next. The following gentlemen have been invited to be present and deliver addresses:—Hon. John Carling, Dominion Minister of Agriculture; Hon. C. A. Drury, Provincial Minister of Agriculture; Prof. Saunders and Prof. Fletcher, Dominion Experimental Farm; Prof. Mills, Prof. Shaw and Prof. Robertson, Ontario Agricultural College; Mr. N. Awrey, M.P.P., President of the Central Farmers' Institute; Mr. John Dryden, M.P.P., and others. Steamers will convey passengers to the Point from Hastings, Peterborough, Keene, Bewdley, Gore's Landing, Harwood, etc. The committee in charge, of which Mr. F. Birdsall is chairman and Mr. W. Collins is secretary, are leaving nothing undone to make the picnic a complete success, and they are receiving the hearty co-operation of Commodore Calcutt, owner of the line of steamers and of the picnic ground.

OBITUARY.

The Death of One of Asphodel's First Settlers, Mother of Dr. Fife, of Town.

One by one the few remaining revered links that bind Peterborough county of the present to its earliest history are passing away. Mrs. Fife, wife of Mr. Thomas Fife, of Otonabee, died on Sunday, May 5th, and will be buried in the family burial plot near Fife's church on Tuesday, May 7th, at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Fife's maiden name was Jennet Becket. She was born in Renfrewshire, Scotland, in April, 1814, and had therefore passed the allotted three score and ten by five years. She came to this country with her father, mother and family in 1820, and the same year with them settled in the township of Asphodel. This was the year that township was surveyed and Mr. Becket and his family were among the very earliest settlers in the township. They reached their new home by the way of Rice Lake and the Trent river, the only way then of getting into the township.

In 1831 she was united in marriage to her now sorrowing husband. With her husband she settled on a farm in Otonabee, where she lived until her death. She was the mother of eleven children, all of whom lived to adult age and seven of whom survive her, of whom Dr. Fife, of Peterborough, is the oldest.

In 1881 she and her husband celebrated their golden wedding, at which there was a considerable gathering of children, grandchildren and friends. She has been in delicate health for many years, but the immediate cause of death was an acute attack of erysipelas. Her work was principally in her own home and for her family, and faithfully was her work done.

Death of a Former Reeve.

Mr. Daniel Costello, who has for a few months past been proprietor of the Albion hotel, in Ashburnham, died very suddenly yesterday morning. The deceased had been ill for a few weeks with lung trouble but was thought to be on the improve. In fact yesterday morning he awoke and remarked that he felt unusually refreshed after a good night's rest, but shortly after he was seized with an attack of coughing and died in a few minutes from the effects of hemorrhage of the lungs. The deceased was at one time a prosperous farmer of Ennismore and was reeve of that township. Afterwards he moved to Young's Point and a few months ago came to Ashburnham and purchased the Albion hotel. The funeral takes place to-morrow to the R.C. cemetery.

David McLellan, P.R., Hamilton; Bro. D. F. Matchett, G.V.R., Barrie. This will be the fourth session of the Grand Council of the Province and it is expected that sixty delegates will be present. The society has 1,500 members in Ontario and a total membership of 90,000.

at the Opera House

Worked Both Ways.

All the principal hotels in town are, in accordance with the provisions of the License Act, being supplied with fire escapes in the shape of balconies, iron ladders, ropes, etc. No hotel can be given a license until the requirement of the law have been met in this respect, and the intention is to facilitate the exit of guests in cases of great emergency, but experience has shown that they sometimes work both ways. The following from the Guelph Mercury will illustrate:—"The proprietor of a Macdonnell-st. hotel has a fire escape which reaches within six feet of the sidewalk, and a tramp commenced experimenting on it the other evening. He crawled up on it to the third story of the building, opened a window and jumped in. A bedroom door stood open near by, and the man entered the compartment, doffed his clothes and laid himself away for the night. In the morning he arranged his toilet and went down and partook of breakfast. He then coolly walked out and started down the road towards Hamilton. A few minutes after the good-natured proprietor discovered the trick and now he has doubts as to the wisdom of being supplied with a fire escape."

To-morrow Evening.

THE CHILDREN'S DAY.

Services of a Special Character for the Little Ones at George-st.

It is the annual custom in many churches to set apart one Sabbath in the year for the children—a day upon which the sermons are of an appropriate character adapted to the children and with special reference to the little ones and their interests. The first Sunday in May is usually called "Children's Day" in the churches where this custom is observed. Yesterday the services in the George st. Methodist church church were of this special character, and were of unusual interest to children. In the morning there was a good congregation, among whom were many children, who listened to the sermon of Rev. Mr. Pearson with marked attention. The rev. gentleman's discourse was most suitable for the little ones, the many appropriate stories with which he illustrated it or made use of to elucidate a truth to the young minds being interesting and at the same time making an impression upon the memory of the youthful which could not be made by eloquence or fine language or in any other way. The minister read as part of the morning lesson the Lord's commission concerning the children—John xxi; 15. He chose for the basis of his sermon the words:—

"Seest thou not what they do in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? The children gather wood, and the fathers kindle the fire and the women knead their dough, to make cakes to the queen of heaven." Jermiah vii; 17, 18.

The rev. gentleman in opening reminded the children that these persons of the text were idolaters—were worshippers of the moon, which they esteemed so highly that they called her the queen of heaven and made sacrifices and offerings to her and it was in reference to these offerings that the text was spoken. He said he did not present the doings of these people for imitation, for they were idolators, but he wished to they adopted of doing that which they thought was right, the co-operation of all classes and ages, and the allotting to the children some part in the work. In these respects lessons were taught to many churches to-day and he simply gave them as an example. Mr. Pearson said he believed the children had a right in the church, for it was the fold, and, therefore, wanted some lambs in it; it was the school of which the Saviour was the teacher, and therefore should have scholars in it, and he said by all means then have the children in the church. It was not only the privilege of the children to be in the church, to have their names on the class book and to come around the sacramental table, but there was also a work for them. In the text the children gathered wood, and so there was something for them to do at the present time. They could do errands for Jesus by bringing scholars to the Sunday school, studying their Sunday school lessons and in many other ways, and he assured them that whatever they did for others in the name of Jesus, Christ accepted as having been done to Himself. Then the minister spoke of the duties of the fathers who should also be interested in children's work—the fathers could kindle the fire—fire in the church, fire in their hearts. They required more fire, more fervor and earnestness in the church, and he said the reason why there was no fire in some churches was because there was no fire in the pulpit. They should all get on fire and then all who came in contact with them would catch the fervor. Then he spoke to the women and of the great influence of the mothers and closed by urging that everybody be engaged in the work for Jesus, and in selecting the warriors they should not forget the children.

AFTERNOON AND EVENING SERVICE.

Certainly the most impressive service of the kind ever held in connection with the church was that which was witnessed yesterday afternoon. Fully three hundred scholars and teachers partook of the sacrament at the close of the Sabbath school services, most of those doing so for the first time. The sight was a solemn one, and the scene will not soon be forgotten. The young people have been formed into classes and suitable young ladies have been appointed teachers.

In the evening the rev. gentleman preached an eloquent sermon, answering three important questions. (1) Who am I? (2) Where am I going? (3) What is the best thing to do under the circumstances? During the service Mr. Manning sang a tenor solo in first class style; also Mrs. Daly sang "Where is Heaven" with her accustomed sweetness. At the conclusion of the evening service a reunion of the new converts was held, many joining the church.

At the Cathedral.

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor officiated at the first Mass and preached at ten o'clock Mass at St. Peter's yesterday morning. His Lordship is a very eloquent speaker and he has won the hearts of his parishioners already. He confirmed all the appointments in the diocese, which will remain unchanged except that Father Rudkins has been appointed chancellor and Bishop's secretary. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor will perform the duties of pastor of the parish himself.

Among the Other Churches.

There were eighty-seven new communicants partook of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at St. Paul's church yesterday morning, they having united with the church in full membership. This large number is principally the fruit of the late revival.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the George-st. church meets to-morrow afternoon, when district committees will be drafted.

The W. F. M. S. auxilliary of St. Paul's Church meets on Friday afternoon next.

The ladies of St. Paul's intend holding a social reception in the Sunday school rooms of the church on Thursday evening next, for the new members and the young people of the church generally.

The Endeavor Society of the Charlotte-st. church meets to-night.

The Society of Christian Endeavor of St. Paul's Church meets to-night.

The Man Who is Out All Night.

Patrolman Gordon is a faithful watchman and no matter what hour of the night a person may chance to wander along George or any of the business streets he will usually run against the wary watchman. For the past three months Mr. Gordon reports the following doors found open and articles found:—Three bank doors; nine back doors; six overcoats; three suits clothes; five flannel shirts; three pairs drawers; lady's silk mantle; one pair gaiters; one oil painting; five pair shoes; extinguished one fire; one grinding stone, owner wanted; one lamp burning in a dangerous place.

Here's a Hot One.

Some strong letters and resolutions have been published on the Jesuit bill, but the following letter, which was sent to Mr. Lang by a well known resident of Smith and handed to us for publication, is the hottest we have seen:—

SMITH, April 27th, 1889.

Mr. J. Lang, M. P.

DEAR SIR,—I should have considered it a favour of you if you had not sent me that detestable speech of Mr. Mills' on the Jesuit question. I look on Mr. Mills as a disgrace to the Baptist denomination, and you may rest assured that he is held in the same esteem by every right thinking Baptist to the ends of the earth and every intelligent Protestant. My advice to you is to resign immediately, you have disgraced the noble Riding you represent. If I had acted so I would be ashamed to show my face in daylight. You may rest assured that every Protestant wretch who voted for that iniquitous bill, if they don't resign, will be left at home if they ever attempt to run again for Parliament. Our country has come to a fine pass when those calling themselves Reformers are quite willing and ready to hand our country over to be governed by the Jesuits, detestable creatures that they are. Surely it is high time that we had a new party, and just as sure as there is a God in heaven, you and the rest of the miserable traitors of our blood-bought liberties may rest assured that we are not going to give up our blood-bought rights without such a struggle as the world has never witnessed.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM GRAHAM.

WALTER KERR DISCHARGED.

A Watch Transaction gets him into Trouble and he is Discharged.

Walter Kerr, who has been languishing behind the iron bars in Castle de Nesbitt since Thursday last, appeared before the Police Magistrate this morning to stand his trial on the charge of having feloniously received one gold watch knowing the same to have been stolen.

Walter got the watch, which was valued at about twenty dollars, from a young lad for fifty cents, and it appears that the young fellow who sold Walter the timepiece had taken it from the house without the knowledge of his mother to whom it belonged. After keeping the watch for some time Walter sold it for $9.50 to Wm. Cummings, a young man who boarded at the same house with him.

Several witnesses were called and from the evidence it appeared that Walter told several different stories to different parties, but, at the same time, there was no evidence forthcoming that proved that when Walter bought the watch for fifty cents that he knew that it was stolen and the Magistrate dismissed the case, taking into consideration, also, the fact that the accused was not of very brilliant intellectual capacity. Police Magistrate Dumble gave Walter a severe lecture, telling him that under his peculiar circumstances he depended largely upon the kindness of his friends, and if he wished to retain the respect of these friends he must try and live an honest life.

Walter left the court room apparently impressed and will solicit the patronage of his old customers at his pea-nut stand as usual.

Mr. R. E. Wood appeared for the prosecution and Mr. R. M. Dennistoun handled the case for the prisoner.

FROM ENNISMORE.

Good Prospects for the Farmers Interesting Weather Record.

Correspondence of the Review.

WEATHER NOTES.—April is always looked on as the month for reversing the cold weather of winter for the genial spring, but that of '89 is unequaled by any former years. Although cold for a few days at first, still on very few days did it reach the freezing point, snow falling on 5 days, but only to the depth of five inches. Rain fell on five days to the depth of 1 inch. The coldest day was the 1st and the hottest the 24th, the thermometer at 3 p. m. being 76 degrees in the shade, leaving the mean temperature of the month at 40 degrees. Butterflies were plentiful on the 4th, auroral lights on the 7th, first crane on the 9th, first frogs on the 12th, first loons on the 15th, first swallows on the 27th. There were thunder storms on the 19th and 24th. Some flakes of snow on the 22nd and 29th, white frost on the 28th and awful gales on the 21st and 24th. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, namely:—South-east, 4 days; south-west, 7 days; east, 4 days; north-west, 11 days, north-east, 2 days, and north 2 days.

CROPS AND SPRING WORK.—Several commenced sowing here on the 9th, being from a week to ten days earlier than anything we have on record, with the work steadily advancing and no rain to cause any stoppage. In fact we had only 15 100 of an inch in February, none in March and only 1 inch in April, so that the seed has got a fine bed and spring work is well advanced. Fall wheat has a fine appearance, scarcely any being winter killed. With good roads, our early spring and everything brightening up, there is a good prospect in 1889 for the farmer.

Dusty Streets.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—What a hive of busy ingenuity our Council is. Think of the people in this town suffering for the last six weeks from great clouds of dust and nothing to stop it! We have lots of advisors and inspectors but not one man of ordinary forethought. Can nothing be done to appease the justly indignant tax-payers. Yours, etc.,
DUST.

Another Protest.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Can you give me any good reason why the town authorities (if there are any) do not cause the streets to be watered? The general public have patiently for the past month submitted to the accumulations of last winter being blown into their eyes, ears, mouths, to say nothing of houses; but I think that the time has arrived when a protest should be made against permitting this disgraceful state of affairs to continue any longer. With a first rate system of water works at our command, it is simply disgraceful that a person cannot walk up the main street of our town without having to run the risk of a collision with some passer bye owing to the impossibility of keeping one's eyes open.
Yours, etc.,
ANTI DUST.

The Duluth Strike.

DULUTH, May 4.—At noon to-day the striking coal handlers endeavored to make the men stop work on the steamers at the coal docks in the harbor. A squad of twenty police were in ambush and dashed out against the strikers, driving them off like sheep. The men on the vessels continued to work.

A Boulangist Victory.

OWEN SOUND, May 5.—Yesterday morning the body of a new born infant was found on the east hill of the town. From all appearances it is a clear case of murder. An inquest will be held.

The Danmark's Passengers Landed.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The steamship Wieland lay at quarantine for the night. She landed the passengers of the Danmark to-day.

A Horse with Eight Feet.

James McCloud, of Lodi, owns a horse on his Dakota farm which has eight feet. It is perfectly formed in all respects, except that it has eight feet. Not until the pasterns or fetlock joint is reached in the descent from the shoulder to the foot, is there any apparent difference between this horse and any other. But at the pastern joint, or lower end of the shin bone, the branch begins, and two perfectly formed feet are found on each of the four legs. The horse runs on the range the same and as fast as most of them, and all eight feet are shod, or may be if desired. McCloud has refused $2,500 for a half interest in the curiosity, but he wants $5,000 outright for the whole animal.—Madison Journal.

An Unexpected Way of Putting It.

"Mabel," said Henry, and in spite of his effort to control himself the voice was tremulous, and he spoke with the air of timid desperation which marks the elocution of a man about to ask for the loan of £5; "Mabel, I do not kneel at your feet" (and he wasn't—he was sitting bolt upright on a sofa) "to plead for myself. I come here only to beg you to think of my brother George. He—he loves you dearly, Mabel, and should you refuse his plea I tremble for the consequences. He is alone in the world, and he wants a sister-in-law. Oh, will you not be one to him?"—London Tid Bits.

A Cheap Shave.

"From your stories the other day about 'Lord Gall' Murphy, of Boston," said a young railroad man yesterday, "one would suppose we had no men of nerve here in our own town, but I can tell you that we have—lots of them, too. One in particular I recall just now. He is employed in a Clark street railroad office, and about every other day he gets a half-hour off, takes a small package from his desk and walks up to Kinsley's. He goes down stairs in the gentlemen's wash room, unrolls the small package and takes out a razor and a shaving brush. Removing his coat, vest, collar and necktie, he anoints his face with a creamy lather borrowed from a cake of Mr. Kinsley's soap and then carefully shaves himself. When through he employs one of Mr. Kinsley's towels, dons his outer garments, wraps up his tools and goes back to his office, where he takes out his expense account and gives himself credit for fifteen cents and room rent. Maybe you don't think it requires a heap of nerve to do that."—Chicago Herald.

MONDAY, MAY 6, 1889.

WORKING A HOG.

Two Men and a Boy Put Up a Job and "Skinned the Town."

When I entered the village, situated among the hills of New York, at 10 o'clock in the morning all was peaceful and serene, and the pocket of every man who walked the streets had chink in it. When I left at 4 p. m. an excited mob had possession of the main street, and every other man was dead broke.

About noon a man arrived from the north in a buggy. He said he was a drover, and looking for hogs. He bought half a dozen before he ate dinner, and it was astonishing how closely he guessed at their live weight. He was within two pounds on four of them, and only half a pound more on the others. These had been an attraction for a crowd of idlers, and the general verdict was that the drover was as sharp as a barber's razor. Soon after dinner a farmer looking boy drove a hog into town, and staked him out in front of the tavern. As he wanted to sell and the drover wanted to buy, they soon came together.

"Might take him on a pinch, but he's only a nubbins," said the drover as he sized the porker up.

"Nubbins! Why, that pig goes over 200 pounds!" exclaimed the owner.

"Can't stuff me, boy. I've been in the business twenty years."

"No one wants to stuff. That 'ere hog goes to 210."

"He does, eh? Wish your father had come in. I'd like to make a bet with him. Boy, you ought to have better judgment. That hog won't pull down 180."

"Guess you are off, too," remarked a stranger who had quietly driven up in a buggy. "I've raised hogs all my life, and that boy hain't five pounds out of his guess."

"Ain't he! Raised hogs, have you! Ever raise any money?"

"A little."

"Perhaps you'd like to bet on that hog?"

"Perhaps."

"Have you got $20 as says he goes 200?"

"I have—fifty—a hundred!"

"Then let's chalk. Anybody can blow."

It was a chance to make a dollar, and the citizens improved it. The man in the buggy was an accommodating chap, and somehow or other the farmer boy managed to fish up about $100 from the hind pocket of his overalls. The citizens stuck by the drover, having abundant proofs of his judgment, and when every man in that town who had a loose dollar or could borrow one had made his bet the hog was driven to the scales and weighed.

"Gentlemen," said the drover just before the weighing, "I was never deceived in my life. This hog won't go to 190 pounds."

"I'll take even bets that he goes over 200," replied the man in the buggy.

This bluff raked out the last nickel in the crowd, and the hog was driven upon the scales. The record was 211 pounds. He was weighed and reweighed, but the figures stood.

"Well, it's my first error in a hog," said the drover, and all bets were at once handed over. The farmer boy slipped out, the two men drove off in the buggy, and half an hour had elapsed before a church deacon, who had laid his ten with the drover and lost, suddenly delared that it was a put up job to skin the town.

"Durn my buttons if it hain't!" yelled 200 men in chorus, but it was too late. The town had been skinned, and the trio had escaped. All the mob could do was to turn loose and wreck an old vinegar factory and pass a resolution to the effect that liberty was a sham and a delusion.—New York Sun.

The Smoker's Best Plea.

The experiments of V. Tassinari will rejoice the hearts of many smokers. He cemented together by their wide mouths two glass funnels so as to form a cigar holder, with a large chamber in the middle. In this chamber was suspended from a loop of platinum a small piece of linen. At one end of this cigar holder was a plug of cotton wool, acting as a smoke filter. A cigar was placed in the other end, lighted and smoked secundum artem, the mouth of the smoker being attached to the filtering end. By this arrangement the piece of linen was surrounded by a dense cloud of tobacco smoke.

At the end of half an hour, during which three and a half to four grammes (about one-eighth of an ounce) of tobacco was smoked, the chamber was opened and the linen allowed to fall into a test tube containing fluid gelatine in which were planted colonies of seven varieties of pathogenic microbia, including those of cholera, anthrax (chicken cholera) and pneumonia. In every instance there was a marked delay in the development of these colonies as compared with what occurred in similar test tubes charged with the same, but not exposed to tobacco smoke; the development of some was entirely prevented by the tobacco smoke.—Gentleman's Magazine.

A Penny in the Slot.

A correspondent of The New Orleans Medical and Surgical Reporter says that petroleum oil is almost universally used by the artisan and poorer classes in London as an illuminant, and the number of accidents which occur yearly with these lamps is very large. Mr. R. W. Brownhill has invented an ingenious prepaying gas meter based on the principle of the cigar, coffee and other automatic supply stands to be seen in every railway station in London. It consists of a small attachment, which can be applied to any meter, and which will cause the gas to be delivered in definite quantities as paid for by pence dropped into a box. All that has to be done is to drop a penny and pull a small handle, when sufficient gas for the supply of an ordinary burner for six hours will be delivered from the meter. Any number of pennies may be placed in the box, one at a time, up to 143, the handle being pulled after each penny, which would insure 858 hours' gas to one burner, or a shorter supply to several.—Science.

That Hacking Cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's Cure. We guarantee it. S.C. Wells & Co., proprietors, Le Roy, N. Y.

One of the reasons why Scott's Emulsion has such a large sale is, because it is the best. Dr. W. H. Cameron, Halifax, N. S., says: I have prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for the past two years, and found it more agreeable to the stomach and have better results from its use than any other preparation of the kind I have ever used." A Brutal Crime.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., May 4.—A most dastardly crime was committed last night at Alexander, a village a few miles from here. About dusk a woodsman walked into the house of Mrs. Richardson, who lives near the section house, where she and her granddaughter were alone. The fellow pushed the old woman into a bedroom, locked the door and assaulted the 11-year-old girl most brutally. Hearing the child's screams the old woman broke in the door, when the brute attacked her, knocking her down and bruising her badly. The villain then calmly walked off towards the woods and was soon out of sight. Assistance was called and a party started out to capture the assailant but no trace of him could be found. The woman and child are badly injured and the latter is in a precarious condition.

It Might Have Been Worse.

HARTFORD, May 4.—An extra freight train of 41 cars bound south on the Central Vermont Railroad broke apart on the heavy grade between Roxbury and East Granville last night. The break was discovered by the foreward brakemen, who notified the engineer. The whistle was sounded but the rear portion came crashing into the forward part of the train wrecking 21 cars, among which were 10 containing live hogs belonging to John P. Squires & Co. of Boston. The other cars were loaded with dead freight. One hundred and fifty hogs were killed but none of the train hands were injured.

Polish Church Riot.

MANISTEE, Mich., May 4.—The Polish priest of this place was assaulted on the streets this morning by one faction of his church followers and a general riot resulted, in which men and women participated. The militia was called out to quell the riot, and the fire department was also called out and turned the hose upon the mob. After nearly drowning several of the rioters peace was restored. The Sheriff attempted to arrest the leaders of the disturbance and was attacked by the women, several of whom were knocked down. Ten of the rioters have been jailed and a guard is stationed at the priest's house.

Terrible Murder in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 4.—A party of Italian laborers occupied an abandoned freight car near the Grand Trunk Railroad tracks in the southern part of the city. Yesterday they decided to go to New York and all left except Michael Rochi, between whom and the rest a feud existed. Before leaving one of them, supposed to be Joseph Dellable, put a number of track torpedoes into the stove and when Rochi lighted a fire to cook his supper there was an explosion which burst the stove into a thousand pieces and wrecked the car. Rochi was dreadfully injured and is dying at the hospital.

Lynching at East Needless.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 5.—After deliberating nearly three hours, the jury in the Hawes murder trial returned a verdict of murder in the first degree, with the recommendation that the defendant suffer death. This is the case of the man who killed his wife, and who was indirectly the cause of the riot in which 12 persons were shot.

The Mississippi's Source.

ST. PAUL, May 5.—The agent and party sent out by the Minnesota Historical Society to discover the source of the Mississippi River returned yesterday. They report having discovered two lakes 110 feet above Itasca and seven miles distant to which they traced the head of the river.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. A SOMBER HALF-HOLIDAY

THE UNIDENTIFIED DEAD TO BE BURIED AT HAMILTON TO-DAY.

A Sorrowful Surprise to a Hagersville Wife—Thorndale Excited Over a Mysterious Disappearance.

HAMILTON, May 6.—The eleven unidentified bodies of those killed in the railway accident at the Junction Cut on April 28 will be buried to-morrow at 2.30 from Blachford's undertaking establishment. Extensive preparations are being made on behalf of the city to show every possible mark of respect to the occasion, though none of the dead were citizens of Hamilton and most of them were undoubtedly from distant parts of the United States. It is the feeling of the people generally that the city should show its sympathy and respect in a fitting manner, and arrangements are being carried out with that end in view.

The remains will be placed in handsome metallic caskets. Each casket will be numbered and all the clothing and effects which belonged to the different persons or were supposed to belong to them, will be carefully preserved and numbered to correspond with the remains, so that in case any may at any time hereafter come here in search of relatives or friends the means of identification will not be destroyed.

The Mayor has expressed a wish that the occasion be observed as a civic half-holiday. The schools and civic offices will be closed. When the procession moves all the church bells will be tolled. A large detachment of police will represent the city. These ministers representing the various denominations have been invited to be present: Rev. S. Lyle, Rev. John Morton, Bishop Hamilton, Rev. J. S. Ross and Rev. R. G. Boville.

A week ago last Friday Mr. Mathew Griffith and Mr. George Conlen (cousins), left the home of the former, at Cass City, Mich., and came to London. There they parted on Saturday, it being the intention of Conlen to take the limited express for this city. Griffith went back to Cass City. He did not see a daily newspaper, but when the Detroit weekly paper reached his household and he read of the accident on the Grand Trunk Railway, he concluded that his cousin was in the wreck and came on here, arriving yesterday. He was shown the articles found in the wreck and identified the missing man's watch chain and a shirt stud which he knew Conlen had worn when he was on his journey. Griffith had a look at the human remains lying at Blachford's undertaking establishment and picked out Conlen's. The deceased had just six teeth in front, and this fact, together with a knowledge of the clothing (fragments of which were unburnt), assisted in the identification.

Conlen was on his way to Hagersville to meet his wife and convey to her the glad tidings that he had procured a situation at Manchester, Mass. It was his intention to remove her thither last week. His father and other relatives are located there. Conlen was a weaver by trade, and had been in the Old Country lately. He meant that his visit to his wife should be a surprise, as he sent her no word of his coming. Mr. Griffith went on to Suspension Bridge last night to have an interview with Conductor Poole about the matter, and to-day proceeded to Hagersville to break the sad news to Mrs. Conlen, and bring her here to identify the remains.

To-day Mrs. Oldfield arrived from Buffalo to examine the remains of the dead with a view of identifying those of her son-in-law, Mr. Harry Evarts, who was connected with Forepaugh's show, and was known to be on the ill-fated train. Mrs. Oldfield was accompanied by Mr. Evarts' little son, aged 8 years, and Mr. Wheeler of Messrs. Wheeler & Platt, a Buffalo legal firm. It is said that Mr. Evarts had a large amount of insurance on his life; hence the anxiety of his relatives to prove beyond a doubt that he was lost in the wreck. Mr. Wheeler and Mrs. Oldfield are satisfied that Mr. Evarts was in the burning car and suffered the awful fate of some of his fellow-passengers. A card with his name on, a pencil and a watch charm on which was engraved an alligator and a toad, which were known to have been worn by Mr. Evarts, were discovered.

Mrs. Fraser, wife of Mr. C. G. Fraser, stenographer, of Toronto, came to the city to-day and was shown what was left of the victims. She could not identify the body of her husband, although there is no doubt he was a passenger on one of the cars that were burned. A chain belonging to Mr. Fraser was found amongst the articles picked up at the wreck. This Mrs. Fraser identified.

Thorndale, Middlesex County, is in a state of excitement over the disappearance of a well-known resident, Mr. Steele, who left his home some eight or ten days ago and has not been heard of since. Some of his friends are inclined to think that he may have perished in the disaster.

The jury had a meeting to-day at the office of Dr. Woolverton, coroner, with reference to the appointment of experts. The coroner was instructed to engage Mr. T. B. Townsend of East Flamboro', who is said to have had considerable experience as a railway man. Messrs. U. R. Smith and Mr. Geo. Magill were appointed a committee from the jury for the purpose of examining the train time book. The coroner was also instructed to arrange with the Chief of Police so that Constable Bainbridge could devote all his time to assisting the jury while the investigation progressed.

THE EXPOSITION OPENED.

A BRILLIANT SPECTACLE IN THE GAY CAPITAL.

"The City is the People's"—Features of the Show—The Czar to be Crowned King of Poland—General Cable News.

PARIS, May 6.—President Carnot formally opened the exposition this afternoon. The President was accompanied to the exposition grounds by the Presidents of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies. The party were escorted by a squadron of cavalry. They left the Elysee at 1.30 o'clock and an artillery salute announced their arrival under the central dome of the exposition building. President Carnot ascended a dais that had been erected under the dome. He was surrounded by the members of the Cabinet and members of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies. M. Tirard, the Prime Minister, made an address welcoming the President. He declared that the exhibition exceeded all expectations and proved that the French people still preserved all the qualities for which they had been noted. President Carnot in his address referred to the indomitable energy of France in arising from severest trials to fresh industrial triumphs. He afterwards inspected the various departments of the exhibition.

All the diplomatic representatives now in Paris attended the opening ceremonies of the Exposition unofficially, although their Governments had declined to permit them officially to assist in the opening. The gallery of the great building was a garden of Parisian beauty and fine toilets. Mme. Carnot occupied a seat in the centre. President Carnot was greeted with cheers. The Marseillaise was played by an orchestra and sung by a chorus.

Premier Tirard's speech made an excellent impression and was loudly applauded. President Carnot's speech was delivered with much earnestness, and it aroused the enthusiasm of the assemblage. Afterwards the President started the machinery in the building by touching an electric button.

There were nearly 400,000 people inside and outside of the building and they gave a great shout. The exhibitors number 380,000.

To-night Paris is ablaze with illuminations. No vehicles are permitted in the streets. The city is the people's.

Although the monarchical governments have declined to make appropriations for representation by exhibits the exhibits classified nationally vastly exceed in scope and interest those of all preceding exhibitions. The variety of articles exhibited is almost infinite. No one department is complete nor is the catalog of any group ready for the printer. The total ground surface allotted to exhibitors exceeds 3,000,000 square feet.

The Eiffel tower, which is nearly 1000 feet high, cost $1,000,000. The observatory of the tower will be used for scientific observations and experiments.

A Terrific Thunderstorm.

PARIS, May 6.—There was a terrific thunderstorm at Boulogne to-day which lasted three hours. Roads were uptorn and many cellars were flooded.

The Motion Was Rejected.

LONDON, May 6.—In the House of Commons this evening Llewellyn Atherley Jones (Liberal), moved to adjourn in order to discuss the conviction of Charles Conybeare. The motion was rejected, 250 to 153.

Harrington Traveling in Prison Garb.

LONDON, May 6.—Wm. O'Brian and Edward Harrington, who were released from prison in order that they might give testimony before the Parnell Commission, are on their way to London. Mr. Harrington is attired in the prison dress.

To Work an Ontario Silver Mine.

LONDON, May 6.—The share list for the West Beaver Mining Company, limited, with a capital of £150,000 in £1 shares, opened today. The present issue is £100,000, the object being to acquire and work the West Beaver silver mine in O'Connor township, Ont. Mr. McLure is the British director; Thomas Keefer, Hon. John Beverley Robinson and J. Dawson, M.P., forming the Canadian advisory board. The vendors are to receive £95,000, £50,000 being shares and £45,000 cash, leaving £55,000 for working the mine.

Thirty Hamburg Socialists Arrested.

HAMBURG, May 6.—Thirty persons engaged in selling a Socialist pamphlet here have been arrested.

Hostilities Imminent at Bagamoyo.

ZANZIBAR, May 6.—Captain Wissmann's force at Bagamoyo numbers 900 men. Active hostilities are imminent.

Alexander King of Poland.

LONDON, May 6.—The Correspondence de l'Est has information that the Czar will shortly be crowned King of Poland.

Fatal Labor Riots.

BERLIN, May 6.—The strike of miners in Westphalia is spreading. During labor riots to-day in Gelsenkirchen a miner was killed and many persons injured.

SUFFERING BOOMERS.

Hundreds of Families Destitute—The Two Processions.

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., May 6.—The suffering of the baffled boomers finds most prominent evidence along the border. Yesterday 1000 wagons on the march down and 800 on the way back were counted. The groves in the Arkansas and Walnut River valleys that afforded camps for the boomers before the descent are filling again with the unfortunates. There are hundreds of families among them who have sold everything to make the trip, and now have nothing left. The sight of men, women and children who are thus unprovided for and desolate, with the mere frames of horses surviving to drag them along, is pitiful.

Deaths at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, May 7.—Mr. P. P. Lynch, a former teacher in the common and separate schools, was found dead in bed yesterday morning from old age. Deceased was born at Listowel, County Kerry, Ireland, and was in his 72nd year. He was much respected. A family of ten survive him.

Mr. Thomas Lockerty, tobacconist, died during the night after a seven months' illness, aged 60. Deceased was a native of Syracuse, N.Y., and had lived here nearly forty years. He was a member of the Masonic Order and leaves a widow and a family of three.

The Last in Lincoln.

ST. CATHARINES, May 7.—Scott Act Magistrate Davis yesterday morning fined Dr. McKeague of Wellandport $30 for infraction of the Canada Temperance Act. This will likely be the last case under the Scott Act as the licensed hotels re-open on May 9.

Winnipeg Wirelets.

WINNIPEG, May 6.—Col. McMillan will succeed Treasurer Jones in the Greenway Government and it is announced to-night that the election will be brought on at once.

American contractors are here to put in tenders for the Morris-Brandon branch of the Northern Pacific and Manitoba and there is consequently delay in letting the work.

One hundred and thirty miles of the Regina and Long Lake Railway will be built this season, and next year the road will be pushed into Prince Albert.

Burglary at Belmont.

ST. THOMAS, May 6.—The store of Mr. William Dyer, at Belmont, was broken into one night last week and a quantity of goods stolen, along with what cash was left in the till, amounting to about $3, mostly copper coin. The goods taken consisted of shoes and other small articles, the value of which cannot be ascertained as yet. The burglars found their way in by cutting a panel out of the front door. There is no clue so far. This is the fifth time the store has been robbed.

A Strike Settled.

PITTSBURG, May 6.—The building trades strike, which involved nearly 5000 men, has been settled. Work will be resumed on all large buildings in course of erection.

FIRES OF A DAY.

Dame's Hotel and Two Dwellings at Cranbrook Burnt.

BRUSSELS, May 6.—This afternoon at Cranbrook a fire started in the hayloft at the rear of Dame's Hotel, caused by a spark from the smokestack of Dame's steam saw mill. The hotel and part of the contents are a total loss; insurance $1000. Two small dwellings were also burnt, insurance not known; total loss about $2800.

A G.T.R Station Burnt.

ALLANBURG, May 6.—At 2.05 p. m. to-day the Allanburg Junction Grand Trunk Railway station was totally consumed by fire. The dwelling of the agent was saved only by the exertions of parties from the place.

The Losses at Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, May 6.—The aggregate losses by last night's fire are $50,000, insurance about $20,000. The principal losers are John Freeman, owner of the Freeman Block; Baskerville, hardware merchant; Bell Bros., grocers; Glass & Glass, barristers; Mrs. Parmenter, stationer, and Ed. McKeown, Nickel Plate Hotel.

A $50,000 Blaze in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—Fire yesterday destroyed the old Harrison Wire Works, the Crown Cartridge Factory and five small dwellings. Loss, $50,000.

Soap Works in London Burnt.

LONDON, May 6.—The soap works of David & William Gibbs, in Hanover Court, Milton-street, have been burned. Loss, £10,000.

ALL FOR TEN CENTS.

Reason of the Border Troubles about International Railway Cars.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The question of exacting a duty upon every Canadian built car that enters the United States does not appear to be giving the Treasury Department a great deal of concern, although it is under consideration and is being regarded by some of the Northwestern people who are interested in it, with a good deal of anxiety. The controversy is an old one renewed. The revival of interest has been attributed to different causes, the chief of which was the alleged growing indifference of the railroad people to be governed by the international understanding that only cars used in the transportation of the international freight should be exempt from the imposition of duty.

The collectors at Detroit and Port Huron have appeared to be particularly interested in having the law strictly enforced and to secure to the Government the payment of duty on every car entering the United States. A gentleman who has been familiar with the merits of the question says that nothing would be heard of it if the Congress should repeal one little clause in the revised statutes, as follows: "Section 2648. Collectors and surveyors of the collection districts on the northern, northeastern and northwestern frontiers are authorized to keep on sale at their several offices blank manifests and clearances required for the business of their districts, and to charge the sum of 10 cents and no more for such blank, which shall be prepared and executed by them."

The importunity of the collectors to have the duty imposed on all Canadian cars, even at the risk of provoking retaliation by the Dominion Government, with possible serious interruption of the international traffic, is declared to be attributable mainly to the desire to secure the largest possible numbers of fees for the sale of blanks. It can easily be understood that the uninterrupted passage to and fro of cars that need no clearance papers, under international agreement, must, to an extent, reduce the income of the Collectors, who are never quite indifferent to compensation.

While it is probable that the Treasury officers will be required to keep a sharp lookout to see that Canadian cars are not brought into the United States to be used in the transportation of local freight, it is not at all probable that the regulations will be so applied as to destroy the trade between Canada in cars built in both countries. In connection with this, it should be stated that Senator McMillan, of Detroit, has taken a very positive stand against the imposition of the duty and is anxious that the Treasury Department shall at an early date make an order relieving the railroads in the Northwest from all doubt concerning the application of the law to strictly international traffic.

TOLD ALL HE KNEW.

Chairman Fink Describes the Grand Trunk to the U. S. Senate Committee.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The Senate committee which is to investigate the alleged ownership by Canadian corporations and capitalists of American railroads reassembled this morning at the Fifth-avenue Hotel. Maps of the railroad lines throughout the country lay before each of the members of the committee, and a map of the railroads in the Dominion of Canada hung conspicuously on a screen at the side of the room. The Senators present when Chairman Cullom called the committee to order were Blair of New Hampshire, Hiscock of New York, Harris of Tennessee, Gorman of Maryland and Reagan of Texas. The first witness was Commissioner Albert Fink, Chairman of the Trunk Line Association, which he explained was an association of railroads to arrange joint and competitive tariffs to secure uniformity in charges and classification and to maintain established tariffs. To a request by Chairman Cullom, Mr. Fink first described the Grand Trunk Railway and its branches as far as he knew.

In reply to a question why the Canadian roads have of late been increasing their freight business, the witness said he did not know how to account for it unless it was that they had the advantage of carrying freight by subsidized English steamship lines.

"Has the Canadian Grand Trunk line any natural advantages over American roads?"

"No, sir."

"Then why do some of the roads need differential rates?"

"In most cases because they are not first-class roads."

"Then is not the manner in which the railroad business of this country is conducted an argument in favor of the consolidation of all the various roads under one central management by the state?"

"That is what we are coming to," replied Mr. Fink, "but for the present I believe that it is better for the roads to remain under the present management."

Sudden Death of a Torontonian.

ST. THOMAS, May 6.—Mr. Thomas Hamilton of Toronto, formerly a partner with Mr. T. Alcock in the Standard Soap Works in this city, died suddenly Saturday morning at the residence of Mr. George Brown, 83 Erie-street. Mr. Hamilton has been ailing for about three weeks and accepted an invitation to spend a few days here with Mr. Samuel Eccles, arriving here with his wife about a fortnight ago. Ten days since he left Mr. Eccles to visit Mr. Brown, his wife returning to Toronto to rent a house. Mr. Hamilton was around as usual all day Friday, returning home about 8.30 in the evening. Shortly before 4 o'clock Saturday morning he awoke Mr. Brown and complained of feeling very bad. Dr. VanBuskirk was sent for, but before his arrival the vital spark had fled. Death was due to heart disease. Deceased was about 60 years of age.

A Big Railway Deal.

OTTAWA, May 6.—The indications are that a big railway deal is on the cards. The Northern Pacific and Manitoba on the one hand and the Manitoba and the Northwestern on the other are negotiating, and have been for some time past, with a view of either consolidating the two last railways into one system, or at least arranging a running and traffic agreement by which trains of either road will pass over both lines. Attorney-General Martin of Manitoba is here. He says he does not know anything about the alleged deal. Railway men here say the consolidation is sure to be brought about.

THE TORONTO BUDGET.

AN EX-BARTENDER ATTEMPTS TO SHOOT HIS BETTER HALF.

The Nun of Kenmare Interviewed—The Sandbagger Remanded—The Deputation from South Essex.

TORONTO, May 7.—A young girl, apparently about 20 years old, wandered into Mr. McDowell's residence, on Avenue-road Sunday. When questioned, it was seen that her mind was affected. She cannot give any account of herself. Her appearance indicated that she had walked a long distance.

Wallace or Davis, the man who sandbagged the street car driver, was remanded yesterday morning for a week.

Miss Mary Cusack, known formerly as Sister Mary Frances Clare, the Nun of Kenmare, is in the city, her first visit to Canada. In an interview yesterday morning she said she was at first induced to come to Canada through a lady friend at Buffalo. She will attend the convention of the Christian Alliance this week, and will lecture on the Jesuits, and, if opportunity offers, on the Irish question as well. "I have left the Church of Rome," said she, "for good, but I don't think the Church will excommunicate me for anything I may say or do." Miss Cusack's sympathies are with the poor people of Ireland, but she says she is not altogether a Home Ruler. Her advent here creates quite a little flutter. She dresses in modest black and that she is a lady of refinement and grace her demeanor testifies. Sir R. Cusack, her nearest relative, is anxious that she should return to Ireland and her kindred.

At the meeting of the Civic Executive Committee yesterday the estimates were cut down to $189,789, which, it is expected will make the rate of taxation 14½ mills, the same as last year.

A special emigrant train from Quebec on the C.P.R. arrived at the Union Depot last night about 8.30. The train was made up of eight passenger and four baggage cars and there were on board about 400 emigrants. The majority of them will go to the Northwest, a few, however, will remain in Toronto.

Mr. W. D. Balfour, M.L.A., South Essex and Messrs. H. W. Allen, Essex Centre; Dr. Brien, M.P., Essex Centre; Samuel McGee, Police Magistrate, Morrisburg; Simon Fraser, Walden; Marwood Barrett, President of the Liberal Association of South Essex, Dalas R. Davis, Colchester; Walter Welsh, Reeve, Tilbury West; Geo. A. Morris, ex-Warden of Essex; J. C. Shepley, councillor, Gosfield; Robt. Lamarsh, Vice-President Liberal Association, Essex; Clement Mailloux, Vice-President Liberal Association, Essex, and D. W. Campbell, Kingsville, arrived at the Walker House yesterday. To-day these gentlemen, with the exception of Mr. Balfour, will wait on Mr. Mowat and his colleagues to know what they meant by not giving a grant to the Sandwich Railway. They will give the Government one more chance to aid their railway project, and will support their demand for a grant by showing that the Dominion Government has given $64,000 towards building the road. The gentlemen who will wait on the Government have Mr. Balfour's resignation in their hands, and if the Government refuse to give any help towards building the road they will place the resignation in the hands of the Government.

About 6.30 last evening Edward Tyler, generally known as "Ned," was arrested in front of the Parkdale Hotel, St. Alban's Ward, with a bull-dog revolver in each hand, full of bad whisky and a heart filled with anger and jealousy. His wife was the the complainant, and the surrounding circumstances briefly as follows: About two years ago Mrs. Parker kept the Parkdale Hotel, with "Ned" Tyler as bartender, and so well did the employe suit his buxom employer that it was not a great many months before Mrs. Parker became Mrs. Tyler. Since the marriage, however, things have not gone at all happily. Domestic unpleasantness led him to drink and culminated last night in his meeting her in the subway and snapping the revolvers in her face. Fortunately they did not go off. Mrs. Tyler ran up Queen-street with the enraged husband following and had him arrested.

A man who gave his name as McElwaine and his residence Trefann-street rushed into Police Headquarters last night, with blood flowing in large quantities from an ugly gash in the back of his skull. He said that at supper he had said something which has displeased Mrs. McElwaine, and in her anger she had thrown a lamp at him, which smashed on his head. Not contented with this she then seized the bottom part of the missile and inflicted the cut he was suffering from with the improvised weapon. He said he took the beating from her without defending himself, as he was under bonds to keep the peace towards her. He was told to call in the morning and see the Police Court Clerk.

Ellen Ennis, a woman residing in Centreworth-lane, was arrested by the police of Wilton-avenue station last night charged with aggravated assault on a neighbor named Eliza Merritt. What makes the case peculiarly harrowing is that the Inspector felt compelled to take her four young children, the oldest scarcely 6, with the mother to the station, afterwards sending the party of five to headquarters in the patrol wagon. Happily a kind-hearted acquaintance took charge of the two oldest, but the other unfortunate babies had to pass the night in the cells with the mother.

"Queensberry" was one of the names registered on the book at the Queen's Hotel yesterday afternoon. It meant nothing less than that the Most Honorable the Marquis of Queensberry, in the Peerage of Scotland, John Sholto Douglas, is in town. The Marquis, whose name is most familiar in sporting circles, arrived in town from New York last evening and will view Toronto for a day or so before going back to England. He travels and lives very quietly. His Lordship was in bed before 10 o'clock last night.

About midnight this morning a free fight took place on the corner of Queen and York-streets the result of which was the arrest of Thomas Green, 167 York-street. He was charged with being drunk. About 12.45 a.m. James Graham, 21 McCaul-street was taken to Headquarters in the patrol wagon when a charge of assaulting Inspector Stephen was laid against him.

A Thief for Many Years.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., May 6.—Lincoln Curtis, chief salesman for Congdon & Aylsworth, wholesale boot and shoe dealers of this city, was arrested to-day charged with embezzling $12,000. His method was to ship goods to houses in New York and other cities without entering the shipment on the books. The money in payment was sent to him as chief clerk and he kept it. His workings cover a long period of years. He is said to have no bad habits and was trusted and respected.

A Tumble in Iron.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The Thomas Iron Company to-day reduced iron for May and June delivery $1.50 per ton. President Clarke said: "The reason for the reduction is that southern people are crowding the market and trying to sell $1 per ton below our prices."

The Brantford Banquet.

BRANTFORD, May 6.—The banquet of the Farringdon Debating Society to-night was attended by about 250 persons. Mr. Wiman responded to the toast of "Our Guest," giving utterance at length to his well known views regarding the trade relations of Canada and the United States.

Our Hats are Inimitable

Every day now adds its emphasis to the judgment of gentlemen as to the beauty and excellence of our spring Hats. They're buying them. They're not doing it without having first compared and decided that ours bear away the prize for shapeliness and quality as well as for faultless making and moderate prices. Gentlemen are critical when it comes to getting a light weight Hat. They are a necessity in these spring days—a necessity in which they esteem style as essential. Witness the demand for our Genuine Cooksy, Woodrow and Elwood Celebrated Zephr weight Hats made especially for us. There is something peculiar and inimitable about the gracefulness of our Hats.

ATTAINED ITS MAJORITY.

TWENTY-FIRST ANNUAL MEETING OF THE MECHANICS INSTITUTE.

The Annual Reports Presented and Adopted—President and Board Elected—Vote of Thanks to the Retiring President and Directors of Last Year.

The twenty first annual meeting of the members of the Mechanics' Institute was held in the reading room of the Institute last evening, Mr. Robt. Robertson, the President, presiding.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

After routine the Secretary, Mr. Corkery, read the report of the Board of Directors, as follows:—

The Board of Directors beg to submit for the consideration of the members, the following report for the year ending April 30th, 1889.

As the Institute was established in the year 1868, this is the twenty-first annual meeting, and the Peterborough Mechanics' Institute may be said to have come of age. During the 21 years it has been in operation, while it has its ups and downs like other institutions, it has on the whole made fair progress, and, as your Directors believe, has been the means of doing good to many connected with it during that period.

To show that there has been reasonable progress, according to the first annual report the number of volumes owned by the Institute was 351; they now number 5,173; the number of volumes issued was 252; for the year just closed the number issued was 7,580; and the membership has increased from 130 to 292.

Although the past year has not been noted for briskness in trade, yet the Institute has made some advance over the preceding year, in the number of members and amount of subscriptions received.

The reading room has been supplied with several new magazines, periodicals and newspapers, and parents will be doing a lasting good to their children, and mechanics and others to their employees, by presenting them with tickets entitling them to the privilege of the library and reading room.

A class in mechanical drawing, taught by Mr. A. McCallum (draughtsman for the Wm. Hamilton Co.) was held during the winter and 21 joined. It was fairly successful, and would have been still more so had the attendance been as regular as it should have been. Ten members competed in the examination required by the Government, and we trust that most of them will succeed in obtaining certificates.

One of those who tried the examination last year obtained a certificate from the Education Department which entitles him to teach drawing.

The financial statement and report of the Library and Class Committees are herewith appended.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. ROBERTSON, President. JOHN CORKERY, Sec.-Treas.

THE LIBRARY.

The following is the report of the Library Committee:—

To the President Peterborough Mechanics' Institute.

	196	$341 65

Included in the above number are the following volumes presented to the Institute:—By Col. H. C. Rogers—a Cyclopædia of Canadian Biography; by Hon. Wade, Esq., Sec. Agricultural and Arts Association—9 vols. Canada Shorthorn Herd Book, and 3 vols. British Canada Shorthorn Herd Book; by Jas. Stevenson, Esq., M. P.—5 vols. Transactions of the Royal Society of Canada.

The reference library, already "strong," has been increased by the addition of several valuable works, including Appleton's Cyclopædia of American Biography, in 6 vols.

The library has been improved by the addition of some shelving during the winter, which will permit of a better arrangement of the books, and of adding to their number.

The number of members on 1st May was 292.

The number of volumes issued during the year was 7,580, classified as under:—

Biography	202
Essays	140
Fiction	3,690
History	225
Gen. literature	1,700
Miscellaneous	1,225
Poetry and drama	47
Periodicals	101
Religious works	80

Voyages and travel	690
Total	7,580

This total is about the same as last year. There has been an increase in the issue in the following classes.—Biography, essays, fiction, history, periodicals and voyages and travel. In the other classes the number issued was about the same or slightly less than last year.

Your committee has pleasure in reporting that the librarian has continued to fill his duties to their entire satisfaction as heretofore.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

F. J. LEWIS,
Chairman.

THE CLASSES.

The report of the Class Committee was as follows:—

To the President and Members of the Peterborough Mechanics' Institute:—

GENTLEMEN,—Your Class Committee beg leave to report that during the past winter a class in mechanical and freehand drawing has been conducted by Mr. McCallum. Twenty-one members were on the roll, of whom sixteen took mechanical drawing, two boiler making and two freehand drawing. Sixteen of these made an average attendance of twenty lessons, this being the condition under which the Government grant is obtained. On Monday evening last the examination was held, ten students presenting themselves, eight in mechanical drawing and two freehand. The results are not yet known, but judging from the progress of the pupils, it is believed they will be creditable. Your committee regrets that no other classes could be formed, as the public seem to favor well advertised institutions in preference to ours, even though conducted by efficient teachers and at the nominal rate charged by the Institute.

Respectfully submitted,

J. CLARKE, M. D.,
Chairman.

A SUGGESTION.

Dr. PIGEON suggested some of the illustrated papers and periodicals, instead of being sold, be retained as part of the library.

Mr. Lewis said that after they had been handled on the tables it would be better to buy bound copies.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The election of officers was then proceeded with, Messrs. Jas. Bogue and S. R. Armstrong acting as scrutineers. The following were elected:—

PRESIDENT—T. A. Hay, by acclamation.

DIRECTORS—F. H. Brennan, M. D., Geo. Burnham, M. D., John Clarke, M. D., John Corkery, Wm. English, James English, John Fraser, F. J. Lewis, Robert Robertson.

A vote of thanks was kindly given the scrutineers.

VOTE OF THANKS.

Mr. J. BOGUE moved, seconded by Dr. PIGEON,—That a vote of thanks be tendered the retiring President and the Board of Directors of last year.

The motion was put by the Secretary and carried unanimously.

Mr. ROBERTSON, in responding, said the Directors had done as well as they could—in fact some of them had been doing that on the board for twenty-one years. They had tried to do their duty and were pleased to know that they had given satisfaction.

The meeting then adjourned.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

The New Village Buildings—Plans Submitted—Accounts to be Paid.

At the meeting of the Ashburnham Council last night, Reeve J. Burnham presided, and those present were Councillors Calcutt, Tivey, Craig and Marshall.

ASSISTANCE WANTED.

A communication was received from the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society, asking the Council for some assistance in conjunction with the town and county in maintaining and beautifying the Court House park.

After considerable discussion, there being a difference of opinion as to what amount the grant should be, the communication was received and laid over.

SANCTIONED.

Councillor Calcutt moved, seconded by Councillor Craig,—That the plan of part of Block A, Ashburnham, prepared for registration by Bruce A. Lodgate, P.L.S., dated 6th August, 1886, for D. W. Dumble and W. Fitzgerald, is hereby sanctioned, and approved of by the Council.

The Council adjourned.

Endeavor Society.

At the Endeavor Society meeting held in the Charlotte-st. church last evening a most enjoyable evening was spent. The following programme was rendered:—Song, Mr. J. Crane, "I can not sing that song to-night"; Contributions from the casket by Mr. Rowse, Trade Reports, selected and an original story, "He did not like short cake"; Song, Mr. A. Tebb, "There is a green spot over the hill"; Reading, Mr. G. Nelson, "That hired Girl"; Song, Miss Lumsden, "That husband of mine." At the devotional meeting next Monday night the subject "What is the cause of Spiritual Degeneration," will be discussed. Miss Fawcett was elected chairman of the Entertainment Committee in place of Miss M. Neill, resigned.

George-st. Y. P. C. A.

About one hundred and fifty young people assembled in the lecture room of the George st. Methodist church last evening, the occasion being the first regular meeting of the Young People's Christian Association. The meeting was conducted by Mr. E. A. Pearson, B.A., the subject being "What shall we do with our hindrances"? A large number took part in the exercises, and a very profitable evening was spent. At the close a business meeting was held, President A. E. Scott in the chair. Nearly all present applied for "Active," the remainder for "Associate" membership. Another meeting will be held next Monday evening; subject "Self Denial"; leader, Mr. H. A. Strike, headmaster of Ashburnham Public school.

An Ailment of the Head.

As two men, one an old man of feeble years, were driving down George-st. last night seated on top of a load of bailed hay, one of them fell from the top of the load to the road and narrowly escaped having the heavy wheels of the waggon pass over him. The man was badly bruised about the head and when picked up seemed to be in a half stupified state. He said he was subject to an ailment which affected his head and that one of these attacks had caused him to fall from the load. Police Constable McGinty put the man back on the load, but seeing that the man was unable to ride on the load he took him off and locked him up. His name was given as James Patterson, of Fraserville. He was bailed out last night and failed to appear at the Police Court this morning. He will be tried on Saturday. He says he was not drunk.

WINFIELD, L.I., May 6.—During a game of baseball here yesterday, between the Excelsiors of Winfield and the Athletics of Long Island City, Robert Doyle, the umpire, was set upon by the Excelsiors who were defeated, and knocked down and stabbed in the face and neck. His injuries are serious.

The Dead.

Mrs. T. Charles Watson, wife of Major Watson of the Finance Department and well known in Canada and the United States as a talented actress, died in New York on Saturday. She was traveling with Rose Coghlan in "Jocelyn."

Big Men.

Don't think that because a man happens to be big and brawny and healthy he has no feelings. Such men are sometimes regarded as if made of door hinges and leviathan hide, and sash cords for nerves. It may be a mistake. There are men whose spiritual and physical make up is after this fashion, and some of them are big men. But the big men are not all so. There are some who are as tender as girls—as sensitive as the mimosa, and as quick to receive an impression as the down covered skin of a ripe peach. It is worth while to be gentle with such men. Kindness is not thrown away on them. They may be growing old, but as they advance they retain much of the boyish feeling they had when they weighed fewer pounds than they do now. If they are not trodden upon they may make happy old men when they are a little further on in years. But it is easy to sour them and crush them and make them disagreeable. Don't do it. Few people ever think of a big man as one who has any feelings worth considering, and yet many are as tender hearted as babes.—Woman's Work.

The Boating Club.

Boating is a manly exercise. None more so. It is a popular pastime in Peterborough, and there should be a large attendance at the annual meeting of the Boat Club, at the club house, Friday evening next, to which date it has been postponed.

After a Spring Supply.

The clothes lines are again receiving the attention of some individual or individuals of thieving propensities who are in search of a spring or summer supply of linen. The clothes line of Mr. John Leohane's on Aylmer-st., was visited last night and stripped of a good part of the week's laundry which was hanging thereon. Afterwards when a search was instituted the stolen linen was found concealed in a neighboring shed, but no trace of the thief was discovered.

Engagement Extraordinary.

An effort is made by a local committee to secure for the 14th of this month, Roberts Harper, of London, England, to give his world renowned illustrated lecture "Ireland and her evictions." Mr. Harper's views are generally acknowledged to be the best in the world. We trust that the committee will be successful that have the matter in hand in completing arrangements and we are sure that the citizens of Peterborough will largely patronize this high class entertainment.

To Lake Superior.

The number of orders of an interesting character that Mr. J. J. Turner receives from a distance is astonishing. Among the latest is an order for a large tent for Port Arthur. It will be erected in the centre of the town for an ice cream parlor and will be fitted up with awnings and other useful and ornamental appendages. The fame of the great tent and sail maker is not confined to any district, but has spread out, like one of his own great tents, until it covers the whole country.

Your Committee would recommend that rule 66 be strictly enforced as we find that several accounts have been contracted by parties without the knowledge of the Council. Your Committee would also recommend that the Fire Brigade be granted two hundred dollars for the band provided that they play at least once a week during the summer months.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. S. DAVIDSON,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

CHARITY.

Councillor Adam Hall, Chairman of the Charity Committee, presented the report of his committee, showing that the relief given in the months of March and April amounted to $321.25, as follows:—No. One Ward, $83.10; No. Two Ward, $85 10; No. Three Ward, $120.80; No. Four Ward, $32 25.

The report was adopted.

NEW HYDRANTS AND MAINS.

Councillor Adam Hall, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, presented the report of that committee which read as follows:—

To the Mayor and Corporation of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Fire, Water and Light Committee beg leave to report and recommend that Terrance Smith supply one extra horse and man for street watering purposes, and that he receive $275 for the same from May 1st to October 1st, 1889. Also that the Waterworks Company be instructed to lay their mains and place hydrants on the following streets:—

Main to be laid from London to Brock, with hydrant to be put on corner of Aylmer and Murray, and hydrant now on McDonnel-st. to be moved to corner of McDonnel and Aylmer-sts. Hydrant to be placed on corner of Brock and Stewart. Hydrant to be placed on corner of King and Aylmer. Hydrant to be placed on corner of Townsend and Aylmer. Hydrant to be placed on corner of Lake and Aylmer. Hydrant to be placed on corner George and Lake. Main to be laid from Charlotte-st. to King on Rubidge. Main to be laid from Reid to Park on Brock. Hydrants to be placed on Park-st. corner Cedar and Park. Hydrant to be placed on Park-st., corner of Weller and Park-st. Hydrant to be placed on Park-st., corner of Gilmour and Park-st. and main to be continued to King-st. Hydrant to be placed on corner of George and Barnardo-st., and that there be a stand pipe on the corner of McDonnel and Aylmer and corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer.

Your Committee awarded the contract for the two watering carts to Mr. Yelland for the sum of $260.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ADAM HALL,
Chairman.

THEY ALL WANTED THEM.

Councillor KENDRY moved, seconded by Councillor HARTLEY, that the report be amended and a clause inserted that a hydrant be placed on corner of Cemetery and Aylmer-sts.

Several of the Councillors objected to the amending of the report.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON, that the report be further amended and that provision be made for placing a hydrant on the corner of Park and Patterson-sts.

Both these amendments were referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee for consideration.

WHO WILL WATER THE STREETS?

Councillor HARTLEY opposed the first clause of the report recommending that Terrance Smith supply an extra horse and man for street watering purposes. He did not think it fair or right to give one man the monopoly of the town work or to ask him to supply a sixth horse when there were so many other teamsters not doing much. He moved that the clause be struck out.

Councillor DAWSON agreed with Councillor Hartley and thought the extra street watering should be given to an outside team. He seconded the motion for the striking out of the clause.

Councillor LANGFORD thought an outside team should be employed, as the streets had never been so well watered as when it was done by outside parties.

Councillor ADAM HALL explained that by giving the watering of the streets to Terrance Smith the town would save $150, as Smith had a horse now standing in the stable and would only require to engage an extra one, whereas an outside man would have to be paid for a team.

On a vote the report was not adopted as read.

Just at this stage Councillor Rutherford entered the Chamber, and Councillor ADAM HALL moved that the report be re-considered so that Councillor Rutherford might vote in the matter.

Councillor RUTHERFORD said he had not heard the matter spoken of at the committee meeting, but expressed himself as being opposed to one man monopolizing the town work.

It was then pointed out that if the clause was struck out of the report that it would have to be referred back to the committee again and this would cause a delay in the street watering, which was undesirable. It was therefore decided to substitute a clause asking for tenders for the extra team and man to do the work, and some one asked whether Terrance Smith would be allowed to tender or not.

Councillor HARTLEY and others said no.

Councillor DAVIDSON said that there must be some personal spite against Mr. Smith if Mr. Hartley objected to him tendering.

Councillor HARTLEY—No; I have nothing against Mr. Smith, but I don't want to see one man monopolizing the whole of this work.

Councillor DAWSON said there was a teamster who was an old taxpayer who had told him that he had not anything for his team to do, and he (Mr. Dawson) thought this work should be given to an outside man.

Councillor DAVIDSON—Who was that man?

Councillor DAWSON—Michael Bolton.

Councillor Davidson—Isn't that the man who you said you would go ten miles to get another rather than employ him? (Laughter.)

Councillor DAWSON said that was not so, but at all events he wanted to see an outside man do this work.

So the discussion went on, all the Councillors joining in, and almost all complaining of the way the streets were being watered. Finally Councillor HARTLEY moved in amendment to the report, seconded by Councillor KENDRY,—That the first part of the report referring to Terrance Smith watering the streets be struck out and that another team be engaged to water the streets with the extra watering cart, and that tenders be taken for the work, and that the Fire, Water and Light Committee have power to close the contract.

After a little further discussion this amendment was carried and the report adopted.

NEW SIDEWALKS.

Councillor LANGFORD, chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee, read the following report:—

To the Mayor and Corporation of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Street and Bridge Committee beg leave to report and recommend the following works:—

Continuation of Aylmer-st. if parties interested will give the land for the street the corporation will take over the street and grade it.

On the petition of Geo. Dunsford we would recommend a crossing at Charlotte and Water-sts., but cannot recommend removal of steps.

The petition of P. J. McNamara be granted. New sidewalk four feet wide to be laid on McDonnel-st., from Downey to Park-sts.; sidewalk five feet wide to be laid on London-st. between George and Water-sts.; sidewalk four feet wide on Aylmer-st., from London-st. north to G.T.R.; culvert to be put down on corner of of Dublin and Aylmer-sts; sidewalk four feet wide on Rubidge-st., from Sherbrooke to Dalhousie-st.; sidewalk four feet wide on Wolfe-st., from Aylmer to Bethune-sts.; George-st. to be water-tabled from Murray-st. to Edinburgh-st.

That sixteen M feet of cedar be delivered on Crescent-st. to complete crib work.

That portion of Water-st. known as "The Goose Pond," be cribbed to at least five feet above water mark.

The petition of the Bell Telephone Co. be granted on condition that the Company can arrange with the Great North Western Telegraph Co. for the use of their poles, and that the number of poles on George-st. shall not be increased, and that the system as proposed in their petition of fire alarm be carried out and maintained to the satisfaction of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, or this privilege to become void.

WM. LANGFORD,
Chairman.

Councillor RUTHERFORD objected to such a report for so many improvements being presented before the Committee had made a round of the town to see if these works were necessary.

Councillor LANGFORD explained that the Council were committed to a larger portion of the expenditure.

The report as read was adopted.

THE TOWN PHYSICIAN.

Councillor KENDRY, Chairman of the Committee on Appointments, reported, recommending that Dr. Yelland be appointed town physician at a salary of $100.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL thought this an unnecessary expense, as he did not see the use of a town physician when they had a hospital.

Councillor HARTLEY pointed out that there were many cases which did not have to go to the hospital and if they paid the full doctor's charges they would find it would be more expensive.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL asked if the Committee had received any other applications.

Councillor KENDRY said they did receive others, but that was the recommendation of the Committee that Dr. Yelland be appointed.

Councillor HALL—Did any of those applying state the salaries they would accept?

Councillor KENDRY—That's the recommendation of the Committee.

Councillor HALL—Do you refuse to give the information?

Councillor KENDRY—I do refuse.

Councillor LANGFORD—I was on the Committee and I could tell you, but I don't wish to.

Councillor HALL thought that the Medical Health Officer could combine the duties of town physician with those of his present office and he moved to that effect, but got no seconder.

Councillor RUTHERFORD thought the Committee should answer the question Mr. Hall had put to them, but on the whole he thought the report of the committee should be adopted.

The report was then adopted as read.

THE NEW MARKET BUILDING.

Councillor CAHILL, as Chairman of the Market Committee, then presented the report of his committee as follows:—

To the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Market Committee beg leave to withdraw a report submitted at a previous meeting, recommending that a market house should be built along Water-st., south from the present market house, and that the following be adopted in lieu thereof. That is to say that a market house be built along George-st. south from the present opera house.

Your Committee attach hereto a brief description and sketch of the proposed building prepared by the Town Engineer.

Your Committee recommend that work on the proposed building be proceeded with at once under the supervision of your Committee and the Town Engineer, and that your Committee be authorized to ask for tenders and enter into contracts for that purpose. Also that the present market house be taken down when the new one shall be ready for occupation.

Your Committee further recommend that the ratepayers be requested to decide whether the building shall be paid for by direct taxation this year or by the issue of debentures covering a period of years, and for this purpose that a by-law be prepared for submission to the ratepayers, such by-law to provide that the revenue arising from said building be appropriated to meet the interest and sinking fund on such debentures which your Committee believe will be amply sufficient for such purpose.

Your Committee are in doubt whether it it is necessary to ask the consent of the Town Commissioners to use the ground proposed to be utilized, but in order to remove any doubt on that point recommend that their approval be requested.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOS. CAHILL,
Chairman.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE BUILDING.

The description of the new building, which was attached to the report, was as follows:—

The plans submitted propose a building 127 feet in length by 60 feet in depth with a rear addition for stair cases and entrances. The plans provide for four single stores, two north and two south of a central arcade; this arcade is 64 feet in width, having a central passage through from George-st. to the market square in the rear of 25 feet wide, with five stalls at each side, each 19 ft. 6 in. by 11 ft. The ground floor stores and arcade are to be 15 feet in height with a market over on the first floor, of 125 feet by 60 feet with a height to ceiling of 20 feet. It is intended that this market shall be fitted with the necessary counters and benches required for the display of produce. Two grand staircases form an easy approach to this market, under which retiring rooms are provided for women, besides approaches to the cellars which run under the entire block. The fronts are to be of white brick, having plate glass and metal columns, the entire surmounted with a mansard roof, all covered with slate and galvanized iron.

The plans were examined by all the Councillors, and the building as it appears on paper will be a handsome one and an ornament to George-st.

Councillor RUTHERFORD asked what would be the probable cost of the building.

Councillor CAHILL said the architect's estimate was $11,000, and he proceeded to support the report with a few remarks, saying that he believed everyone would agree that the building was necessary and that the present building had outlived its usefulness and was a disgrace to the town.

The report was carried.

BY-LAWS.

The by-law providing for the issuing of debentures to the extent of $10,000 for public school purposes was read a third time, numbered and adopted.

Another by-law making provision for the annual grant of $500 to the Horticultural Society was given its three readings and numbered.

THAT INIQUITOUS AMENDMENT.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL then submitted a memorial to be presented to the Ontario Government asking them to refund the money which they take from the town by their recent amendment to the Liquor License Act. Councillor Hall said Peterborough and Brockville were the only two places affected by the amendment and he had received a letter from the Mayor of Brockville stating that the Council of that place would back up any efforts made by the Peterborough Council towards having this matter righted. Councillor Hall also stated that he and Councillor Cahill had interviewed the Hon. A. S. Hardy when he was [illegible] attending court and that gentleman, while not committing himself, had promised that a memorial would be given consideration.

The memorial was read and adopted and Mayor Stevenson, and Councillors E. H. D. Hall, Cahill, Rutherford and Davidson were appointed a committee to wait upon the Ontario Government and present the memorial, a committee from the Brockville Council to accompany the delegation.

THE SCHOOL REPRESENTATIVE.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL brought up the matter of appointing a representative on the Board of Education in the place of Mr. Stratton, resigned, and moved, seconded by Councillor A. HALL,—That Mr. E. B. Edwards be appointed to fill the vacancy.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved in amendment, seconded by Councillor LANGFORD, that Dr. Boucher be the Council's representative.

This amendment was carried.

CLOSING BUSINESS.

Councillor DAVIDSON moved that the commissioners of the Town Trust be authorized to comply with the request of the Secretary of the Town Trust commissioners re debentures.

The motion carried.

Councillor DAVIDSON suggested that the town enquire and find out who was the owner of the strip of land lying between the C.P.R. spur and the river bank with a view of obtaining permission to fill the same in and use it.

The suggestion will be acted upon.

The Council then adjourned.

The general Excursion Committee for the Masonic excursion held a meeting last night and perfected details of the trip. It promises to be the excursion of the season, speedy, pleasant and enjoyable.

Canoeists' Portrait Gallery.

The issue of Sail and Paddle for May, a publication devoted to canoeing, contains portraits of the chief officers of the American Canoe Association for the last six years. Three of the portraits are of Canadians. Commodore E. B. Edwards—1883, Commodore F. S. Rathbun—1886, and Commodore H. C. Rogers—1889. Commodore Edwards picture does him only fair justice while that of Commodore Rogers is not quite up to the mark. Accompanying the portrait is a well written biographical sketch contributed by a fellow club member, connecting the commodore with canoeing as a pastime and as a member of the A.C.A.

Presentation and Address.

At the regular meeting of Lansdowne Lodge, No. 25, held on Monday evening, a Past President's jewel was presented to Bro. Thos. Gunn by the lodge as a memento of the services he has rendered to the lodge in filling the Past President's chair for three years, accompanied by the following address:—

DEAR SIR AND BRO.,—We, the officers and members of Lansdowne Lodge, No. 25, S. O. E., have much pleasure in presenting you with a Past President's jewel, as a slight acknowledgement of the long and valuable services you have rendered this lodge as Past President, trusting you may be long spared to wear the same, and also to give your valuable services to this lodge and Society at large.

Signed on behalf of the officers and members of Lansdowne Lodge.

F. J. MITCHELL, W. P.
E. W. ELCOMBE, W. S.

The jewel is of silver and consists of a bar surmounted by a lion attached to a tri colored ribbon, upon which are fixed two silver flags and two roses, gold and silver, representing the red and white rose degrees, and a silver pendant is attached to the ribbon, in the shape of an eight pointed star with the Queen's head in relief, wrought in gold. The jewel bears the inscription, "Bro. Thos. Gunn, P. P., 1886, Lansdowne Lodge, No. 25, Sons of England Benevolent Society." Mr. Gunn made a suitable reply, returning thanks to the members for their kindness.

VIOLENCE AT THE POLLS.

Armed Men Prevent Negroes from Voting in a Louisiana Town Election

LAFAYETTE, La., May 6.—At 6 o'clock this morning the Court House was surrounded by 20 or 30 armed men. These men in menacing tones proclaimed that no negro should vote at this municipal election. A large number of men with arms were in the immediate neighborhood of Court House-square. At the several entrances to the square armed men were posted and negroes were not permitted to enter. At 6.30 Sheriff Broussard offered to escort men to vote at the north entrance to the square. He attempted to enter with those men, when there was a rush of armed men to the entrance with cries of "Shoot 'em," "Kill him," "Don't allow the —— to go in." The voters turned back. The sheriff entered the Court House and the Commissioners and the clerk of the court and the sheriff who were holding the election closed the polls and retired. A sworn statement by these officers was mailed to the Governor.

Ten of the "Regulators" Arrested.

NEW ORLEANS, May 6.—A dispatch to Governor Nichols from Sheriff Broussard states the latter has arrested ten of the regulators concerned in the election outrage at Lafayette. The sheriff thinks the parish authorities will be able to suppress the disorder and punish those engaged in the crime. As a precautionary measure the military has been ordered to be ready to move at a moment's notice. The interrupted election will be held at some future day. It is stated that the larger portion of the regulators were non-residents of the town.

THE SANDWICH MAN.

Ups and Downs of a Supernumerary Who Has Been with Mapleson.

Among the curious incidents in Col. Mapleson's "Memoirs" is the story of an officer in the British army, who told the substance of his down grade career in social position: "I was formerly," he said, "a captain in the —— regiment, and many a time have I paid my six guineas for a box at your opera, both in Edinburgh and in London. Subsequently I began to take a great interest in the turf, and soon met with heavy losses, which compelled me to give various promissory notes. This at last came to the knowledge of my colonel, who recommended me to leave the regiment without delay. Having nothing to live upon, and being a fair performer on the cornet-a-piston, I joined a traveling circus, and ultimately came across your opera company in Philadelphia, where I was one of your stage band. Later on I joined a party who were bound for the diamond fields in South Africa, where I was most unsuccessful, and I had to work my passage home in a sailing ship, till I got to London, where I became a supernumerary under your management at Drury Lane. During your third season an aunt of mine died, and I found myself the possessor of £10,000."

"My cousin, who was largely interested in building operations, which he assured me paid him at least 60 per cent., induced me to place half my fortune in his speculations. His houses were in the west part of London, which had been considerably overbuilt; and, being mortgaged, they would have been lost but for my paying away the remainder of my fortune with the view of saving them. In spite of this the mortgage foreclosed and I again became a supernumerary, when, in the mimic fight in the second act of 'Trovatore,' one of my companions by mere accident with the point of a spear put my eye out. I was now no longer qualified for engagement even as a supernumerary, and I became a 'sandwich' man. My duties during the last four and a half years have been to parade Bond street and Regent street, receiving as payment nine pence a day."

On my handing the poor man his salary and settling up, he at first declined to take the money, saying that I had done him so many kindnesses at different periods of his life that now, when I was in trouble myself, he could not think of taking his week's pay. I, however, not only insisted upon his accepting it, but gave him a sovereign for himself. The unfortunate gentleman, as he showed himself to the last, went away blessing me.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Rather Embarrassing to the Girl.

A young woman brought a ring to a jeweler the other day and requested him to reset the stone, which she said was loose. She spoke of it as a diamond solitaire. The jeweler took the ring and said he would attend to it. As the customer was leaving the store the jeweler called her back and said: "This stone is glass, ma'am—I want you to understand that."

The young woman colored up and exclaimed with wrath in her voice: "It's no such thing—it's a real diamond. Glass, indeed!"

"Excuse me, ma'am," politely rejoined the jeweler, "it is nothing more than a piece of common crystal or glass. There is no doubt whatever about it."

"But it was a present given to me last Christmas by a very dear friend who wouldn't think of giving me a sham diamond," the young woman persisted.

"I'm sorry, ma'am," replied the jeweler, "somebody's been deceived very likely, but this stone is absolutely worthless; a chip of glass."

Well, the young woman argued still further about the ring and insisted it was very valuable, and at last took it away with her, saying that she would take it somewhere else to be repaired. She was nearly in tears when she left the store.

After she had gone the jeweler said to me: "I did not want to hurt that girl's feelings, but when a ring of that kind is given to me to be repaired I always make it a practice of having it clearly understood that the stone is valueless. If I did not I should run the risk of having that young woman come back after she had discovered that the stone was not a diamond, and accuse me of changing it in the resetting. Such a charge was once made against me under circumstances of this kind, and since then I have followed a cautious policy for my own protection. That girl was honest, I've no doubt, but I cannot afford to take any chances."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

WHEAT AT CHICAGO.

During the last three days of last week the tone of wheat at Chicago was greatly improved. The improvement was more marked yesterday, when the leading futures made a sudden advance of two cents each. May wheat closed on Saturday at 80¾c, and June at the same figure. Yesterday morning May wheat opened at 82c and quickly advanced to 83¼c. June options opened strong at 81½ and sold to 83c. This stronger and healthier tone is due to the encouragement the bulls have received from despatches noting unseasonably cold weather in the West, stories of dryness in the Northwest, which reflected serious apprehensions of damage should generous rains fail to fall; from the south come reports of dangerous drought and development of insect life.

CAPITAL GOSSIP ANENT CHANGES IN THE CABINET.

The Rumored Railway Deal—Meeting of the Royal Society—The Railway Committee's Busy Day.

OTTAWA, May 7.—The impression seems to gather force here that Mr. Haggart, Postmaster-General, will be removed into the sphere of Railways and Canals. Senator Abbott, if not otherwise barred from accepting the office as a Canadian Pacific Railway director, is altogether unwilling to undertake an office the duties of which would require his constant presence at the Capital. It is much more probable that the leader of the Senate will undertake the duties relinquished by Mr. Haggart, and there is no doubt that in every sense he would be a most acceptable substitute. In this case there will be no necessity for Mr. Abbott to leave the Senate, and his presence at Ottawa would not be required with the regularity and frequency that the other department would entail.

The Northern Pacific head officers were closeted all day yesterday with the directors of the Northwest Central Railway, with the view of purchasing the road. Captain Murray, one of the leading directors of the Central, was telegraphed for yesterday and arrived here this morning.

The Royal Society met to-day in one of the committee rooms of the House of Commons and adopted the annual report. The Society presented an address to Lord Stanley this afternoon.

It was a busy day before the Railway Committee of the Privy Council to-day. The members of the committee present were Sir John Macdonald, Sir. A. P. Caron, Sir Hector Langevin, Hon. John Carling and Sir John Thompson.

The first case taken up was the application of the Grand Trunk to build a spur from their line at the town of Chatham so as to reach the wharves on the river front. Objection was taken on the ground that it would interfere with private property and also with the streets, to the detriment of the town. The company's solicitor, Mr. Bell, argued that that did not come under the Railway Act. The question for the committee to decide was: Is it in the public interest that it should be built? The company would have to decide with private property holders afterwards. After delegations were here, both for and against, the committee took the matter into consideration.

The next application was that of the Grand Trunk to build a spur from a point on their main line round by the Beach to reach the Hamilton and Northwestern. The application stands over.

The Dominion Statistician, Mr. George Johnson, speaking to a reporter on the manner in which Mr. Erastus Wiman compared the progress of Canada with that of the United States in his lecture here on Saturday evening last, said the lecturer took it for granted that the Dominion had not made the same advance in respect of population as her neighbor. This statement was not proven by the fact that the Dominion had 500,000 people in 1810. The United States in that same year had 7,250,000. Canada has increased ten times, the United States but nine times. Had the United States increased their population as rapidly as the Dominion of Canada they would now have 72,500,000 instead of the 65,000,000 Mr. Wiman claimed for them.

The Supreme Court met to-day and only sat for a few minutes. This was owing to the first case on the list being withdrawn, and the counsel for the others not being present. The court meets again to-morrow.

Messrs. McKay & Co.'s flour mills, one of the largest in Central Canada, have suspended operations owing to the high price of wheat. Ald. Hutchinson, manager of the company, said the mills would not reopen until they could conduct business without loss. Speaking of a general suspension he said it was inevitable.

MANITOBA'S CABINET.

Col. McMillan Sworn in—Arrest of an Escaped Convict.

WINNIPEG, May 7.—Col. McMillan took the oath of office as Provincial Treasurer this morning. W. F. Luxton of The Free Press may oppose him in Centre Winnipeg.

Reddon, the absconding Chief of Police of Rat Portage, is believed to have perished in the woods about that place and another search party has been sent out after him.

Albert Peterson, the Norwegian who escaped from Stony Mountain Penitentiary nearly 16 years ago, was arrested here this morning by the city police. Peterson was incarcerated for three years, but escaped to the States after serving one. He returned a few days ago to see his old friends. The top of his left ear is missing and he was thus identified. Peterson intended returning to the States to-day.

Earl Lonsdale arrived here to-night from the west and is the guest of Chief Commissioner Wrigley of the Hudson's Bay Company. He proceeds to New York in a day or so to join Lady Lonsdale.

Lake Freights.

CHICAGO, May 7.—After a long and hard fight to maintain lake freights vessel men have succumbed and rates have dropped off ½ cent, or to the basis of 2 cents on corn to Buffalo. The prospect for the future does not give much hope that the drop will have much effect on increasing business. Rates are not so much the question now as the supply of corn. With but 300 or 400 cars a day coming in there is certain to be constantly more vessel room on the market than shippers can take and a downward tendency of lake freights. Shippers have no idea that the receipts of corn will be increased until after the rush of spring work on the farms is over. The through lake and rail lines have as yet given no notice of any reduction in their tariff.

Bitten by a Vicious Dog.

INGERSOLL, May 8.—Monday afternoon a young child of Mr. Kerr of Centreville was badly bitten by a vicious dog belonging to Mr. Cook. The dog attacked the child and lacerated its leg in a frightful manner. Serious fears are entertained of the child's recovery, but the doctor hopes fatal results may be avoided.

PARNELL TAKES IT BACK

HE THINKS NOW THAT HE WAS MISTAKEN ON FRIDAY.

His House of Commons Speech Referred to Ribbonism and Was Fairly Accurate—General Cable News

LONDON, May 7.—The Parnell Commission resumed its sittings to-day. Mr. Parnell upon taking the stand said he desired to correct that part of his evidence given Friday in relation to the statement made by him in the House of Commons concerning the non-existence of secret societies in Ireland. Upon referring to the Hansard reports of the proceedings of the House he found that his remarks which had been quoted by Attorney-General Webster referred particularly to ribbonism and not to secret conspiracies generally. His remarks therefore were a fairly accurate statement of the facts, as ribbonism at that time practically did not exist in Ireland. The cross-examination of the witness was then resumed.

Mr. Parnell said he had not heard of 100 guineas being paid for the defence of moonlighters at the Cork Assizes in 1881. If he had been asked to make such payments he should in those days have approved of them if he had reason to believe the law was being strained against a man, but his general rule was to limit such payments as much as possible. He remembered one case in which he had sanctioned the payment of money for the defence of a prisoner and the man was acquitted. In another case he reimbursed Mr. Harris, who had made himself responsible for the costs of the defence, but at the same time witness instructed Mr. Harris not to undertake in the future the defence of accused moonlighters. Mr. Parnell said he sometimes paid money from his own private account in behalf of the League. He did not object to an inspection of his accounts.

Attorney-General Webster here began a protracted examination of the witness as to his banking transactions, but failed to elicit anything of note. Being further catechised upon his knowledge of General Millen and other members of the Physical Force party, Mr. Parnell declared that a majority of the members of that party were utter strangers to him. He heard that Mr. Egan had joined the Clan-na-Gael. He would regret to find that Mr. Egan had joined the Physical Force party, but he should not think such a course unnatural.

Referring to his speeches made in America, as reported in The Irish World, witness said he could not accept the reports as correct. Mr. Ford garbled the speeches in order to suite the taste of the readers of The Irish World. Witness had never made this statement publicly before because it was not necessary. Recurring to secret societies, Mr. Parnell said that he considered that a person who joined the league and continued to be a member of the Clan-na-Gael acted to the injury of the league's policy. Any member of the league who would advocate the use of dynamite would be a traitor.

O'Brien and Harrington Were There.

LONDON, May 7.—Messrs. O'Brien and Harrington were present at to-day's session of the Parnell Commission.

Gone Over to the Gladstonians.

LONDON, May 7.—The annual meeting of the National Liberal Club was held to-day, 2000 members being present. A resolution was adopted rescinding a previous declaration of the club, "That owing to the divisions at present existing in the party it is not desirable for the club to be actively identified with any section of it." To-day's action is tantamount to declaring the club a Gladstonian body.

Elected a Life Member.

LONDON, May 7.—After an excited discussion Mr. Parnell was to-day elected a life member of the National Liberal Club by a large majority.

Vincent's Commercial Union Motion.

LONDON, May 7.—Mr. Howard Vincent's motion in favor of the commercial union of the British Empire was the third order of business in the House of Commons to-night, but when the House resumed at nine o'clock only 39 members were present. The House therefore adjourned, and the question has now little chance of discussion this session. The motion has been on the order paper without any action being taken upon it since the opening of the session of 1888. There seems to be a widespread feeling even among the friends of Imperial Federation that public opinion is not ripe for such a proposal, and that a premature debate would likely injure the general movement.

The Naval Defence Bill.

LONDON, May 7.—The Naval Defence Bill passed its second reading in the House of Commons to-day by a vote of 227 to 130.

Carnot Cheered.

PARIS, May 7.—President Carnot to-day received M. Eiffel, the designer and builder of the tower bearing his name, and the workmen who were engaged in its construction. All the President's visitors inscribed their names in a book provided for the purpose. Upon leaving the visitors cheered President Carnot and the republic.

A Lively Funeral.

PARIS, May 7.—The funeral of Rochefort's son to-day was attended by MM. Lockroy, Susini, Clovis-Hughes, Laur, Herrisse, Derouche and a large number of Boulangists. The passage of a tram car occasioned a collision with the police. The car was wrecked in the fight and a number of police and other persons were injured.

Carnot Congratulated.

PARIS, May 7.—Most of the European sovereigns have congratulated President Carnot upon his escape from assassination. Perrin, who fired at the President, has engaged M. Laguerre to defend him. From this it is inferred that the prisoner is a Boulangist.

Russian Suspects Expelled.

BERNE, May 7.—The Bundesrath has ordered the expulsion from Switzerland of a number of Russians suspected of being concerned in the secret manufacture of bombs at Zurich.

Proposed International Conference.

BRUSSELS, May 7.—King Leopold has proposed that an international conference be held in September to complete the work of the Congo conference at Berlin.

The Samoan Conference.

BERLIN, May 7.—At the Samoan Conference the details of the coming changes in Samoa are being debated at length, but no differences as to the principle now exist. The delegates desire the neutrality of the islands. The Americans have achieved marked success and have impressed Prince Bismarck with their firmness and diplomacy. Prince Bismarck spoke to the commissioners to-day in English. His manner was very affable. He said he was glad to hear of the progress made by the conference.

Bismarck and the Commissioners.

BERLIN, May 7.—Prince Bismarck gave an audience to the commissioners to the Samoan conference to-day. Count Herbert Bismarck was present. The audience lasted for ¾ of an hour.

Hamilton's Summer Carnival.

HAMILTON, May 7.—The Board of Trade has taken up the summer carnival scheme and appointed a committee to wait on the City Council and secure its co-operation.

The Bridge Rebuilt.

NIAGARA FALLS, May 8.—The new foot and carriage suspension bridge at the Falls, lately rebuilt after being blown down, was thrown open to the public yesterday.

INCENDIARISM SUSPECTED.

A Scorcher at Kettleby—Carr's Harness Shop Burnt—The Losses.

KETTLEBY, May 7.—At 1.30 to-day B. F. Carr's harness shop at Kettleby was discovered in flames. The fire spread to the adjoining hotel stables and only by strenuous efforts and favorable winds was the rest of the village saved. Carr's loss on stock is $400, insured in the Gore District for $365; R. Archibold on building $300, no insurance; Harry Isaacs' loss $600, insurance very light. Other buildings were scorched and windows broken. Incendiarism is suspected.

An Ohio Village Burnt.

FINDLAY, O., May 7.—At midnight last night fire broke out in a meat shop in Beaver Dam, and almost the entire business portion of the village was consumed. The scene following the fire was indescribable. Men, women and children only had time to escape in their night clothes, and no shelter could be found for them. Lima sent a portion of her fire department to Beaver Dam, but owing to scarcity of water the firemen could do but little. About 25 buildings were destroyed, including Oddfellows' Hall, Brown's Hotel, the postoffice and the jail. Loss $60,000, insurance $14,000.

Many Valuable Horses Burnt.

CYNTHIANA, Ky., May 7.—The stables of Captain Moore were burnt last night consuming fifteen valuable horses including Van Wilkes, valued at $15,000; Kentucky Hambletonian, $10,000; Twilight Wilkes, $5000; Bourbon Bismarck, $4500; Bismarck Pilot, $4000; Star Bismarck, $3500. Total loss over $60,000.

A Town Hall Burnt.

WINDSOR, May 8.—The Belle River Town Hall was burnt Sunday night. It was only by the greatest exertions that the records were saved.

Farmers Fighting Fire.

BAY CITY, Mich., May 8.—The Kawkawlin farmers, seven miles northwest of this city, are out fighting fires and the flames are spreading rapidly. Everything on the farms of Messrs. Powell, Shearer, Reaks, Moshier and Whitman, except the dwellings, have been destroyed.

Gone Up in Smoke.

A Blaze at Beamsville.

BEAMSVILLE, May 8.—About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon a fire broke out in the woodshed of J. B. Osborne in this village, endangering barns, etc. Owing to the prompt aid offered by neighbors in the first instance and the splendid action of the fire brigade, the fire was confined to the shed where it originated, and to the ice house adjoining. Mr. Osborne's loss will be about $400.

INGERSOLL NEWS.

Annual Meeting of the Cheese Association—Good Prospects.

INGERSOLL, May 7.—The annual meeting of the members of the Ingersoll Cheese Association was held in the council chamber this afternoon at two o'clock. A very large number were in attendance. Mr. E. Caswell, the oldest cheese exporter in the province, was unanimously elected chairman. The following board of directors were elected for the ensuing year: Messrs. Fewster, Galloway, Caswell, Nancekivell, Fulton and Patterson; Treasurer, Geo. Galloway. The old auditors, Thomas Mayberry and Thomas Winders, were re-elected.

A resolution was passed thanking the council for their very liberal donation of $150 to the board. It was also passed at a subsequent meeting of the board of directors that all members must pay $3, their annual dues, before the first of June in order to entitle them to receive the market reports.

W. R. Smith, the town clerk, was appointed secretary for the ensuing year. From the present prospects a larger number of factories will offer their cheese for sale here than have done so for a number of years.

A Doctor in Trouble.

CHATHAM, May 7.—Dr. Bright is in trouble again. A policeman this morning between five and six o'clock found Clara Wrightman in the street, apparently very ill. He took her to the police station, where he elicited the statement that she had a miscarriage in Victoria Park last evening, the result of medicine given her with that intent by Dr. Bright. The doctor was arrested, and a preliminary examination with closed doors held. During the cross-examination of the girl she got so ill that the magistrate had to stop the enquiry. The bottle of medicine which the girl says Bright gave her to procure an abortion she had given to another young girl in a similar predicament, who gave it up to the police. Bright was remanded till next Monday in $10,000 bail, himself in $5000 and two sureties in $2500 each.

An Instance of Yankee Aggression.

INTERNATIONAL BRIDGE, May 8.—The American channel in the Niagara River opposite Strawberry Island, about one mile below the international bridge, has become filled up so much that loaded vessels cannot pass through with safety. This has been caused by Buffalo city contractors dumping dredging into the river. The American people are now dredging the channel and dumping the mud into the Canadian channel and filling it up. If the Canadian authorities do not take immediate action the channel in the Niagara River will be impassable in a short time.

Oil Futures.

PITTSBURG, May 7.—The conference committees of the various oil exchanges who met here to-day decided to recommend dealing in futures. Rules governing the same similar to those in vogue on the Chicago Grain Exchange were adopted. The rules will be submitted to the exchanges for action, and if acceptable to a majority dealing in futures, will become one of the leading features of the oil trade.

The Cup that Cheers.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Consul Crowell, at Amoi, China, reports that while this year's tea crop shows a shrinkage of 23,000 half chests its inferiority is fully equal to last year's crop. The consul says a large proportion of the Amoi Oolong is poorly cultivated, poorly picked, ill cured, dirty and adulterated. The Amoi Commissioner of Customs called it "[illegible]" which was alone wanted in America. Nearly the whole crop is marketed in the United States. The greed of importers and exporters alone makes it possible to impose this vile stuff upon the American public. The Consul hopes the tea drinkers of America may be protected against the Amoi Oolong and says the existing laws against importation of bad and adulterated teas are sufficient to do it if enforced. Most of the Oolong goes to New York and honest inspection there would prevent the importa-

Mangled by a Train—A Fatal Accident—The Laval University Muddle—Quebec's Intervention in The Mail-Jesuit Suit.

MONTREAL, May 8.—The Dominion Alliance have petitioned the City Council to close all saloons at 7 o'clock Saturday night.

Mrs. McGrath, wife of the murderer, called on the Chief of Police yesterday afternoon and requested him to obtain her a pass to Chatham as she could obtain no employment anywhere in this city on account of her husband's crime.

Premier Mercier returned to Quebec to-day.

The little daughter of Michael Leger, hotelkeeper at Willow station between Blue Bonnets and Lachine, had her arm badly crushed by a train Monday evening and the limb had to be amputated. The victim was out for a walk with a number of other girls and they had crossed the track near Convent station when she ran back to place a pin on the rail but did not notice the approaching train. Before she could rise from her stooped position one of the car wheels passed over her arm crushing it frightfully. She was very weak yesterday but the physicians entertain hopes of saving her life.

Mrs. Barolet, an old lady residing on Lafontaine-street, died suddenly yesterday. She was quite well Monday but while making "home-made" soap some of the lye entered her eye and she suffered intense pain until yesterday morning when she expired.

Mgr. Hamel, rector of Laval University, has had an interview with all the faculties of the Montreal branch of the institution. The result of the meeting has not yet been made known, but it seems understood that the Quebec authorities represented by the rector have signified their intention to completely withdraw from Montreal, a course which the local faculties approve of. The change would not be made abruptly, but the present modus vivendi would be continued for some time, until things have been put in such a shape as not to leave Montreal without a Catholic university.

F. L. Berque, Q.C., produced the intervention of the Attorney-General yesterday in the Jesuit-Mail suit upholding the constitutionality of the Quebec Act incorporating the order.

The 2-year old daughter of J. Duperron, who was run over by a baker's wagon on Saturday, has died from her injuries.

The weather was exceedingly hot here yesterday, the mercury registering over 80 degrees. At no time in May last year did the thermometer reach this figure, the nearest approach to it being 79 on the Queen's birthday.

George Rawdling, chief clerk of James Guest, wholesale wine merchant, was arrested yesterday, while giving evidence as a witness, on a charge of larceny. He held a power of attorney from Guest while the latter was absent and sent out consignments of liquors of which no account was rendered.

Robert Colquhoun, 48, was charged in the Police Court yesterday with criminally assaulting a young woman. He pleaded guilty to common assault and was fined $30.

THE RAILROAD INVESTIGATION.

General Manager Hickson of the Grand Trunk Testifies.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Chauncey M. Depew stated before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce to-day that there were ten American cars in Canada to one Canadian car in the United States. If a duty was charged on foreign cars entering the United States it would be detrimental to the American roads, as each line uses any cars that happen to be on the line.

General Manager Joseph Hickson of the Grand Trunk Railroad was examined. When questioned by Senator Cullom he acknowledged that the Grand Trunk road controlled the freight between Portland and Chicago, but said that each road was under separate management.

Senator Gorman: "Is not this separate management merely a matter of form?"

Mr. Hickson did not like to acknowledge it but finally had to say that the Senator from Maryland was correct. According to the statement of Mr. Hickson the Grand Trunk road was allowed by the American roads to make rates for west bound freight. If it did not have this privilege it could not do business.

Senator Cullom asked what assistance the Canadian Pacific road had received from the Government. Mr. Hickson replied that the Canadian Government had done $27,000,000 worth of construction work, given $25,000,000 in cash and $50,000,000 worth of Government lands.

Witness unwillingly acknowledged that the foreign trade through Canada from the United States was much greater than the Canadian trade through the United States. The Canadian Parliament annually voted money to various branches of the Canadian Pacific road as subsidies, and lines of steamships were yearly subsidized by the Government.

In 1888 the freight that passed through Montreal from the western part of the United States was 71,997 tons. The traffic over the Canadian lines from the west to Portland, Me., amounted to 92,341 tons. Witness stated that about forty per cent. of all the business done by the Canadian Pacific road was due to the United States. In the Northwest, particularly Michigan, almost all the carrying trade was done by the Canadian trunk lines.

S. M. Felton, First Vice-President of the Erie road, said that if the Canadian roads had to conform to the American laws the American roads would gain by it.

W. E. Davis, general passenger agent of the Chicago and Grand Trunk Company, said that company had paid commissions to other companies' agents ranging from 5 to 15 per cent., where it was found their competitors were doing a similar thing. The company was not a member of the Western Passenger Agents' Association. He did not think the roads east of Buffalo were paying commissions, between Buffalo and Chicago the roads generally were not paying commissions, but some few were.

Drowned in the Canal.

KINGSTON, May 7.—On Saturday afternoon while the steamer Rideau Belle was passing Brewer's Cut, Rideau Canal, a woman by the name of Mrs. Muchmore jumped overboard and was drowned. She was not missed until the locks were reached where she was to have been put off. A search was instituted and the body found in the water on Sunday by Charles Milne, a short distance below Washburn locks. Mrs. Muchmore was the wife of the late William Muchmore, Brewer's Mills, one of the first settlers in that part of Pittsburg. She left home some three weeks ago for the Kingston hospital, having been in poor health.

Death of Sherbrooke's Postmaster.

SHERBROOKE, Que., May 8.—Mr. S. J. Foss died about 4.30 yesterday afternoon. Mr. Foss had occupied the position of postmaster of Sherbrooke for a great many years. He was attacked by pneumonia about five days ago and notwithstanding the services of the most eminent physicians, who expected a different result, the attack was so severe and rapid as to render their efforts useless. In addition to the postmastership Mr. Foss has occupied other prominent positions in the city and has been the mainstay of the temperance workers of this city.

A MUSICAL REVIEW.

The Pupils of the Convent give a Very Pleasing and Creditable Entertainment

On Monday evening His Lordship Bishop O'Connor was tendered a reception by the pupils of the Convent of the congregation de Notre Dame which proved a most gratifying and highly pleasing event, His Lordship being presented with an appropriate address of welcome to which he replied with a few felicitious remarks, and a programme of exceptional excellence being rendered.

Last evening a musical review or rehearsal was held at the convent, which proved most successful and highly creditable to the pupils, and very gratifying and pleasing to the parents of the children who were present. The parents of the pupils attended in goodly numbers and were well repaid for doing so, as the children, each and every one, acquitted themselves in a remarkably creditable and excellent manner. The entertainment commenced at eight o'clock, and the programme, which was a lengthy one, was listened to with delight by the parents. It opened with a duet, d'entree, performed on two pianofortes by Misses M. Doharty and T. Mahoney, and Misses A. Sullivan and M. Smith, which was exceedingly well rendered, and was followed by a chorus "Welcome Song." Then came the little ones' greeting and then Misses M. Kennealey, J. Reilly, D. Dolan, M. Galvin, A. Davis and T. Morrow each contributed excellent piano solos. Misses Mary Lynch and K. Griffin gave instrumental solos on two pianos, entitled "Fun and Frolic," as also did Miss May Donohue and T. Welsh, entitled "Convent Bells." Miss Nellie Muncaster then gave a pretty instrumental solo and Misses May Young and May Kelly gave the instrumental solo, "Spinning Wheel," in an excellent manner. Then Misses Maggie Kelly and J. Quinn rendered an excellent solo on separate pianos and were followed by Misses K. Cavanagh and May Reilly with a solo entitled "Charming." Misses Jennie McCabe and Annie Dunn then gave a vocal duet, entitled "Holy Mother Guide his Footsteps," which was very pretty and exceedingly well rendered. Then Misses M. Begley and G. McAuliffe played a solo, "Bard of Erin," in a pleasing manner, and they were followed by Misses T. Coleman and E. Lynch with the solo, "Sunrise Mazurka." Miss E. Crummie then recited in a very creditable and admirable manner the "Death of King Connor McNessa," and pleasing solos were rendered by Misses M. Butler, "Moonlight on the Hudson," M. Smith, "May Flowers," K. Calcutt, "Dance Napolitaine," Maud Kelly "Meeting of the Waters," after which a trio, "Welcome to Spring" was given in an exceptionally pleasing manner. Then solos were contributed by Miss I. Maloney "Heavenly Voice," Miss Doharty "Summer Rain," and M. Crummie "La Sommalula." Then perhaps the most pleasing feature of the programme was given, being the rendering of the operatte "Guardian Angel, or The Little Mother." This was given in a good voice and clever manner, the parts being taken as follows:—Countess' Daughter, Jennie McCabe; Little brother, Annie Summers; Two little Orphan Sisters, Lillie Jackson and Josie Morrow. Miss E. Howden then gave the solo "Love's Young Dream" and Miss J. McCabe rendered "Semiramid de Rossein," after which the closing chorus brought the programme to a close.

The programme was made all the more interesting by the fact that many of the performers are little tots from eight years of age up and the manner in which these little ones acquitted themselves was most pleasing to parents and to the sisters.

Thought It Was a Bouquet.

Yesterday I sat at a table in a Madison street restaurant, when a rustic looking man entered and was given a seat opposite me. His order was for baked whitefish. It came on in a very palatable form, and upon the top of it lay a sprig of spinach. This the countryman took in his hand, and after smelling of it once or twice and toying with it, put it in the buttonhole in the lapel of his coat, saying as he did so: "This is a very nice little bouquet. I suppose it's a souvenir and every customer gets one!" to which the waiter smilingly said, "Yes."—Chicago Mail.

Just Like a Boy.

A little friend at his devotions one night was seized with a sense of the ridiculous at a sublime moment. He was kneeling at the bedside—his two little hands devoutly folded—his bright eyes squeezed tightly together, and his whole small person piously intent. Reverently the dear old prayer proceeded:

"Now, I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep. If I should die before I wake—My! Wouldn't that be a 'joke!'—New York Tribune.

GOOD-BY.

He plucked the fragrant clover blooms
'Neath the warm, glowing, summer sky;
"Keep them, dear heart, bid me Godspeed,
True love can never say 'good-by.'

"Beloved, oh, wherefore are my fears?
You give me strength and happiness;
Though leagues across the world I go,
Your love will be a power to bless."

Deep sorrow in her heart subdued,
A joy intense o'erspread her face;
"Oh sweet, my life is yours," she cried,
"Forever!" And with tenderest grace

She bowed her head upon his breast.
The soft wind stirred her tresses fair,
Faith and high hope his sad soul thrills,
Upon her lips he breathes a prayer;

And trustingly, with hands close clasped,
'Mong fragrant bloom and sunlit sky,
Her eyes reflected heaven's pure light—
With Love's own kiss, she said "Good-by."

The Last Word.

The "last word" is the most dangerous of infernal machines, remarks Ouida, the well known novelist. Husband and wife should no more fight to get it than they would struggle for the possession of a lighted bombshell. What is the use of the last word? After getting it a husband might, perhaps, as an American paper suggests, advertise to whistle for a wager against a locomotive; but in every other respect his victory would be useless and painful. It would be a Cadmean victory, in which the victor would suffer as much as the vanquished. A farmer cut down a tree which stood so near the boundary line of his farm that it was doubtful whether it belonged to him or to his neighbor. The neighbor, however, claimed the tree and prosecuted the man who cut it for damages. The case was sent from court to court. Time was wasted and temper lost; but the case was finally gained by the prosecutor. The last of the transaction was that the man who gained the cause went to the lawyer's office to execute a deed of his whole farm, which he had been compelled to sell to pay his costs! Then, houseless and homeless, he thrust his hands into his hip pockets and triumphantly exclaimed, "I've beat him!" In the same way husband and wife may become bankrupt of heartwealth by endeavoring to get the last word.

The Empress Eugenie's Necklace.

Worth says he once supplied the Empress Eugenie with several fancy costumes. One was that of Juno, and another the splendid dress of a dogaressa, or wife of the doge of Venice. For this last named toilet she caused to be fashioned the necklace in diamond network, with a great imitation pear shaped pearl suspended in each interstice of the network, which was sold among the crown jewels, and the fact of the pearls not being real created a good deal of talk at the time of the sale. She never wore this authentic and picturesque, but cumbersome, ornament. She tried it on several times, but it always marred the effect of her costume. It was sold for $4,000, a price far beyond its intrinsic value.—New York Telegram.

Wonders of the Telephone.

"Did you ever notice," said a pretty telephone girl to the reporter, "what a difference there is in telephones. Actually they're as different as human beings. Some of them are excellent linguists, and others can't transmit a message in anything but American. Why, there's one instrument on my circuit, and if a Pole or a German rings up anybody and tries to speak his native tongue over the wire the instrument simply refuses to work, and there's the awfulest time that ever was. But just let a good Yankee try it and it will transmit with astonishing clearness. Now that's a fact."—Buffalo Courier.

A Conquered Hannibal.

Hannibal Hamlin says that when he visited Minnesota he did get an overcoat and wear it—not on account of his own feelings, but out of respect for the weather. "When," says he, "the thermometer runs down to 40 degs below zero, I think the ordinary courtesies of the occasion would demand proper recognition of the presence of Boreas, the ice king. My friends were much amused at my surrender, but a Minnesota blizzard is not a meteorological condition to be treated with disrespect." Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Our Hats are Inimitable

Every day now adds its emphasis to the judgment of gentlemen as to the beauty and excellence of our spring Hats. They're buying them. They're not doing it without having first compared and decided that ours bear away the prize for shapeliness and quality as well as for faultless making and moderate prices. Gentlemen are critical when it comes to getting a light weight Hat. They are a necessity in these spring days—a necessity in which they esteem style as essential. Witness the demand for our Genuine Cooksy, Woodrow and Elwood Celebrated Zephr weight Hats made especially for us. There is something peculiar and inimitable about the gracefulness of our Hats.

Only Fifty Cents.

There was a rather amusing case came up at the Division Court yesterday, that of Macpherson vs. Bradburn, in which the defendant was sued for fifty cents. The debt was said to have been contracted at an auction sale, where the defendant was said to have purchased certain articles, which he denied. The plaintiff received a verdict.

Engagement Extraordinary.

An effort is made by a local committee to secure for the 14th of this month, Roberts Harper, of London, England, to give his world renowned illustrated lecture "Ireland and her evictions." Mr. Harper's views are generally acknowledged to be the best in the world. We trust that the committee will be successful that have the matter in hand in completing arrangements and we are sure that the citizens of Peterborough will largely patronize this high class entertainment.

Honest Uncle Sam.

A gentleman in town some few weeks ago was astonished to learn by a communication from the Washington Government that the United States owed him $8.80, and yesterday he received a cheque for that amount. He was a lieutenant in the Northern army, and the amount was for expenses in going from Fredricksburg to Washington in February, 1862, which was credited to him at the time and had remained on the books ever since. Uncle Sam appears to be honest in small things, at any rate.

A Wet Drill.

Last night about half past seven Chief Rutherford called the fire brigade out for a wet drill. The men were divided, some being detailed to the hose waggon and others to the reels. The house waggon came around Simcoe-st. on to George and the reel went around Simcoe-st. on to Water-st., and in remarkably quick time there were four powerful streams playing on the market square. The question which were throwing water first, the waggon or reel men, was and is yet a disputed point, but it was very close.

The Hospitable Housewife

Sets before the guest the best provender the house affords. This is right. Welcome the coming, even if you do not speed the parting guest. The concomitants of a well set table are neat table ware, appetizing food and delicacies, and a cup of superb tea well brewed. The best care will not make poor tea acceptable. Then buy the best. If you do not use the costliest tea, get the best you can for the money you pay. To be sure of this go to Hawley Bros. Their special specialty is tea. Tea first, last and always. St. Luke's C. E. T. S.

A meeting of St. Luke's Temperance Society was held last night in the school room of the church. It took the form of a temperance service, and was opened by a suitable portion of Scripture. The President, the Rev. Mr. Warren, gave an address from the text, "Bear ye one another's burdens," and spoke of the duty of loving one another, and especially as to the Christian's attitude in regard to brethren who have fallen through drink, and of the spirit in which they should endeavor to restore them. The singing of the choir of young ladies and gentlemen of the church, trained by Miss E. Tivey, was much enjoyed by those present. This Society is now in its sixth year, and appears as determined as ever that the banner of temperance shall float over St. Luke's.

A LARGE DELEGATION.

ANNUAL SESSION OF THE GRAND COUNCIL, ROYAL ARCANUM.

The List of Delegates from all over Ontario—Address of Welcome from the Mayor and Corporation—The Local Council's Welcome.

The fourth annual session of the Grand Council, Royal Arcanum, of the Province of Ontario, opened in the Forester's Hall this morning. The hall had been nicely decorated for the occasion and presented a fine appearance. The weather being warm the room was inclined to be very close, but some thoughtful man had a supply of palm-leaf fans distributed among the members and in this way the room was made bearable, the "fancy" idea being appreciated. There are over fifty representatives in attendance and Bro. D. McLellan, Grand Regent, of Hamilton, presided. The other officers and members present are as follows:—D. F. McWatt, Grand Vice Regent, Barrie; H. English, Grand Guide, Toronto; Judge Thorn, Grand Orator, Goderich; P. W. Moyer, Grand Chaplain, Berlin; W. E. Brown, Grand Secretary, Hamilton; Chas. The Grand Regent gave his opening address welcoming the delegates to the Grand Council and reviewing the state of the Order in this jurisdiction.

THE TOWN'S WELCOME.

After some other opening business, Mayor Stevenson accompanied by a delegation of the Town Council, consisting of Councillors Davidson, E. H. D. Hall and Kelly, were ushered into the council room and His Worship read the following address of welcome.

To the Grand Council of the Royal Arcanum:

GENTLEMEN,—In my representative capacity as Mayor of Peterborough, it is my pleasant duty to extend to you a cordial welcome to the town of Peterborough, which I beg to assure you appreciates the compliment implied by the presence within its precincts of the Grand Council of so important a body as the Royal Arcanum.

I have not the honor of being a member of your Society, yet from what I have read, seen and learned otherwise, it is an organization which appeals to the sympathy of every person who has a proper regard for an institution with such admirable aims and objects, and with such admirable means of obtaining both.

On behalf of the citizens generally I beg to extend to you the freedom of the town, and assure you that my best personal as well as my official efforts shall be enlisted in the task of making your stay pleasant, and am sure I shall therein receive the hearty co-operation of our citizens personally.

I have every reason to hope that at the conclusion of your business deliberations, which I trust will be of the most successful character, you will feel that in welcoming you in the name of the citizens I am employing no mere conventional formality, and that your remembrances of the town of Peterborough will suggest only pleasant recollections.

Permit me, gentlemen of this Grand Council, to ask your acceptance at the hands of the Mayor, of the hospitalities and freedom of the town of Peterborough during your stay within its borders.

Dated this 8th May, 1889.

JAS. STEVENSON,
Mayor.

The Grand Regent in a few appropriate remarks thanked the Mayor and Council for the honor and kindness in presenting the address, and Bro. J. R. Stratton also returned the thanks of the brethren for this recognition of the Order.

THE LOCAL COUNCIL'S WELCOME.

Bro. R. E. Wood, of the local council, Royal Arcanum, then read the following address form the local council:—

To the Grand Council, Royal Arcanum in the Province of Ontario:

BRETHREN,—It is with sincere brotherly affection that the members of Peterborough Council No. 735 bid you welcome to this the fourth convocation of this Grand Council.

The objects and principles of the Royal Arcanum are truly such as to command the attention and respect of all who make themselves acquainted therewith, and who understand and appreciate the virtues their appreciation implies. The distribution within the past twelve months of over two millions of dollars and of over eleven millions within the last twelve years, among the widows and orphans of our deceased brethren, speaks eloquently of the grand and noble work of benevolence carried on under the supervision of our Supreme Council.

The increase of nine thousand in our membership, during the year 1888, gives ample proof that our system, founded in integrity and justice, need only be known to be appreciated.

The strict adherence to fraternal union observed in all our communications, can only result in a continuance of that energy which has thus far contributed so largely in the building up of strong bulwarks around our brotherhood which will doubtless enable it to resist the destroying hand of time.

We again extend to you our warmest welcome and hospitality, and venture to express the confidence that your deliberations will result in the development of still greater zeal, and that the future of the Royal Arcanum, both in the Supreme and Subordinate Councils, will be marked with such prosperity as will eclipse even the magnificent record of the past.

Dated at Peterborough this 8th day of May, 1889. Yours in V. M. C.,

F. J. JAMIESON, Secretary. B. SHORTLY, Regent.

The Grand Regent returned the thanks of the Grand Council to their local brethren for their kind address in a short well-timed speech.

The remainder of the morning was taken up with business of a private nature.

TO CLEAN the throat and invigorate the system try a 5lb. cady of Tea from M. R. KIDD.

New Rifle Range.

The new rifle range of the Peterborough Rifle Association is nearly ready for the sharp shooters, and next week it will be in shape for the members to again try their skill with the iron that speaks death. The range is on the other side of Ashburnham, near Curtis' brickyard, and is one of the best in the Province. A range 1,000 yards long and perfectly level has been laid out, and three targets, from 200 to 800 yards range, are being put up. The Association is going into the sport with enthusiasm and the practices will probably be more frequent than in former years. A ten year lease of the ground has been secured.

A Unique Entertainment.

Ireland, her present and future, has for the last ten years been a question of natural importance. Attention has been directed to the Emerald Isle and her position in regard to England discussed. In no less degree of importance is her topographical features and her people the object of enquiry and comment. In this connection the unique entertainment, to be given in the Opera House, on Tuesday evening, May 14th, will be of general interest. Mr. Roberts Harper, of London, England, has been engaged, at large expense, to give his superbly illustrated lecture, "Ireland Recently Revisited," now presented for the first time in this country. Mr. Harper recently made a special tour of Ireland (with all parts of which he was already familiar) for the purpose of bringing his facts down to a very recent date. This lecture will be illustrated in the same superb manner as all his other lectures, and during the evening he will describe graphically and show numerous views of the recent evictions. It will be found of intense interest. Look out for further announcements. 1d166

The Hamburg, American Steamship (Twin Screw) Augusta, Victoria, 10,000 tons, 12,500 horsepower, on her trial trip to New York, made 20 knots or about 23 miles an hour. Mr. R. W. Errett, of this town, is the agent of the line.

Delegates to Grand Lodge.

At the last regular meeting of the local lodge of True Blues the following were appointed delegates to the Grand Lodge which opens on the 14th in Shaftsbury Hall, Toronto, and will probably last three days:—Geo. Sloan, W. M., Robt. Russell, D. M., J. Jamieson, proxy, J. Russell, proxy.

Two New Parks.

Street Inspector Pope has laid out two new parks near the end of Bethune and Rubidge sts., which in time will be ornaments to that part of the town. Some thirty-six trees have been set out in the one and about twenty-four in the other, most of which are maples. A new sidewalk is also being laid on Park-st.

They all Want Them.

Peterborough's financial standing has now become known pretty widely as is evidenced by the fact that Town Clerk Macdonald has received already some seven communications enquiring with reference to the $10,000 worth of debentures which the town is about to issue for pubic school purposes and expressing the willingness of the writers to purchase. These enquiries come from some of the best men in the financial world.

A Pleasant Evening.

At the regular meeting of Peterborough Council of Royal Templars last evening, after the business, which included two initiations, had been concluded, a very enjoyable and entertaining programme was carried out. Mrs. Moore and Miss Owens gave solos, Mr. Earle a reading, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Turner a duet, Rev. Mr. Pearson a short speech and Mr. Turner a reading. Coffee and cake were then served by the sisters, and an enjoyable social half hour was spent.

IMPOSSIBLE to excel those New Fresh Teas, just arrived at M. R. KIDD'S.

Personal.

To-morrow morning Mr. A. W. Brodie and family will leave for their new home at Hespeler, and their departure will be sincerely regretted. Apart from the loss through the removal of Mr. Brodie's factory, the departure of such a thorough-going business man will be felt, and in social and church circles, especially by the congregation of St. Andrew's, he will be greatly missed. The best wishes of a host of friends, in which the REVIEW heartily joins, is for their success and prosperity at Hespeler.

The Spanish Students.

This musical organization assisted by Prof. Ryerson gave an entertainment in the Opera House on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the P. A. A. A. Their was a fair sized audience, appreciative and delighted with many features of the programme. The instrumental selections were played on the Spanish national instrument, the Mandolen. In the concerted pieces the harmony was good and the movement spirited, and accompanied by the piano formed a pleasing quintette. The programme was directed by Senor Hernandez who gave several solos on the Mandolen, Madam Hernandez contributing the accompaniments. Prof. Ryerson is possessed of a singular facial development and gave some startling impersonations in the course of a dialect recitation. He also played with marvellous skill on the Harmonica. The novelty of the entertainment combined with the skill of the performers was much applauded and encores were frequent.

A Pleasant Evening.

Young Mr. Waldo, of Boston, was about taking his departure after a social evening with the Wabashes, of Chicago.

"I have spent a most agreeable and delightful evening, Miss Wabash," he said, struggling with his overcoat; "one to be long treasured and remembered."

"Oh, thanks, awfully," replied the young lady, genteelly. "I can fancy that when one is traveling about on business and forced to spend much of his time at hotels, that an occasional evening among the refining influences of the social circle must be a blessing, if not a boon. Papah, can't you help Mr. Waldo with his hand-me-down?"—The Epoch.

THE INSTITUTE BY-LAW.

THE COUNCIL TO BE REQUESTED TO SUBMIT IT AGAIN.

Why the By-law was Defeated—The Menzies Property—Raising Money for School Purposes—Collegiate Institute Grievances—A Committee to Investigate.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education was held last night, Chairman Stevenson presiding. There were present Messrs. Dumble, Denne, Hamilton, McWilliams, Wrighton, Weir, Kendry, English, O'Meara, Hughes and Rutherford.

AN ACCOUNT TO BE PAID.

Mr. Long, principle of the Collegiate Institute, presented an account of Messrs. Baptie and Lyle for $15 25 for making of dumb bell, bars and rifles, etc. Mr. Long said these things were necessary according to the regulations.

On motion the account was ordered to be paid.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was received from Town Clerk Macdonald notifying the Board of the Town Council's appointment of Dr. Boucher to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. J. R. Stratton.—Received.

The inspector of boilers, Mr. Geo. C. Robb, reported that he had inspected the boiler in use in the Institute and found it in satisfactory condition.

The statement of fees collected were received as follows:—Collegiate Institute, $377 50; public schools, $7.75.—Received.

The attendance report for the different schools for the mouth of May were read as follows:—

	On Roll.	Aver.
Collegiate Institute	—	127
Central School	534	512
West Ward School	218	167
South Ward School	286	265

Mr. John Stirling, principal of the South Ward school, suggested in his report that during the progress of the repairs to his school that the school hours be changed to between eight and one. He stated that he had asked the opinion of the parents, who, although not favoring a permanent change, thought the change during the repairs would be desirable.

THE SMEAD-DOWD SYSTEM.

Some discussion arose as to when the repairs and addition to the South Ward school would be commenced and the question was asked as to whether it was the Board's intention to put the Smead-Dowd system of heating into this school.

Mr. DUMBLE said that was decided at the last meeting.

Mr. HUGHES made a verbal report of the visit of the delegation of trustees who went to Toronto on invitation to inspect the Smead-Dowd system in the schools at Toronto. He said they were met by Mr. Dowd and driven around to the different schools where the system was in use and they were more than pleased with what they saw. They gave it a careful inspection and Mr. Hughes said no man could have any objection to the system except its expensiveness, as it was as near perfection for heating and ventilation as he believed it was possible to become. The air in the large class rooms in Toronto, he said, could be completely changed four times in one hour.

THE SCHOOL LIMITS.

Mr. DENNE asked if a committee had not been appointed to fix the streets bounding the school limits. He said he believed some of the children who had left the Central school had been allowed to go back on an order from the Chairman.

Mr. STEVENSON explained that there was only one case in which he had interfered and that was a peculiar case.

MEETING EXPENSES.

Mr. KENDRY moved, seconded by Mr. DUMBLE,—That the chairman and secretary-treasurer of this Board be and are hereby authorized to borrow from the Ontario Bank the sum of $25,000 dollars for the use of this Board for the current year, and they are hereby authorized to make and sign such notes as may be necessary for the purpose. That this resolution shall have the effect of a by-law and that the corporate seal be attached to this resolution and that the same be signed by the chairman and secretary of this Board.

Mr. Dumble explained that $12,000 was always necessary for general school purposes and then they required the $10,000 extra for South Ward and North Ward schools.

The motion was adopted.

ADVERTISING FOR TENDERS.

Mr. DUMBLE moved, seconded by Mr. KENDRY,—That the Building Committee be and are hereby authorized to advertise for tenders for the erection of the South and North Ward public schools and that immediately on receipt of the tenders they call a special meeting and report to this Board.

Mr. ENGLISH moved, seconded by Mr. J. L. HUGHES,—"That Mrs. Sarah Drake receive $5 per month for cleaning the Mission School during the time it is occupied for school purposes."

THE VOTE ON THE BY-LAWS.

Mr. STEVENSON then brought up the matter of the recent vote on the Collegiate Institute by-law. He said that no exertion had been made to carry the by-law and the vote had been very small, very few apparently taking any interest in the matter feeling confident that the by-law would carry. He thought that the by-law should be submitted again.

Mr. DUMBLE said he thought the press had failed to do their duty in not coming out in this matter and putting it properly before the public. He thought a public meeting should have been held and was of the opinion that if this had been done and the press explained the matter to the people the by-law would not have been defeated. He was also in favor of calling for another vote.

Mr. MCWILLIAMS said he thought they should wait until the County Council met as they might be able to get that body to give them a long lease of the vacant land just to the rear of the court house for a site for the Collegiate Institute. Mr. McWilliams said he believed that the by-law was defeated because people thought that the Board intended to purchase the Menzies property.

Mr. DUMBLE said he did not think, even if the county gave them the free site, that they would save as much as they would by buying the Menzies property. He said the people did not understand about the Menzies property or they would not oppose it, for there was not an inch of room in the building which could not be utilized for school purposes. He said he had not turned a finger in the late voting on the by-law because he had advocated the purchase of the Menzies property and people accused him of being interested in it, but he said he only looked at it as a matter of dollars and cents for the Board. He thought that in purchasing the Menzies property at $10 000, the Board was getting the building for nothing as they could sell the land alone at any time for seven or eight thousand dollars.

Mr. STEVENSON said from a personal point of view he believed that it was a cheap property.

Mr. DUMBLE advocated holding a public meeting and explaining the matter to the people.

Mr. WEIR said he believed that the by-law was defeated because many of the ratepayers had the idea that the high school owned the present building, but when he explained that the school was paying a thousand dollars a year for rent they were surprised and said they never knew that and wanted to know why this had not been explained to the people. Mr. Weir also favored submitting another by-law and holding a public meeting.

Mr. WRIGHTON was opposed to submitting another by-law and did not think that the Menzies property was a fit or proper building for an institute.

Mr. DUMBLE moved, seconded by Mr. MCWILLIAMS,—That the Council of the town be respectfully requested to submit the by-law for raising $30,000 for the purchase of land and erecting thereon a Collegiate Institute.

Mr. WRIGHTON said he objected to this, as the by-law had already been submitted and defeated.

A vote was taken and the motion was carried.

Mr. WRIGHTON called for the yeas and nays, which were as follows:—

YEAS—Messrs. O'Meara, English, Kendry, McWilliams, Weir, Hamilton and Dumble.

NAYS—Messrs. Denne, Wrighton, Hughes, and Rutherford.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE GRIEVANCES.

Mr. MCWILLIAMS referred to a letter which had appeared in a newspaper that evening, which complained of the Collegiate Institute's management. Mr. McWilliams said he would like to know if there was any truth in the grievances.

Mr. DUMBLE said he had seen the letter and the grievances spoken of in it existed, and every member of the Board had known of them, but had not the manliness to come out as they should in the matter. They had a Collegiate Institute in name and that was all. The Institute was not of its proper standing and this was becoming known outside of the town. There was weakness in the school, and while some of the teachers were competent others were not. He said the Appointment Committee had not been allowed to do their duty, and as a result the school had become demoralized, there was cramming by some of the teachers, whiskey was brought into the grounds and the demoralization had even gone to the janitor. He said their duty to their children was above every other, and they should not allow anything to stand between them and their duty. He referred to the Principal, who, he said, while he was a thorough gentleman and a scholar of great ability, still lacked the first qualification for a head master, a proper grip on the children. He was prepared to state before the whole town that the Board had not done their duty in the Institute. He was going to move a resolution appointing a committee to investigate the Collegiate Institute, but he was prepared to take the bolder action and call for the resignation of two teachers. However, he moved, —That the condition of the Collegiate Institute be referred to a committee with authority to make a searching investigation and to report at the next regular meeting of this Board, the committee to consist of Messrs. Wm. English, Peter Hamilton, J. B. McWilliams, O'Meara and Dumble and Dr. Burnham.

Mr. DENNE said the committee might investigate the public schools at the same time, as there were some complaints about some of these schools also.

It was decided to wait until the Public School Inspector reported.

Mr. MCWILLIAMS seconded the motion, which was adopted.

TO VOTE AGAIN.

Mr. DUMBLE moved, seconded by Mr. WEIR,—That Messrs. O'Meara, Hamilton, English and the mover be a Committee to wait on the Town Council and urge the resubmitting of the Collegiate Institute by-law.

The Board then adjourned.

The Loss of the Addie Benson.

HALIFAX, May May 8.—The loss of the brigantine Addie Benson in the South American coast is confirmed. The news of the rescue of the crew, who had been given up as lost, was received with great rejoicing at Sydney, C.B., where most of them hail from. On the night of the receipt of the telegram announcing that the crew had been saved bonfires were lighted. The Addie Benson was a brig of 328 tons. She was built in Bear River and was registered at Sydney.

The Pilgrim Will See the Sheriff.

GUELPH, May 7.—Sheriff McKim and John Bunyan of the City Hotel had a tiff on Monday night in the Royal Hotel over a little bond in which considerable tussling and rough language was indulged in. The sheriff, not to be outdone, called in the police force and Bunyan was taken in charge. He was let go on promising to put in an appearance at the Police Court to-day. The case was up and Bunyan was discharged. He now threatens suing the sheriff for false arrest.

Wanted to Be Prepared.

As Ralph was getting ready for church he asked his sister how many white horses George Washington had in his chariot. Somewhat amazed, Minnie answered: "Why, I'm sure I don't know, Ralph. What put that into your head now?" "O, because," quoth our little philosopher, "I always want a subject to think about when the sermon is dull."

HER NEIGHBOR.

They lingered at her father's door,
The moon was shining bright,
And to the maiden o'er and o'er
The youth had said, "Good night."

But still, reluctant to depart,
Her tiny hand he pressed,
While all the love that filled his heart
His ardent looks confessed.

At length she closer to him crept,
Her eyes upon him bent,
And softly asked, "How have you kept
Thus far the fast of Lent?"

He smiled, and as a manly arm
Around her waist he threw,
He said, "I've done no neighbor harm—
Pray, tell me how have you?"

"Oh, better far, I'm sure," she said,
The charming little elf;
"I've loved (she blushed and bent her head)
My neighbor as myself."

"Who is your neighbor?" questioned he,
As to his breast he drew
The gentle maid, and blushing, she
With one word answered—"You!"

Breeding English Pheasants.

The experiment of propagating English pheasants in this country is proving a success, and it has been shown that the birds will do well in districts where they can be properly protected. The Jekyl Island club, owing to the situation of its grounds on an island, reports a wonderful increase in its pheasants. Seventy-eight birds were originally brought over from England. From these birds eggs were obtained. They were placed under common barnyard hens to be hatched out, and a thousand young were obtained. When large enough they were turned loose and grew rapidly. One hundred more pheasant hens are to be brought over from England. It is believed that in a short time the club will have good pheasant shooting.

Further north trouble has been found in raising the birds, both from the severity of the climate and from outside hunters. Repeated trials, however, are bound to win, and with stricter game laws there is no reason why the bird should not thrive. In the south the climate is just right for them. For food acorns seem to hit their taste, and they fatten rapidly upon the nut.—New York Times.

Fooled 'Em That Time.

"I have seen many narrow escapes from death and witnessed many thrilling incidents," said veteran James Tilghman, of Queen Ann's county. Mr. Tilghman was a brave and intrepid officer in Gen. J. E. B. Stuart's command, and is now a prominent member of the Maryland Confederate society. Because of his reckless daring and chivalrous dash he was dubbed "Headlong Jim Tilghman" during the war and the name has clung to him ever since. "One of the most laughable incidents I ever witnessed while under fire," he continued, "was the conduct of a long, lank North Carolinian at the Wilderness. His leg had been shot off early in the war and he was supplied with a wooden one, with which, strange to say, he got about with remarkable facility. One day he was charging with his company and was climbing over a fence when, spat! a minie ball buried itself in his wooden leg. Ejecting an immense stream of tobacco juice, 'Darn ye, I fooled ye that time,' he yelled triumphantly, and rushed on with his comrades."—Baltimore News.

The Victoria University Injunction Enlarged—The Grand Trunk Censured.

TORONTO, May 8.—Before Chief Justice Galt yesterday the counsel for the various parties concerned in the continuance of the injunction restraining the Board of Regents of Victoria University from taking any further steps towards removing that institution from Cobourg, appeared for argument. There was Christopher Robinson, Q.C., and Walter Cassels for the town of Cobourg and the individual plaintiffs who secured the injunction last week, and Charles Moss, Q. C., and J. H. Britton, Q.C., of Kingston for the Board of Regents. The Chief Justice was averse to removing the interim injunction, and considered that it should continue until the action came before the courts. Mr. Moss submitted that the defendants were ready at any time for trial, if trial were necessary. But there might be no such necessity when the preliminaries were sifted. In the end it was agreed at Mr. Robinson's request to enlarge the matter till Friday next to allow the plaintiffs time to prepare their case. Several affidavits remain to be filed, and a number of witnesses have been summoned for a special examination at Cobourg to-morrow for the plaintiffs.

The coroner's jury which investigated the death of Charles Kerbyson found that deceased came to his death by being run over by a Grand Trunk train on the night of Saturday, the 4th of May instant, at Jones' crossing in this city, that the aforesaid G. T. train was at the time of the occurrence running at a speed greater than that allowed by law and that the G. T. Railway Company and the City Council of the aforesaid City of Toronto are guilty of gross and culpable neglect, and are responsible for the death of the aforesaid Charles Kerbyson, in not providing protection for the public by having gates placed at this crossing. The jury aforesaid would further recommend that gates are absolutely necessary at this crossing, as also those of Logan-avenue, Pape-avenue and Greenwood-avenue.

That the Royal Grenadiers will spend the Queen's birthday in Berlin is assured beyond a doubt. There was trouble about getting car accommodation from the Grand Trunk Railway, and there was a talk of going in express wagons, as offered by the express deputation headed by Mr. Timothy Murphy. But yesterday a telegram came from Montreal saying that cars would be furnished. The regiment will leave here on the night of Thursday, the 23rd, and come back on Saturday night. The men would like to stay until Sunday night, but the G.T.R. cannot furnish cars.

There was a lively session of the Separate School Board last night, the reverend chairman threatening one belligerent member with the police, and the chairman's veracity being several times called in question.

The proceedings of the Christian Alliance were continued yesterday, sanctification being the chief subject of prayer and discourse. The four-fold Gospel was unfolded—Salvation, Sanctification, Divine Healing and the Second Advent. The convention concludes to-day.

IN NAMELESS GRAVES.

Funeral of Eleven of the Victims of the Disaster at the "Y."

HAMILTON, May 7.—The funeral of the unidentified bodies of the disaster at the "Y" took place this afternoon. Out of respect for the unknown dead many of the places of business throughout the city were closed at the hour of the funeral and flags were flying at half mast. Thousands of citizens viewed the procession. The authorities of the Grand Trunk Railway made all the necessary arrangements.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. S. Lyle, Central Presbyterian Church; Rev. John Morton, Congregational Church; Rev. Geo. A. Forneret, All Saints' Church; Rev. R. G. Boville, James-street Baptist Church; and Rev J. S. Ross, Centenary Church. Rev. Father Heenan, Vicar-General, and Rev. Father McAvay attended the funeral in their own conveyance. A large body of police, all that could be spared from station and street duty, attended on foot under Chief McKinnon. There were two sets of pallbearers, one from the Grand Trunk Railway and one from the City Council. Hundreds of people followed in cabs and private conveyances and went to the cemetery, where the last sad rites were performed.

The eleven caskets were deposited side by side in one large grave. They were so arranged that there will be six inches of earth between them. The plot is in the city burying ground, midway between the two large gates, and beautifully situated down a slight slope to the south, near a huge-spreading apple tree.

This morning two gentlemen from Toronto, Messrs. Leslie, came to the city and viewed the remains. One of them, Mr. George Leslie, stated that his brother, Mr. John Leslie of Toronto, was missing and was supposed to have been on the train. They could not identify any of the remains. The gentlemen went to the Superintendent's office and looked through the personal effects here. They discovered a match box which was exactly similar to one carried by Mr. John Leslie.

Mr. W. H. Brooking of Ancaster viewed the remains this morning in search of traces for the identification of his sister, Mrs. Mary Smith of San Francisco, Cal., and of her two children, girls of 14 and 6 years of age. There is little doubt that Mrs. Smith and her two children are among the dead.

CANADA'S BIG RAILWAY.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE C. P. R. SHAREHOLDERS AT MONTREAL.

President VanHorne Replies to Sir Henry Tyler's Criticism—A Surplus of $326,423 for the Year—New Lines.

MONTREAL, May 8.—The annual meeting of shareholders of the Canadian Pacific Railway was held this afternoon, President W. C. Van Horne presiding. In introducing the annual report Mr. Van Horne confined his remarks to an answer to Sir Henry Tyler's recent criticism of the Canadian Pacific's methods and made no reference to the results of the year's working, simply presenting the report. The annual report showed:

Gross earnings	$13,194,535 60
Working expenses	9,324,760 68
Net earnings	$3,870,774 92

Deducting the fixed charges accruing during the year, $3,544,351, the surplus was $326,423.92. The working expenses amounted to 70.68 per cent. of the gross earnings and the net earnings to 29.34 per cent.

A condensed balance sheet shows assets of $180,004,825.37, including costs of road, $141,985,287.89; equipment, $12,143,628.31; real estate, $283,490.63; guarantee deposited with Dominion Government, $8,758,917.32. The liabilities, brought up to the same total by the "net earnings" of $326,423.92, include:

Capital stock	$65,000,000 00
Mortgage bonds	47,996,019 66
Land grant bonds	18,442,000 00
Bonuses from municipalities	25,311,233 34
Land grant	18,939,480 07
Town sites	888,550 34

The earnings increased from $10,081,803.59 in 1886 to $13,195,235.60 in 1888, but the expenses had also risen from $3,703,486.54 to $3,870,774.92. The rate per passenger per mile had decreased from 1.98 cents to 1.79 cents owing to the large increase in cheap emigrant travel.

The line to St. Paul and Minneapolis will be opened on June 2, and that to Duluth soon after. The line to the Maritime Provinces will also be opened on June 2.

The year's results had not been so good as expected, mainly owing to the light Ontario crop of 1887. This was more than made good by the main line and through Pacific traffic, but the latter had to be carried at small profit. The first quarter of the present year shows great improvement.

These directors were elected:

Mr. W. C. Van Horne, Montreal.
Sir George Stephen, Bart., Montreal.
Sir Donald A. Smith, K.C.M.G., M.P., Montreal.
Mr. Richard B. Angus, Montreal.
Mr. Edmund B. Osler, Toronto.
Mr. Sandford Fleming, C.E., C.M.G., Ottawa.
Hon. J. J. C. Abbott, Senator, Montreal.
Hon. George A. Kirkpatrick, M.P., Kingston.
Mr. R. V. Martin, sen., Amsterdam and New York.
Hon. W. L. Scott, Erie, Pa.
Mr. George R. Harris, Boston.
Mr. Richard J. Cross, New York.
Mr. Wilmot D. Matthews, Toronto.
Hon. Donald McInnes, Senator, Hamilton.
Mr. Thomas Skinner, London.

At a meeting of the new board Mr. Wm. C. Van Horne was re-elected President and the following were appointed the Executive Committee: Mr. W. C. Van Horne, Sir George Stephen, Sir Donald Smith and Mr. Angus.

A Big Falling Off in Santa Fe Earnings.

BOSTON, May 8.—The report of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad for the year states the gross earnings were $15,612,912, decrease from last year $2,848,453, or 15 4-10 per cent. Operating expenses, including taxes, $11,027,161, increase $618,707. Net earnings, deducting taxes, $4,585,501, decrease $3,467,160. Even with the additional traffic derived by the Atchison system from recent extensions the actual number of passengers and tons of freight transported was considerably less than during the preceding year. The report attributes the reduction of business to the universally light crops of two seasons and the construction of new competitive lines in Kansas. The report dwells on the downward tendency of railroad rates and deprecates the fact that the right to make combinations for self-protection has been denied to railroads by State and national enactments.

The Penna. to Issue $7,000,000 New Stock.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—The Pennsylvania railroad directors to-day decided to issue nearly $7,000,000 of new stock. Stockholders may subscribe to the new issue to the extent of six per cent. of their holdings. The money will be used to improve the line and for construction. The company, owing to increasing business, will need nearly $12,000,000 for that purpose this year.

OUR CROPS AND LIVE STOCK

THE PROSPECTS OF THE HARVEST FOR THE COMING SEASON.

The Fall Wheat is all Right—Clover Will not be Good—Fruit and Vegetation—The Condition of Farm Animals Better Than Could be Expected.

TORONTO, May 9.—The Bureau of Industries has just issued a bulletin on the prospects of the Crops and Live Stock in Ontario. The statements are based on the information derived from 700 correspondents throughout the Province.

FALL WHEAT.

There is a remarkable and most gratifying contrast in the tenor of the fall wheat reports this year compared with those received in the spring of 1888. This year's crop was put in during one of the best seeding times within memory; the winter was mild, and the spring early—in some sections too early—for the wheat was uncovered and left subject to damage by the repeating freezing and thawing weather of March. But on the whole the reports now at hand are the most favorable that have been received since the gathering of crop statistics was commenced in Ontario. Less winter-killing is reported than has occurred for many years past, and the acreage that has been plowed up is insignificant. Lambton is the only county which complains seriously upon this score, and in parts of that county the ground was bare in January. Other complaints of winter-killing are confined to mere mentioning of the smothering of wheat under snow banks near fences and of the heaving of the plants on low and wet land since the spring has set in. The great winter wheat counties of Simcoe, Grey and Bruce report in a very favorable strain. The Middlesex reports are satisfactory except one from Lobo, and from McGillivray and Biddulph where it is stated much has been plowed up. Essex reports are very good, as are also those of Kent, Perth (except one from the township of Downie), Oxford, Haldimand, Brant, Wentworth, York, Ontario and many other counties. In the northern counties, the wheat, though looking in excellent condition, has not made much progress lately owing to the coldness of the weather. Throughout the reports is to be noticed testimony to the efficacy of drainage, even in a season such as the present when there has not been a superabundance of rain or of snow water to carry off. The crop has been singularly free from insect ravages. The wireworm is mentioned only a few times as having been destructive, while the Hessian fly is only named once in the whole series of reports, and on that occasion only in order that it may be mentioned that the county (Lambton) seems to be getting free from the pest.

WINTER RYE.

This is a very important crop in Northumberland, Durham, Prince Edward and a few other counties. Wherever it is grown extensively, the prospects are reported good for an extraordinary crop. Especially good reports come from the townships of Haldimand, Hamilton, Murray, Percy and Ameliasburgh.

CLOVER.

From the province as a whole the reports relating to this crop are very bad. Owing to the prolonged drouth, which existed in the east, north, centre, and part of the west, the "catch" last summer was unusually bad. What little germinated stood a very poor chance against the long continued dry weather. The early spring has been against the plant. It is reported as destroyed by heaving in many places. Still there are a number of reports describing the clover crop as excellent.

LIVE STOCK.

The condition of the farm animals throughout the Province is very much better than the most sanguine could have hoped for six months ago. The drouth has been so destructive that farmers in the east and north had been compelled to reduce the number of their stock in many cases to only sufficient to carry on the work of the farms. Into the worst affected counties large quantities of hay were imported. The known scarcity of feed set farmers to work to economise their resources. As one of the correspondents says, "less food was wanted than usual." Then the weather became most favorable to the keeping of live stock. Gentle but plentiful rains fell during the early and late fall months. The pastures yielded abundantly up to an unusually late period. A mild winter followed, rendering it unnecessary to feed heavily in order to maintain the animal heat. The open spring enabled farmers to turn out their cattle early. Generally speaking the winter was the easiest for stock on record. The result is that food, instead of being scarce is now abundant. Hay is cheaper in Lennox now than it was in the fall, and live stock has come through the winter in better condition than for past years. One correspondent reports from Huron that the farmers anticipating scarcity chopped great quantities of oats and oat straw, leaving their hay over till spring. From other parts of this county large quantities of hay were shipped to less fortunate sections. A correspondent in South Gower, Grenville, reports cases of death from actual starvation among cattle, and states that some of the cows are now so weak that they have to be lifted. In almost every other place reported from there has been a surplus of food left over. In Wellington, Waterloo and other root-growing counties the abundant crop of mangels and turnips supplied the place of dry fodder. In Waterloo turnips were so plentiful that they were sold at five cents a bushel. About one-tenth of the reports state that the cattle are in poor condition, but most of these reports add that the animals are healthy and strong. The condition of the health of the cattle, sheep and pigs seems to be unusually good. No infectious or epizootic diseases among them is anywhere reported. Among horses there has been an outbreak of the old epizootic which caused so much inconvenience on its first appearance about eighteen years ago. It is reported in greater or less severity from the counties of Renfrew, Peterboro, Hastings, Parry Sound, Durham, Northumberland, Prince Edward, Carleton, Frontenac, Prescott, Bruce, Grey, York, Oxford, Brant, Perth, etc. It appears to have existed in a virulent form in the shanties of the Upper Ottawa, where many horses died from the disease. There is one report of glanders in Prince Edward.

FRUIT AND VEGETATION.

Reports from all parts of the province are to the effect that vegetation was a week or two in advance of the previous year at the same date (May 1). The opening of the spring presaged a still earlier start of bud and leaf, but the latter half of April was cold and kept vegetation in check. Pastures are reported to have made a growth of from two to four inches, and in many cases sheep have been turned out for a week. A few farmers have also allowed their cattle to get a bite of grass, but the opinion of some practical men is that the fields will not be fit for grazing before May 10. There is a remarkable unanimity of opinion regarding fruit trees. Very little damage was done to orchards by the winter, but in the case of peaches early blossoms were nipped by spring frosts. Early cherries were also in bloom, but did not suffer to any great extent from late frosts. Apple, pear and plum buds were swelling, but had not blossomed when the reports were sent in. The black-knot continues its work of destruction to the plum and cherry trees of the province, but not a single complaint has been made of injury to orchard trees by [illegible] or other field vermin. Some fruits are said to have come through the winter in good condition.

Ontario County Farmers Happy.

OSHAWA, May 8.—The crop prospects are excellent. Scarcely ever before at so early a season were they so far advanced. The fall wheat looks well but the acreage is small, barley promising well and the acreage large; spring wheat, oats and peas are doing well and the farmers have bright anticipations for a bounteous harvest. The hay crop is promising well, especially clover. Vegetation is good and it is expected that there will be an abundant crop of fruit, except plums, which were considerably damaged by the cold spell of last week.

Manitoba Crop Prospects.

WINNIPEG, May 8.—Crop reports from nearly all parts of the province show grain is in fine condition and about one month ahead of last year.

LIVE TOPICS FROM OTTAWA.

A Stormy Meeting of the Presbytery—Another Mail Robbery.

OTTAWA, May 8.—There was a more than lively meeting of the Ottawa Presbytery in St. Andrew's Church yesterday afternoon. A resolution was put in regard to the Jesuit Estates question and unanimously carried. Rev. Mr. Herridge of St. Andrew's Church, who is Moderator, refused to sign the resolution on the ground that he was not opposed to the State granting money to a religious society, nor was he in opposition to the Order. It was moved and carried that he vacate the chair. This he also refused to do, saying he was competent to act as Moderator. "If not," said Dr. Armstrong, "we will elect a new Moderator." After a lively discussion Mr. Herridge vacated his seat and the resolution was carried.

Another postoffice robbery has been made on the mails in this vicinity. A bag which came in from an outlying district was found shortly afterwards in the Ottawa office cut and some registered letters abstracted. So far about $1000 is missing.

The Royal Society met at 10 o'clock this morning for business purposes. The work of the different sections was then taken up.

When the Supreme Court met this morning it proceeded with the case of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and the New Brunswick Railway Company against the Western Union Telegraph Company. This is an appeal from the Supreme Court of New Brunswick involving the validity of a contract between the Western Union Telegraph Company and the New Brunswick Railway, giving to the Western Union the exclusive right of its telegraph poles along its track. The Canadian Pacific are now asking to use the poles, having proceeded to do so and were stopped by the injunction.

The Y.M.C.A. Convention.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—The twenty-eighth international convention of the Young Men's Christian Association was called to order here to-day by General O. O. Howard of New York in the presence of the most prominent laymen of the Evangelical churches of the city, United States, Canada, England, Germany, Sweden, Switzerland and other countries. There are about 1000 delegates present. Addresses were made by General Howard, Robert Byrne of London, Robert McCann of Ireland, Baron Von Starck of Germany and Ira D. Sankey. H. B. Chamberlain of Denver, Col., was elected chairman of the convention. The report of the International Committee was read by Cephas Brainerd of New York. Papers upon various subjects were also read.

The Flour Output.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 8.—The Northwestern Miller says: The flour output for the week reached very fair proportions considering that there was almost complete idleness during one day. The aggregate output was 88,220 barrels against 102,930 the previous week and 168,600 for the corresponding time in 1888. The number of mills in motion to-day was 12, representing a daily product of about 17,800 barrels. Millers quite generally report a better demand for flour, though usually at the expense of a trifle lower prices. Direct exports of flour for the week were 40,500 barrels against 61,300 the preceding week.

A Kingston Hotel Scorched.

KINGSTON, May 8.—Early this morning a fire broke out in a shed in the rear of Calender's Hotel. An awning reached from the shed to the billiard room and quickly caught fire, communicating the blaze to Mr. Doolan's building. Mr. Doolan's storeroom and the club room over it were completely destroyed; the roof of the billiard room has been hacked and cut to pieces and the billiard tables which had been taken down and stored were seriously injured. The loss will foot up to nearly $3000 and the insurance is trifling.

FIRES OF A DAY.

Smith & Sons' Planing Mill at Southampton Completely Destroyed.

SOUTHAMPTON, May 8.—Fire broke out this morning about 1 o'clock in the saw and planing mill of J. B. Smith & Sons of this place. The building was entirely destroyed together with a quantity of lumber. Loss $1300, insurance $1000. Cause of fire unknown.

Fire Near Waterdown.

HAMILTON, May 8.—Yesterday afternoon the Evans homestead, near Waterdown, owned by James Parkes, barrister, was destroyed by fire. The fire was supposed to have started from the furnace in the cellar. The stone house and a roughcast kitchen adjoining it were totally destroyed, nothing but the walls being left. The house was occupied by Mr. Hutchison, who had charge of the farm. A portion of his furniture was burnt.

A Blaze at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, May 8.—Shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon a fire occurred at Mr. J. W. Peregrine's woodyard, York-street, near Queen. The roof of the engine-house caught fire and was partially burned, but the promptness of the fire department prevented much damage.

A Village in Ashes.

CHICAGO, May 8.—Fire at the suburban village of Moreland to-night rendered 70 families homeless; loss $100,000, insurance $50,000.

A Great Oil Strike.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 8.—The great oil well here is being visited by thousands of people. No stronger flow has ever been found in this country. A twenty-barrel tank was filled yesterday in twenty minutes. The well is thought to be good for 1000 barrels per day. The product is a superior quality of lubricating oil.

GOVERNMENT HIRELINGS.

AN EXPRESSION TO WHICH JUSTICE HANNEN OBJECTS.

The Examination of Mr. Parnell Before the Commission Concluded—Archbishop Walsh Gives Evidence.

LONDON, May 8.—Mr. Parnell's examination was finished before the commission to-day. He testified that the Reception Committee in America comprised the leading merchants of New York, representative citizens and ministers of religion. In his speeches in New York witness declared that not a farthing contributed to the Irish cause would go towards organizing rebellion in Ireland. Throughout his tour of the United States he had never even swerved a handsbreadth from that declaration. Attorney-General Webster, the witness said, had quoted from five out of sixty speeches he had made in the United States, ignoring the general tenor of his speeches so as to misrepresent his words. All the names the Attorney-General had mentioned of persons associated with the meetings were only a small fraction of those who attended. Men of prominent position and undoubted respectability attended those meetings. In no sense could the American reception be identified with the proceedings of the Physical Force party. Witness firmly believed that none of his colleagues since joining the Irish parliamentary party had had anything to do with the Fenians. Only casually did the Fenians come within the orbit of the constitutional movement. Here Mr. Parnell scored by remarking that the Tories were more certainly associated with the movement, for instance when they cooperated with the Parnellites to obstruct the Criminal Code Bill to the death. Referring to some letters of his, Mr. Parnell said he had copies made from his secretary's shorthand notes.

Attorney-General Webster: "It seems that there exists a book of Mr. Parnell's letters. I would like to see that book."

Sir Charles Russell: "By all means."

Presiding Justice Hannen: "If these letters refer to the League they ought to have been disclosed."

Mr. Parnell: "Your Lordships are welcome to see any letter I ever wrote or received."

Attorney-General Webster, recurring to Mr. Parnell's private bank account, wanted to trace a number of checks. A warm discussion ensued, Sir Charles Russell declaring that such action would be unfair.

Justice Hannen suggested a postponement of the matter until fuller documents were before the Court.

Archbishop Walsh testified that he came to the conclusion before 1879 that there was need of a defensive land organization and was proceeding to give his opinion on the subject.

Justice Hannen said the enquiry must be limited whether or not the Land League was necessary.

Attorney-General Webster submitted that matters of opinion were not admissible.

Mr. Biggar urged that opinion evidence had been given over and over again by hirelings of the Government.

Justice Hannen warned Mr. Biggar not to use such expressions.

Mr. Biggar said that unless such evidence was admitted the whole enquiry would end in a farce.

The judges retired to consider the matter privately. On their return Justice Hannen announced they had decided that it was not permissible to ask any witness, however distinguished, abstract questions of opinion. The facts known to the witness ought to be laid before the court before opinions based thereon were mentioned.

The Archbishop continuing said that in the course of visits through his diocese he had abundant means of knowing that the League denounced outrages. Many priests had joined the League with his approval. He saw nothing in the action of the League to forbid the clergy joining.

His Silence is Golden.

LONDON, May 8.—Bratfisch, the cab driver who was at Meyerling when Crown Prince Rudolf died, and who is one of the few persons in possession of the truth about the catastrophe, has been allowed to return from Russia to Vienna, and he is to receive a pension from Emperor Francis Joseph, which is to be paid daily and which is to be continued for so long a time as he holds his tongue.

A Hohenzollern to Wed a Bourbon.

LONDON, May 8.—A Hohenzollern, for the first time in the existence of his house, is soon to marry a Bourbon. He is the eldest son of the Prince of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen, who was the pretext for the war of 1870 and of the Portuguese Infanta, who used to be often on visits at the Tuileries before the war. The bride is the daughter of the Count de Trani and of Mathilda of Deux Ponts, in Bavaria, the sister of the Empress of Austria, and has been chiefly brought up at Cannes and Paris. She has a wonderful head of hair, as long, as rich and as rippling as that of her Aunt Elizabeth, but with more gold in her ripples.

There is great beauty in the Sigmaringen branch of the Hohenzollerns.

BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

Canada's Commerce With Great Britain—Emigration Affairs

LONDON, May 8.—The Board of Trade returns show that British exports to the Dominion increased £7160 during April, and £18,325 during the four months. Imports from Canada decreased £79,073 during April and increased £56,296 during the four months. There were large decreases in flour and fish, and increases in cheese and sawn wood.

The direct Canadian emigration from Liverpool last week decreased 41 per cent. as compared with 1888. This week again shows a decrease, though the numbers of continental immigrants, chiefly Scandinavians and Germans, still show an increase of 20 per cent. over last year.

The Trouble in Algoma.

THESSALON, May 8.—The police expedition arrived Monday morning. The bridge had been blown up in anticipation of their arrival. The shantymen are all well armed, and threaten violence. They say there is no law to protect their interests, and they must look out for themselves.

The police, under Detective Grier, at once set about the construction of another bridge, and, although threats of violence were made by the shantymen, they refrained from carrying them into effect. As soon as the bridge was sufficiently advanced to allow the police to cross they charged up the opposite hill to the shanties. They then set a gang of laborers at work to complete the bridge. They are compelled to remain on the scene, however, to protect the workmen from violence on the part of other gangs.

CANADA AND JAPAN.

Mr. E. Odlum's Views as to Trade with the Japanese.

Mr. Edward Odlum, M. A., who went to Japan two years ago to assume the position of Principal at the Methodist College, Tokyo, has returned to Canada. Mr. Odlum, who is a brother-in-law of Mr. Geo. W. Powell, of Peterborough, is a well-known educationist. The Empire publishes an interview with him, in which he heartily approves of the fortnightly service of steamers on the Pacific and praises the Canadian Pacific railway. "I used to say some hard things against the C. P. R.," he said "but when I saw what they had done, and when I saw the towns springing up all along the line, I made up my mind to shut my mouth about the C. P. R. in future." Regarding trade between Canada and Japan Mr. Odlum said:—

"Of course to keep up a fortnightly Pacific service something must be done to increase the trade. Heretofore this has been our weakness: the old countries of Europe, Germany, France and England, as well as the United States, have had the control of the trade between Japan and foreign countries for a long time. There has been no business done in the country by Canadians. Therefore there has been no Canadian house established there. Well, when our business men in Canada try to do a little in the way of opening up trade they have to get the name of a commission agent in Yokohama or some other place in Japan from some newspaper or a friend living there. The result is that when they send their goods there on commission these goods go into the hands of some United States or other commission agent, who will sell his own goods in preference to those of Canadian manufacturers. The Japanese buy the goods brought to their notice, and the Canadian manufacturers remain on the shelves. Now there are many articles which we can send to Japan to great advantage. When I was there, in order to test the thing thoroughly—because I knew I would talk about it when I came back—I brought in hams, corned beef, flour, butter, blankets and other stuff from Canada, and I found that I could lay these articles down in Tokyo, buying them at retail prices in Canada, remember, cheaper than what we were paying for the same brought in from other countries."

"What are the chief goods that Canada can send to Japan?"

"The chief goods that Canada can send there are two general classes—the manufactured and raw material. The manufactured articles would come under the head of canned or condensed milk, cheese, butter, salt, buttons, musical instruments, such as pianos and organs, various kinds of machinery, cottons, tweeds and various other articles. Take the manufacture of corsets as an example. Corsets are manufactured and sold here in Canada at very low prices, yet the people pay a large figure for them in Japan. It is the same with pins and other small articles. The Japanese are now beginning to copy the European manner of clothing the body, and there is a great demand for trimmings. They are also giving up the use of sandals, and wearing leather boots and shoes instead. There is a great demand for lasts. The lasts upon which our boots are made are unsuitable for the Japanese, but the proper shape could be manufactured in Canada and sent to Japan. Then the raw material required in that country would perhaps be represented in lumber and in hides. They are now beginning to open up tanneries there, and, of course, the trade in hides will develop as their tanneries increase. It is not a cattle raising country, and the hides will have to come from Canada and other foreign centres. They will manufacture the leather and their boots in all probability, owing to the cheapness of labor there."

Reverting to the question as to how to built up Canadian trade, Mr. Odlum said there was no use whatever of Canadians sending their goods to a commission agent who represents a foreign country, and who has strong prejudices against Canada and her manufactures. What Canada wants is to have a commercial agent on the ground to represent the manufactured goods of Canada. There could be an agent for each of the provinces, but Mr. Odlum thought an agent for the Dominion, a shrewd businessman, would do much better. A man, patriotic to the interests of this country, who would work hard to introduce our goods, was wanted. Such a man could use an interpreter at the start, but he could master the Japanese language sufficiently in two years' time to get along himself.

Mr. Odlum then gave an interesting account of the state of the labor market in Japan. A street laborer will work for ten cents a day, while a skilled mechanic would earn from 75 cents to a dollar per day. Living was cheap in proportion. He had known cases in Japan where a man and his wife had boarded for $3 per month, but they ate rice three times a day. The students in the Methodist college paid $3.25 per month for board, lodging and tuition.

Mr. Odlum says the Japanese are a very immoral people.

REVIEWS.

THE CENTURY.—The May number of the Century excels, if such a statement can be maintained, any issue for the last year, in point of beauty of illustration and literary interest. So varied is the contents, so beautiful the illustrations that the whole is almost beyond criticism. Of special and timely interest are the able papers on "Samoa," dealing as they do with the physical and social features of a land and people recently brought into notice by the awful hurricane and consequent disaster to the shipping at that time in the harbor of Apia, the principal port. "Round About Jerusalem," is a well illustrated and delightfully written paper on the ancient city and the places of Biblical interest. Mr. Kennan continues his papers on "Siberia" and is nearing his descriptive part relating to the awful system perpetrated in the mines of the Trans-Baikal. "The Monasteries of Ireland" will interest thousands of readers who own fealty to the Emerald Isle. The several stories are continued, with in addition a liberal instalment of the Life of Lincoln. Altogether the number is a satisfactory one and sure to maintain the popular impression that the Century is leading the great magazines in the race for first place.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

FORMATION OF ISLANDS.

THEIR CREATION DUE TO VOLCANIC ERUPTIONS AND OTHER CAUSES.

Scientific Information Not Given in the Geographies—Islands Which Have Been Blown Up from the Ocean's Bottom. Detached Pieces of Land.

Your ordinary text book of geography, "as she is written," talks barely and baldly about the size of countries, their boundaries, their rivers and lakes, capes and head lands, their populations, their religions and their chief products. These are all facts, no doubt; but they are facts which resemble pearls destitute of any string whereby they may be converted into a necklace and thus made useful and ornamental both. My belief, therefore, leads to the assertion that we should become more scientific—but not thereby less popular—in our geographical teaching in schools; and this very subject of islands shows the way of reform. Science, in this sense, dives below the bare facts of the text books, and seeks to give reasons for these facts. It places itself in the position of an expositor and expounder of the manner in which our world and its affairs have come to assume their existing order.

DUE TO VOLCANIC ACTION.

Geographically, all islands are regarded as of much the same constitution. They are detached masses of land, surrounded by sea, and differing, to the mind of the schoolboy or schoolgirl, chiefly in size. Australia is a big island; Madagascar is not so big, and from Ceylon onward to Mauritius or the Azores there are found all degrees and gradations of magnitude. This, with a few details about the quarters of the world in which islands exist, and with some ideas about products and peoples, complete the geographical knowledge of the average man and woman.

Science takes up the matter where commonplace geography ends its story. It asks, first of all, what islands really are, and how one island differs from another. As a result of its investigations, science soon discovers that islands may be divided by their nature into two distinct sets or classes. Of these two divisions, the first includes islands which can lay claim to that title from the first day of their existence, in that they have never formed part and parcel of any larger mass of land. Thus we first distinguish the so called "volcanic" islands, which, like the Azores, have been thrust up from the sea depths by volcanic action, to form detached masses of land existing, it may be, many miles from a continent or mainland.

Then comes a second class of islands which are called "continental," because, whatever their size, form or situation, we can prove them to be geologically part and parcel of a bigger tract of land. They are separated and disjoined fragments, so to speak, of a larger land mass. Under this head are to be included many islands we know. The British islands are simply detached parts of the European continent; just as Trinidad is a fragment of South America; or as the Malay archipelago represents the broken up land which, once upon a time in its hale and solid state, connected Asia and Australia. Even New Zealand and Madagascar are continental islands in their way, although the exact dates of their separation may be very hard to trace in the mists of geological time.

THE DIFFERENCE SCIENTIFICALLY EXPLAINED

Having thus succeeded in distinguishing between islands which, like St. Helena, the Azores, the Galapagos and so forth, represent the eruptions into the earth's outside mass of volcanic matter, and those which, like Britain, Trinidad and the West Indies, are really the detached pieces of large land tracts, it behooves us to inquire further into the history of each group. They are separated from their mainlands, it may be, by abysses of ocean. On the other hand the continental islands have, relatively, shallow seas separating them from their nearest continents.

Witness, to prove this statement, the German ocean, the English channel, the sea between Trinidad and America or the general depth of the seas around the Malayan islands. We find a test not only of the nature of an island in the depth of the seas around it—apart from its rock structure—but, in the case of the continental islands we can assure ourselves of the length of time they have been separated from their mainlands by having regard to the same matter of ocean deepness.

The Azores, as volcanic islands, are thus separated from Portugal by sea varying from 2,000 to 2,500 fathoms. Within a short distance from the islands themselves the sea is about 1,000 fathoms deep; within 200 miles it is 1,800 fathoms, and soon deepens to 2,500. With the Bermudas the case is similar; some 450 miles off we reach the sea bottom at 3,825 and 3,875 fathoms. St. Helena has sea of 2,860 fathoms deep between it and Africa, some 1,100 miles off. Contrariwise, the sea around our own shores is comparatively shallow; but, as I have remarked, whenever a continental island shows, like Madagascar, a deep channel between it and its main land, the story such depth tells us is one of long detachment from the mother country.

PLANT AND ANIMAL LIFE.

So far, islands have shown us that geologically their history is interesting in respect of the marked variation between the two classes. Not less interesting is the additional evidence about islands which their animals and plants have to tell. Whence, let us ask, have detached islands, like the Azores, obtained their animals and plants? Upraised from the sea bed, as have been these islands, their living population must have been derived from other and previously peopled lands. This supposition is confirmed by our finding that on the Azores we discover no animals or plants—excluding those of man's introduction—which are not found on the Portuguese coast. The rabbits, weasels, mice and a single kind of lizard found in the Azores are importations.

The birds which, of course, can fly over the intervening sea, are those of Europe; such also are the insects, and such, again, are the plants. In a word, there is nothing about the animals and plants of the Azores which we cannot explain by reference to their European origin. Then also, on such detached islands, we cannot expect to find native quadrupeds or frogs; for these animals will not face and brave a long swim in the sea. In a word, it is precisely those animals and plants which have ways and means of conveyance over tracts of sea which people these distant islands and come to live and flourish thereon.

Very different is the case with our continental islands. Here the animals and plants are those of the adjacent mainland, altered and modified only in so far as the length of the separation of the islands indicates and allows. Our British animals and plants are those of the continent, and the life of Trinidad is that of South America, because there has been no time, practically, for change. But in Madagascar, Australia and New Zealand, as islands long separated, each from its mainland, we find living things utterly unlike the great land mass from which each island was derived. Thus it is that together geology and biology teach us much about islands of which geography takes no heed.—London News.

Baltimore Lutherans seem to be alive to the work of building up the "waste places" around them. Since 1884, four new congregations have been organized, and put on a solid footing. Three of them are English, have something over a thousand members, and own church properties valued at $44,000, with but $6,000 debt.

The eight anniversary of the organization of the first Christian Endeavor society occurred recently. There are now 7,000 societies with an aggregate of 400,000 members.

A Second Baptist church is to be found in Paris, France. As the First church has recently opened a new hall for evangelistic services, this will make four places for worship in that city under the control of the Baptists.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

A Match for the 24th.

A meeting of the Riversides is called for to-morrow night at the Phelan house, when decision will be arrived at as to what game will be played here on the 24th. The club wrote to the Young Torontos to ascertain whether a game could be arrainged for here on the Queen's Birthday, and since then the Ontarios, of Toronto, have written asking for a match on that day. That there will be a game, and a good one too, here on the 24th is now a sure thing.

Engagement Extraordinary.

An effort is made by a local committee to secure for the 14th of this month, Roberts Harper, of London, England, to give his world renowned illustrated lecture "Ireland and her evictions." Mr. Harper's views are generally acknowledged to be the best in the world. We trust that the committee will be successful that have the matter in hand in completing arrangements and we are sure that the citizens of Peterborough will largely patronize this high class entertainment.

Volunteers, Attention.

We learn that the brigade camp will take place near Kingston during the last two weeks of June. It will consist of two brigades from the third and fourth military districts respectively (composed of some 2,500 men). The Peterborough Cavalry Troop requires about a dozen recruits to fill up their ranks, which offers a rare opportunity for young farmers, to whom ten days drill with a change of scene and work after spring seeding, and before haying commences, would be beneficial with ample remuneration ($1.50 per day for man and horse and found).

Bring Them to Town.

An excursion is to be run from Alnwick and Roseneath on the north side of the lake up to here on Tuesday next, and a gentleman remarked this morning that it would be a good stroke of enterprise and would also prove a good thing for the merchants if some way was arrived at for meeting the people from the country around these villages and bringing them up to town to trade every week. He said there were good farmers in that part and there trade would be considerable. Mr. Calcutt intends to run a boat from these points every Saturday during the summer.

Such Things are Needed.

Look over the household equipment. Consider how long that lounge has stood the wear and tear. Reflect how seldom you've sat with comfort in that arm chair. That table is rather rickety you must confess. The sideboard hasn't the look of a piece of furniture that's been brought up in the lap of luxury. Plainly speaking, your furniture is about worn out. Then superannuate it. Get something new. Brace up your belongings. It won't cost much. You've scarcely any idea how cheaply you can renew things when you go about it in the right way and at the right place. That place is Belleghem's. Half the people in the district are sleeping on Belleghem's beds and dining off his tables. And why? Because the style, material, finish and get up of the furniture is so taking that customers must buy. Belleghem's work is as a household word in the district. From the finest to the cheapest his capacious stock rooms can fill the order. Take the care of a couple who propose marrying and setting up house keeping. Belleghem will furnish the license, attend the wedding, kiss the bride—if judicious—furnish the house and dance at the house-warming. Belleghem is the King of the furniture trade and well deserves the title.

THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH.

The Launch of a New Steamer on the Waters of the Little Lake.

Yesterday afternoon the new steamer of Mr. H. Calcutt's which has been under construction on the stocks in Ashburnham, was successfully launched and now rides in perfect balance on the smooth waters of the Little Lake. The boat, which is built on a Mississippi model, is well adapted to navigation on inland water, having a draft when full laden of not more than thirty inches. When she was launched yesterday she drew only about four or five inches of water, but with an ordinary load she would probably draw about eighteen inches. She is of a rather pretty model, although when on the sticks she did not appear as well as she would in the water. She is about ninety feet in length and when she is fitted up as a steamer she will carry between 250 and 300 people.

The launch yesterday was unattended with ceremony of any kind, the customary bottle of champagne being dispensed with, although her name was perhaps worthy of the best that Burgundy ever produced, being one which, although a little uncommon at present, will in the near future be the most familiar, namely, the City of Peterborough. The boat had been built with her side to the water, so that it was a side launch, but the boat slid down the skidways without mishap, although a slight hitch was caused by the rollers slipping away. There were some fifteen or twenty persons on board when the boat struck the water, and as she rode on the peaceful bosom of the lake they raised a cheer, which meant a great deal on such a warm day.

The boat has not yet been decked over, but this will be proceeded with at once and she will be fitted up as a palace scow and will be used as an excursion boat this season and will also make weekly trips down the lake. Next winter an engine and boiler will be put in and next season she will be ploughing the waters as a side-wheeler with a speed of fifteen or eighteen miles an hour. The boat has been built by Mr. John Stoneberg, of Belleville, who is a first-class workman and seldom fails to do an A 1 job.

The excursions will be rushed on early if this warm weather continues, and the steamers of the river which now number 14 will find the season opening in earnest.

Adam's Popular Hotel.

Adam Dobbin, who has just been released from the gaol where he was sent at his own request as a vagrant, made application to the Magistrate again this morning to be sent back to the stone castle for another month. The hot weather was too much for Adam yesterday, and he longed for the cool atmosphere and easily-earned lunches which are dealt out to the boarders three times a day. The Magistrate gave the man ticket of admittance in the form of a warrant of committal for vagrancy, and Adam meandered up to the gaol all by himself with a satisfied look of a man who knows that his board bill is paid for a month ahead.

The Game on the Diamond.

A meeting was held yesterday afternoon at Schofield's drug store when a baseball club was organized in connection with the P.A.A.A. It is expected that with a little practice a fair nine can be put in the field this season, and if the gentlemen who have the organization of the town club in hand are successful in forming a club, there may be considerable enthusiasm awakened in baseball before the season closes. The Lock Works also have a club organized and have a strong nine, so that there will be considerable local competition. All members of the P.A.A.A. are eligible for membership of the club. All baseballists should join the association, either in full membership or only for the baseball. A good feature of the Association club and an inducement which cannot be overlooked is the fact that the Association supplies or has supplied all the requirement—balls, bats, masks, gloves, pads, etc. Let all the lovers of baseball come into the Association and go in for the game with a vim. The officers elected yesterday were as follows:—

PRESIDENT.—G. W. Hatton.
VICE PRESIDENT.—W. J. Green.
SECRETARY.—G. H. Allison.
CAPTAIN.—Dr. F. H. Brennan.
COMMITTEE OF MANAGEMENT.—Messrs. E. A. Pearson, Turnbull and F. D. Mackay.

Board of Trade Matters.

The council of the Board of Trade met on Wednesday evening and discussed several matters brought up for consideration. The secretary was instructed to make application on behalf of the Board to the authorities of the G.T.R. and C.P.R. with a view of having the market day fare prevail on Wednesdays as well as on Saturdays of each week. A special committee was appointed to consider the question of freight rates and to communicate with the general freight agents of the railroads regarding the matter. The point was brought up and commented on of the convenience to business men if the local banks could be prevailed on to keep open the usual hours on Saturday, closing at twelve o'clock on some other day of the week. Several members agreed to move in the matter and enquire if the arrangement was feasible. The departure of Mr. A. W. Brodie from town was mentioned with regret that so useful and public spirited a citizen should withdraw from the ranks of the local business men, and it was moved by Mr. Meldrum and seconded by Mr. H. S. Macdonald, that the Council of the Board of Trade of the Town of Peterborough, wish to express their deep regret at Mr. Brodie's departure from Peterborough and to record their admiration of his integrity and business ability and in this way to show the high appreciation in which Mr. Brodie is held in Peterborough, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to him by the secretary.

THE ROYAL ARCANUM.

The Session of the Grand Council Closed—Election of Officers—Praise for the Town.

The Grand Council of the Province of Ontario, Royal Arcanum, rushed their business through yesterday and the session closed last night.

In the afternoon the Council resumed at two o'clock, when the next place of meeting was considered, and it was finally decided to hold it at Berlin on the first Wednesday in May, next year.

The reports of the officers and different committees were received and showed that the affairs of the Order were in a satisfactory and flourishing condition. It was shown that there had been an increase in the membership of 12½ per cent during the year.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

GRAND REGENT.—D. F. McWatt, of Barrie.
VICE-REGENT.—Judge Tom, of Goderich.
GRAND ORATOR.—J. R. Stratton, Peterborough.
GRAND SECRETARY.—W. E. Brown, of Hamilton (re-elected.)
GRAND TREASURER.—Chas. Cottis, of Guelph (re-elected.)
GRAND CHAPLAIN.—Rev. E. P. Crawford, of Brockville.
GRAND GUIDE.—F. Morley, of Toronto.
GRAND WARDEN.—T. Mortimer, of London.
GRAND SENTRY.—T. E. Winters, of Preston.
GRAND TRUSTEE.—T. Sargent, of Toronto.
REPRESENTATIVES TO SUPREME COUNCIL.—D. Spry, of Barrie; alternate, T. Sargent, of Toronto.

A FAIR AMENDMENT.

The business transacted was principally of a private nature and of interest to the Order only. However, several amendments were made to the constitution and by-laws of the Grand Council, and it was also decided to request the Supreme Council to confer on all secretaries who had held office for three consecutive years the degree of Past Regent.

The Grand Regent was presented with a handsomely bound volume of the minutes of the proceedings of the last meeting of the Supreme Council by one of the brethren.

SHOULD BE A CITY.

Resolutions of thanks were passed to the Mayor and Corporation for their welcome to the town, to the local Council of the Order for its kind reception and also to the retiring Grand Regent.

Several of the members of the Grand Council took occasion to make a few very flattering remarks in regard to Peterborough, speaking of its apparent thrift and industry and remarking that it should be incorporated as a city.

Most of the delegates left on the evening train last night.

During the evening Mr. Harper will graphically describe and show about one hundred views of the recent evictions, etc. Mr Harper's lantern is of such power that he can produce pictures of colossal size, using a screen thirty or forty feet square, or even larger. A Boston paper says:—"Every seat in Tremont Temple was occupied last evening, and the entertainment proved one of great merit. INJURED BY A RAM.—On Saturday evening, while Mrs. William Creagh was going through the barnyard carrying her grandchild, she was attacked by a ram, which struck her on the leg knocking her down and breaking it above the ankle. Fearing for the safety of the child she tried to rise, when the ram again struck her, again knocking her down and breaking the same leg below the knee. Finally they were rescued with the assistance of the hired girl, who also received a stroke, but had no bones broken. Mrs. Creagh is now under the care of R. McGrath, M. D., but her injuries being so severe it will be some time before she can be about again.

Drainage.

To the Editor of the Review:

SIR,—I am very glad to see that the Town Council have decided to do away with the present very unsightly building on the market square and substitute something more in keeping with the size and importance of our town, also that they are to have more hydrants and additional water on the streets. These are all steps in the right direction, but I should also like to see some of them bring up the question of drainage, a most important question for a town of this size and one that if not attended to, will force itself upon our notice soon in a most serious and unpleasant manner, as some of our medical men have pointed out to us on more than one occasion.

Yours, &c.,
HEALTH.

Peterborough, May 8th, 1889.

Mr. Barron and the Post Office Site.

The following letter has been addressed to the editor of the Examiner:—

SIR,—In the "Hansard" report of the discussion in Committee of Supply, on the item "Peterborough Custom House $10,000," which you have thought fit to publish, I find my name is used more than once by Mr. Barron, the member for North Victoria, who admitted that he brought out my name in particular because I happen to be his brother-in-law, and his statements might therefore have the appearance of authority. I regret to find that Mr. Barron was so far wanting in decorum as to give his fellow members to think he would be guilty of repeating in Parliament what, on the face of it, must have been a private conversation, and I can only account for such a departure from the well recognized laws governing such matters by his zeal for and association with the party with whom he has thought fit to ally himself. But it so happens that Mr. Barron's remarks are a tissue of mis-statements, as you, Sir, and many of the citizens of Peterborough are well aware. It may be that the events happened so long ago that Mr. Barron has forgotten. The fact is, that at least a year before the Post Office was thought of, the vacant lot at the corner of Hunter and Water sts. was purchased by myself and others. Mr. Hilliard, entirely of his own motion, succeeded in getting into the estimates an item for a site for a public building, intending it, no doubt, as a pleasant surprise for his constituents. Subsequently the Chief Architect was sent up from Ottawa to make an examination and report, and, although he received much attention from some gentlemen having lots to sell, neither I nor either of my partners took the trouble to go near him, nor, as far as I know, did anyone recommend our lot. Nevertheless, so palpable was it that the corner of Hunter and Water-sts. was the most suitable site for a post office, which had to serve both Peterborough and Ashburnham, that the architect recommended its selection. Then it was that an agitation was gotten up to have the building placed elsewhere, and numerously signed petitions were sent to the Hon. the Minister of Public Works representing that this site was more suitable for a Custom House, and so on. These petitions were signed without regard to politics or personal considerations, and it is a well known fact that a leading Reformer made a proposal to certain Conservatives, that if they could, by offering their lot cheap, induce the Government to build upon it, he would augment the price to their figure out of his own pocket. However, the Hon. the Minister, whose able administration of his Department received the praise of the Liberal Whip even, the other day in his valedictory, came to the conclusion that in view of the rapidly increasing proportions of Peterborough and Ashburnham, which before long might fairly be expected to form together no inconsiderable city, (it is gratifying to find their joint population is nearly 12,000) it would be advisable to erect two buildings instead of one: hence the purchase of the two lots. No one pretends that I and my partners obtained a higher price for our lot than it was worth, and it is quite true, as stated by Mr. Stevenson, that Mr. Cox, whose astuteness in such matters is proverbial, paid us $25 per foot more for the adjoining 54 feet. If Mr. Stevenson had been conversant with all these facts, as he might have been had he had the opportunity to inform himself, he would have been in a position to give the Honorable Member for North Victoria the crushing reply he deserved.

As this is a matter of some public interest I am sure, Sir, you will not object to the considerable space I have been obliged to occupy.

Yours &c.,
A. P. POUSSETTE.

That Ennismore Assault Case.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me through the columns of your valuable paper to give the true version of the row from which sprang the great Smith vs. Young assault case at the last Court of Assizes held in Peterborough. I do this as the facts as published in reference to said case are not exactly true and are apt to mislead the public who are not acquainted with the true circumstances.

On the evening of the 28th Dec. last, while returning from Peterborough, accompanied by Jno. Guiry, who was at the time working for Philip Smith, the plaintiff, while passing through Bridgenorth, I became aware from the yelling and abusive language which I heard behind me that I was being followed by the plaintiff Smith, and his two brothers-in-law, P. L. Smith and O Riely. Owing to their actions in Peterborough on that day, and to certain reports that I had heard, I was afraid of the consequence if they overtook me. Therefore I drove at a lively rate across the bridge, intending to keep away from them till I would reach the Ennismore side, where I knew if they took their right road home that I would be safe from them, having no idea that they would pursue me further, as by doing so they would go at least two miles out of their way. But instead of that, when I turned my road at the end of the bridge they still followed me, keeping up a continual flow of abusive and profane language. This continued for nearly two miles further, they sometimes closing on me and then falling back again. At length, thinking that they would overtake me, as I had about four miles further to go, and as the odds were against me, fearing that I would suffer bodily injury at their hands if they caught me, I left my team to my companion, Jno. Guiry, and went through the fields to Mrs. Sullivan's. with the idea of getting the Sullivan boys as a protection. The boys consented to accompany me to the post office, where I expected to meet Guiry with my team. When we arrived there we entered, thinking that Smith and his companions had gone on towards home. But instead of that they were inside before me. Now, naturally provoked at the way they had abused me on the road, I asked them if they were the parties who were chasing me. The plaintiff Smith said "Yes," and commenced to take his coat off. Seeing this, I removed mine, and struck at him, missing him. The post master, Mr. Scollard, forbid any disturbance in the house. Upon hearing this I desisted, saying "I did not want to fight." But seeing my three pursuers making ready for fight, I made up my mind there was no getting out of it, so I invited the best man of them to step out. Evidently the plaintiff considered he was the best man, for he accepted my invitation by advancing towards me. I struck him, and positively not till then. He returned the stroke. We exchanged a few blows, and meanwhile P. L. Smith came to his friend's assistance by both striking at and kicking me. He was restrained by one of the onlookers. Then the plaintiff quit striking and seeing that I did the same. Then P. L. Smith re-commenced the row by kicking me. Then I struck him. Thereupon the plaintiff saying he would take me foul seized the bucket of the scales and threw it at me with all his force, but missed his mark, striking the wall over my head, leaving a mark in the plaster one-half inch deep. The post master again forbid rowing in the house, and I complied by sitting down. While seated the plaintiff made a rush at me, taking me unawares, and struck me in the face, cutting me. We exchanged a few blows, and separated, I retiring to the next room. Riley followed me asking if I wanted any more. I replied "No." This is a true statement of the assault for which Mr. Smith claimed $1,000 damages of me. As a proof of what their intentions on the road were, notice the following:—After I left my team on the road they overtook Jno. Guiry, with the team, and passing him crossed their rig on the road so as to stop him. One of the party left their rig and came to the waggon looking for me, threatening what they could do to me. Finding I was not there they went on.

As to the plaintiff's claim that he sustained such serious injury at my hands as to bring on an attack of erysipelas which laid him up, as he says, for six weeks, I have this to say, that I know he was at work next day, and if he was so seriously injured as he tried to make the public believe, it is strange how he was able to go to work next day. As to this row bringing on erysipelas in his face, I am doubtful, for some time previous to this he sustained a more serious injury than this in the nose, and very likely this is the real cause of the erysipelas. In fact he admited it himself during his illness. In connection with this the plaintiff's brother-in-law swore in court that those injuries which the plaintiff sustained could not be done with the naked hand. Now I am willing to make affidavit before any Magistrate that any injuries he sustained through me were done with the bare hand.

In conclusion I wish to state that this row, or assault as Mr. Smith chooses to term it, was forced upon me by the said Mr. Smith and his friends and that I am not a fighting character, as I can get numbers to testify, for this has been my first and only row and in this case I received such provocation as no man that calls himself a man could stand.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space,

I remain,
Yours, &c.,
JOHN YOUNG.

The people of Peterborough and vicinity are all aware of the business change which took place in the CITY CLOTHING STORE on the first day of February last. The new firm beg leave to make their first bow to the public through the columns of the REVIEW, and to request a careful perusal of the following Spring and Summer circular:—

The City Clothing Store

in past years, by long experience in business, by buying always for spot cash, importing direct from the principal houses of the old country and from the leading houses of Canada, and by strict economy in conducting its business, has always been able to force prices down to an exceedingly fine point. The members of which the new firm is composed will form a still stronger "combine," by which the CITY CLOTHING STORE will be even better prepared to procure for its customers a continuation of those superior inducements in the future for which it has been noted in the past.

THE RELIGIOUS WORLD.

CHURCH NEWS AND NOTES GATHERED FROM ALL QUARTERS.

Surprising Educational Work of the Christian Missions in Japan—It Is Thought the Main Work Will Be Accomplished by 1900—Some Statistics.

A well known missionary to China, the Rev. T. Richards, recently describing the Christian missions in Japan which he had visited, says that their educational work is surprising. There is no street chapel preaching as in China, and little medical missionary work, evangelizing being almost exclusively educational, although the distribution of Bibles and tracts is carried on by native colporteurs. He observes that Christian missionaries in Japan are very happy in the sympathy with which their labors are regarded by all classes, and by non-Christians. Japan wants to be westernized, China does not, and the Japanese believe—men of high rank have stated it in so many words—that they will be more readily admitted into the comity of nations when they are a Christian country. Hence the anxiety to assist and promote the work of missionaries. "The general feeling is that, if things go on as they do now, the main work of the foreign missionary will be accomplished by the year 1900—i. e., only twelve years hence! Not that Japan will be all converted by that time, but then with the aid of the missionaries in the field, and the Japanese Christians, there will be enough to go on to the completion of the work." The statistics given by Mr. Richards state that there are 19,829 Protestant converts, with 123 missionaries (men only) 103 unmarried ladies, and 102 native ministers; 82,000 Roman Catholics, with sixty-two missionaries and forty unmarried ladies, and 14,000 of the Greek Church, with three missionaries, nine native ministers and ninety catechists.—Christian at Work.

Caring for Vacant Churches.

The Iowa presbytery is trying the plan of caring for small vacant churches by a presbyterial missionary, who goes from field to field, holding services and administering the sacraments. Rev. H. C. Keeley has been laboring as a presbyterial missionary since Nov. 1. The results of this first quarter's work are most encouraging. Every church visited has been revived, more than 100 persons have been added to the membership of the several churches, and some of the fields have been so strengthened that they are now ready for pastors. The presbytery guarantees the support of the missionary by special pledges from its stronger congregations.—New York Observer.

One Blissful Evening.

She (whispering)—Mamma is in bed sound asleep.

He—Asleep! This time in the evening!

"Yes. Last evening she thought you were here, and I didn't let on you weren't."

"Was any one?"

"No, it was only the phonograph. Well, I slipped up stairs without her seeing me, and she sat up until 2 o'clock this morning waiting to give me a piece of her mind."

"Yes."

"Well, then she came down and found I'd gone up stairs, of course."

"Yes."

"Well, all day today I've kept her trotting around so she couldn't take a nap. You can stay real late to night."—Philadelphia Record.

Her Charms.

(Written by a skeptical lover.)

Her fair complexion, creamy and clear,
Would dazzle and craze a saint;
I could gaze at it forever, and never tire—
But I wonder if it's paint?

Her hair is wavy, and rich, and brown,
The fairest I've ever known;
No mermaid ever had tresses so fair—
But I wonder if they're her own?

Her beautiful, even, pearl like teeth
Behind red lips do lurk;
They're fairer than the richest pearls—
But the dentist's handiwork.

U. S. AND CANADIAN ROADS.

Charles Francis Adams Criticises the Interstate Commerce Law.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The Senate Committee to-day continued its investigation in regard to the relation of Canadian to American railroads. Charles Francis Adams, President of the Union Pacific road, was the first witness. He stated that owing to the manner in which the Interstate Commerce Law had been disjointed it was impossible to give any opinion as to whether the act was beneficial or not. In connection with the other railroad presidents, he was anxious to see what would be the effect if the law was strictly carried out. In some respects it was good law. In others it was crude. He was sure that any railroad that had enforced the law had lost considerable business.

Mr. Adams approved the suggestion that by joint legislation both Canadian and American roads be put under the same conditions and then pooling be legalized. He said he did not believe in pools, but we in this country need a study.

Thos. Lyman Greene, a railroad expert, said the Interstate Commission should have power to fix rates and represent the public in the transaction.

President James J. Hill of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railroad testified that the American people have about a one-third interest in the Canadian Pacific Railroad. The Canadian Pacific gets a great portion of its trade from a subsidized line of steamers running from the western terminus of the road to Yokohama. This gives it an advantage over every other road on the continent. Witness thought that if the Canadian roads were obliged to operate under a law similar to our interstate law they would shortly cease to exist.

Erastus Wiman was the next witness. He said any act of the United States which should bar out the Canadian roads would be detrimental to the interests of this country. The Canadian Pacific road had done more than all else in building up the west and northwestern parts of this country. The Canadian roads were willing to conform to American laws if they could. Mr. Wiman favored Commercial Union between the United States and Canada and said it was a short cut to Annexation. He said that Canada cannot, will not, remain in her present condition. The tie that binds her to England is the merest sentiment. She must either become an independent republic or join with the United States. The hopes of one great party there rest entirely upon one old man. After the death of Sir John Macdonald will come the deluge.

The committee will continue its work to-morrow.

The Collector Has His Foot in Mind.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Secretary Windom and Assistant Secretary Tichnor to-day gave hearing to persons interested in the question of the dutiable character of Canadian cars used in the transportation of merchandise between Canadian and United States points. There were present General O. L. Spalding of St. Johns, Mich., Benj. Flagler of Suspension Bridge, B. B. Bell of Detroit, Henry Russell of Michigan and Mr. Bates of Detroit. These gentlemen represented American roads and American capital and each spoke in opposition to the proposed imposition of duty on the cars in question. They represented that these cars had been admitted free of duty for 20 years and any change in the practice would result in great damage to domestic interests. There was no one present to advocate the other side of the proposition although it is understood the collector at Detroit takes that view of the case.

Evading the Interstate Law.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The Interstate Commerce Commission devoted a session today to hearing representatives of Western railroads in the matter of mileage allowance on different classes of cars furnished by shippers, car companies, individuals or connecting lines, the manner of conducting this business, etc. There were between forty and fifty railroad men present. The testimony showed that the railroad companies generally are paying a mileage allowance of ¾ of a cent per mile on all cars of connecting lines and on many cars furnished by shippers owning their own cars. It was also developed that for a short time back contracts have been entered into by a number of Western railroad companies with Armour & Co., Swift & Co. and other shippers of refrigerator cars, by means of which a mileage allowance of one cent per mile is paid to those shippers and not to other shippers.

The Anarchists Escape.

CHICAGO, May 8.—The indictments against Hronek, Capec and Sevic, charged with conspiracy to blow up the homes of Judges Gary and Grinnell and Police Inspector Bonfield for their part in the prosecution of the Haymarket anarchists, have been stricken from the docket. Hronek is serving a twelve-years' sentence at Joliet, and there was no evidence against Capec and Sevic.

Accidentally Shot Himself.

BOWMANVILLE, May 8.—Wilson Power, sr., of Darlington, a retired farmer, aged about 60, accidentally shot himself this morning. He went out about 2 a.m. to shoot a dog, when the gun was in some way discharged, the contents entering below the jaw, carrying away one side of the face. The deceased was highly respected and well known, having lived here all his life.

Having found it necessary to extend my premises owing to increase in business, I have leased the premises known as the "Arcade" and will run it in connection with my present stand. I have fitted up the rear part of my present premises in first-class shape and will run it as a Liquor Store, where you can always rely on getting the finest of Liquors only. In connection with it my Arcade Cellar being is fitted up to surpass anything in town, as it is artistically painted and nicely floored, also a fine Wine Cellar and Bonded Warehouse in connection with an immense Stock of Port, Sherry, Native, Gin, Rum, Brandy, etc., in bottle and wood, of the finest Brands. I have also secured the agency for the Philip Bajus Lager, which is equal to the finest American and I will guarantee it to keep for one year without souring. You will find it different to other Canadian Lagers as they will only keep for a few days. I will also keep on hand special lines of Liquors for invalids and in cases where it is required for sickness. Call to see our display.

DOLLAR WHEAT.

That's the Manitoba Figure—Queer Settlement of a Larceny Case.

WINNIPEG, May 9.—Wheat has reached $1 again. An offer for 10,000 bushels at Brandon at that figure was received to-day.

Richard Spice, who skipped out with a watch belonging to a young lady of Portage la Prairie and was arrested, has settled by promising to marry the girl.

Rev. Dr. Sutherland passed through to-day for Japan.

Henderson has accepted the nomination for Centre Winnipeg against Col. McMillan, the new Treasurer of the Greenway Government.

Death of the Leper Priest.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—Rev. Father Damien, widely known as the leper priest of Molokai, died at Kalawa, Hawaii, April 10. Father Damien was born in Belgium in 1840 and went to Hawaii in 1864. For the last 16 years his labors were confined to the leper settlement of Molokai, where he contracted the dread disease which cost him his life.

NEWS OF THE OLD WORLD

ARCHBISHOP WALSH CONTINUES HIS EVIDENCE.

The Deceased Wife's Sister Bill Defeated in the House of Lords—New German Press Gag Laws are Enforced.

LONDON, May 9.—Archbishop Walsh continued his testimony before the Parnell Commission. He testified that facts that had come to his knowledge proved that the League tended to diminish crime. There had been a general decadence in secret societies in Ireland since 1866. He was aware that the League had advised tenants not to enter the Land Court after the passage of the act establishing that court in 1881. Subsequent events had justified that advice. He only knew of one instance where the League had been indiscreet; this indiscretion consisted of the passage of a resolution by a branch of the League to publish in its district a list of persons not members of the League. He protested against this action and the publication of the list was abandoned. As the League spread the secret societies vanished. The people learned to prefer open Parliamentary action. Throughout his diocese the cases of boycotting were few, although the League was strong in that district. The only sense, the Archbishop said, in which boycotting ought to be tolerated came under the name of exclusive dealings. Anything like intimidation was reprehensible. The members of the League held that boycotting kept the country free from outrages. Witness did not approve of refusing to sell the necessaries of life to a man under boycott. He understood the Plan of Campaign to be purely a voluntary combination and that it did not imply boycotting.

Mr. Atkinson, of counsel for The Times, quoted from a pastoral issued by the Archbishop in 1882, denouncing the movement not to pay debts as a forcible resistance to the law.

Archbishop Walsh said the pastoral had been issued in consequence of the increase in the number of secret societies, owing to the disorganization of the League under the imprisonment of its leaders and while the people were driven to despair by evictions.

Sir Charles Russell's Fee.

LONDON, May 9.—It is reported that Sir Charles Russell's fee for acting as counsel for the Parnellities is $10,000.

A Victim of Eviction.

LONDON, May 9.—A despatch dated Falcarragh says evictions will begin on Monday at Glasserchoo, and the landlords will burn the houses from which tenants are evicted.

Bessie Doohan, aged 80, who was evicted from her home on the Olphert estate, is dead. Her death is attributed to the shock caused by her removal.

Sir William Harcourt, in a speech at Bromley yesterday, said the 30,000 men employed to coerce Ireland ought to be at the disposal of Lord Wolseley to increase the army.

The Prince of Wales With the Minority.

LONDON, May 9.—The House of Lords to-day rejected the Deceased Wife's Sister Bill. The Prince of Wales voted with the minority. The vote was 147 to 120.

Striking Firemen Fined.

LIVERPOOL, May 9.—Ten of the striking firemen of the Inman steamer City of Chicago were arrested and each fined 10s. and costs. New men were shipped and the steamer proceeded to-day.

The Exposition Throngs.

PARIS, May 9.—The attendance at the Exposition has thus far averaged 77,000 persons daily.

The Samoan Situation.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., May 9.—Dr. Knappe, the German Consul to Samoa, has arrived here on the steamer Lubeck. Advices from Samoa to April 30 state that the natives are quiet. The position of the hostiles is unchanged. Admiral Kimberley, of the United States Navy, on the suggestion of Mataafa, tried through Dr. Knappe to persuade Tamasese to agree to a peace. Tamasese declined to agree to the proposition unless he was recognized as King. Admiral Kimberley thereupon issued a proclamation urging the natives to maintain peace.

The commander of the British cruiser Rapid has hoisted the British flag over the Suwarrow Island, in the Southern Pacific Ocean, northwest of the Cook Islands.

The Freedom of the Press in Germany.

BERLIN, May 9.—Herr Schmidt, chief editor of The Cologne Gazette, has been fined by the Government for publishing in his paper a patent medicine advertisement containing a cut of an old statue of Napoleon.

Strikers Killed by Soldiers.

BERLIN, May 9.—All the mines at Dortmound, Essen and Bochum are deserted in consequence of the strike. The Krupp and other works have been compelled to stop the manufacture of rails owing to lack of coal. The strikers want an advance of 15 per cent in pay and a reduction of working hours to eight. The newspapers urge the employers to concede the demands of the strikers. It is feared the Socialists will organise a general strike.

A conflict occurred to-day between the strikers and military at Essen. The soldiers killed three men and wounded five.

TEN MEN KILLED.

Terrible Accident in a Pennsylvania Coal Mine.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., May 9.—At Kaska-William Colliery near Middleport this evening the cage containing ten miners was ascending the shaft and was 16 feet from the bottom when an empty car was pushed over the top of the shaft by two Hungarian laborers. The car struck the cage with awful momentum shattering it to splinters and killing every one of its occupants. The victims are Michael Bohle, assistant inside foreman; Hugh Carlin, Patrick McDonald, George Rendal, John Pottovisch, Franz Strakovisch, John Moore, Albert Dwyer, Edward Kurtz and Stephen Watson. The cage was hurled into a hole at the bottom where the water from the workings accumulated. The mine is operated by the Alliance Coal Company. The shaft is 500 feet deep.

Mr. Wiman has just declined a third term as president of the club. Sir Roderick Cameron is the new president. About forty guests attended. Mr. Wiman and others delivered addresses.

Bates' Bad Temper.

DANBURY, Conn., May 9.—Stephen Bates a wealthy old farmer who is possessed of an ungovernable temper, last evening horsewhipped three women who crossed his land and took some wild flowers. The women were employed in a factory and crossed Bates' land to make a short cut. The factory employes witnessed the outrage and running to the scene caught Bates and attempted to lynch him. The women finally interceded and Bates was allowed to go home.

THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Officers Elected Yesterday—Close of a Successful Session.

OTTAWA, May 9.—The Royal Society concluded its work this morning and elected these officers:

President, Rev. Abbe Casgrain; Vice-President, Rev. Principal Grant; Secretary, Dr. Bourinot; Treasurer, Dr. Selwyn.

Section 1—President, J. Marmette; Vice-President, Napoleon Legendre; Secretary, A. Lusignan.

Section 2—President, D.J. Watson; Vice-President, Dr. Geo. Stewart, jun., and Secretary, Dr. J. Clark Murray.

Section 3—President, Sandford Fleming; Vice-President, Monsignor Hamel; Secretary, G. C. Hoffman.

Section 4.—President, G. M. Dawson; Vice-President, Prof. Saunders; Secretary, J. F. Whiteve.

Committees were appointed to welcome the American Society of Mining Engineers and the American Association for the Advancement of Science on their arrival during the summer. In the afternoon all the members of the society attended a garden party at Rideau Hall. The meeting this year was the best the society ever held.

The time for receiving tenders for beef contracts to supply the Indians of the Northwest Territories expired to-day.

The Supreme Court had again under consideration to-day the case of the Canadian Pacific and the New Brunswick Railway against the Western Union Telegraph Company. Argument was closed and judgment reserved.

Speaking of the doubt expressed as to whether, under the present wording, the Weldon Extradition Act may now be construed to be retroactive, a prominent official of the Department of Justice stated to-day that the matter was purely one for the courts to decide. As a general rule Canadian acts are not retroactive in their character, but it might be possible to quote precedents showing that legislation in Canada in reference to extradition has been retroactive. It is possible, however, that in construing the act the courts would give effect to the intent of Parliament and grant extradition only in the case of crimes committed after the passage of the act.

MISSING DR. CRONIN.

A Former Resident of St. Kitts Where His Relatives Now Reside.

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—Dr. Patrick Henry Cronin, who disappeared so mysteriously in Chicago on Saturday night last, came to St. Louis in 1869 from St. Catharines, Ont., when 27 years old. He was a tailor, but never worked at his trade here. He secured employment as a porter in a wholesale grocery, but having a good tenor voice got a position in the Second Baptist Church choir, and this enabled him to obtain the position of omnibus ticket collector for the Transfer Company. He held this position two years, and was then for four years local ticket agent for the St. Louis and Southeastern Railroad, now the Louisville Air Line. Next he opened a drug store in the fashionable west end, attended a pharmacy school and the Missouri Medical College and afterwards practised medicine, making a specialty of throat and lung diseases. In 1880 he went to Europe as an honorary commissioner to the Paris Exposition and soon afterwards removed to Chicago. For a time he was professor of eye and ear diseases at the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons. He was a fine-looking man and a hard worker.

Dr. Cronin is a brother-in-law of Mr. John Carroll and an uncle of Mr. Andrew Carroll of St. Catharines. His family resided in Welland-avenue, next door to the fire station. At one time he worked for his father in the shoe store, in the premises now occupied by the "Beehive," and was quite a popular vocalist at that time.

SIX WOMEN KILLED.

Frightful Street Car Accident at Kalamazoo, Mich.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., May 9.—At 6.30 o'clock last evening a street car containing seven ladies and two gentlemen was crossing the Michigan Central Railroad track when a switch engine crashed into it at a high rate of speed. The street car was carried a long distance, the pieces flying in all directions and the human freight being mangled frightfully. Those in the car were Mrs. Alexander Haddock, Mrs. M. E. Wattles, Miss Gertrude Tillotson, Mrs. Geo. Smiley, Mrs. Middleton, Mrs. VanAntwerp, Mrs. S. A. Gibson, Mrs. Jonathan Barnes, Mr. L. C. Lull and Dr. Sutton. The first six were killed, two being found dead in the cattle guard, one in the creek near by, two on the track and Mrs. Middleton died an hour later. She was thrown into the roadway, Mrs. Gibson was injured in the head and side and Mrs. Barnes was bruised badly. The male passengers and the driver escaped. The gates at the crossing where the accident occurred are not used between 5.30 and 6.58 p.m. The driver of the car, who was a new man, probably supposed the gates would be down if an engine were coming.

A GREY MYSTERY.

Rufus Huntley Found Dead on the Sidewalk at Hanover.

HANOVER, May 9.—Rufus Huntley, a farmer who formerly lived a short distance from this town, left the Queen's Hotel to take the early train this morning for Michigan and was found dead on the sidewalk a short time afterwards.

He was taken into Mr. Messinger's house near by and Coroner Landerkin sent for, who began an inquest this afternoon.

A large wound was found across the left cheek, how received is a mystery.

Swept Over the Falls.

BUCKINGHAM, Que., May 9.—Rev. Mr. Evans of the Church of England, Buckingham, was drowned this morning at the high falls 25 miles above here. He was out for a sail in a bark canoe and getting into the strong current lost control and was swept over the falls, which are over 100 feet high. Deceased was a native of England and had only been in Canada about 9 months.

Fell Into Cisterns.

OSHAWA, May 9.—Yesterday morning the 3-year-old son of William Allison fell into a cistern which contained between seven and eight feet of water but was rescued in time to save his life.

This afternoon while Michael Murphy of Oshawa was plowing one of his horses fell into a well 16 feet deep. The animal was not much the worse of its mishap.

WOOD BAGGED IN BUFFALO

THE TORONTO DRUGGIST FALLS INTO THE MESHES AT LAST.

He Was Quietly Running an Apothecary's Establishment in Main-street in the Bison City for Three Months.

TORONTO, May 10.—Druggist John O. Wood, whose disappearance from the city immediately preceded the death of Lydia Charlton, and against whom the Grand Jury of the County of York returned a true bill for murder in connection with the death of this girl, is at last in the hands of the law. Yesterday morning the police received word from Buffalo that he had been arrested and was being held for extradition in that city. The news, when it got spread through the streets, caused a little sensation, more particularly from the fact that the unfortunate victim, Lydia Charlton, had by her brave battle with death aroused a sympathy with her sufferings and fate which created a deep impression.

Wood was arrested in Buffalo on Wednesday night at a late hour and at his own place of business in Main-street. Strange as it may appear, he had opened up a store in that city on his own account in the drug line, and had frequent conferences with his Toronto friends at the Bridge. One, an hotelkeeper, had an interview with him not later than Sunday last, and it was by shadowing him that the Toronto police got any idea of Wood's presence in Buffalo. The fact of the matter is Wood was never out of New York State, and had been doing business in the Bison City for some months before the police dropped on his presence there.

This morning County Crown Attorney Badgerow, N. Gordon Bigelow, counsel for Wood, and Detective John Cuddy leave for Buffalo to fight over the return of Wood to the Dominion. It is generally understood among his friends that the druggist, who by the by was doing very well in his new home, will not come back without a hard contest. He has cut loose from Toronto and is anxious to stay away, particularly when it is whispered around that evidence which was withheld at the Valentine-Wilkinson trial will be forthcoming which will materially change the aspect of the case.

There is a nice legal point involved in the arrest of Wood, and it hinges mainly on the Extradition Treaty and its provisions. The crime of which he is charged would if found guilty suffice to hang him in Canada, but in New York State it ranks as murder in the third degree, or manslaughter, an item among the felonies which is not included in the extradition bill of fare. Now the question is this—which code of laws will rule, that of the country in which the crime was committed or the one in which the criminal was apprehended? A reporter talked to Mr. Badgerow about this point last night and he is not certain as to the law in the matter. He is studying up authorities, and when he reaches Buffalo he will know all about it. Wood's friends are confident that he cannot be brought across for the above reason. They have consulted some of the most eminent New York jurists and they give as their opinion that the King-street druggist is all right.

The police are jubilant at Wood being run to earth, and they express the highest hopes of getting him back. A reporter asked Inspector Stark last night if, now that Wood was under arrest, Dr. Valentine and Ally E. Wilkinson, his alleged accomplices, would be re-arrested. His reply was: "Now you are treading on dangerous ground, and I have really nothing to say about this matter. Our hands are full of Wood just now."

The Ontario Government, it is reported, will make a big effort to extradite Wood for more reasons than one. The rumor has been freely circulated for several weeks that the Government had been "fixed" by Wood's friends not to go far into the country to capture the fugitive. Now that he is under arrest it is likely that Mr. Mowat, as Attorney-General, will take a lively hand in the proceedings.

A reporter called on the Minister of Education yesterday for the purpose of getting some further information relative to the commission appointed by the Ontario Government to enquire into the teaching of English in the French schools of Russell, Prescott and Essex. This commission is a result of Mr. Craig's motion made in the Local House last session and the discussion which took place thereon.

"I made a certain statement in the House," said Mr. Ross, "that English was taught in the French schools of Ontario, and that every teacher was capable of teaching English. Since the House prorogued the Inspectors have again confirmed that statement. Yes, the commission will travel through all these counties, Prescott, Russell and Essex. We want to know just what the facts are. It is probable also that we will get some very useful information on other points."

"How long, in your opinion, will it take the commission to conclude its investigations?" the reporter asked.

"It will take them at least until the summer holidays," the Minister replied, "and if they are not through by then they will return again to the counties after vacation."

"Then you believe some other important information will be gleaned through this investigation in addition to that concerning the teaching of English in French schools?"

"We cannot tell what they will have to consider when they get on the ground."

"I presume the information gathered will be brought down at the next session of the Local House?"

"No; being a departmental matter it will simply be presented to the department; but the papers will of course be brought down if asked for."

The commission will leave in about two weeks.

James Lynch, an old pensioner residing in the Pensioners' boarding house in Simcoe-street, attempted suicide yesterday afternoon in his room by cutting his throat. He made a four inch gash before he was observed and stopped by a fellow lodger named Wyman. Dr. Cook was called in and after stitching up the wound sent the old man to the Hospital in the ambulance, where he lies in a precarious condition.

A BIG CUSTOMS SEIZURE.

The Montreal Authorities Swoop Down on a $25,000 Stock for Undervaluation.

MONTREAL, May 9.—The customs officers have made a seizure here of the stock of F. Giroux & Co., agents for French perfumes, patent medicines, wines, etc., which is valued at from $25,000 to $30,000. The officers allege that the firm have for some time been entering their goods at an undervaluation, the invoices placing them at less than cost. The investigation of the customs officers has been proceeding for some time until they have now, they state, obtained sufficient information to warrant them in making the seizure. The stock is also under seizure by order of the court in connection with a suit for damages.

The Y. M. C. A. Convention.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 9.—At the International Convention of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday, the International Committee reported the total number of Associations as 1272, of which 1110 show an aggregate membership of 196,496, a large increase over the last biennial report. The total property of the associations reporting is $8,944,665 against $6,062,209 at the last report. Building funds as pledged, amounting to $1,307,395 by 120 Associations, General Secretaries and other paid officials number 880. The International Committee's receipts since the last conference were $46,261; expenses, $45,246. President Francis L. Patton of Princeton College discussed the topic "Modern Unbelief Among Young Men."

HAVELOCK HAPPENINGS.

Building Still Brisk—New Sacred Edifices Going Up.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.—The Church of England have started a nice little church just west of the Presbyterian Church. It is to be of stone and there will a basement under it. With these two churches completed the village will present a much nicer appearance.

SIDEWALKS.—There will be eighty-eight rod of sidewalk laid down in the village this spring and it is greatly needed too. Part of it is down now and it greatly improves the appearance of the streets. We hope the time will come when we will have sidewalks on all our streets.

BUILDING OPERATIONS.—Never was building more brisk than it is this spring. If it goes on at this rate all summer no doubt there will be forty buildings added to our growing little village. Already there are fifteen built and under way. A new baker shop and tailor shop are to be started at once. They are to built just north of the post office.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—The Presbyterian church is well on to completion, and the dedication service will be in June. The contractor, Mr. Garrison, is an energetic man and, no doubt, when the church is completed it will give entire satisfaction as this is the thirty-second church he has built. There is a large basement which will be nicely finished off for tea meetings and the Sunday school. The church will be heated by a large furnace put in by Phillips Bros. The floor of the church ascends as it goes towards the back, thus allowing the people at the back of the church to see over the heads of those in front. The ceiling is laid off in square panels and v joint lumber is used for it, which will be stained and varnished. Those wanting to see this handsome church when completed would do well to attend the dedication services and the open air dinner on the day following.—Register.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

The oldest clergyman in the Church of England is said to be the Rev. Bartholomew Edwards, rector of Ashill, Norfolk, who took his degree in 1811, and was ordained in 1813.

A correspondent of The New York Christian Advocate states that 2,000 drunkards and opium eaters have been reformed in the last ten years through the influence of the New York Christian home.

The Methodists have already established homes in Chicago and Cincinnati for the members of their new order of Deaconesses. Homes will soon be established in other cities also. The order resembles somewhat that of the Sisters of Charity, and its work will be similar,

According to The Leeds Mercury there are in England and Wales 250 religious denominations, with 47,000 places of worship. There are 38,000 ministers, and the church and chapel officials number about 170,000. Communicants number about 8,000,000. The annual cost of all this is about £16,000,000—$80,000,000.

A contemporary says that a certain preacher distributes to his auditors a printed skeleton of his morning sermon, which not only helps them to follow him as he preaches, but enables them to carry away the sermon in a concrete form.

The United Brethren church has adopted the new confession of faith by a vote of 50,965 to 3,295 opposed. The vote on the amended constitution is 50,589 to 3,642. The vote for lay delegation is 48,729 to 5,618.

Melbourne cathedral, which will shortly be opened, has cost £160,000. The site, the gift of the government, is said to be worth £800,000.

The most ritualistic Episcopal church in Chicago and probably in the west is the Church of the Ascension, the rector of which is the Rev. E. A. Larrabee. Father Larrabee is a tall, refined and rather handsome man, greatly beloved by his congregation.

In Germany the entire number of Sunday school children amounts to about 290,000, with 11,000 teachers. Many of the German clergy still regard the Sunday school as an unnecessary institution.

The international convention of the Young Men's Christian associations of the United States and Canada will be held May 8-12 in Philadelphia. Especial pains will be taken to make portions of the programme attractive and valuable to college men.

Bostonians are discussing the advisability of selling old St. Paul's Episcopal church, on Tremont street, the property being worth about $1,000,000, and erecting and endowing a free church for the people.

Over the Cradle.

So many things for the baby to see,
Look from the window and count them with me;
Beautiful smoke floating up to the sky,
Beautiful clouds sailing joyously by,
Radiant light from away up on high.

So many things for the baby to hear;
Tender and loving words whispering near,
Piping of birdling, and humming of bee,
Rippling of gladness from flower and tree,
Echoes from Eden from Earth's burden free.

So many things for the baby to feel;
Warmth of the sunshine where light breezes steal;
Softness of wee shoes, and dainty white gown;
Clasp of encircling arms, lips pressing down,
Throb of the loving heart always her own.

Dear baby eyes, with clear depths of repose,
Dear little hands and feet, soft as a rose,
Dear little mouth, with its blossoming smile,
Dear little heart that beats true all the while,
How does your sweetness my sadness beguile.

Ah, little child! when your babyhood wanes,
Years follow on bearing life's certain pains;
Hands will unclasp that have held yours in pains,
Raining of tears will hide sunshine of joys.
Trembling you'll stand in the tumult and noise.

Love cannot shield you from sorrow's surprise,
Through shade and sunshine, each human path lies;
Comfort alone to your heart will draw nigh,
Led by the faith that through clouds can descry
Radiant light from away up on high.

A THRILLING INCIDENT.

FATHER DE SMET AND THE MURDER OF YOUNG M'KENZIE.

Without a Word Clark Fires the Fatal Shot—His Successful Flight—A Chapter in the History of Early Navigation of the Upper Missouri.

The following description of an exciting event, which, at the time, excited wide spread attention, forms an interesting chapter in Capt. E. W. Gould's work on "The Navigation of Western Waters":

Perhaps no river in the Valley of the Mississippi has been the scene of so many thrilling events, Indian fights, steamboat wrecks, hairbreadth escapes and perils from navigation as has the Missouri.

Previous to the discovery of gold in Montana the American Fur company and its contemporaries and predecessors in the fur trade monopolized about all the traffic there was above Sioux City, commencing soon after the introduction of steam, in 1819, with one boat per annum, adding another from time to time as their trade extended up the river.

The arrival or departure from St. Louis of a "mountain boat" created about as much excitement and curiosity at that time as did that of a Pevonge or Mackinaw boat loaded with skins and peltries at an earlier date. While the Indians were at peace with each other, the steamboat's annual trip was looked forward to by them with pleasure and great anxiety, as it was their source of supplies, and of them Indians are always short.

ACTORS IN THE TRAGEDY.

The Rev. Father De Smet, for many years a missionary and general manager of Catholic missions among the Indians of the northwest, was not unfrequently a passenger on these pioneer boats.

The black gown which he always wore in the presence of Indians inspired in them great veneration, as the representative of the Great Spirit. His amiable and suave manner always assured them, as it did every one else, that no evil could befall them in his presence, and he was, when known to be near, a constant check upon their habits of dissipation, quarrels and hostilities.

No matter how fierce the feuds between different tribes, he went fearlessly from one to the other to allay any commotion or fight and was always respected.

The writer saw this practically illustrated while lying at the mouth of Milk river, some 200 miles below Fort Benton, in 1864.

At that time the Sioux Indians were at war with the United States and with many tribes of Indians. Their country bordered the Missouri river for many miles and navigation was not considered very safe. Boats were occasionally fired into when running close to shore, and when lying up at night always kept a picket guard, and the pilot was protected by shields of boiler iron when under way. This was a very low water year and we were two months getting to the mouth of Milk river, where we were obliged to store our cargo. While lying there a tragic event occurred, through which, had it not been for the presence of Father De Smet, the steamer Nellie Rogers and probably some of her crew would have been sacrificed for the cruel and unprovoked murder of young McKenzie, the son of a prominent merchant of St. Louis, whom many St. Louisans will remember as a very estimable gentleman. He at one time was an Indian trader on the Upper Missouri.

He had married a squaw, Indian fashion, and raised a family of half breeds, a part of which he took to the states and educated. This young man, then about 30 years old, had returned to his tribe, the Crows, married and was living at Fort Peck, acting, perhaps, in the capacity of interpreter. He, with his wife and one young child, together with a large number of Indians of both sexes and of all ages, had encamped on the bank opposite where the boat was discharging. They all had access to the boat and were constantly passing to and fro.

But as the bar on the boat had been closed by Mr. Chouteau's order, who had the boat under charter, no excessive drinking was allowed. There had been on board as a passenger all the way from St. Louis a Mr. Clark, formerly from Philadelphia, a quiet, gentlemanly man of education, who for the previous ten or twelve years had been living among the Indians—principally at Fort Benton.

THE MURDER AND FLIGHT.

After the boat had been lying there several hours McKenzie came on board with others and stepped into the cabin, and just as he got abreast of the stove in the hall, Clark stepped out of his state room, which was one of the finest rooms in the cabin, with pistol in hand, and without a word from either of them, instantly fired and McKenzie fell, shot through the heart.

His wife was one of the first who rushed on board, with many of her kindred and friends, and the excitement soon became intense—on the part of the Indians, for the sudden death of a prominent member of their tribe; on the part of the passengers and crew, for fear of summary vengeance from the Indians, who were entirely masters of the situation. The fires were out, and, of course, no steam could be had to move the boat for some hours. Father De Smet and his black gown seemed about all that stood between an outraged body of fighting Indians, and the Nellie Rogers, her passengers and crew, until Clark could be disposed of. While he was fearless and indifferent, it was evident there was no safety as long as he remained on board. Ponies were secured from the traders at Fort Peck, twelve miles distant, but who had come to see "the steamboat." Clark, with two or three others, who were anxious to get to Fort Benton, started with very little preparation, and very little delay, and stood "not upon the order of their going." And until they were well out of the Crow country it was thought no grass would grow under their horses' feet.

Before the Indians had gotten over their surprise and consternation, Clark, whom none of them knew personally, had gotten beyond the reach of their fastest horses, and through the influence of Father de Smet. it is probable they never pursued him. "Tom Dorris," a young man from St. Louis, bound for the gold mines at Helena, then just beginning to attract attention, was one of Clark's traveling companions during that John Gilpin race. Subsequently it was learned that no halt was made until Fort Benton was reached, and the distance, 200 miles, covered inside of three days.

As there was no law and but little justice in that country then, no investigation was ever made, and no cause ever assigned for the sudden taking off of Mr. Kenzie.

It was believed an old grudge existed that was to be settled in that way whenever the parties met. It was afterwards said by Clark that he was the author of several similar tragedies previous to the one at the mouth of Milk river, although his appearance was anything but that of a murderer or an outlaw. His subsequent history I have never heard.—St. Louis Republic.

Jesuit Aggression.

We understand that the Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, B.D., of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, has promised to address a meeting which it is proposed to hold in the Opera House, Peterborough, Thursday evening, the 23rd instant, for the purpose of taking steps to secure the proper representation of this town and county at the convention called by the "Citizens' Committee" of Toronto for the 11 and 12th June next. Further particulars will be published in due course.

An Outside Opinion.

Mr. Geo. M. Elliott, of Napanee, Ont., at one time a reporter on this journal and now a collector in H. M. Customs, writes that Mr. Harper's lectures "have been personally recommended by some of the most influential people of Boston, that literary centre of America, as being the best of their kind ever presented on this Continent. The views are simply magnificent, and would without a word of instruction or narrative be well worth seeing if hung up on gallery walls. But when viewed in the light of the lecturer's interesting story, the chief object of travel is secured without the fatigue attendant upon the real thing. Mr. Harper is always recalled to the chief centres and his entertainments are in constant demand."

A Social Evening at St. Paul's.

The reception given by the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Church last evening to the new members of the church and young people of the congregation proved most enjoyable, and to the ladies of the Society is due much credit and praise for the pleasing character of the evening. The walls of the Sunday School room had been very tastefully decorated with bunting, flags and mottoes, while flowers and choice plants had been placed to the best advantage around the spacious room and lent to it a very attractive and inviting appearance. No programme had been prepared, no chairman presided, and their was an entire absence of formality, the evening being purely of a social character, the object being to bring the young members of the congregation together and thus promote a more friendly and social feeling in the church. Refreshments were served during the evening by the ladies and the choir rendered an excellent anthem, which, with a couple of instrumental selections by Miss Fairweather, composed the entire programme. The evening was a success, the attendance of young people being unusually large, the refreshments were toothsome and the social spirit which pervaded all present caused everyone to enjoy themselves. Next Thursday night the ladies of the church intend holding their annual sale of useful and fancy articles, at which it is expected there will be a good attendance.

AFTER THIRTY YEARS.

The Local St. Andrew's Society Get a Hame o' their Ain—An Excursion to be Held.

A special meeting of the St. Andrew's Society was held last evening, and for the first time the Sons of Auld Scotia were enabled to assemble in their own St. Andrew's Hall.

The meeting last evening undoubtedly marks the beginning of a new, and brighter epoch in the history of the Peterborough St. Andrew's Society, for during its existence of thirty years the society has never had a home of their own. But a short time ago the members of the society came to the conclusion that they had depended long enough on the kindness of Mr. Wm. Cumming, in whose office the meetings have always been held, and a committee was appointed to procure, if possible, a suitable hall and report to the society. Nobly has this committee done its work as was evidenced by the appearance of the hall last evening and the many expressions of satisfaction which were dropped by those who were present. The entrance is on Simcoe st., the same as that which leads to the telephone office, but you climb the first flight of stairs and turn and after ascending a second stairway the entrance to the St. Andrew's Hall is reached. At present there are two rooms. The first and smaller of the two will be used as a committee room and the larger hall, which is 50x20 feet, will be used as a meeting hall. It is the intention of the society to make these two rooms into one for all practical purposes, by cutting an archway between the two, and this will give them much increased accommodation for large gatherings. At the rear end of the hall is a small room which will splendidly answer for a library and secretary's office. In getting these rooms the society's chief object was to have some place where Scotchmen and their descendants might gather and by their intercourse keep aglow that patriotic fire which never dies in the hearts of any native of the heather-clad hills, and it is safe to say that the premises that have been secured will answer the purpose excellently. They have been newly and nicely papered and painted and are well lighted, the committee room being lighted by a handsome four-jet chandelier and the inner room being also well lighted with gas. Tables will be placed in the rooms, and newspapers and periodicals will be kept in the rooms so that a Scotchman may drop in and feel at home.

THE BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

President Charles Cameron occupied the chair and there were a goodly number of Scotia's sons present.

After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read, Secretary Menzies presented the report of the committee which had the matter of procuring a new hall in charge. The report explained how the premises had been secured and spoke very highly of the manner in which Mr. James Stevenson, from whom the hall is leased, had treated the society.

After hearing the report read it was decided to have the President and Secretary take a lease of the premises for one year with the covenant in the lease giving the society the privilege of renewing for another four years if so desired.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mayor Stevenson for his kindness in regard to the hall and also for the gift of several settees to the society.

The position of Treasurer being vacant, Mr. Thos. Menzies having left town, on motion of Mr. Wm. Cumming, seconded by Mr. Geo. Noble, Mr. R. M. Dennistoun was elected to fill the vacancy.

AN EXCURSION.

After considerable discussion it was decided to hold an excursion or picnic and a committee consisting of the President, Mr. Chas. Cameron, the Secretary, Mr. Wm. Menzies, and Messrs. Dennistoun, Hendry, Strachan, Telford, Noble and McClelland was appointed to take the matter in hand and decide on all arrangements, and where the objective point should be.

There was considerable new life and enthusiasm in the work of the society and it is probable that, now that their new hall has been so nicely prepared, the membership of the society in turn will increase and all Scotchmen and their descendants will become identified with a society which has for its chief object and aim charity.

PRE-EMINENT IN TALENT.

An Appreciative Sketch of Mrs. Scott-Siddons—At her Zenith.

(From the Empire of April 27, 1889.)

An so, if we may accept current statements, we have really witnessed the last public appearance in Toronto of one of the best known and most picturesque stage personages, an artiste who has stood preeminent in talent and beauty for more than twenty years, and who now withdraws from the glittering footlights as she first stepped before them—a rarely beautiful woman.

It has been my pleasure to hear Mrs. Siddons more than once in past years, yet it seemed to me she never appeared to greater advantage than on Saturday afternoon, when in Association Hall she entertained a large audience in her own special manner.

We looked and listened as we always do when realizing that a familiar figure and voice is passing forever away from our presence to become henceforth but a memory picture. Every detail of dress, every pose, every tone of the voice made vivid impress upon us, and the beautiful woman who graced the platform on Saturday afternoon will be the Mrs. Scott-Siddons of our memory for all time.

Although to Toronto citizens the artiste's face is almost as familiar as a household portrait, yet there may be many readers of the Woman's Empire who have had no opportunity of seeing her. To them a description of her platform appearance may prove interesting.

In the family sitting room of the home I left so many years ago there hung in prominent position a portrait of a plain, powerful-looking man, the Rev. Morely Punshon, or some other equally eminent divine. One day an household esthete, finding the frame of suitable dimensions, consigned Morley Punshon to oblivion and inserted in his place a fine wood-cut of Mrs. Siddons, executed at a date soon after her debut as a reader. Through the years that have come and gone, the portrait has remained in its place, above the little old piano, looking down upon many a family gathering, until the faultless features have become indelibly impressed upon our memories.

It surprised me a little to find how closely Mrs. Siddons still resembles the familiar picture in the homestead. As the afternoon light fell across her face I could trace every feature and discern every charm that the portrait reveals—the classical features, the well-shaped head, with its graceful poise, the wealth of dark hair, the arched eyebrows and beautiful dark eyes. Time has not ravaged, but rather completed, his handiwork, and the result is a superb womanly maturity, more attractive than mere girlish grace.

As Mrs. Siddons stood before her audience she seemed a vision in silvery gray, but a more critical analysis of her costume showed it to be a rich brocade, a design of soft, curling grey feathers trimmed with pink upon a ground of the faintest pale blue. The robe front was of wine color velvet, embroidered in silver, with fuschia buds and leaves, the graceful blossoms drooping naturally from the vines. Long white silk gloves meeting the elbow sleeves, a square-cut corsage and silver ornaments completed the costume. The description is very meagre, but who could do justice to a Worth gown with pen and ink? It requires a woman's tongue to tell of it, and a woman's eyes and gestures to properly punctuate and emphasize the glories thereof.

Upon her right arm Mrs. Siddons wore a sapphire bracelet that attracted my attention. It was of some milky white stone, tipped at either end with gold. I wondered whether it would be made of opal, the stone so rarely treasured among our gems, because by some process of occult reasoning it is supposed to bring misfortune to its wearer. I have read more than one fantastic legend in connection with the opal, but they have been always tastes of mischance and woe.

In the selections with which she favored us she was most successful in her own special forte of high comedy. Some years ago, when she left the reading platform for a brief thetrical season, I saw her as Rosalind in "As You Like It," and a very charming page heroine she made. I have read since that it was in this character she scored her first dramatic success at the Haymarket Theatre

It is well, I think, that Mrs. Siddons has finally elected to retire from public life in full flush of matured womanhood. There is a rising, a zenith, a declination in every human life, and although the limits of each period vary largely with the individual, they are none the less definite. As the sun of life creeps gently towards the horizon, it were better to cease our struggles to give a noontide brilliance and be content with the softer radiance that merges into the golden shadow land of evening.

And yet, it must be a hard matter for a public favorite to say a final farewell to her world-wide audience. The laughter, the applause, the sense of power to sway the emotions, the great sea of upturned faces, critical and kindly; all these things become part of the very life of a true dramatist, and the wrench that severs them is severe.

I wondered a little idly as I watched Mrs. Siddons move about the stage in the easy, graceful way that proclaimed her so perfectly at home, whether she would be content with the limited admiration and excitement afforded by social life, or whether the histrionic gift so largely hers by inheritance and development will prove impetus sufficient to bring her yet again before the footlights.

Be this as it may, we will be pleased to remember her always as a type of womanly beauty and culture.

FAITH FENTON.

Mrs. Siddons will give one of her entertainments in Bradburn's Opera House on May 20th.

A Drive in Dress Goods.

The statement is made that there is no money in the country. There is always money in the county if the proper inducements are offered. That is the view taken by M. Sullivan & Co., who are drawing the dress goods trade with their grand bargains in summer styles. Everthing new. The handsomest patterns and fabrics fresh from the looms. This season's goods are particularly attractive and were never more handsome. Special care has been taken to secure the most appropriate materials for hot weather dresses and the prices are as light as the goods.

The Mopping Process in Bobcaygeon.

"Mr. Germyn, and Mr. Faulkner had a suit in the Division Court on Tuesday," says the Bobcaygeon Independent, "and not being satisfied with the result, Germyn intimated that it would give him very great gratification to mop the sidewalk with Mr. Faulkner's features, but out of pure regard for Mr. Faulkner, he asked to be liberated from any legal consequence. Faulkner was agreeably accommodating in every particular, and the mopping commenced. When warmed up in a discussion, Faulkner has an unpleasant way of reaching out with his fist, and Germyn in his eagerness to mop, seemed to have overlooked the reach. Germyn's left eye will be presentable in about four weeks. Faulkner does not consider it necessary to take legal proceedings, and forgives the mopping."

Lady True Blues.

A ladies lodge, to be known as Maple Leaf, No. 7, True Blues, was organized in their hall on Simcoe-st. last night by Bro. S. H. Weir, D.D.G.M. The new lodge has eighteen charter members and no doubt will flourish now that it has once been instituted. The officers elected and installed were:—

WORTHY MISTRESS.—Sister M. Barrie.
DEPUTY MISTRESS.—Sister Johnston.
RECORDING-SECRETARY.—Sister Manning.
FINANCIAL SECRETARY.—Sister Sloan.
TREASURER.—Sister Couch.
COMMITTEE.—Sister C. Chatten, Couch and Chatten.

Owing to the lateness of the hour the installation of the officers of the lodge was postponed until the next meeting. Maple Leaf Lodge will be represented at the Grand Lodge which opens next week in Toronto by the Worthy Mistress, Sister M. Barrie.

Address to the Y.M.G.

The Young Men's Guild of St. John's church held a meeting last evening in the Sunday school when there was a fair attendance of members. Rev. J. C. Davidson, the President, occupied the chair, and after the meeting had been opened, the report of the visiting committee presented, and other business transacted, Mr. J. H. Long gave a very able, instructive and interesting address on the early history of the Church of England. At the close of the address a resolution of thanks was unanimously carried expressing the appreciation of the society for the admirable address.

ARRIVED—Another cargo of 40 chests of Superb Japan Tea at M. R. Kidd's.

Engagement Cancelled.

The engagement of Rev. T. W. Jeffrey, of Toronto, by the George-st. Methodist Sunday school, has been cancelled for the present in order to give all of our citizens an opportunity of attending the grand illustrated lecture on "Ireland and the Irish Evictions," by Roberts Harper, of London, England. Never before have the citizens of Peterborough had such a first class entertainment offered them as will be given by Mr. Harper on Tuesday evening next. The clergy of all the churches in town have secured reserve seats and a large audience is already assured. Plan of hall at J. R. Stratton's book store.

Personal.

The Lindsay Post says:—"A report was current Tuesday afternoon that Mr. Mossom Boyd was very low. Happily it was an exaggeration. Mr. Boyd had taken an unfavorable turn but it was nothing serious, and he is now very much better."

The Lindsay Warder says:—"It is with pleasure we note that Dr. Coulter is able to be out once more, after being so long confined to his room by sickness. His many friends will be glad to know that he is gaining in health, and that the unremitting care and attention of a brother and sister and kind friends, is now being rewarded by his regaining health, which was at one time almost unhoped for."

Death of William Chamberlain.

Shortly after eight o'clock last evening Mr. Wm. A. Chamberlain passed quietly and peacefully over to the silent majority, after a lingering illness of several months, during which time the deceased gentleman has been in the last stage of that baffling disease, consumption. Mr. Chamberlain was a gentleman who was known to almost every one in Peterborough, and personally he was of a kind-hearted and courteous disposition which won for him many friends among the citizens of the town. The deceased came to Peterborough about twenty years ago and was then a young man, as when he died he was only in the thirty-eighth year of his age. He came here from Dublin, Ireland, where his family still resides, and worked himself up until he became proprietor of the premises where he died, but of which he had given up control some two weeks ago. The deceased has no family relatives in Canada, but leaves a wife and two children who will have the sympathy of many friends in their sad bereavement. The funeral takes place to-morrow morning to the R. C. Cemetery at 9 o'clock.

Brevities.

—The Boating Club meets to-night.

—The Riversides meet at the Phelan House to night.

—The population of Campbellford is 2,235, an increase of 50 over last year.

—A meeting of the local branch of the Imperial Federation League will be held to-night.

—A scratch cricket match between the bachelors and benedicts was to be played at the P.A.A.A. grounds this afternoon.

—Mrs. Stephen Payne was severely hurt by stepping on a loose plank in the sidewalk near Spaulding's Bay a few days ago, and is unable to use one of her arms, as a result of the fall. A nail in this case, like stitches in time, would have saved both pain and trouble.

—So far the programme for the 24th promises to be athletic games and competitions at the P.A.A.A. grounds in the afternoon, a lacrosse match at Riverside Park also in the afternoon, and a grand pyrotechnic display in the evening under the auspices of the firemen.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

1,000 LADIES wanted—to test the quality of those fine New Teas at M. R. Kidd's.

A Lady Orator.

The special services at the Salvation Army barracks still continue under the leadership of Col. and Mrs. Dowdie. Mrs. Dowdie is a lady whose appearance would not lead a person to think that she would likely possess any ability as a speaker, but her appearance is misleading, for she speaks with a fluency and earnestness which interests and holds the attention of her audience. Last night there was not a very good attendance at the Simcoe-st. temple, when the Colonel's wife spoke on the subject of "Isaiah's Menagerie," taking the 35th chapter of Isaiah as the basis of her remarks. She pointed out that the language of this chapter was figurative, and then dealt with the application of the figurative references in the chapter, taking first the dragon, then the highway, then the lion, then the tiger and the leper, the wolf and the bear and lastly the jungle and rank weeds. The lady's remarks were very practical and to the point.

A Sensible Girl.

"Not yet, Henry," she whispered softly; "indeed, you must not speak to papa yet. I do love you, love you sincerely, but you must wait a little longer."

"But why, Margaret?" he asked, reproachfully. "Why must we wait so long; surely you do not doubt me?"

"No, Henry," was the low reply, "I do not doubt you, but I think we will be so much happier when your salary has been increased to $7 per week."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

His Apology.

Mr. Billus was standing up in a street car, holding tightly to a strap. The car gave a sudden lurch, he lunged forward, and an exclamation of pain came from the lips of the lady sitting next to Mrs. Billus.

"If you didn't keep your great big hoofs sticking out so carelessly I wouldn't stumble over them," growled Mr. Billus. "When a woman hasn't any more sense—I beg your pardon sincerely, madam. I thought it was my wife's foot I stepped on."—Chicago Tribune.

A Snake Story with Proof.

Henry Goodale recently took up a homestead about four miles from this village, and a few days ago dug a few holes in the sand for blocks on which to build a small barn, and he unearthed 128 snakes and two swifts. The snakes were of several different varieties, huddled together, and only a few were lively enough to show their forked tongues. He has the snakes as a proof of his story, and they have not yet been killed.—East Tawas (Mich.) Special to Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Very Interesting Sunday School Institute Meeting.

A CONTEMPTIBLE ACT.—Mr. J. W. Clark, of the firm of Clark & McMillan, had a valuable dog poisoned on Sunday. The man who can stoop to such a low, cowardly, contemptible act, is a dangerous character in any community. It is to be hoped that the perpetrator will be discovered and dealt with as the law provides.

SABBATH SCHOOL INSTITUTE.—A very interesting Sabbath School Institute, under the auspices of the Presbytery of Peterborough, was held in the Presbyterian church here on the 30th ult. Rev. Mr. McEwen, of Lakefield, gave a most interesting and instructive blackboard exercise on "The growth and recognition of the Canon of Scripture." He showed how misleading is the chronological order in which the books of the Old Testament are placed in the Bible. Mr. J. S. Meikle gave an interesting essay on the place of the Catechism in Sabbath school work. In the afternoon, Rev. J. S. Clark gave a very instructive and lucid address on "The relation of the Sabbath School and Congregation, with their mutual Responsibilities." This was followed by a blackboard exercise by Mr. McEwen on "The Vital Steps in the Teaching Process." This gave rise to a very instructive discussion, and from which valuable information was gathered. In the evening Mr. McEwen gave "A Specimen Teaching Service for Sabbath Evening." This was indeed instructive, and could not but be very helpful to all present in that it gave them a more comprehensive grasp of the Scriptures. We commend such Institutes to the attention of all Sabbath school teachers, nay more, of all students of the Bible. We hope that Mr. McEwen will return soon to Norwood and stimulate by such Institutes the study of the Bible among all, but specially among our teachers in the Sabbath schools.—Register.

COLOSSAL CHEEK.

A Pittsburg Lunatic Dumped into Hamilton Because He is a British Subject.

HAMILTON, May 9.—George Pearson of the Pittsburg (Pa.) Charities Department brought to this city yesterday a man named Philip Connelly, who, it is alleged, lost his reason a short time ago in the Smoky City. Pearson had the man handcuffed and took him to the police station, where he wanted to leave him, saying that Connelly was a British subject and that Canada was under the British flag and therefore should take care of him. Connelly, who is a man of about 40 years and a laborer, appears to be but little affected in his mind. He said that he was born in Ireland, and lived in Scotland a little while, and a short time ago came to Canada. He worked in Toronto a little while and then came to Hamilton. He got work on a farm near Stoney Creek, but left for Buffalo after having a dispute with his employer. Next he went to Pittsburg, where he got work as a puddler in an iron foundry. He worked for a while and quit through no fault of his. Failing to get more work he was arrested as a vagrant and sentenced to ten days in the workhouse. It was while imprisoned that he was pronounced insane by the Inspector of Charities. As he claimed to be a British subject the authorities decided to send him to British territory. They placed him in charge of Pearson. At Buffalo Connelly did not like the treatment he was receiving, so he did a little decorating by hand on Pearson's face. Then Pearson put the bracelets upon him. Chief McKinnon told Pearson he could not leave the man in Hamilton and after communicating with the Pittsburg authorities the pair left for Buffalo this afternoon.

Of the twelve people injured in the recent railway disaster and taken to the City Hospital, five are still at that institution, all of them on the high way to recovery. There is some talk of a public subscription being taken up to place a suitable monument over the unknown victims.

David B. Gibson, William Littlejohn and William Mitchell, of the Bricklayers' Union, who were found guilty of being engaged in a boycotting conspiracy at the last June quarter sessions, came up for sentence to-day. Judge Sinclair is ill and was unable to be present, so Judge Muir remanded the prisoners until the June quarter sessions.

Mrs. Thomas Wilson, wife of Thomas Wilson, treasurer of Dundas, died very suddenly last night from a stroke of apoplexy.

A circular has been sent from the office of the secretary of the Ontario Association of Architects which practically amounts to a mild boycott of the building committee of the Free Library Board. The circular recommends all members of the association to refrain from sending designs for the library building for the reason that sufficient time is not allowed for preparing designs; much more detail is required in the preparation of the drawings than is at all necessary to properly illustrate the proposed work; specifications and quantities are necessary; and the conditions contain no statement that the committee will secure professional advice to decide upon the respective merits of the designs.

HIS FATHER'S HEIR.

It was not that he was a genius—
A genius, nowadays, is rare;
Nor was he surprisingly funny
In the way he parted his hair.
But the world stood up on its tiptoe,
Deeming its privilege to stare;
You see, his dad died and left money,
And this lad was his father's heir.

If a new church seemed to be needed,
The corner stone he had to lay;
When charity tables were furnished,
The nymphs always knew who would pay.
Of course they laughed in their sleeves, you know,
If so there were any sleeves there;
But did low obeisance before him,
That satisfied his father's heir.

When the papers spread fulsome taffy
Over their wide columns galore,
They printed his name in capitals
And mentioned what every one wore.
"Twas 'recherche,'" "came off with eclat,"
"Twas a most brilliant affair."
Of course they all knew that was nonsense,
But was he not his father's heir?

This world is most queer in its dealings,
I'm a citizen, I admit;
And perhaps a little bit tinctured
With what I see funny in it.
But, soberly thinking and speaking,
Is it pretty false smiles to wear,
And play mandarin to a ninny
Just because he's his father's heir?

—William Lyle in New York News.

An Upper Class Complaint.

Dr. Morell McKenzie, in a recent treatise on hay fever, notes certain important peculiarities in the distribution of this singular complaint with reference to the races of Europeans, as well as to the grades of society among those peoples. It appears from the facts he sets forth that the complaint is rare on the continent of Europe, rather frequent in England, and very prevalent in North America. He states, however, that about 99 per cent. of those who suffer from it belong to what we may term the upper classes of society, the agricultural and other laborers being rarely affected by the disease. Men are more liable to it than women, in the proportion of three to one. Dr. McKenzie, like most of the other recent writers on the subject, holds to the doctrine that the disease is induced by particles of pollen or other bits of vegetable matter which irritate the air passages. This makes the distribution of the disease still more singular, as such irritants are, of course, as common in continental Europe as in England and probably as common as in the United States. Those in immediate contact with the fields should apparently suffer more from the malady than those who by their habits of life are less exposed to the influence of the country.

The occurrence of this peculiar malady in the upper classes seems to point to the conclusion that the conditions of life common to such people are calculated to breed a peculiar habit of body. More than any other fact this appears to show that our civilization is separating the diverse classes of men from each other not only in qualities of mental culture but in physical characteristics as well.—Boston Herald.

CANADIAN COMPETITION.

Too Much for U.S. Railroads—Pres. Van Horne Before the U.S. Senate Committee.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The Senate Interstate Commerce Investigation Committee met again to-day. President George B. Roberts of the Pennsylvania Railroad was examined. He said that since the United States had begun to regulate the railroad companies by special legislation the latter have been placed at a disadvantage in their competition with those of Canada. The Canadian roads are heavily subsidized by the Government so as to encourage the development of the country. They also draw their supplies from England free of duty. Any foreign corporation doing business here should be subject to the same laws as the roads of our own country. Mr. Roberts thought it would be fair for the United States to demand that all Canadian roads doing business in the United States should conform to American laws or else stay out of the country. The American roads, he said, have the first call on all trade from the Pacific to the Atlantic and under equal conditions with the Canadian roads could control it.

Mr. Roberts favored pooling but said: "I am in favor of a fair competition under proper legislation. If this could be brought about it would be much better than any pools."

President W. C. Van Horne of the Canadian Pacific road was called. He said the Canadian roads compete with American roads for trade from San Francisco, China, Japan and Alaska, and some of the trade from Ontario to Manitoba. Aside from coal the percentage of trade taken from the United States is very small. The total amount of aid given the Canadian Pacific by the Government is about $8,000,000. The Canadian Pacific gets about 10 or 12 per cent. of all the Western and Pacific trade.

Mr. Van Horne said that when the Canadian Pacific had freight coming from or into the United States it obeyed the United States laws.

Senator Gorman: "Is it not a fact that your line, connecting at either end with a line of fast steamers subsidized, is aided by the Government with a view of establishing a fast through freight line between Asia and Europe?"

"No, sir; I think not. The object of the Imperial Government is, I think, to have as many ships as possible on the Pacific Ocean in the event of war. England and Russia are jealously watching each other on the Pacific Ocean. Mr. Van Horne claimed that the Canadian Pacific received less Government aid in proportion to its length than did the Northern, Central, Union and Southern Pacific roads."

President Ledyard of the Michigan Central Railroad stated that his road is rapidly losing its entire export trade owing to the competition of Canadian roads that are untrammelled by the Inter-State Commerce law.

Chicago Railroad Men Worried.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Chicago railroad men are worried over the Canadian Pacific move to establish a new through line to the seaboard. Traffic Manager Olds of the Canadian Pacific is now here arranging the details. The new route involves a lake line to Sault Ste. Marie and thence to Montreal via the Canadian Pacific. Mr. Olds says the new line will be in running order June 1. The Interstate Commission has decided that it has no jurisdiction over water lines connecting with foreign roads. Thus the new route will be outside the jurisdiction of the Commission and can cut rates at pleasure.

Two Children Drowned at London.

LONDON, May 9.—Mrs. Wm. Clyne of Ridout-street was washing yesterday and had the cistern uncovered. Her infant daughter was playing around at the time and she remarked the danger, saying she would leave it open just long enough to get one more pail of water. When she went to the cistern again she saw something like a rag in the water, and stooping down she pulled out the dead body of the child, which could not have been in the water more than five minutes.

Eddie, the 8-year-old son of Isaac Stanfield of King-street west, is missing since yesterday. At noon his boots were found near Hunt's dam, and marks on the bank lead to the belief that he has been drowned while bathing.

A Village Wiped Out.

SHRUB OAK, N.Y., May 9.—This village was visited last night by a conflagration which destroyed almost every business house in the place. Loss $40,000.

The Dead.

Gen. Wm. Harvey, the oldest officer of the United States army, died at Orlando, Fla., yesterday, aged 82.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

Won't Take Any Chances.

I watch her each night as I sit in the car,
While standing she clings to the strap,
And think that too bashful most young ladies are—
She might as well sit in my lap.

A hundred and twenty or so she may be,
Which wouldn't be much of a strain,
And if she would plump herself down on my knee
I certainly shouldn't complain.

But she glances at me in a strange sort of way,
And her brow wears the shade of a frown
That I think, if she spoke, the words she would say
Would be: "Rise, sir, and let me sit down."

My seat I'd resign, for I'm not quite a boor
Whatever my foes say of me,
But before I do that, I want to be sure
That the lady is single, you see.

PRICES AND PROSPECTS

BRADSTREET'S REPORT OF THE STATE OF TRADE.

Advices From Some Leading Trade Centres Favorable While Others are Disappointing—The Reaction in Breadstuffs.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Special telegrams to Bradstreets, from leading trade centers indicate an improvement in general trade at Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City. At no other point reporting has there been any widespread gain in the movement of staples. Advices from Philadelphia, Boston and Baltimore might easily be construed as disappointing while at New York general trade is more active in liquors (jobbing), naval stores, fruits, coal and seed. The centennial week was disappointing to hotel and restaurant keepers, dry goods, fruit and other wholesale dealers. Country produce and naval stores prices tend lower. Rain is much needed in Lousiana, Ohio and Kentucky. Recent rains followed by warm weather in Minnesota and California have improved crop prospects. Kentucky leaf tobacco is stronger from the effects of drouth.

Stock speculation at New York is flat and dull. The reconstruction of the Atchison management fails to counteract the unfavorable effect of the annual report and poor showings of current earnings. Good crop prospects aid in keeping up an underlying bullish sentiment notwithstanding drouth in the central western states. Bonds are strong with a heavy investment demand. Money at New York is easy, call loans 2 to 2½ per cent. Foreign exchange is firm and quiet, demand sterling $4.89 to $4.89½.

The cut of $1 for No. 1 and 2 Lehigh pig iron brings prices down to $16.50 and $15 respectively, the lowest recorded. This is the second effort to check southern competition in the East by reducing prices, the same company having dropped quotations from $20 to $18 in December, 1884 for like reasons. The outlook is for a reduced output of anthracite iron and a better trade. Bar iron has only a moderate demand. Steel rails are still demoralized, $25 "or less" having been reported accepted this week. This if true makes the lowest price on record on steel rails in this country. Anthracite coal is said to have improved since May 1. The demand at the reduced rates is undoubtedly a little more active with greatly reduced output during May.

There has been a reaction in breadstuffs and prices have advanced 2 cents on wheat, 5 to 10 cents per barrel for flour, 2c for Indian corn and 1 to 1½c for oats. There has been [illegible] activity in wheat among both millers and shippers. The dry and hot weather west, unpromising crop reports, stronger cables and a more active export movement combined to affect wheat prices. Exports aggregating 750,000 bushels are expected this week and next. There is a freer home and foreign demand for corn, and oats are active and higher. Total exports of wheat and flour both coasts this week equal 1,373,000 bushels of wheat against [illegible] bushels last week and 1,455,000 bushels the second week of May, 1888.

New York dry goods jobbers report a quiet trade. The volume of commercial [illegible] proved disappointing in all leading lines. At Boston there is only a moderate activity. Prices are generally firm and unchanged. Leading makes of staple cottons tend higher, woolen goods sell slowly. Manufacturers of cashmere and worsteds are well supplied with orders. Wool is unchanged. Wool growers and dealers are wide apart for the new crop as better prices are demanded than those obtained last year. At the London sales prices have advanced ½d. to 1d. per pound all round. Raw cotton is 3-16c. lower on weaker foreign advices.

Raw sugar has been very dull owing to lack of demand by refiners, though holders have generally been reserved. The result was a decline of ⅛ cent. Holders at primary markets continue in confident temper. Refined being in limited sale was reduced in price [illegible] to ⅛c. An early revival in demand is expected. At New Orleans and San Francisco sugar price have receded in sympathy with New York and London. Accumulated European stocks of coffee induced bearish cables which affected speculative dealings in that staple here and prices reacted ¼c. Brazilian advices of free export sales and a weakening tendency by holders there aided this movement. Other varieties of coffee have been firmer at New York, with a good demand.

Belleville Briefs.

The city authorities have accepted tenders for lumber at $11.87 per M and nails at $2.50 [illegible].

THE TORONTO BUDGET.

DRUGGIST WOOD RETURNS TO STAND TRIAL.

The Missing Doctor Cronin of Chicago Turns Up in the Queen City—The Victoria University Injunction.

TORONTO, May 11.—Dr. Patrick Henry Cronin of Chicago, whose mysterious disappearance from that city has occasioned such surprise, was in Toronto yesterday. At 11 o'clock he was recognized walking along Yonge-street with another elderly man by a person whose family physician he was in Chicago. When accosted with, "Why, hello, Doc, how are you? what are you doing here?" he replied, "My dear sir, you have the advantage of me. I don't know you." "Now look here Doc, there's no use of taking like that. Why do you speak that way to me?" "My dear sir," replied the doctor, "if you don't cease molesting me I'll call a policeman and have you arrested." Then Dr. Cronin drew himself up and moved off. He looked half crazy says the man who spoke to him. He left town by the 12.20 G.T.R. train and must now be back in the States. It is said that a woman and the man with whom he was seen in Yonge-street went away with him and that they bought no tickets. The doctor is unmarried.

Edward J. Dunning, commission merchant, 28 Toronto-street, whose residence is 187 Jarvis-street, was arrested yesterday at 4.30 p.m. at the Postoffice by Detective McGrath. The charge against him is embezzlement, the complainant being John A. McKenzie, who alleges that Dunning appropriated the proceeds of two notes amounting to $350. When arrested he had in his pocketbook together with a few good bills a number of "Army and Navy $20 notes," which are used as advertisements, rolled up in such a manner that only the figure "20" could be seen.

James Lynch, the old pensioner, who cut his throat in the pensioners' boarding house in Simcoe-street Thursday afternoon, died at the Hospital at 6.30 last night.

At last night's meeting of the City Council it was decided that the Mayor, City Treasurer, Chairman of the Executive Committee and Ald. Gillespie be authorized to go to London, Eng., at the earliest possible day in order to ensure the advantageous sale of the forthcoming issue of 3½ per cent. debentures.

It is stated by well informed Liberals that Mr. Mowat will summon the Legislature to meet in November, making the fourth session of this parliament. If this is the case it is probable that the elections will be brought on in January or February.

The contractor who has the job of tearing down the old American Hotel building which now covers the ground on which the new Board of Trade pile is to be put up takes possession of the place to-day—and will commence operations without delay.

The Ontario Government has made these appointments and they will be gazetted to-day: Alex. Bartlett, Windsor, police magistrate of Windsor and North Essex (excepting Anderson township) without salary; W. E. Hall, Blenheim, notary public; James Cluff, Bing Inlet, bailiff of First Division Court of Parry Sound.

These companies have been incorporated: The Clyde Milling Company, capital stock of $20,000, divided into a thousand shares of $20 each; the Economic Direct Supply Company, Toronto (Ltd.), with a capital stock of $50,000 in 500 shares of $100 each.

At the Police Court yesterday before Ald. Baxter James Young was charged with bigamy, in having married Martha Patton in September, 1885, during the lifetime of his first wife, to whom he was wedded in Little Boulton, Lancashire, on Dec. 23, 1856. He pleaded guilty, but excused himself by saying "I didn't marry this one; she married me." He told the detective that the woman forced him to marry her while he was under the influence of liquor. The Police Magistrate will sentence Young on Friday next.

On Thursday night two boys named John Williams and John Sequin, who say they come from Ogdensburg, were found in a Grand Trunk freight car at Little York. Each had some keys and one was possessed of a couple of new cigar holders in a new case. They were arrested on the charge of trespass and yesterday morning were brought before Squire Wingfield, who sent them to jail for five days.

Before Chief Justice Galt at Osgoode Hall yesterday, Christopher Robinson, Q.C., William H. C. Kerr and C. J. Holman, in the interests of Cobourg, and Charles Moss, Q. C., and B. M. Britton, for the Board of Regents of Victoria University, the defendants, appeared for argument on the motion to continue the injunction restraining the latter from taking any further steps towards moving the Methodist University from Cobourg. The affidavits to substantiate the case of the Town of Cobourg and the individual plaintiffs conjoined with that corporation in the action, for the filing of which the last adjournment was made, has not been filed sufficiently early. The Chief Justice said that he would be prepared to hear argument to-day at 11.

In the Eastern Division Court yesterday before Judge Morgan there was tried a case of deep interest to hotel and restaurant men. One day last winter a man from Madoc named Fred G. Lynder took dinner at Clow's restaurant in Colborne-street and left his lambskin cap hanging on a rack. After dinner it was gone and there was left in its place an inferior one. He wanted Mr. Clow to reimburse him but the latter declined, whereupon Lynd sued to recover $10; the cap, he said had cost him $8. Judge Morgan considered the pros and cons of the case and decided in favor of Mr. Clow, expressing the opinion that the defendant was not responsible for the loss of the hat unless it had been left in the possession of him or of one of his employes. This should serve as a pointer to people who leave hats and umbrellas lying around loosely. It is a dear cap to Mr. Lynde, who has made two trips from Madoc in connection with the case.

The rate of taxation this year for the city will be 14¾ mills.

Carroll Richmond escaped from the grounds of the Central Prison yesterday. He was working at a kiln and eluding the vigilance of the guard, secreted himself under the railway track that runs close to the kiln. Here he left his [illegible] and escaped to the hot weather in [illegible].

The chief entry on the slate at Police headquarters is this: "John G. Wood, druggist, Buffalo, aged 46, born in Canada; murder."

It was made by Sergeant Hales at 12.45 this morning when Detective John A. Cuddy walked into the station with Druggist Wood, who had been arrested in Buffalo on Wednesday night on the charge of murder of the young girl Lydia Clayton last fall. Yesterday morning County Crown Attorney Badgerow and Detective Cuddy went to Buffalo and on arriving there proceeded at once to the jail where they had a conference with the prisoner. Wood declined to do anything without consulting a legal man, and he had a talk with Fullerton & Barber, a Buffalo legal firm. From Crown Attorney Badgerow he asked certain conditions, the exact purport of which neither he nor the Crown Attorney are prepared to state definitely. But Mr. Badgerow, when questioned last night said enough to give one the pretty good idea that the Crown will consent to Wood's being admitted to bail until his trial at the summer assizes, and the amount will probably be $1000 or $2000.

After Wood had consulted with Fullerton & Barber and with Mr. Badgerow he decided to come to Toronto without waiting for extradition proceedings and he accordingly placed his name to this document:

Department of Police of the City of Buffalo.
SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE.
BUFFALO, N.Y., May 10, '89.

I, John G. Wood, hereby certify that I freely and voluntarily agree to accompany John A. Cuddy as a prisoner from the City of Buffalo to Toronto, Ontario, for the purpose of answering to the charge of murder there pending against me.

Furthermore, I hereby waive all the formalities of law and am willing to return to Toronto, Ontario, with the said John A. Cuddy without requisition, extradition or other papers legally necessary in such cases. I furthermore exonerate Martin Morin, Superintendent of Police of the Police Department of the City of Buffalo, and any and all the members of the said Police Department from any blame, compulsion or interference in this connection. (Signed) JOHN G. WOOD.

We hereby certify that the above agreement was signed in our presence this 10th day of May, 1889, and that the said agreement was made without compulsion of the authorities here and upon the free will and desire of John G. Wood.

(Signed) THOMAS O'BRIAN.
THOMAS C. BURNS.

(Duplicate issued to Martin Morin, Supt. of Police, Buffalo, N.Y.)

This being accomplished everything was clear for the return to Canada of John G. Wood, who had become a business man in Erie-street, Buffalo, after an absence of nearly six months from his native land. Accordingly he left Buffalo at 6 o'clock last night in charge of Detective Cuddy, while Crown Attorney Badgerow, Robert Wood, the prisoner's brother, and Abram Orpen, the Church-street saloonman, who went over to meet him, accompanied the party. The train rolled into the Union Station shortly at 12.30 this morning. Wood was plainly clad in a black coat and vest, grey trousers, turned down collar, black tie, and wore a black christy stiff hat. He looked well and was as stout as ever.

Being asked if he had anything to say to the press he referred to the reporters as "wolves." With a smile he said that he went away on the advice of his doctor for the benefit of his health and had been detained in Buffalo by reason of a broken hip caused by a fall out of a buggy; but he walked very briskly. He had not lost weight, he said, but had lost about 1800 per cent. of stock in Toronto. Crown Attorney Badgerow and Robert Wood drove home, while the druggist walked along York, King, Toronto and Court-streets to the Police Station between Detective Cuddy and Abe Orpen. Along the way he chatted pleasantly, observed the building improvements and noticed a newspaper bulletin about himself. In the station he greeted the officers pleasantly and gave up his gold watch, spectacles and knife; no money was produced. He walked about and mopped his head and then was led down stairs into the men's corridor, where he spent the night, Abe Orpen coming in a few minutes later with a soft lounge top for him to sleep upon.

Wood will appear in the Police Court this morning, when Mr. N. G. Bigelow will appear for the defence.

HALIFAX—BERMUDA CABLE.

The Use of Titles by Colonial Legislators—Child Emigration.

LONDON, May 10.—The House of Commons has approved of the contract for the Halifax-Bermuda cable. Dr. Cameron's amendment in favor of the British Government laying and working the cable was defeated by 148 to 30.

The Colonial Office has issued a notice respecting the use of the title honorable by colonial legislators. It says the title is only allowable under certain conditions within a colony. No rights exist for its use in another colony or in the Mother Country.

In the House of Commons to-night Mr. Samuel Smith raised the question of child emigration. He complained that only 1000 poor children emigrated to Canada last year out of 50,000 in English poor institutions; though the selected trained children who were sent to Canada were applied for by farmers three or four times over. He urged the Government to encourage a larger emigration of children by guardians. Mr. Long, secretary of the Local Government Board, who visited Canada last autumn, said the Government wished well for the movement, but could not put pressure on the guardians to increase emigration, it could only remove every possible obstacle and do everything to ensure that the children emigrated were fitted for Canadian life. The reports of the success of the children in Canada were most gratifying; nearly all became prosperous citizens of the prosperous country.

Mr. Nolan, an Irish member, said that he had heard unfavorable reports from returned children, and urged the boarding out system at home.

Mr. Long replied that failure was most unusual, 95 per cent. being entirely satisfactory.

Terrible Slaughter of the Army of the Negus—Wissmann Routs Bushiri.

ROME, May 10.—Count Antonelli, leader of the Italian mission to the King of Shoa, telegraphs that of the recent fight between the Abyssinians and the Dervishes legendary stories are afloat. The Abyssinians were victorious on the first day. The Negus was wounded and while suffering from fever he ordered 2000 Dervishes to be beheaded in his presence. On the following day, after proclaiming himself the elect of God, he headed his army and was again wounded in the neck. He fell and the army fled leaving 30,000 dead.

On the German side 40 blacks were killed and an officer named Schwalbe and other whites were slightly wounded. Bushiri fled.

CANADA'S RAILWAYS LEAD

NEW YORK TRAFFIC TO THE ORIENT COMING OUR WAY.

The Amount of Merchandise Carried Through the Dominion to the Western States Constantly Increasing.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The United States Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce met to-day. President Smith of the Chamber of Commerce was the first witness. He stated that last year one firm shipped $2,000,000 worth of cotton to the Orient by way of the Canadian Pacific road and by English steamers. Of this Oriental trade he thought the Canadian road carried last year about 90 per cent. Mr. Smith thought that some consideration was given by the road to secure this trade. The Canadian roads, he said, are constantly increasing the amount of their traffic between New England and Chicago to the detriment of American roads. The foreign roads he held should be put on an equal footing with our own. Then we can fairly compete with the Canadian lines.

J. H. Heinck, chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce of the New York Produce Exchange, said that during certain months of the year the Erie Canal acts as a regulator to the railroads. If it were not for the Canadian roads it would do the regulating. If the Canadian roads were shut out of the country it would bring a great [illegible] amount of trade to New York and Philadelphia but the rest of the country would suffer. But the Canadian roads should be under the same conditions as the American roads.

John J. Kirnan said the remedy against Canadian competition is not in pooling. Our local traffic is so much better than that of the Canadians that our roads can live where a foreign road would starve. The Canadian roads make up losses on through traffic by high local rates.

The committee adjourned until July 8, when they will meet in Boston.

A CORRECTION.

Mr. Wiman Says He was Misrepresented by the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 10.—In an interview with a reporter to-day Mr. Wiman said: "The Associated Press despatch published in the Canadian papers and transmitted to me for explanation most incorrectly represents what was said by me before the Interstate Commerce Committee. I stated that the Canadian railroads, not exclusively the Canadian Pacific road, had done more than anything else to build up the Western and Northwestern States. I did not say that Commercial Union was a short cut to Annexation, but that some so regarded it, while others looked upon it as indefinitely postponing it. I did not say that Canada could not remain in her present condition but that there were many who conceived that she would be much better off with freer trade relations with the United States. I did not say that the tie which bound her to England was that of the slender sentiment, but I did say that the sentiment which bound her to England was of a strong character. I did not say that she must either become an independent republic or join the Union, but I did say that the political consequences of freedom of trade with the United States might be that in some future time Canada might become independent and a great republic be thus created.

"The examination lasted an hour during which my replies must have covered five or six columns, and even this corrected report most inadequately represents what was said."

The Erie Cuts Rates.

CHICAGO, May 10.—The irrepressible conflict between the railroads and the Erie canal has again opened. The Erie road has cut the local rate for corn from Buffalo to New York 7.28 cents a bushel (13c. per 100 lbs.) to 5½c a bushel free of Buffalo charges. The reduction makes the rate on corn from Chicago to New York by lake and rail 7½c., as against the lake and canal rate of 6½c.

Death-Dealing Cyclone in Maryland. Wind Storm at Reading. Hot in Pittsburg.

FREDERICK, Md., May 10.—A small cyclone is reported from the Potomac Valley near the Point of Rocks, 70 miles above Washington. The others swam ashore. Wires are down in all directions in West Maryland and it is impossible to obtain details.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The thermometer registered 88 here to-day. There was one case of prostration from the heat. SATURDAY, MAY 11, 1889.

THE FARMERS' INTEREST.

In his recent speech at Ottawa Mr. Wiman compared the progress of Canada with that of the United States in an unfair manner, and the following reply by Mr. G. Johnston, Dominion Statistician, is published in the Ottawa Citizen:—

"I need hardly point out that if the farmers of the four New England States have less stock on their farms and less bushels for their harvest, combined with more acres of cultivated land, the value of their farms must have greatly depreciated during twenty years. It is not uncommon to find advertisements in the papers like this one taken from the New York Mail and Express of the 9th November, 1888: "For sale —Good farm lands in Massachusetts for $3 and upwards an acre." Bishop Huntingdon, in last September's Forum, stated, with somewhat of dismay at the state of affairs disclosed, that a farm in New Hampshire, yielding fifteen tons of hay and other crops each season, was sold, with house and outbuildings, for $82. In fact, so utterly disheartened were New England farmers that nobody wanted the farm.

"Now what is the cause which has for so many years been operating to the destruction of farming in the four New England States? Mr. Wiman did not tell us. But we know the reason. It is that the unhappy condition of the farmers in the New England States is due to the fact that the Western States have taken the bread out of the mouths of the farmers of the Eastern States. If that is the reason, what sense would there be in the four provinces exposing themselves to the same fatal rivalry as would be the case under Mr. Wiman's proposed scheme. The four provinces have now the rivalry of our own Province of Manitoba. Mr. Wiman in effect urges the farmers of the four provinces to expose themselves to the additional rivalry of the Western States, which has killed out the farming interest of the New England States. Our farmers in the four provinces will take care not to enter into that 'spider's parlor.'

"Mr. Wiman contrasted Ontario with New York, to the disadvantage of the former. During twenty years (1860-80) the improved farm lands of New York State increased from 15¾ million acres to 17 9-10 million. The holders of these 17,000,000 acres are in the very heart of those 'activities' which Mr. Wiman says would, under commercial union, give a boom to Ontario farmers, yet an investigation made into the condition of New York farmers, published in March, 1887, resulted in proving beyond question that 'one in every twenty of the farm proprietors in the State is hopelessly in debt.' This means that between the Ontario farmer and the great market of New York city is a great belt of farmers in a position to snap up first every good chance, and the position has been of so little benefit that an army of 75,000 farmers are hopelessly in debt, rising every morning and groaning every day over their troubles. With another army of 75,000 careworn women wearing their lives out in a helpless struggle to 'keep the wolf from the door;' with this terrible load of misery as the result of having the best position to take the cream of the 60 million market. With this prospect before them the prosperous farmers and farmers' wives of Ontario will think twice before coming to the conclusion that they can send their products to the New York market and get fancy prices for them.

"Between them and that market are 75,000 farmers with their wives and sons and daughters living in constant dread of being any day turned out of house and home. These are worse evils than having a duty on horses, and being threatened with a duty on eggs. Mr. Wiman must explain to our farmers of Ontario how they are to take their products a longer distance, carry them straight past these 75,000 farms, mortgaged right up to the handle, and get such prices for them as will make them more prosperous than ever, while the result of enjoying this wonderful market for twenty years past, is that 75,000 farmers in New York State are hopelessly in debt. The New York farmers have not been able to prevent themselves being squeezed by the middlemen of New York city and squeezed nearly to death. The Ontario farmer would fare no better. I could adduce facts by the score all showing that on the north side of Lake Ontario there are farming activity, progress, prosperity, developement, and on the south side decay, shrinkage, ruination."

When in the United States Mr. Wiman is not so careful about screening the real object he is working for. In his evidence in New York before the Senate Committee which is investigating the relations between United States and Canadian railways, he said he favored commercial union and added that "it was a short cut to annexation." But Canada will not travel that road.

Boston City Missionary Society.

The report of the annual meeting of the Boston City Missionary society, held recently, presents the following statistics of operation for the past year: The receipts of the society for its missionary operations, including a balance of $96.37 on hand at the beginning of the year, have been $19,231.46, and the expenditures $19,231.46. There have also been received for relief of the poor $5,918.44; for the fresh air fund and Rosemary cottage, $14,558.90; Thanksgiving and Christmas offerings, $5,606.22, making the entire receipts for all purposes, missionary and charitable, $45,306.02. The society has maintained preaching in three chapels. At the City hospital, Refuge, Childrens' Friend society, Marcella Street home and other public institutions religious services have been regularly held. The average attendance of pupils at the Chinese Sunday school has been 110, larger than any previous year. Through the fresh air fund were distributed 16,705 street car tickets, 5,290 round trip harbor tickets, and 5,962 persons were permitted to enjoy a day's vacation or a visit in the country. The latter includes 118 persons who enjoyed a visit at Rosemary cottage, Eliot, Me. At Thanksgiving dinners were provided for 1,292 families, and the whole number of persons who shared the supplies was 8,148.—Christian at Work.

CELEBRATED MIDGETS.

SOME DIMINUTIVE MEN AND WOMEN WHO ACHIEVED FAME.

A Dwarf Who Killed His Man in a Duel. A Short Pole with a Long Name and Title—Our Own Tom Thumb and the "Matron in Miniature"—Huldah Bump.

Sir Geoffrey Hudson is used for the genesis of this article, not because he was the smallest of the long list of midgets who have appeared upon the stage of action during the past 200 years, but for the reason that he is the earliest of which authentic record has been preserved. He was born in the year 1619, at Oakham, Rutlandshire, England. He first attracted the attention of the Duke of Buckingham in 1628, he being then 9 years old and but eighteen inches high.

Little Geoffrey, or Jeffrey, as it is sometimes written, remained in the service of the duke until the time of the tour of Charles I, king of England, through the different shires after his marriage with Maria Henrietta.

When the king and his new bride visited Buckingham, in order to serve their majesties with a unique surprise, Geoffrey, the dwarf, was incased in a large cold pie and served at dinner, much to the delight of the royal visitors.

THE DUEL ON HORSEBACK.

Her majesty was so pleased with the pranks of the little elf that she was allowed to take him with her to London. Soon after this event he began to grow rapidly and soon shot up to three feet; a calamity which he characteristically claimed was due to royal feeding. Still he retained his position as court dwarf under the suggestive name of Lord Minimus; was present upon all state occasions and knew more, perhaps, of the affairs of the government than the king's ministers themselves.

He was sent to France to bring an attendant for the queen, she being a native of that country. While on this errand, thinking himself a dwarf of considerable importance, he formed the acquaintance of Mr. Crofts, a young man of high social standing and position in France, who teased the poor little dwarf beyond the bounds of reason. Being a courtier when at home he naturally resented the treatment of young Crofts, which finally became unbearable, resulting in a challenge from the dwarf.

When Crofts and his friends appeared at the scene of rendezvous Crofts was armed with a squirt gun filled with muddy water. This enraged the little Englishman to the extent that a real duel followed, the participants being mounted on horseback, which put them more on a level. Crofts fell dead at the first fire.

The remainder of the adventurous life of Hudson reads like a romance. He was for some time a slave in Barbary; afterwards, upon his return to England, a captain in the royal army. In 1644 he accompanied the queen on a visit to France, but after the bestowal of all this royal honor upon him he was sent as a prisoner to Gatehouse, Westminster, having been suspected of being privy to the popish plot. He died at the Gatehouse prison in his 63d year.

BOROWLASKI AND THUMB.

Count Joseph Borowlaski was a Pole. He was born in the year 1739; he came of a family of six children, of which every other one were dwarfs. The first of the family was a son 3 feet and 4 inches high; then came another who was 6 feet in his stockings after he had attained man's estate; next came Joseph, the subject of this sketch, who was but 27 inches high on his twenty-first birthday; of the three that followed Joseph the first and last were of ordinary proportions, the middle one being a dwarfess, who died at the age of 22, being then but 26 inches tall. Joseph became celebrated for his remarkable longevity as well as for the brevity of his stature, he living to the advanced age of 98. After his tour through England he visited his native land, but returned two years later to the British Isles; married a lady of ordinary size, raised a large family and died at Bank's cottage, near Durham, in 1837.

About five years after the death of Borowlaski, in 1842, Tom Thumb, the most celebrated dwarf of modern times, although not the smallest by any means, began his triumphant march under the auspices of his patron saint, P. T. Barnum. Tom's real name was Charles Stratton. He was born in 1838, and was therefore but 4 years of age when put on exhibition at Barnum's museum, New York city. He weighed twelve pounds when first exhibited, soon became famous, and made his first trip to England in 1844, I believe, but it may have been a year or two later. He grew but very little until after the end of his fifteenth year, then grew until he was 23. At the age of 30 he began to "fill out," and during his last trip west, in 1883, he stated his weight to be seventy pounds! Not much of a "midget," sure. He died at his summer residence, near Middleboro, Mass., July 15, 1883, aged 45.

THE WARREN SISTERS.

Mrs. Tom Thumb, the wife of the subject of the foregoing, was, before she attracted the attention of her husband's patron saint, little Betsy Bump. When put on exhibition beside her future husband, at the New York museum, she adopted Lavina Warren as a stage name. She was married to the little general at Grace church, New York city, in 1863, and was, therefore, just twenty years a wife.

Mrs. Stratton, when young, weighed anywhere from fifteen to thirty pounds. As age advanced she became quite portly, and weighed, when she made the last trip west, not less than fifty pounds. Robust health, general portliness combined with a natural rotund figure, gave her quite a motherly appearance, which earned for her the sobriquet of the "Matron in Miniature."

After mourning the death of the renowned Tom for a year and nine months, Mrs. Stratton tried abbreviated matrimony a second time by a union with Count Primo Magri, April 6, 1885. The count is but thirty-two inches in height and weighs less than his miniature bride. Like her first marriage, this second one was also performed in New York city at the Church of the Holy Trinity, Rev. Dr. Watkins officiating.

Since her second marriage the late Mrs. Thumb has settled down to the enjoyment of an enviable reputation; but few inklings of her everyday life are given to the public.

Minnie Warren was another celebrated dwarfess. She was a sister to Mrs. Tom Thumb, and before being put on exhibition beside her sister was plain Huldah Bump. Minnie was some ten years younger than Mrs. Thumb and weighed 42 pounds. She was born on the Bump homestead, two miles out from Middleboro Center, Mass., and early began the show business. She was married to Maj. Newell in 18— and died July 23, 1878, eight hours after the birth of a girl baby weighing 6 pounds, one-seventh the weight of the little mother. The baby lived but a few hours. Mother and baby were buried in the same coffin.—John W. Wright in St. Louis Republic.

Beneficence is a running stream. If cash flows out of a good man's pocket, it will almost miraculously flow in again. Just as water rushes into a channel whose waters have to gush out. Many a good man's purse is like a siphon, the very emptying of which insures its refilling.—Arthur Edwards.

Patience Gets There.

I knelt and begged her to be mine.
She said she really couldn't do it.

At thirty-eight her hair is gray,
Her roses brighter bloom than ever;

He Played to Lose.

He was a keen, sharp looking young man, and he said to the lady of the house on Second avenue as he stood in the hall:

"Madame, I have called for the suit of clothes which needs brushing and fixing."

"What suit?" she asked.

"Your husband's Sunday suit, ma'am. He called as he went down this morning."

"And he said I was to let you have them?"

"Yes'm."

"Did he appear in good health and spirits?"

"Why, certainly."

"Look and act natural?"

"Of course. Why do you ask?"

"Because he has been dead eighteen years, and I have some curiosity on the subject!"

"I—I have made a mistake, perhaps!" stammered the young man.

"Perhaps you have. The man you saw go out of here an hour ago is my brother. You may have better luck in the next block with the old fashioned confidence game. Good morning!"—Detroit Free Press.

Our Hats are Inimitable

Every day now adds its emphasis to the judgment of gentlemen as to the beauty and excellence of our spring Hats. They're buying them. They're not doing it without having first compared and decided that we bear away the prize for shapeliness and quality as well as for faultless making and moderate prices. Gentlemen are critical when it comes to getting a light weight Hat. They are a necessity in these spring days—a necessity in which they esteem style as essential. Witness the demand for our Genuine Cooksy, Woodrow and Elwood Celebrated Zephr weight Hats made especially for us. There is something peculiar and inimitable about the gracefulness of our Hats.

Imperial Federation.

An informal business meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Imperial Federation League was held last evening in the Y. M. C. A. rooms. It was decided to follow the Toronto branch and to admit women as members. Business connected with the general meeting, which takes place to-day in Hamilton, was discussed, as were league matters in general.

Lacrosse Game on the 24th.

The Riverside Lacrosse Club met at the Phelan House last night to consider the question of a match on the 24th of May. The second eleven decided to go to Port Hope on that day to play a match with the local club there. A proposition will be made by the first eleven to the Young Torontos, in accordance with which, if accepted, a match will be played here on the 24th, but if refused, then a match will be arranged with the Ontarios for the same day.

57th Battalion Battalion Sports.

A reporter while passing down a street in Ashburnham yesterday, heard a champing of bits and a prancing of heavy feet in an adjoining yard. On entering he discovered Dick Rogers adjusting the toe weights on his celebrated gander, "Grover Cleveland," which won first place in the menagerie race last year. The only competitor of whom "Grover" is afraid is Captain Denniston's yellow pup, who is practicing gymnastics daily and will be in fine trim by the Queen's Birthday.

The Best Ever Shown in America.

We notice that the entertainment to be given by Mr. Robarts Harper, of London, England, on Tuesday evening next, 14th inst., in the Opera House, is being largely patronized. Rev. Mr. Beck, of the Church of England, Right Rev. Bishop O'Connor, Rev. Mr. Parker, of the Baptist Church, Rev. Mr. Torrance, of St. Paul's, Rev. Mr. Pearson, of the George-st. Methodist Church, Rev. Mr. Warren, of the Ashburnham Episcopalian Church, Rev. A. C. Wilson, of the Ashburnham Methodist Church, Rev. Mr. Bell, of St. Andrews, Rev. S. J. Shorey, of the Charlotte-st. Methodist Church, and others are among the patrons. We may also add that the Redpath Lecture and Lyceum Bureau speak in the very highest terms, not only of Mr. Harper's abilities as an entertainer, but also of his views portrayed, which they state unhesitatingly as the best ever shown in America. The gigantic trilantern and other apparatus employed by Mr. Harper in illustrating his lecture are entirely new and by far the largest, most elaborate and most costly in use, either here or in Europe.

PETERBOROUGH BOATING CLUB.

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers—The Club Prosperous.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Boating Club was held at the club house on Friday evening. As members arrived they claimed seats outside on the platform. The Secretary brought the books and the meeting was held in the open air, where all could contemplate the improvements to the view by the addition of the C. P. R. pile-bridge and embankment. From a canoeing point of view the railway work has a depressing effect, as it almost cuts off boating facilities.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

After the meeting got to work the following officers were elected:—

PRESIDENT.—A. H. D. Hall.
VICE-PRESIDENT.—D. Breeze.
SEC-TREAS.—F. H. Dobbin.
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Messrs. Wood, Edwards, Hatton and Sheffield.

The annual report showed that financially the club had made gains during the year, and prospects are ahead of increased membership and larger revenue.

Several new members were elected. The Rowing Club—which is housed in the property of the boating club, sent a deputation who brought up the proposition to put in a suitable bath, supply the town water, the whole for the joint use of the clubs. After discussion this was agreed to and a settlement arrived at as to the allowance therefore. The work will be done at once and will prove a great convenience. It was decided to have a cruise on Monday afternoon and Messrs. Hatton and Hayes were appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

Several members of an enquiring turn of mind got out boats and paddled out to view the landscape o'er from mid-current, and the balance of the meeting individually adjourned.

The sale of racks will take place on Tuesday evening next.

Killed by a Special.

Mr. James Hayes, of Otonabee, who lives near the line of the Grand Junction railway, lost two fine cattle on the track this week. The cattle were struck by a special train and one was killed, while the other had its hind legs taken off and had to be killed. No blame can be attached to the railway authorities, as how the cattle strayed on to the track is a mystery.

A Generous Offer Accepted.

While the Trust Board of the Nicholls Hospital were considering the tenders for putting the heating apparatus in the new building, the chairman of the Board, Mr. Richard Hall, very generously offered to assume the entire expense and to put the apparatus in free of cost to the Trust. The Board very gratefully accepted the magnanimous offer, which entails a cost of about twenty-three hundred dollars.

Incipient Fire at Nassau.

Yesterday afternoon at about half past two o'clock fire was discovered in the floor of the shingle mill at Nassau. The fire had originated under the floor, and as the men were working in the second storey it was not discovered until the smoke attracted the attention of men in the yard. The mill whistle sounded the alarm and in a very short time water was playing on the flames from the pump at the mill and in a few minutes they were extinguished. The floor was damaged somewhat, but the loss was slight.

is made very often by merchants advertising goods at very low figures and when the public call to price the goods they are much higher than the prices their advertisement calls for, or they are just out of the goods. Now, it is altogether different with W. J. Morrow. Plan of Hall at

He had a Bath at all Events.

Last evening about half past seven an old man named Wm. Thompson, of Ashburnham, was observed by William Munroe lying in the river near the Haslitt bridge. The man was lying on his side and refused to come out of the water when urged to by Munroe, and finally he had to be dragged out by force, remarking that he would like to drown himself. Thompson was under the influence of liquor at the time, which accounts for his foolish attempt, if it can really be called an attempt, to investigate the mystery of the great eternity of which death is the portal. Thompson after being taken from the water was taken home. It is said that the man sought to end his life because of the upbraidings of his friends for his drinking habits, but his anxiety to make a non-success of the attempt was evident from the fact while he lay stretched in the water he kept his head above water.

A RAG MAN IN COURT.

A Twelve-year old boy Arrested The Charge Shifted to an Older Head.

Ernest Harris was the name of a little lad about twelve years of age who was arrested last night and locked up on a charge of having stolen a quantity of iron belonging to Mr. George Hilliard, but it would seem that although the lad did, perhaps, take the iron, that he was only the instrument in older hands. When the boy was brought into the court room this morning there was no person present to counsel the youth as to how he had better proceed. However, the lad was equal to the occasion and when the Magistrate asked him if he was guilty or not, he explained that he took the iron before Mr. Hilliard's eyes, and he also said that Mr. Rogers had told him that no person would say anything to him if he took the iron. The Mr. Rogers the boy spoke of was seated in the court room and is a rag and scrap iron dealer, who lives on Aylmer-st. The Magistrate said he would remand the boy until Monday, and would see if the charge could not be brought home to some older and more responsible person, and forthwith drew out an information against Wm. Rogers charging him with the larceny of a quantity of iron. Rogers pleaded "not guilty" to the charge and elected to be tried summarily by the magistrate, who enlarged the case until Monday to allow Rogers to prepare a defence. The rag dealer was admitted to bail on his own recognizance for one hundred dollars.

The reason that the information was laid against Rogers is quite evident, the boy stating that Rogers told him to take the iron and no one would say anything, and then of course, having taken it the boy would sell it to the rag and iron monger who would reap the benefit. Whether the boy's story is correct or not yet remains to be shown, but before now instances have become known where dishonest rag men have made tools of small boys to keep up their business and the least suspicion of any such unmanly and sneaking conduct should most decidedly be sifted and see if there is the least ground for the charge. The boy, Harris, was allowed to go free on promising to appear on Monday morning.

A Baseball Match for the 24th.

The Campbellford Baseball Club have written the club in connection with the P. A. A. A. enquiring if a match could be arranged for the 24th of May. The secretary of the local club is now in correspondence with the Campbellford ball tossers and it is possible that a game may be arranged for here on the Queen's Birthday.

Some Rapid Work.

Turner, the awning man wanted tables—camp tables—that is customers needed them. Turner bought these tables before out of town. He bethought him of Belleghem. He looked the furniture autocrat up. Stated his case. Belleghem saw him one better. Rushed the order and in two days turned out fifty tables and piled the lot up in Turner's wareroom. 'Rah for Turner, cheers for Belleghem.

Furthering Organization.

The New Party held a meeting last night in the W.C.T.U. hall when the organization of the party was carried a step further towards completion. There was not a very large attendance, but some six or seven clubs were formed in town. These clubs consist of ten members each and are under the control of a convener, and are distributed over the town, but will always hold joint meetings. These clubs will also be formed in the county.

A Queen City Opinion.

The Toronto World says:—"The return of Mrs. Scott-Siddons to Toronto after an absence of about seven years, and her reappearance at Association Hall last night, resulted in drawing out an audience which completely filled the hall, many being obliged to stand. This reception may be taken not only as a mark of esteem toward the fair reader, but alike as an indication of the advancement of literary taste and culture, for it is only those who can appreciate the art in its higher sense who could be entertained for two hours by a lady reader upon a bare platform. Mrs. Scott-Siddons has lost none of her personal charm and grace. Her musical voice has all its characteristic sweetness, and in modulation and enunciation there is little room for criticism. The sleep-walking scene from 'Macbeth' was the gem of the evening. The open eyes and sleeping senses, and the oblivious utterances of the conscience-stricken woman, were ably depicted. The 'Creede of the Bells' and the courtship scenes from 'Henry V.' were capitally given, while the recital of 'Father Phil's Collection' created much mirth." Mrs. Scott-Siddons will appear at the Opera House, Peterborough, on Monday evening, May 20. Plan of the house at Doucet's music store. Prices, 25c. and 50c. 1d111

The Proper Dogs for a Barber.

Mr. Spicer has just settled himself in the chair for a short cut, when the artist in attendance threw over him a calico apron on which were pictured innumerable little greyhounds.

"That is very appropriate," said Spicer.

"Vy do you call so little dogs appropriate, Mr. Spisser?" asked the barber, as he tucked the apron into his victim's neck until his eyes bulged.

"Because," gasped Spicer, "greyhounds are good to catch the hare."

Such a silence fell upon the room that the milliner next door looked in to see if anybody had died.—Philadelphia Press.

THE NEW MARKET BUILDINGS.

The Initiating Step Towards their Commencement Taken—Excavating to begin on Monday.

The posters calling for tenders for the stone and mason work of the new market buildings were out to-day and tenders will be received up till Saturday next. However, the initiating step toward the commencement of the new building was taken this afternoon when a stream of water was turned on the site to soften the earth ready for the work of excavating the cellars which will be commenced on Monday morning under the suppervision of Street Inspector Pope.

The farmers on the market this morning were discussing the new building which will prove such a boon to them and, as a matter of course, where no expense was entailed to them for such a good thing, they were delighted with the idea of having better accommodation. That the present building is unfit for the purpose it is supposed to answer, every one must admit, for it was erected several decades ago when it was more than sufficient to fill the demands of the place, but a town which has now assumed the proportions and importance of a city should most decidedly have a better market house. And we will have a better one, and that before the snow flies again.

The Market Committee, of which Councillor T. Cahill is chairman, has the consideration of the tenders in hand and with the Town Engineer will have the supervision of the work and will not allow of any unnecessary delays. Last year Mr. Cahill made an effort towards having some steps taken to improve our market accommodation when he moved in the Council to have a special committee appointed, but, however, nothing resulted. This year Mr. Cahill was put in just the proper place as Chairman of the Market Committee and to him considerable credit may be given, as he has made the market an agitated question ever since, and now success appears to have been almost attained.

A gentleman who lived in the town but who had been away for almost twenty-five years, remarked when here on a visit a short time ago that Peterborough had changed every way, with the exception of the old market building and THE REVIEW office; but the next time he visits our town he will be proud to say that one of the old landmarks has disappeared at all events, for when the new building is erected on the corner of George and Charlotte-sts. the old market building will be entirely torn down and the space it now occupies given to the market square.

Black Sheep in Every Flock.

We do not excuse everything that is in the church. You say there are a great many wrong things about it. Yes, there are very mean men in the church, very proud men, very inconsistent men. There are members of the church that I wouldn't trust with a five cent piece. And yet I want you to understand that the vast majority of those who have connected themselves with the people of God are not of that sort. There are a great many mean bankers; does that make you ashamed to be a banker? There are mean merchants; does that make you ashamed to be a merchant? There are mean lawyers; does that make you ashamed to be a lawyer? No! The fact that there are dishonorable men in any profession is nothing against the profession, and the fact that there are inconsistent Christians is nothing against Christianity.—Rev. De Witt Talmage in New York Observer.

A Girls' Seminary in Turkey.

The girls' seminary at Aintab, Turkey, one of the first opened in that region, was lately burned. It has triumphed, through great difficulties, over the masculine impression that instruction for for girls was a "Satanic device." Minister Strauss has obtained authority from the grand vizier for the Bible house at Constantinople to print in Turkish for circulation 35,000 Bible portions—the Psalms, Proverbs, the Four Gospels and the Acts.

Converts in Foreign Missions.

If The Missionary Review is correct, the 3,000,000 converts in the foreign mission fields are setting a good example to the many millions of Christians at home, for these converts have sent out 30,000 missionaries, or one out of every 100, while their more fortunately born brethren send but one in 5,000. The converts serve as native preachers, teachers, catechists and lay helpers, and prove helpful to the regular missionary force sent from England and this country.

To practice righteousness and resist sin requires the indwelling strength of God. "Renew a right spirit within me," prayed the psalmist. The original word signifies a firm, constant spirit, that has no waverings. A steady hand writes a clear, strong line; the shaking, tremulous hand makes the crooked scrawl. Faith is likened to an anchor, because it has a holding power; and that comes from the hold which God has upon the man who exercises it.—Rev. T. L. Cuyler.

Y. M. C. A., Jacksonville.

The Young Men's Christian association of Jacksonville, which was maintained during the late season of yellow fever under great sacrifices and difficulties, on account of its losses in means and workers, will have to close up, unless help is forthcoming for the ensuing year. It has made no appeal outside of Jacksonville, but if any persons are disposed to contribute to its maintenance, the aid would be most opportune and gratefully accepted by that association.

The Right Spirit.

When Capt. McCabe was in Kansas last year on a tour endeavoring to raise $1,000,000 for missions a little boy heard his appeal and, thinking of the large sum he had to raise, determined to help him. The first chance he had early in the week he gathered a basketful of chestnuts, which he sold for five cents. He sent this to Mr. McCabe with the note: "If you want any more let me know."

SATURDAY, MAY 11, 1889.

Suicide at Detroit.

DETROIT, May 11.—Wednesday evening a nicely dressed young man apparently 20 years old, took room 73, third floor, Russel House, registering as D. E. Cady of Auburn, N.Y. He had no baggage and paid for one room in advance. Meals were served in his room. Thursday morning he came down stairs and told the clerk he would stay another day and paid for it. Yesterday morning one of the employes called Mr. McCreary's attention to the fact that no meals had been sent to his room since Thursday noon. The door of the room was locked and no response was made from within to rapping. A ladder was procured and through the transom the lifeless form of the young man, fully dressed, was seen lying on the bed in a pool of blood. The door was forced open, and it was found Cady had been dead some time. His legs were crossed and his arms folded on his breast, his right hand clutched a self-acting revolver, with which he had shot himself in the head over his right ear. On the centre table was an envelope addressed to Proprietor of Russell House, containing a note with these words: Please notify Charles Cady, Auburn, N.Y., Cayuga County, if anything happens to me.

The Forest Fires in Michigan.

MARQUETTE, Mich., May 11.—Reports of damage by the great fire of Tuesday are still pouring in. It is now estimated 60 families lost their homes. Nothing has been heard from the homesteaders who were cut off from the railroad track and streams. The wires are still down. Relief parties are out in all directions. Standing pine is badly damaged but the rain saved millions of feet.

Tired of Life.

HAMILTON, May 10.—John Cole, 50 years old, committed suicide at the Prisoners' Rescue Home this morning by taking Rough on Rats.

The Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Methodist Episcopal church now has 2,154,237 communicants against 2,093,935 last year, indicating a net gain in 1888 of over 60,000. The value of church property, including parsonages, has reached the enormous sum of $97,546,515, an increase for the year of about $4,885,000. The church property, exclusive of the parsonages, is valued at $85,000,000. On the churches there is a total indebtedness of $6,693,498. This item indicates an increase, also, of over $350,000. The amount paid on old indebtedness last year was $1,261,966. There was raised for building and improvement purposes $9,449,804. The current expenses—sexton, light, fuel, etc.—were $9,140,061. We note quite a large decrease in baptisms—2,288 in the column of children and 10,014 in the column of adults. Of adult baptisms there were 91,506; of those of children, 73,805. The banner conference in respect to infant baptisms was the Pittsburg, which reports 2,614. This is about 1,200 larger than the number of adult baptisms reported by the same conference.

Reverence Yourself.

You are the brethren of Christ, the sons of God; the dignity of his image and likeness is upon you; the sign of his cross upon your brows. Your bodies are his holy temple, your hearts the altar on which he has kindled the fire of his love. You hear his word, you receive his sacraments. You are called by his high calling to be holy and pure. The glory of your adoption, the inestimable price paid for your redemption, the ennobling mystery of sanctification, have made you more sacred than a dedicated thing. There is nothing high, there is nothing noble, there is nothing god like to which you are not clearly summoned; for which you are not naturally fit. And shall you descend voluntarily into the defilement and pollution of sin? Nay, reverence yourselves, for you are greater than you know.—Farrar.

The Hidden Meaning.

Whatever evil falls across my path,
I straightway look, with optimistic eyes,
To see what purpose underneath it lies;
For I believe always God's seeming wrath
Is but the veil to some intended good,
By man not understood.

But if we will take time amidst our grief
To search for it, I think we cannot fail
To find the hidden meaning 'neath the veil,
And, having found it, let we find relief;
And what has seemed a cruel, chastening rod
Proves the kind touch of God.

Oshawa News.

OSHAWA, May 10.—About fifteen years ago a gold watch and several articles of jewelry, valued with $4, were stolen from David Wilson of Oshawa, while sleeping in the Queen's Hotel here, which was then kept by the late W. B. McGaw, and although every effort was made to regain the missing articles no clue was obtained of them until yesterday, when Mr. Wilson received them by express from some party in, or in the neighborhood of, Lima, Peru, in South America. Suspicion rests on a man named Ryan who was in Oshawa then.

Gave Himself Away.

"How did I get this black eye?" repeated the drummer, as he buckled the straps to his satchel. "Well, I tried to be smart."

"How?"

"I was at Seymour, Ind., and in a hurry to get my railroad ticket. So was another chap. The ticket seller was slow, lazy and impudent. The other man pulled his gun, shoved it into the window and got his ticket ten seconds later. It was a hint for me."

"And you accepted it?"

"I did. I shoved my revolver into the window and gave the ticket man a quarter of a minute to get me a pasteboard."

"And he jumped?"

"He did—jumped out of his office and broke me in two over a baggage truck. He's got my revolver yet."

"But how did it happen to work in one case and fail in another?"

"Oh, I couldn't keep my voice from trembling, and then I didn't have long hair and a buffalo overcoat. He got right onto me for a fake."—Detroit Free Press.

WOMEN AND MICE.

The reason why a woman is afraid of a mouse is a profound mystery—indeed, it has never been very clearly proven that she is. But some women are constantly in such a nervous, irritable condition that the slightest thing annoys and startles them. The cause of this unfortunate state of affairs is usually some functional derangement; some distressing or painful irregularity, some derangement or peculiar weakness incident to her sex; or, it may be due to inflammation, ulceration or displacement, of some of the pelvic viscera, or to other organic lesions peculiar to her sex. From whichever cause it may arise, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive remedy, so certain in its curative results that its manufacturers sell it, through druggists, under a guarantee of its giving satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded. As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

THE LORDS WERE GAMING.

ENGLISH NOBLEMEN ARRESTED IN A LONDON CLUB.

A Comparison of British and American Workmanship as Manifested by the Exhibits at the Paris Exposition.

PARIS, May 11.—A study of the universal exposition, for the purpose of comparing the products into which design enters, discloses two truths concerning American growth. The classification in which these truths are apparent comprises everything in the manufacture of which beauty is blended with usefulness. The first truth is that the American constructive sense is superior to the European and the second is that the American decorative sense is inferior to the European. The American has surpassed the European in mechanism, but the sense of beauty is still dull in the national breast. American artisanship, speaking broadly, when brought face to face with European artisanship is more intelligent in the application of means to ends and in directness of method and economy of labor, but is crude and almost illiterate in taste.

We have in our zones the raw material and essentials, with few exceptions, of nearly the entire classification generally accepted as decorative manufactures in this exposition. Our progress in their employment is shown to be, except in a few great departments, primitive and paltry. In fine artisanship, generally considered, every other country of magnitude puts us to shame.

England, until very modern times addicted almost exclusively to trade and to manufactures appertaining rather to the necessities of civilization than to the adornment of life, has accepted tuition from peoples whose spirit is more artistic than hers. Her porcelains, furniture, metallic products, tapestries, carpets, paper hangings, velvets, silks, shawls and brocades constitute an impressive portion of her entire exhibit, to catalog which requires a large volume. While justly boasting of our rank as mechanics, chemists and electricians, we still pay transportation to England for our native furs, skins, leather and cotton, and are content to pay afterward a second transportation and the manufacturers' price as well as the customs' tax for the products into which our own raw materials have been turned. Add to this the yearly drain of money unnecessarily lost, the millions annually paid for decorative manufactures from every factory of Europe and of a reviving east, and an approximate estimate may be made of the colossal penalty we pay with incomprehensible stupidity for failing to develop a sense of form, color and composition in our own youth.

MARGARET F. SULLIVAN.

London Clubs Raided.

LONDON, May 12.—The police made a raid on the Field Club at 2 o'clock this morning and found gambling going on. Most of the players were engaged at baccarat and large sums were being staked. Twenty-one persons were arrested, among whom were the Earl of Dudley, Lord Lurgan, Lord Paulet, Baron Ferrar and several French and Belgian noblemen. The prisoners were taken to the police station and bailed in £100 each. They are to appear in court to-morrow. The police seized £600 in the rooms of the club. A raid was also made on the Adelphi Club, where a number of barristers and solicitors were gambling. All were taken to the police station and bail was in most cases refused.

The Irish Viceroyship.

LONDON, May 12.—English Liberals condemn the proposal to appoint Prince Albert Victor, the eldest son of the Prince of Wales, to the viceroyship of Ireland. The Dublin Freeman says it would be the worst of all appointments.

An Artilleryman's Luck.

LONDON, May 11.—A gunner named Herbert Skinner of the Marine Artillery has had a windfall of $25,000 and a large property in Hereford.

It Was an Evening Paper Fake.

LONDON, May 12.—The report of the capture of Khartoum proved untrue.

Yielded to the Strikers.

LONDON, May 11.—The Allan Line and the Anchor Line have yielded to the demands of their striking employes. Other steamship companies are expected to follow.

Decided to Cease Work in 43 Collieries.

BERLIN, May 12.—At a meeting of miners at Essen to-day it was decided to cease work in 43 collieries to-morrow.

Rioters Killed by the Troops.

BERLIN, May 12.—The whole garrison of Dusseldorf is now on duty in the vicinity of the coal mines for the purpose of preserving order among the striking miners. A body of infantry arrived at Schleswig at 3 o'clock this morning. Three times the rioters were called upon to disperse but they refused. The soldiers then fired into the crowd killing six persons, one of them a 4 year old child. A woman was also wounded. After the firing the mob dispersed.

A Yellow Fever Rumor.

OTTAWA, May 13.—A sensational paragraph appears in Saturday's evening papers from Quebec to the effect that a schooner had arrived at that port from the West Indies, having passed the quarantine station at Grosse Isle without reporting, and that on the voyage to Canada a sailor on board had died from yellow fever. Mr. Lowe, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, informed a reporter last night that the schooner had come up the St. Lawrence without a pilot and passed on to Quebec. On arriving there Collector O'Meara at once sent a doctor on board the vessel, who gave the vessel a clean bill of health, the statement that there had been a yellow fever case on board being absolutely false. Mr. O'Meara telegraphed the facts to the department, and as a clean bill was shown, the Minister permitted the vessel to enter at customs, accompanying the permission with a warning to the master at the risks he had run.

DOINGS IN THE DOMINION.

DRUGGIST WOOD ADMITTED TO BAIL IN TORONTO.

Was Patrick McNichol Murdered?—The Victoria University Injunction Case—A Hamilton Baby's Strange Nourishment.

TORONTO, May 13.—On Saturday at Osgoode Hall Chief Justice Galt heard the argument on the continuance of the injunction made by the town of Cobourg and individual plaintiffs restraining the Board of Regents from taking further steps to bring Victoria University to Toronto. Christopher Robinson, Q.C., opened the case for the plaintiffs and was followed by Mr. C. J. Holman on the same side. B. M. Britton, Q.C., of Kingston, addressed the court in reply. Mr. Britton had not concluded at 4.30 when His Lordship stated that he would adjourn the hearing of the argument until 11 a.m. to-day.

Mr. Erastus Wiman on Saturday sent to Rev. Dr. Potts $750, being the balance of a $1000 subscription made by him to the College Federation fund some time ago.

John McNair a gentlemanly-looking young clerk employed in the Mammoth House in King-street, was arrested Saturday morning charged with stealing from his employers.

Gen. Sir Fred Middleton arrived in the city Saturday and celebrated the anniversary of Batoche by attending divine service with the Grenadiers yesterday. This evening he will be a guest at the regimental banquet.

It is said that the death of Patrick McNichol, formerly a saloon keeper at Victoria and Lombard-streets on Friday afternoon was the result of a blow he received in an altercation with a mat pedlar in a Queen-street hotel.

John O. Wood, the druggist charged with the murder of Lydia Charlton, appeared at the Police Court on Saturday morning, but the Crown offered no evidence and he was remanded until Monday. Later an application for bail was made to Mr. Justice Rose at Osgoode Hall and His Lordship made an order for bail, the prisoner to appear at the June Assizes. Wood bonded himself in $2000, and his brother Robert and David Ward went on the bond for $1000 each. Wood returned to Buffalo in the afternoon and will return to stand his trial. Since he left Toronto last November he has had a wide experience of American cities. He went from Toronto to Buffalo, then to New York, Washington, Atlanta, New Orleans and then to the City of Mexico, where he put up in over four months. Returning to New Orleans he remained there for a while and then went to Buffalo, where he bought out the drug store of Mrs. Dr. Broad in Erie-street and commenced business under the style of Wood & Co.

TIRED OF LIFE.

A Manitoba Farmer's Criminal Career—A Winnipeg Druggist Victimized.

WINNIPEG, May 12.—Minnie Macdonald, a boarder at St. John's College, attempted to drown herself in the Red River Saturday, but was fortunately seen and rescued.

Against a farmer named Purvis living in Southern Manitoba there are eleven serious charges, including arson and larceny. Recently he attempted to burn a schoolhouse near his residence because the school authorities were going to move it to a more convenient location.

A petition is now being circulated here for the release of Peterson of Dakota, who escaped from Stony Mountain Penitentiary 17 years ago and was re-arrested here the other day while on a visit to Winnipeg.

Col. McMillan, the newly-appointed Provincial Treasurer, will undoubtedly be elected in Centre Winnipeg by acclamation. Stewart Tupper and others who were asked have declined to run.

White Caps in London, Ont.

LONDON, Ont., May 12.—Thos. Bailey, a laborer, appeared in the police station shortly before 10 o'clock last night with his head, face and neck completely covered with tar, which he said had been poured over him by two men who had entered his house during the evening. He said he was sitting with a friend named Perkins drinking a glass of beer when the men entered. One knocked him down and held him while the other did the decorative work. Bailey has frequently been up for wife-beating, and it is supposed the outrage was perpetrated by "White Caps." At all events they made a "black cap" out of Bailey.

A Baby's Strange Nourishment.

HAMILTON, May 11.—Yesterday Dr. Lafferty was called in to attend the month old baby of Mrs. Amos, wife of the King William-street tavern-keeper. The baby had suddenly taken ill the night before—growing ghastly pale and being seized with fits of vomiting. Yesterday morning Mrs. Amos pulled a large live cockroach out of the baby's mouth, and rightly suspecting that the presence of the insect might have something to do with the child's illness, she told Dr. Lafferty about it. The doctor gave the baby an acid mixture, and very soon afterwards the little creature vomited up seven or eight cockroaches, five of which were alive. The baby is now doing well. It is supposed that the cockroaches crawled into the baby's throat and down into its stomach while it was sleeping with its mouth open.

FIRES OF A DAY.

A Residence at Simcoe Burned Together With the Contents.

SIMCOE, May 11.—About 5 o'clock this morning the residence of Mr. W. P. Innes, manager of the Simcoe Canning Factory, was almost totally destroyed by fire, together with the greater part of the contents. The fire originated in the stables, communicating afterwards to the house. The cause is not known. Loss about $4000, insured for $2000.

A $30,000 Blaze at Aylmer.

AYLMER, May 12.—At an early hour this morning fire broke out in the pork packing establishment of Walker & Marlatt. The building and contents were soon destroyed. Loss $30,000, insurance $20,000. The fire is supposed to have originated in the furnace room.

Fire on Board the Rugia.

PLYMOUTH, May 12.—The Hamburg-American steamer Rugia, Captain Karlowa, from New York, May 2, for Hamburg, which arrived here at 2 p.m. to-day, reports that cotton in her after hold was spontaneously ignited on the night of May 8. The fire burned fiercely but was quenched after five anxious hours. The cabins were flooded and two-thirds of the passengers' baggage was spoiled. It is feared the steamer's cargo is badly damaged.

SET FIRE TO A CHURCH.

Theophilus Springfield's Desire for Revenge Gets Him Into Trouble.

BOSTON, May 11.—Theophilus Springfield, formerly employed to blow the organ at the Church of St. John the Evangelist in Bowdoin-street, has been arrested on a warrant charging him with setting fire to that church on the 10th instant. Springfield made a confession to-day, saying that he went to the church at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of the date mentioned and set fire to the cushions, by piling paper underneath them and then igniting it. About a month ago he went away for a few days' vacation and on his return he found a man named Moore in his place to blow the organ. The church people refused to discharge Moore and Springfield found his job gone. This angered him so that he resolved to set fire to the church with the idea that Moore would be charged with the crime. At the time of the fire he was on the scene and said a good deal to Moore's discredit. He was held in $5000 for the June term of the Supreme Court. Moore has been sent to the island for another offense and a third man is now blowing the organ.

Hunting for a Lord-Lieutenant.

LONDON, May 11.—Difficulty in finding a successor to the Marquis of Londonderry has raised the interesting question of sending a royal prince to keep court in Dublin. The idea is to divide the duties, putting all ceremonial matters into the hands of the Prince and giving executive powers to the Chief Secretary, who is to be elevated to a principal Secretary of State. The name of the Duke of Connaught has been suggested, the Prince of Wales being of necessity compelled to be nearer the English capital. If the scheme should be taken up by the Government—which is more than doubtful—the thing would not be difficult, since the Duke of Connaught could be sent to Dublin as the commander of the forces, in succession to his Bombay command. But probability points to a different issue.

The matter has now been discussed for a couple of days, and at the House of Commons the main result has been to show how very little importance is attached, on either side of the House, to the maintenance of the Lord-Lieutenancy. In its present form the post has so long gone begging among the aristocracy that the idea that a scion of royalty will agree to take it is treated with incredulity. But that some new departure is necessary appears to be a point on which a majority, or, at all events, a very considerable and influential minority of both Conservatives and Liberal-Unionists are at one.

Some Conservatives are in favor of abandoning the search for a qualified candidate for the post among the members of the House of Lords and of letting the Lord-Lieutenancy pass into a commission until the whole scheme of Irish local government has been matured by the Government. The views of another section of Ministerialists may be found in a question which Mr. Heneage intends to ask on Monday—whether the Government will consider the expediency of introducing a bill to abolish the office of Viceroy, and transfer the administrative duties of the Lord Lieutenant and the Chief Secretary to a Secretary of State for Ireland. This question represents the suggestion of The Times, which recalls the fact that it supported the proposal of Lord John Russel in this sense in 1836.

The Times thinks that the maintenance of a separate court for Ireland favors the propagation of Particularist and Nationalist views, so that the abolition of the Lord-Lieutenancy would be a dig at Home Rule. If the Government cannot find a new Viceroy—and Lord Brownlow, the Duke of Abercorn, and the Marquis of Ormonde have refused with others—it seems certain that the office must go into commission.

IMPERIAL FEDERATION.

THE LEAGUE IN CANADA'S ANNUAL MEETING AT HAMILTON.

Election of Officers—A Mass Meeting Follows the Business Session—Principal Grant's Speech.

HAMILTON, May 11.—The third annual meeting of the Imperial Federation League in Canada was held in the gentlemen's parlor of the Royal Hotel this afternoon. Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, M.P., President of the League in Canada, occupied the chair.

The annual report of the work of the League showed that great progress had been made during the year. A number of branches were formed and the several meetings were addressed by prominent personages.

These were the officers chosen, nearly all being re-elections:

President—D'Alton McCarthy, M.P., Toronto.

Vice-Presidents—Alexander McNeill, M.P., Wiarton; Charles Riordan, Toronto.

Hon. Treasurer—Henry Lyman, Montreal.

Hon. Secretaries—Archibald McGoun, jr., R. Casimir Dickson, J. Castell Hopkins.

In the evening a mass meeting was held in the Grand Opera House. Mayor Doran occupied the chair. Principal Grant made the speech of the evening.

He wished, he said, to ask some plain questions of his fellow-citizens and to answer them, if possible, calmly and without passion and without that privilege of imputing motives to opponents that some people dealt in mistaking it for argument.

The first question was a very important one and on the answer given to it depended the point of view which we would regard the others. The first question was: "Is Canada in a condition of stable equilibrium?" The country that was not in a state of stable equilibrium was not sure of its own foundations and therefore uncertain as to its future. When the relation of part to part or parts to the whole were so unequal that it was felt throughout the country that the present state of things could not continue that country was in a state of unstable equilibrium. It was just like a man in a similar state—it was without true strength. His answer to the question was "that Canada is not in a state of stable equilibrium."

And was there stability throughout the empire? Could the present relations remain permanent? Emphatically no, because the present relations denied the rights which 3,000,000 Scotchmen and 4,000,000 Irishmen had to 5,000,000 Canadians and 4,000,000 Australians—the sacred rights of self-government. Colonial populations had no share in the supreme work of government in matters of war, peace and treaty making. He did like to see bladders punctured. Was it not true that, as Mr. Blake said in his Aurora speech, we were "freemen without being free"? Was it not true that we could be plunged in war without our consent and that peace could be made without our counsel? Ought this state of things to exist? Should we be satisfied? If we did not respect ourselves how long would others respect us? This question would be settled. We would take our time about it but it would be settled. It was not our fault that it was not settled and it was not Great Britain's fault. The reason of its not being settled was that the time had only arrived to talk of the matter. The colonizing interest of Great Britain had planted people in every quarter of the earth. The colonies now forming parts of the Empire were in a state of imperfect political development. This colony began in a state of complete dependence, and it was well to know that the sheltering arm of the mother was around us. [Applause.] We had gone on evolving from stage to stage till we now look forward to the attainment of full citizenship.

"There are difficulties in the way!" some people say. Of course there were difficulties. But these would be bravely met. Difficulties were disappearing very rapidly. During the short time since Canada and Australia had had self-government what great things had been done! We had solved the geographical question and have learned that it was man's glory to conquer nature. We had solved the Indian question, the half-breed question and we would solve every other question that came up. [Loud applause.] During our 21 years we had learned to serve the empire as well as ourselves. We had built canals and railways of vital value. We had been preparing ourselves for a higher citizenship. It was impossible to have raised the question of Imperial citizenship sooner than this, and here is where he differed from Mr. Blake, who in 1874 advocated the same principle that he was advocating now. Then, Mr. Blake said, his proposition was coldly received and he thought that what was difficult then was impossible now. But the trend of events was all the other way and every year sees Imperial unity nearer at hand. He had proved that Canada was in a state of unstable equilibrium, the cause of it, and now he came to a closer question: "What is the cure?" He would answer it: "Full citizenship is the cure." [Applause.] No one of any importance favored annexation and Canadians, though plucky, could not hope to defend themselves against foreign nations. Full citizenship in the empire was the cure. Every agitation for a widening of the constitution had been accompanied by declarations that such a change would make better citizens of the people and the results vindicated the declaration. He believed in evolution. He believed it was God's method. But secession or suicide was not evolution. It was revolution. [A voice: Devolution.] He believed in unity of the empire but he did not believe, like some, that it could be accomplished by beginning with separation. The saying of the French philosopher that "the fate of colonies is like the fate of apples: as they grow ripe they fall from the parent tree" was frequently quoted by disruptionists. Well, what was the fate of apples that thus fell? They rotted or the pigs ate them. Would this be the fate of separated colonies? If so he did not wish to be a member of a rotting community. [Applause.]

Enquiries for a definite scheme of federation were made, but to these he could not give a definite reply. That part of the movement belonged to statesmen. Numberless plans could be given but many perhaps would be infeasible. He would propose two plans: 1st, a full citizenship involving a voice in the supreme work of government, and 2nd, trade between the parts of the empire to take place on more favorable terms than with foreign nations. He amplified his argument on these two lines and concluded that both plans were feasible of realization. Imperial Federation was worthy of the support of all Canadians, of Irish-Canadians more than any, for in Imperial Federation lay the true solution of the Irish question.

The Principal closed with a peroration in which he referred to the greatness of the ancient English, Irish and Scotch in politics, religion, science and art, the growth of the empire and the grandeur of the scheme that was now in course of realization.

OBTAIN THE INFORMATION.

In an interview in another column Mr. Alan Macdougall, C.E., of Toronto, makes a suggestion as to the construction of a system of sewerage that the REVIEW has frequently urged, and that is, that a system should be adopted and plans prepared and that the work be carried out in accordance with that plan. The work need not necessarily be all done at once, but any expenditure made would be a step towards a a complete system.

That a system of drainage is very desirable all will freely concede, and that it is a necessity in the interests of the health of the community many have urged. But in discussing the subject—and it has been frequently discussed during several years past—those interested in it are considerably in the dark, for no one has been able to say even approximately what the expense of the work would be. It is true that some might say that where health was at stake, the question of cost should not deter the town from entering upon the work. But a system of sewerage would be a large undertaking, and no Councillor would, with the responsibility of office upon him, commit himself to the undertaking until he had information as definite as could be obtained in regard to the probable expense. The ratepayers are not really in a position to consider the matter, any more than the Council, without such information before them. Why should not the information be obtained? A large number of the ratepayers have given the question consideration—it has been brought forward more than once—but without further information on this point little can be said in the way of of discussion and nothing can be done.

The experience of other places is not a good guide as to the probable expense. At least that is the opinion of the engineer whose views on other points are given elsewhere. In a report to the city of Stratford in 1886 Mr. Macdougall said:—"The introduction of a system of sewerage is governed by many points of local importance. It is not practicable to make any comparisons between the system introduced into one city with that introduced into another, or to compare the relative costs of the system. All such comparisons are futile, though they are constantly quoted." He then quoted the cost in several United States cities which adopted the combined system and it was different in each, ranging from $15,400 to $30,000 per mile, and in the experience of several cities with the separate system was similar, the cost ranging from $6,000 to $10,000 per mile. The expense of procuring the information as to the probable cost in Peterborough would be small, and if the authorities or the people intend to make a movement towards what sanitary authorities and local physicians tell us is so desirable, why should not this information be procured now? If the expense of a system would not be heavy, so much the better; if it would be great, let us know it.

Delayed too Long.

It will be remembered that the American board sent, in 1880, the Rev. Mr. Pinkerton, of its Zulu mission, to establish a mission in Umzila's kingdom. Mr. Pinkerton died on the way. In 1881 Mr. Richards was sent on a similar errand, says The Independent. He was kindly received and invited to establish a mission. For various reasons the undertaking was postponed, and Mr. Richards settled at Inhambane. In June last Messrs. Bates and Wilder set out from Natal to visit the kingdom and begin work at the capital or elsewhere, if the king would allow it. Umzila had passed away, and his son Gungunyana ruled in his stead. The missionaries were surprised to see the Portuguese flag floating over the royal kraal. It seems that Portugal has established a sort of protectorate over the kingdom. The missionaries were well received, however. The king, surrounded by his court and with the Portuguese resident present, gave audience to them. After they had made their request to be allowed to open a mission in the kingdom the following conversation took place:

Mr. Wilder—May it please the king, now that he has heard our message, to give us a reply which we may take to those who sent us?

Gungunyana—Missionaries, who is God?

Mr. Wilder—God is a spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.

Gungunyana—Tell those who sent you your feet have delayed too long. Had you been the first here to mourn the death of my father, yours would be the place now occupied by the Portuguese. They first came to mourn the death of my father. They are my teachers and the teachers of my people. I cannot manage two sets of teachers at one and the same time.

THE GAY CITY OF MADRID.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE LIFE OF THE SPANISH CAPITAL.

Indescribable Gayety and Brightness of the Streets—Points of Interest Where History Was Made—A Glimpse of Home and Kitchen.

Spain has the fortune to lie a little aside from the "personally conducted" infested paths of travel—a Sabbath day's journey into the land of romance. Its history is hung about with a glamour such as nowhere else conceals the scars of time or the paltry and sordid movement of that great disenchanter, the present. There is probably nowhere else a people having so great a part in the annals of the world, whose work in the vineyard of the nations is so entirely done and whose importance is so much a matter of sentiment. Most even of studious readers know more of the life of Spain in the time of the Moors or of Columbus than of today, and to such, especially now and in Detroit, where there is an especial interest in that country, some extracts from a translation of the description of Madrid, written by Edmondo de Amicis, will be welcome.

It gives a picture of the modern city and its people, written with the peculiarly light and vivid touch which distinguishes De Amicis, and in the appreciative spirit of a genuine cosmopolite.

"The train stops," he says; "I get out and find myself in a square full of carriages, in the midst of a noisy crowd; a thousand hands were stretched out toward my valise; a hundred mouths shrieked in my ear. It is an indescribable confusion of porters, hackmen, guards, guides, boys and commissioners of casas de huespedes. I make way for myself with my elbows and jump into an omnibus full of people and away we go. We pass through a large street, cross a great square, traverse a broad, straight street and arrive at the Puerta del Sol. It is a stupendous sight. It is an immense, semi-circular space, surrounded by high buildings, into which open, like ten torrents, ten great streets, and from every street come a continuous noisy wave of people and carriages, and everything seen there is in proportion with the vastness of the locality. The sidewalks are as wide as streets and the cafes as large as squares; the basin of a fountain as large as a lake, and on every side there is a dense and mobile crowd, a deafening racket and an indescribable gayety and brightness in the features, gestures or colors which make you feel that neither the populace nor the city are strangers to you, and which produces in you a desire to mingle in the tumult, greet every one and run here and there rather to recognize persons and things than to see them for the first time.

"I get out at a hotel, leave it instantly and begin roaming about the streets at random. I jump into a carriage and say to the coachman 'Vuela!' I pass the statue of Murillo, rescound the street Alcala, traverse the street of the Turk, where Gen. Prim was assassinated; cross the square of the Cortes, in which the statue of Michael Cervantes stands; emerge on the Plaza Mayor, where the Inquisition lighted its pyres; turn back and, in front of the house of Lopez de la Vega, come out on the immense square of the Orient opposite the royal palace, where rises the equestrian statue of Philip IV, in the midst of a garden surrounded by forty colossal statues, climb again toward the heart of the city, crossing other broad streets, gay squares and cross roads filled with people; then finally return to the hotel, declaring that Madrid is grand, gay, rich, populous and charming.

SPANISH SAUCES AND GRAVIES.

Signor de Amicis leaves his hotel for a casa de huespedes, evidently the American equivalent of a boarding house of the better class, which he evidently greatly enjoyed. He says:

"These guest houses are nothing more than families who furnish board and lodging to students, artists and strangers, at different prices, but always more reasonably than the hotels, with the inestimable advantage that one enjoys a breath of home life therein, forms friendships and is treated more like one of the family than like a boarder. The landlady was a good woman in the fifties, the widow of a painter who had studied at Rome, Florence and Naples and had retained throughout life a grateful and affectionate recollection of Italy. She, too, quite naturally evinced a lively interest for our country, and displayed it every day by being present when I dined, recounting to me the life, death and exploits of all her relations and friends as if I were the sole confidant she had in Madrid.

"A little good will is needed in order to habituate one's self to certain sauces and gravies peculiar to the Spanish kitchen—but I accustomed myself to them. The French, who in the matter of cooking are as difficult to please as spoiled children, cry out against it. Dumas says he has suffered from hunger in Spain. They mix things a trifle too much, abuse the use of fat and season too highly, but really not enough to take away Dumas' appetite. They are masters, among other things, of sweets. Then comes their puchero, a national dish eaten every day by the Spaniards in every place, and I tell the truth when I say that I devoured it with voracious enjoyment. The puchero is, in regard to culinary art, what an anthology is to literature. It is a little of everything and the best.

"A good slice of boiled meat forms the nucleus of the dish, around it are the wings of a fowl, a piece of sausage, lard, vegetables and ham; over it, under it and in all the interstices are garbanzos. These are a species of bean, but they are larger, more tender and richer in flavor than ours. Such is the ordinary puchero, but every family modifies it according to its purse; the poor man is content with meat and garbanzos; the gentleman adds to it a hundred delicious tidbits. At the bottom it is more of a dinner than a dish, and many eat nothing else."—Detroit Free Press.

Rapid Mail Transit.

Three hundred miles an hour is the proposed speed for the electric postal railroad of the future. An experimental line has been erected at Laurel, twenty miles from Baltimore, Md. A compromise between the pneumatic tube and the ordinary railroad carries a miniature train of two cars solely for mails and light parcels, without any attendance. The road has three rails—one above the car for carrying the current, and two below which carry the cars. The cars are built of sheet iron, and are two feet square and twenty-one feet long. Speed will be regulated and power or brakes applied by electricity solely. If the experiment at Laurel succeeds, it is stated that similar roads will be laid between Baltimore and Washington, and elsewhere.—Frank Leslie's Newspaper.

Elopers.

A few days ago the cars landed at McKeesport, Pa., a young man without legs, a handsome, dashing brunette, a hand cart and a dog. The girl harnessed the dog to the cart, lifted the man into it and helped to push the cart across the Reynoldtown bridge, where they took the train and departed. Later in the day an officer from Leetonia, O., arrived in search of them. He said they were elopers. —Chicago Times.

The Rev. Robert Collyer has given to Cornell university the factory bell which called him to work at 6 a. m. and sped him home at 8 p. m., when, between 1831 and 1838, he was a factory operative in Fewston, Yorkshire, England. In his letter to President Adams he says: "It will be pleasant to think of it as born again, converted and regenerate, now while the ages of Cornell endure, calling people to nobler occupations, and so much more welcome—a sweet bell, I hope; not jangled out of tune and harsh."

By standing your ground you will remain more master of the situation than ever and will store up force. Thus the key to a right acceptance of criticism is contained in the old Greek's wise tenet, "Know thyself."

For the Season of 1889.

As will be seen by advertisement the steamer Beaver has begun her regular Saturday trips between Harwood, Gore's Landing and Peterborough. The boat was a favorite last season and the route is one that is a convenience to a large number who do business at Peterborough on saturdays.

The Water Cart Will Be There.

Excitement is increasing, and entries for the 57th Batt. and P.A.A.A. sports are coming in fast. This morning Capt. Langford entered one of the corporation water carts for the menagerie race. Everybody wants to bet that he will come in last and will raise more dust than anyone else.

The Street Watering.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee of the Town Council met on Saturday evening and opened the tenders for the driving of the extra watering cart. There were six applicants and the contract was awarded to Michael Bolton at $2.50 per day, which was the lowest figure of the six. The new carts were out on the street this morning.

Personal.

Mr. Geo. Olds, general traffic manager of the C.P.R., passed through on his way to Montreal on the 11.50 train to-day.

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor intimated to his parishioners yesterday morning that he would be at home during the afternoon to receive calls. A large number of his congregation took advantage of the invitation and called on His Lordship.

The Premier will Officiate.

At a meeting in Port Port of the Williams Memorial Committee it was verbally announced, says the Times, that Sir John Macdonald had expressed his desire to accede to the wish of the committee to unveil the statue. He would not, however, be able to come west until September. Sir Adolph Caron, Hon. Mr. Chapleau, and several other members of the Cabinet have expressed their desire to witness the ceremony.

A Drive in Dress Goods.

The statement is made that there is no money in the country. There is always money in the county if the proper inducements are offered. That is the view taken by M. Sullivan & Co., who are drawing the dress goods trade with their grand bargains in summer styles. Everthing new. The handsomest patterns and fabrics fresh from the looms. This season's goods are particularly attractive and were never more handsome. Special care has been taken to secure the most appropriate materials for hot weather dresses and the prices are as light as the goods.

Iron Smelting Works.

Mr. Chas. G. Burt, of Marquette, Mich., who has had considerable experience in smelting works, has been in Toronto for the past few days, says the Belleville Intelligencer, making enquiries with a view to the erection of iron smelting works in this province. With his father and other members of the family he has been engaged in the manufacture of charcoal iron in northern Michigan for the past thirty years. Mr. Burt intends to examine the iron properties in Hastings county and also those in Frontenac and other districts and his action will doubtless be determined by the opinion which he forms as to the qualities of the ore found in these districts.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

An Editor's Impression Regarding the Town—Its Bright Prospects.

Mr. P. E. W. Moyer, editor of the Berlin News, that good man known among the journalistic fraternity of the Province as Peter X., was a delegate from Berlin to the Royal Arcanum Grand Council, and when he returned he gave through the News his opinion of Peterborough as follows:—

"This is one of the specially prosperous towns of the Province, and has every appearance of health and advancement, but the writer could not help comparing it with Berlin in a number of respects. There are nothing like the indications of growth and building operations which are seen in our own town. Indeed, we can see of no place anywhere, except Toronto, where the same relative progress is seen. But this aside. The first thing that struck us is that their store interest far exceeds all others, and appears to be much larger than the size of the place would warrant. Still, the property owners and speculators doubtless know what is the best investment for their surplus funds. The town has water works—on the Holley system—owned by a company, but we find that the want of a tower makes the supply anything but satisfactorily regular. They will no doubt have to get a stand-pipe to make it satisfactory. There are a number of plots of ground, public squares, which are a very commendable feature and add very much to the attractions of the place. There are a number of splendid churches, every leading denomination being well represented in that line. There is an opera house, a number of good society halls, and many other indications of advancement. The streets are a trifle wider than those of Berlin, but there might be an improvement in that line. There are three daily papers in the place—the REVIEW, the Examiner and the Times, and from the fine premises they have and the evidences of prosperity, it is clearly evident that the people of Peterborough know the value of the press and give it a very handsome support. The hotels might be improved. The Otonabee river is a splendid stream running through the town and affording a large amount of power in driving saw mills and other machinery. The largest interests in the manufacturing line is that of lumber, and that before many years will decline. So if Peterborough wishes to keep up with the procession of live and growing towns it will have to do something to secure more factories. The town is lit up by electricity till midnight, after which those who are silly enough to be out will have to grope their way in the dark. There is no street railway. What was a little surprising—though considerably further north—vegetation seemed several days, if not a week, ahead of what it is here. The town has excellent railways facilities, both the Grand Trunk and the C. P. R. passing through it. Taking all things into account, including the large country tributary to it, we see no reason why Peterborough should not become a large city at no distant day. The writer was pleased with his first visit to the place and with having made a number of pleasant acquaintanceships."

With a notice so favorable in its tone, it may be questionable taste to object to the few criticisms in it, but if Mr. Moyer had looked up the building list of last year or the assessor's roll of this spring he would have found unmistakable evidences of progress, and he evidently did not get a good idea of the extent of Peterborough's manufacturing interests. We would also remark that the waterworks have given satisfaction. However, the reference to the town is friendly and our thanks are due to the News for the space it devoted to the notice.

is made very often by merchants advertising goods at very low figures and when the public call to price the goods they are much higher than the prices their advertisement calls for, or they are just out of the goods. Now, it is altogether different with W. J. Morrow. When you see his advertisement you can rely on procuring the goods at the price stated, just so long as he can get the goods, but of course when we are out you must make an allowance. IMPOSSIBLE to excel those New Fresh Teas, just arrived at M. R. KIDD'S.

It Speaks Volumes.

The following letter was received this morning and handed us for publication:—

DEAR SIR,—We take great pleasure in recommending the illustrated lectures of Mr. Roberts Harper as something far in advance of anything heretofore given in this country. We are well acquainted with the excellent illustrations of our leading lecturers, Stoddard, Ragan, French, Cromwell, &c., &c., but Mr. Harper brings us something superior to the best work of these gentlemen and his lectures mark a distinct advance in the art of pictorial illustration. His lantern is the finest and most powerful in the world and can illuminate a colossal surface when required. The rolling effect is something never before obtained and is an exceedingly attractive feature. The views are all from nature and are the choicest specimens of thousands of negatives.

Mr. Harper is a cultivated English gentleman, of pleasant address, who has personally visited all the places which he describes.

Fell Through a Window.

Just before noon to-day Constable McGinty ran in a man who was in a most glorious state of intoxication. The fellow was on Sherbrooke-st. and fell through the side window of J. J. Turner's store. The man's name was not known and he was unable to give it, but a letter was found in his pocket addressed to Andrew Mann, so that it may turn out that when he sobers up he may be a Mann after all.

Going West to Work.

Mr. J. E. Shannon has been here for some time past engaging teams and wagons on behalf of the C.P.R. to work on the Detroit extension of that road from London to Windsor, and to day two carloads of horses and wagons started for the west. There were sixteen teams and six wagons in the shipment, which were principally owned by farmers in this district. The teams draw two dollars a day and the board of the driver and themselves. Horses are being engaged for this work as far east as Montreal and some four hundred teams in all are wanted.

A Member's Opinion.

"You see," he explained, "they generally have some refreshment after lodge closes down—yes, the Masons. Coffee, cheese, crackers, etc., just a snack. Goes good, specially on a cold night. I've found out that there's one thing, if I drink the coffee keeps me awake to all hours. They don't spare the coffee and its made good, I tell you. But a fellow has to get to sleep, and I'm going to ask the stewards to substitute tea for some of the coffee, and, by George, we'll get some of Hawley Bros.' tea. It's the best I find and the lodge 'll endorse the brand." Hawley Bros. make a specialty of tea and give the best value in town. d112

The Crowd Failed to Respond.

Prof. Martyne, the humorist, failed to give an entertainment on the market square on Saturday evening, and the reason was that he, like all other mortals, did not propose to give the crowd an hour and a half entertainment free of charge. Martyne is said to be a very good man in some of his impersonations and has a face which possesses the qualities of india rubber to no small extent, and he can twist his features so as to be unrecognizable. Before he started his entertainment on Saturday evening he harrangued the crowd and told them if he could raise a respectable sum by taking up a collection he would give an entertainment. The hat was passed round and returned unfilled and as a result the crowd dispersed without any "free" show.

A Sunday Runaway Accident.

Yesterday about half-past twelve at noon a runaway accident occurred on George-st. which fortunately so far has not resulted seriously, although a lady had a very narrow escape from being killed. Mrs. Shaughnessy, of Otonabee, came into church on Sunday morning, and was being driven home by a hired boy, a young fellow about fourteen years of age, when just after passing Charlotte-st. on George the horse from some unknown reason became restless and the boy was unable to hold the animal. Mrs. Shaughnessy grabbed the lines to attempt to pull the horse in, but in doing this she turned the animal into the ditch and the sudden turn capsized the buggy sufficiently to throw its two occupants out upon the road. Then the horse started at a terrific gait down the street and did not slacken its speed until it reached home. Mrs. Shaughnessy was pretty badly shaken up by her fall and sustained some bad bruises around the head, but nothing serious is expected to result. The boy was uninjured and was up and followed the horse all the way home. The injured lady was taken into Col. Poole's residence and medical aid was summoned. After her bruises had been attended to she was able to be removed to her home in the country.

The Rag Man's Trial.

The iron stealing case which was enlarged from Saturday, came up before the Magistrate at the Police Court this morning, and after some evidence had been given was again enlarged until to-morrow morning to allow the prosecution to submit further evidence. Rogers, the rag and scrap iron dealer, who is charged with the larceny of the iron, had Mr. E. B. Stone present at the court this morning to handle the case for him. The evidence of the little boy, Ernest Harrison, who took the iron from Mr. Hilliard's property, was first given. The boy stated that Rogers had told him that the iron was there and that if he got it he (Rogers) would take it from him. The boy went and took the piece of iron and hid it at his own house, but had not sold it to Rogers. The lad had offered the iron to another man who had bought it, but afterwards refused to take it as he thought it was stolen propery. Another younger Harrison boy gave evidence corroborative of his brother's, and Mr. George Hilliard was also called and told of having missed the iron, as well as many other pieces, and stated that he valued the piece the boy had taken at between three and four dollars. The Magistrate said that if the boys' story could be believed the prisoner, Rogers, was more to blame than they were, for he had got the little fellow to do what he had not the courage to do himself. Mr. Stone did not place much weight on the boys' story, for he said if they had stolen the iron to sell to Rogers they would have told him at once, but instead of doing this they sold it to another man. Mr. Wood, who was prosecuting, said that Mrs. Harrison could be called to prove that Rogers came to the house looking for the iron, and asked for an enlargement to bring further evidence. His request was granted.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

A SEWERAGE SYSTEM.

A Toronto Sanitary Engineer's Opinion on the Subject.

On Friday and Saturday Mr. Alan Macdougall, M. Inst. C.E., F.R.S.E., of Toronto, was in town and had interviews with the Mayor and several Councillors on the subject of a system of sewerage for the town. He also, in company with Mr. J. E. Belcher, C.E., took a look over the town, and on Saturday afternoon a REVIEW reporter met these gentlemen and had a talk with them on the subject.

Mr. Macdougall's special branch is sanitary engineering, a subject to which he has given great attention, and he has been employed by several Canadian cities and towns as consulting engineer.

Mr. Macdougall first gave, unsolicited and apparently because he had been so much impressed, his opinion of the town. "I had heard Peterborough was a go ahead place," he said, "but had no idea it was so large and well built up as it is."

"Do you think it would be difficult to construct a system of sewerage here?" the reporter asked, coming to the subject.

"Not at all," the engineer answered. "The drainage levels of the town, so far as I have seen, present no difficulties."

"And do you think sewers necessary?"

"They certainly should be considered a necessity for a town of this size, and with the gravelly soil here it is especially necessary. The deleterious matter from vaults and from the surface percolates through the soil and effects the wells. In some cities where the waterworks are owned by the corporation I have recommended that all should be compelled to abandon the wells."

"You have noticed that we have waterworks?"

"Yes, and without sewerage you cannot reap the full benefit of the waterworks system. With a good sewerage system constructed the full benefit of the waterworks system could be obtained."

"Of course everybody would like to see sewers put in," said the reporter, "but the question of cost is what has delayed the works."

"I have noticed," answered Mr. Macdougall, "that there is an idea that the whole system would have to be constructed at once. Now that would not be necessary. A plan could be prepared and a system adopted, and then it could be built a section at a time."

"That could be easily done here?"

"Yes, there is nothing to hinder that plan. One section could be built, and so constructed that when another section was wanted it could be connected with the first one, and so on."

"What would you consider the best way to go about the work?"

"I would suggest that the Town Engineer should take the necessary levels and prepare plans of the town, and that a consulting engineer be engaged to prepare a system and report. The work could be carried out under the superintendency of the Town Engineer, but I would have the consulting engineer still act in that capacity and be responsible for the work."

This, by the way, is substantially the advice given by Mr. Macdougall, then City Engineer of Toronto, in answer to the circular Mr. Andrew McNeil sent out in March of last year. At that time he wrote to Mr. McNeil:—"I beg leave respectfully to advise that your Council either select a consulting engineer, or submit several names to an engineer of eminent standing like Mr. S. Keefer, Mr. T. C. Keefer, Col. Gzowski, or Mr. Kennedy, of Montreal. Let the consulting engineer have the necessary plans prepared by your City Engineer and then carry them out yourselves." It may be remembered that last January THE REVIEW published a number of extracts from letters received by Mr. McNeil, among which was Mr. Macdougall's advice now quoted.

"It has been said," the reporter remarked to Mr. Macdougall, "that the outlet of the sewer would have to be below the locks."

"That is a long distance," he replied, "and I do not think it would be necessary. Of course it would not do at all to have the outfall in the river in the town, but there are several ways of avoiding that, such as subsidence, mechanical filtration and chemical precipitation. I have a plan by which, I believe, the deleterious matter could be separated and a mile of construction of the trunk sewer saved."

"Would it be a costly one?"

"Not as costly as building the sewer to the point mentioned below the town, and it could be cheaply operated."

"Would the cost be much," asked the reporter, becoming very practical, "to have the necessary data procured and a report prepared by a consulting engineer?"

"Oh, no, it would not be great," the engineer answered with a smile; "a matter of $200 or $250 I suppose."

A resolution, however, was adopted not to make any promise or contract with the company until it was incorporated and the matter given further consideration.

YOUNG'S POINT.

Correspondence of the Review.

OBITUARY.—It is with deep regret we chronicle the death of David Young, son of Mr. Mathew Young, of Young's Point, late of Ennismore. Deceased had been suffering for some years from a disease of the heart, but as his health seemed to have improved his friends cherished the hope that his return to his native air might have a salutary effect. He succumbed to the disease, however, on April 16th, after having been seriously ill but a few days. He was a young man whose pleasant, agreeable and kind disposition endeared him to all who knew him.

WESTWOOD.

Correspondence of the Review.

AN HEROIC DEED.—Fred. Wood, an orphan boy of 14 years, who was taken from the Barnardo Home, Peterborough, three years ago by Mr. B. Cardwell, of Westwood, risked his own life on Tuesday last to save the life of a little child. He was sent to Westwood on an errand and while returning through the village a little dog began barking at his horse's heels. He, watching the dog, did not see the child until his horse was almost upon him. He knew he could not check the horse, so he jumped from it and threw the child forward. The child got off with a swollen hand and a few scratches, and Wood, after handing him to his mother, started off, not giving his noble act a second thought. Well done, Fred, you have taken the advice of Pope, "Do good by stealth and blush to find it fame."

IN THE CHURCH FIELDS.

Some Interesting Statistics About the Church of England—Wealth and Progress of the Church—Some of the Great Preachers Who Draw Large Audiences.

There are nearly 16,000 churches in England, besides the great abbeys, cathedrals and ancient collegiate churches. There are about 23,000 clergymen. The church going population is trustworthily estimated at about 14,000,000, for whom about 6,200,000 sittings are available. There are thirty-three bishops, of whom twenty-eight have cathedrals with deans and chapters; six have cathedrals without chapters, being newly created bishoprics within the last few years. The original number of twenty-four bishops sit in the house of lords as spiritual peers, the prevailing opinion being against any increase. There are about 13,700 parishes, with old or restored or rebuilt parish churches, of which 8,467 were founded before A. D. 1550. The extent of the state patronage is shown by the striking fact that 8,023 of these parishes are in lay patronage, 4,257 in ecclesiastical patronage and only 1,050 in royal patronage.

CHURCH REVENUE.

The revenue of the church is not easy to estimate accurately. Much of its settled income is derived from land, according to its letting value, and this not only varies, but for the last fifteen years has greatly decreased. The total proceeds from all sources, endowments, title, glebe, rent value of residences, pew rents and church fees, is said to reach nearly $35,000,000. But it is quite certain that the clergy, all told, do not receive more than $20,000,000, if so much. The church houses and lands are not to be reckoned as productive in general. The fluctuation of good and bad times affects the clergyman as much as the commercial man, and in bad times voluntary offerings fall off too. The bishops, deans, and what we may term their cathedral staff, receive fixed legal stipends aggregating $1,765,000. Taking the high estimate of $20,000,000 as the aggregate stipends of the clergy, including assistant ministers, it would give an average of $1,140 to each. But this is certainly an excessive estimate. The writer knows of full blown rectors and incumbents whose "livings" yield no more than $350 and $500 per annum. Of course these are increased by pew rents and offerings, just as in the voluntary system. A significant peep behind the scenes is given by the society which collects donations of cash and second hand clothing for the relief of the church's ill endowed clergy. The cheap price asked for manuscript sermons by clever but impoverished ministers tells a tale in the same direction. And even the poorest of these poor clergymen have to pay rates and taxes like other folk, and they have a peculiar weakness for large families.

PROGRESS OF THE CHURCH.

Church extension is still being vigorously pushed forward. In 1886 and 1887 the expenditure exceeded $5,000,000. During the past thirteen years a special fund for founding six new English bishoprics has brought in more than $2,500,000, and the church is ceasing to complain of the dearth of young men in her pulpits. More than 10,000 have been admitted as deacons in the past fourteen years, the yearly average having arisen from 600 to 900. Confirmations up to 1883 averaged 166,000 a year, since when they have steadily increased up to 214,000. And as showing that the drift of all these moneys into the church's hands has in no way decreased the liberality of her people in directions of general beneficence, we may recur to the statistics of London hospital Sunday with which we started. The total collected on the first hospital Sunday, in 1873, was $129,000. This amount has steadily grown until in 1887 it was $184,000, and of these totals, each year, the national church has contributed nearly fourfold of the total contributed by all the other religious denominations put together.

The Singing Heart.

Thou Heart why dost thou lift thy voice?
  The birds are mute; the skies are dark;
Nor doth a living thing rejoice;
  Nor doth a living creature hark;
  Yet thou are singing in the dark.

How small thou are; how poor and frail;
  Thy prime is past; thy friends are chill;
Yet as thou had'st not any ail
  Throughout the storm there liftest still
  A praise that winter cannot chill.

Then sang that happy Heart reply;
  "God lives; God loves and hears me sing;
How warm, how safe, how glad am I,
  In shelter 'neath his spreading wing,
  And there I cannot choose but sing."

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Wm. McLin's Futile Endeavors at Woodstock to End His Life.

WOODSTOCK, May 11.—The police last night arrested a man who gave his name as Wm. McLin and put him in jail for safekeeping. They had noticed something peculiar about his actions for a day or so before and had kept a watch for him. Last night the information was conveyed by some boys that he was trying to commit suicide by drowning himself in the river. He had tied a stone around his neck and filled his pockets with others. The boys prevented him accomplishing his purpose, and succeeded in diverting his attention up town, where he fell into the hands of the police. He is about 35 years of age and claims both Otterville and Orangeville for his home. He was remanded for ten days so that further particulars can be ascertained. This afternoon he made another determined attempt to take his life. He took off his suspenders, fastened them to his cell door, and made a noose, in which he placed his neck. Turnkey Forbes fortunately noticed him before he had time to do himself any harm.

Katie Chalk, an inmate of the jail pending her removal to the Mercer Reformatory, made her escape to-day. She was working around the jail and when unobserved by those in charge disappeared. She has been traced to Ayr and it is likely will soon be brought back.

The total majority against the Scott Act will be 2100 or over.

A DOG'S FAITHFULNESS.

He Remains for Hours by the Side of His Dead Master, Who Commits Suicide.

OTTAWA, May 11.—With a bullet hole about an inch below the heart, and a 32 calibre revolver lying beside him, Edward Sherwood, late deputy sheriff of Carleton, was found in a bush a short distance from his brother's residence in Mount Sherwood, in the western part of the city, to-day. Deceased got into trouble in connection with his official duties some time ago. His resignation was accepted. He took the matter to heart and was ultimately sent to an asylum for protection. About a couple of weeks ago he was well enough to be sent home.

Between 10 and 11 o'clock yesterday forenoon he left his mother's house. A little dog accompanied him. No one was surprised at his not returning to lunch, as he frequently stayed with his brother in the centre of the town. Not arriving at dinner time, a search was made for him, and it was not until 2 o'clock this morning that he was found in the position described. The coroners decided that an inquest was not necessary. Deceased was 37 years of age. Life must have been extinct seven or eight hours before the body was discovered. The little dog remained with the corpse all the time, only leaving while replying to the whistle of the searchers and leading them to the spot where the remains of the unfortunate man lay. Deceased leaves a young wife and two children.

IS THIS WHY CRONIN FLED?

He is Said to Have Been Mixed up in a Malpractice Case.

CHICAGO, May 11.—The motive for Dr. P. H. Cronin's sudden and mysterious disappearance from home last Saturday night is now apparent, and the case assumes an aspect which places Dr. Cronin in a very dangerous position.

Frank J. Woodruff was arrested yesterday afternoon in Twelfth-street as a result of Capt. Shaack's fine work, on a charge of horse stealing. The prisoner has made a full confession, implicating Dr. Cronin in a terrible crime. Woodruff confesses that he stole a horse and wagon from Dean's barn, No. 406 Webster-avenue, shortly after midnight last Sunday and met Dr. Cronin, William King and Richard Fairburn at the barn, in the rear of No. 582 North State-street, which is a fashionable residence neighborhood. A trunk containing the body of a woman was placed in the wagon. Woodruff drove, King and Fairburn rode with him, while Cronin remained behind. Woodruff left the body and his two companions in Lincoln Park and then drove with the empty trunk to the place in Evanston-avenue, Lakeview, where it was found later in the day by the police.

From conversations between Cronin, King and Fairburn which the prisoner Woodruff overheard, he concluded that the body was that of a woman killed by a criminal operation performed by Dr. Cronin.

THE WORK OF THE STORM.

A Tornado Sweeps Through Virginia's Capital—Two Boys Killed.

RICHMOND, Va., May 10.—A tornado swept the lower portion of the city last evening and blew down a large wooden building belonging to the Richmond Chemical Works. Five boys had taken refuge in the house. James Quigley was killed and his brother Frank fatally injured. The remaining boys and two negro laborers were injured less seriously.

Killed by Lightning.

RENOVA, Pa., May 11.—Mrs. Wm. McNall and her four children at Ridgeway yesterday sought safety from the storm in the cellar of their house. The lightning struck the house and the mother and three children were killed. The other child, a month old, was found uninjured in the arms of its dead mother.

Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, May 12.—A public meeting to discuss the Jesuits Estates Act will be held here on May 28.

Maria McCabe, who has served six of her fourteen years' sentence in Kingston penitentiary, has been pardoned.

Lorne, the young son of Mark Patterson, was struck by a Northern and Northwestern engine yesterday and seriously but not dangerously injured.

Mrs. Smith of San Francisco and her two children, who were supposed victims of the Junction Cut accident were not on the wrecked train. Inquiries are now being made for Mrs. Mary Smith of Akron, O., and her daughter.

Harry Pemberton, a rolling mill employe, while out rowing on the bay Saturday was upset and drowned.

Close of the Scotch-Irish Congress.

COLUMBIA, Tenn., May 11.—The last day of the Scotch-Irish congress was opened by a stirring extempore speech by Hon. Benton McMillin, who said that not a single member of the Scotch-Irish race, so far as he knew, had ever been an anarchist or socialist. Dr. John McIntosh spoke on "John Knox in Independence Hall." It was announced that a permanent organization having been formed, those wishing to become members of the society or to contribute to the literature or pamphlet which would contain the proceedings, should address A. C. Floyd, the secretary, Columbia, Tenn. The congress closed with "Auld Lang Syne."

Plucky Voyagers.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The three-ton boat Liberdade, in which Capt. Joshua Slocum, with his wife and two children, left Paranagua, Brazil, on June 24 last, arrived at Staten Island this evening after a voyage of over 7000 miles. Capt. Slocum says the trip on the whole was a most enjoyable one. During the long voyage many severe storms were encountered, but the little boat, he says, "weathered them all like a dauntless sea bird."

The Grand Trunk Got the Best Rates.

CHICAGO, May 11.—A Grand Trunk official commenting yesterday on the evidence of President Newell before the United States Senate Committee at New York, regarding rates on export traffic, said: "The statistics of the Central Traffic Association can prove that where the Lake Shore and other companies were getting from 16 to 20 cents per 100 pounds as their proportion of the through rates on provisions—Chicago to Liverpool—the Grand Trunk route was getting 25 to 28 cents per 100 pounds."

Condition of Winter Wheat in the States.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The condition of winter wheat has advanced from 94 to 96, of rye from 93.9 to 96.5. The general average of winter barley is 96.9; of spring pasture, 96.0; of mowing lands, 96.3.

Murder in a Court Room.

KANSAS CITY, May 11.—This afternoon James Smith, on trial in Justice Lewis' court room in Kansas City, Kan., on the charge of burglary, suddenly drew a razor and cut a seven-inch gash in the neck of Detective Wm. Gilley, producing a fatal wound, and then made a dash for liberty, but was shot dead, pierced by five bullets. Smith cut officer Maloney in the leg.

YET WAH.

His name was Yet Wah,
With no high sounding "Ah,"
To form a front step to his name.
A wash house he kept,
Where he feasted and slept,
And rustled for washee and fame.

Now, Yet was a man
Whom the rest of his clan
Regarded as pure to a fault;
So with limitless trust
Their hoardings they thrust
In the tea chest that served as his vault.

Yet winked his off eye
As he saw the chink fly
Thro' the slot in his improvised bank;
"Me sabbee," said he,
With a chuckle of glee,
"Fool Chinaman—allee samee crank!"

Time rapidly passed,
Till Yet Wah at last
Decided his harvest to reap,
So one silent night
He arose, lit his light,
The bad resolution to keep.

"Like Melican clerk,"
Said he, with a smirk,
"We steal 'um an' then run away!
Me brave—me no care
How Chinamen swear—
In Canada Yet Wah will stay!"

With half nervous zest
He crept to the chest,
Unlocked it, and raised up the lid;
Then, peering inside,
He sprang up, wild eyed,
With a face as pale as the dead.

"Wha' for! Mack-a hi!"
Was his terrified cry,
As he sank out of breath, 'gainst the wall;
"Some heap bad Chinee
Been here before me,
An' stealee my money an' all!

"Thro' a hole in the bottom
Some roguey chap got 'em;
Ki-yi! it makee me sick!
Bimeby some Chinee
He lay it on me—
Say me stole 'em, and killee me quick!"

Like a hideous dream,
So ended Yet's scheme,
And, fearing the crisis, he "dusted;"
Like a shadow of night,
He slunk out of sight,
Himself, like his bank, nearly busted!

To the inquiring minds of the citizens of Freehold, N. J., is due the discovery that a pig has no brains. A discussion upon this subject arose, and to settle the question it was decided to sacrifice the most intelligent pig in the community, and have his brain scientifically analyzed. After the pig was killed the head was examined and found to be brainless. The cavity in which the brain should have been was extraordinarily small and empty.

The horses on some of the stage routes in Nevada are trained to wear snow shoes. After an animal becomes used to them he can travel four or five miles an hour where it would be impossible to go that distance in a week without them. The shoes are made of thin steel plate, and measure about nine by eleven inches. The horses are shod with long heel calks, which go through the snow shoes and prevent their slipping going up and down hill.

Trudged all the way on foot, over mountains and through morass, carrying knapsack and gun, slept on brush heaps to keep out of the mud, caught cold, from the effects of which his friends thought he would never recover. Lingering with consumption for many years, he saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised in a country newspaper, and he determined to try it. CRAZED BY ILLNESS.

HE SOUGHT RELIEF FROM PAIN IN DEATH.

The Story of the Sudden Death of the Late Assistant Secretary Douglas of the Interior Department.

OTTAWA, May 13.—The cause of the sudden death of Mr. P. B. Douglas, late Assistant Secretary of the Interior Department, has transpired. Owing to the earnest entreaties of the friends and relations of the deceased the facts have been suppressed, but the publication in The Journal to-night of an account of Mr. Douglas' last hours renders further silence futile.

Mr Douglas was taken ill with a cold a week before his death and was attended by his father-in-law, Dr. Hill. He was also suffering from an inflamed leg, which became serious. A consultation was held and the doctors decided to amputate the limb. Mr. Douglas on the fatal morning had asked the nurse several times to go to bed and showed a strong desire to be left alone in his room. Finally he asked for a glass of water, saying his tongue was very dry and desiring that the water be allowed to run long enough to get good and cold.

When the nurse returned she found Mr. Douglas lying on his right side with what she supposed was an old coat or some covering thrown over his shoulders. She approached him with the water but he did not move. She was surprised and uneasy and went back quickly for a lamp. Returning to the room she saw at once that the bed clothes were dyed with blood. Dr. Hill was immediately summoned. He removed the body with the help of the nurse and servants and partially stripped it, when the wound that had caused death was plainly visible—a deep gash in the throat.

The blood was carefully sponged from the wound, the features and throat washed and composed and properly arranged for placing in the casket. The throat was sewn and the sewing covered with adhesive plaster; over the whole a bandage was placed so that no sign of the death wound could be detected. A razor was found in the bed by the side of the deceased. It was, like the bed itself, covered with blood. After cautioning the servants not to give any information regarding the death. Dr. Hill summoned the undertaker, but he was not allowed to coffin the body. It was coffined by Dr. Hill, the servant, the nurse and a relative of the family. None of the city coroners were informed of the nature of the death.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

A Sermon on the Evils of Party Politics—Rev. Mr. Wood's Complaint.

OTTAWA, May 13.—The Supreme Court met to-day at 2 o'clock and took up the case of the Canadian Pacific Railway v. St. Therese. This is a case in regard to the expropriation of land for a gravel pit under the Railway Act in the village of St. Therese, Que. The amount involved is $4000.

Sir Charles Tupper leaves to-morrow for Montreal, and will sail on the following day for England.

Rev. Mr. Wood of the Congregational Church preached a sermon last evening on the evils of party politics. He also complained that the Governor-General paid much more attention to visiting Catholic institutions in the city than Protestant.

ELOPED WITH A SKELETON.

But He Was a Living Skeleton—Moreover He Was Rich and a Dude.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Coffey the dude, Coffey the living skeleton, Coffey the wife hunter is missing, and Managers Worth and Huber of Worth's Palace Museum are mourning his departure and are wrathful that he so summarily shook the dust of the museum from his feet. Where he is gone they know not, but the reason of his departure they shrewdly surmise to be a pretty and rich widow, who has haunted the museum ever since his thin "jags" blew in on a favoring gale from Philadelphia. The lady who captured the heart of the skeleton is known by name to the museum managers, but for business reasons they desire to keep it secret.

The circumstances connected with his departure show that Coffey had contemplated running away for some time. Thursday he drew his week's salary in advance. Friday morning he was around the museum at 10.30 o'clock, and then walked out and has not been seen since. An inquiry at his boarding-house developed the fact that Thursday night he took away in a hack all his personal belongings, leaving no address. Manager Huber declares that if he is married he will sue him for damages, as his contract calls for a marriage in the museum, and if not married he will serve an injunction on him preventing it. Coffey has amassed a large fortune from his exhibitions as a living skeleton and is rated as solid financially.

John Snaith, the contractor for the famous ceiling of the Capitol at Albany, has returned to New York from abroad. The trouble will now be renewed.

James Beebe Smith, local editor of The Springfield (Mass.) Republican, was shot and killed at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by his brother-in-law, who mistook him for a burglar.

Prof. St. Clair, the aeronaut, in attempting to give his "leap from the clouds" at the fair ground park in Houston, Texas, last evening, lost his grip on the parachute and fell 200 feet to the ground. Nearly every bone in his body was broken.

Two young men arrested at Canton, O for train wrecking have confessed.

1,000 LADIES wanted—to test the quality of those fine New Teas at M. R. KIDD'S.

DOINGS IN THE DOMINION

A BIG BATCH OF NEWS FROM ONTARIO'S CAPITAL.

Judgment Reserved in the Victoria University Injunction Case—Druggist Wood to Be Tried Next Month.

TORONTO, May 13.—Yesterday morning Mr. B. M. Britton continued his argument before Chief Justice Sir Thomas Galt in the Victoria University Injunction case. The attendance of interested Methodist ministers was on hand, Rev. Hugh Johnston being included. Mr. Britton contended that no one would subscribe to the federation scheme while this injunction was on.

Mr. Holman, one of the plaintiff's counsel, remarked: "I see you got $1000 on Saturday?"

"Oh, that's towards annexation!" another lawyer remarked to Dr. Potts.

On the law as it stood Mr. Britton contended there was a right of removal. It was the board which got all the amendments passed which brought the Senate into existence and gave it the powers which it possessed. The Board of Regents was the corporation. While that corporation had determined that degrees should be conferred the Senate had power to say upon whom they should be conferred. But the moment the board said: "We will suspend operations at Cobourg then the Senate could not go on conferring degrees."

Mr. Chas. Moss, Q.C., in his argument for the defence, said that the main point before His Lordship was whether or not the injunction granted in this case should be continued until the trial, or whether it was not a case in which no injunction ought to be granted or continued. It was a case at the trial of which the plaintiffs could secure their rights without danger to their present position if they possessed rights which could be secured. While on the other hand, if His Lordship continued this injunction, he was doing a serious injury and damage to the defendants. It was a recognized principle that no injunction should be granted unless its not being granted would cause irreparable damage to the plaintiffs. He argued that they must first show that they had a prima facie case and secondly that unless the court interfered immediately by an injunction their rights would be greatly prejudiced and jeopardized. It lay upon the plaintiffs in this case to satisfy His Lordship that unless the injunction was continued to the trial the plaintiffs were going to suffer such serious damage.

After a lengthy and brilliant argument Mr. Moss in conclusion said: "We are ready to go to trial at the earliest possible moment, but we do object to the action of these plaintiffs in obtaining an injunction in the way this injunction was obtained."

Mr. Robinson then argued that the only occasion on which the Senate had an opportunity to confer in this matter was in September last.

His Lordship reserved judgment, which will be given as soon as possible.

A boy named Fred Ford was brought before Squire Wingfield yesterday charged with having on April 29 shot a piece of iron out of a catapult at a Grand Trunk train, breaking a window and nearly injuring a passenger. He was remanded till to-day.

When the name of John O. Wood was called at the Police Court yesterday it was stated that he had been bailed out by Mr. Justice Rose's order. The Police Magistrate therefore enters in the record "Sent to the assizes." Wood's bondsmen will have to surrender their man at the June court.

Robert Davies, alias Wallis, a colored youth, was charged at the Police Court yesterday with sandbagging James Fitzgerald with intent to rob him. Fitzgerald drives a Winchester-street railway car. A week ago last Saturday night, while Fitzgerald was making his last trip on Winchester-street, a man jumped on the car and struck him twice with a sandbag over the head. No one else was on the car at the time. He could not identify the man who struck him, but Policemen Quinn and Campbell saw the assault and chased the prisoner, who took refuge in a cellar and was captured, when he remarked, "What is a fellow to do who has no money and no place to sleep?" He was sent to the Central for a year.

E. J. Dunning appeared in the Police Court yesterday charged with fraudulently appropriating two promissory notes of $140 and $210 respectively, the property of J. A. McKenzie. Defendant was represented by Mr. N. G. Bigelow and Mr. Thurston appeared for the prosecution. The case collapsed, as there was not the slightest evidence to show fraud. The following receipt was put in signed by J. A. McKenzie & Co.:

TORONTO, May 4, 1889.

Received of E. J. Dunning the sum of $210, on account of purchase of notes $140 and $210 respectively.

The Magistrate, in dismissing the case, commented on the haste there had been in trying to prove a man guilty of fraud. Mr. Thurston stated that he had no knowledge of the existence of the check produced in court, to which the Magistrate retorted that that only made the case for the prosecution worse.

At 6 o'clock yesterday morning there died one of the best priests of the Archdiocese of Toronto, in the person of Rev. J. Michel, parish priest of Lafontaine, 8 miles from Penetanguishene. Father Michel was born in France 58 years ago and was the only son of wealthy parents. He received his early training in Europe and took his final theological course in Baltimore, where he was ordained at an early age.

Nearly the whole of the clerical life of Father Michel was spent in the Toronto Archdiocese, in which he did good work, much of it in the way of erecting churches, schools, presbyteries and convents, to a large extent from his own means, having inherited a large fortune, of which little or nothing is left. His first work in this archdiocese was as curate at St. Mary's, Ont. Then he was stationed for different periods at Toronto Gore, Mara, a parish near Orillia, where, he built a fine presbytery; then in the parish of Adjala after the death of Rev. Father Sinnot. From Adjala he was sent to Niagara Falls, where he was parish priest and chaplain to the Loretto Convent for several years. Seventeen years ago Father Michel was removed to Lafontaine, which parish he held till his death; there he built a grand church as imposing as St. Patrick's in this city; a commodious presbytery and a convent for the Sisters of the Holy Cross.

"He was a good and holy man," said the Rev. Administrator Laurent yesterday, "and the late Archbishop regarded him almost as a saint."

The funeral will take place on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, the interment taking place at Lafontaine.

To a select coterie of ladies and ministers in the parlor of the Y.M.C.A. Miss Cusack, the "Nun of Kenmare," familiarly chatted for an hour yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Parsons having expatiated on the timely visit of the renowned nun to Toronto, fired a few shots at the Jesuits and their aggressive policy and in orthodox style exhorted all to contend for the faith. Then Miss Cusack beamingly stepped forward, neatly attired in black gown, shawl and bonnet, the latter with white satin lining well matching her silvery hair. She has well marked features, showing determination combined with kindness, and her merry eyes twinkled as she told her little tales or got off some shafts of sarcasm.

"Protestants want some reliable information," was the Nun's first sentence, "and that I'll give them spite of all the opposition of the priests. One of the reasons that led me to leave the Roman Catholic Church was that I should not do dishonest things." Then she told how she could not endorse the Bishop's action when he ordered faith to be broken with Protestant parents who sent their children to her school at Great Grimsby, and left the church. She was then Mother General of the Order of Sisters of Peace, and order which she had founded herself with the written permission of the Pope. She did not say that Roman Catholics are wilfully dishonest, but if they are good Catholics they must be, for it is one principle of their creeds.

Miss Cusack then answered questions on various points. She told of Romish dissensions, how the Popes and the Bishops are always fighting, and how at one time there were three Popes excommunicating each other with Christian cheerfulness. (Laughter). Next the Nun told of Catholic ignorance of the tenets of their own religion and the contents of their Douay Bible: of their Mariolatry divisions, and casuistry. A Catholic never gives you a straight answer; they will deny anything. The climax was her statement that most of the priests were out and out infidels.

The meeting was deemed a success, several bought the Nun's book and others tickets for her lecture on the Jesuits to-night.

The Police Magistrate yesterday sent Mary McCormack to gaol for 30 days for larceny of a coat and vest, the property of James Wallace. Jane Carr was also sent for a similar term for stealing a dress from Kate Foster. Annie Lorrie, for the theft of three napkins, got 30 days. A youth named George Brooks, who had a bad record, was sent to prison for 60 days for theft of a gold watch and $13 from Ralph Horney. Patrick Rooney stole some lead, the property of the city, and was sent over the Don for a week. Fred Mills pleaded guilty to stealing a gold ring from John Fletcher and was committed for 30 days. Tilly Kelly, for assaulting Nellie Stephens, got 60 days.

The Ministerial Association met yesterday morning in Association Hall, Rev. W. S. Blackstock presiding. Rev. Dr. Junor of New York and Rev. E. B. Chestnut of Monaghan, Ireland, were invited to take part in the proceedings. Mr. Joseph Colbrough was introduced to the association by Rev. George Robertson.

Rev. Coverdale Watson read a paper on "The law of duty in relation to popular amusement." The speaker aimed at brevity, to allow those present to take part in the discussion afterwards. The different reasons put forward by people for following their inclinations in the matter of popular amusement were dealt with. Instances in point were given. In the discussion which followed, Rev. Dr. Parsons thought it somewhat strange that so many extra attractions or amusements should be introduced into the church to do the church's work. Rev. Dr. Parker referred to the evils produced by amusements brought out in high life, or by celebration of national events which set a bad example. He thought that the Methodist Church had a pretty strict code of rules in respect to amusements.

Rev. Dr. Thomas had had difficulty in the matter of deciding in such circumstances and related an experience in which he had opened a ball with prayer. He did not believe in being too rigid in this matter. Rev. D. J. Macdonnell was next called upon by the chairman. He thought, as did former speakers, that it was not the business of the church to provide amusements for the people, and considered that conscience should be the monitor in deciding whether certain amusements could be indulged in or not. No occupation or amusement should be indulged in to such an extent as to conflict with the worship of God. Rev. G. M. Milligan considered it was a question of casuistry and that ministers should not declare positively what amusements were sinful and what were not. He thought circumstances determined to a large extent this question. Further, he gave it as his opinion that the world is suffering as much from the hurry and rush of business life as from pleasure; and that too much of the former will demoralize a man as much as will the latter. Our separation from the world was not to be formal and outward but an inward spiritual separation.

The next meeting of the association will close the session for the season.

It was only last Wednesday that the new postal regulations increasing the postage on drop letters in cities where delivery by carrier is in vogue came into force, and already the prophecy that delivery offices from which city letters would be delivered for 1 cent each would spring up like mushrooms has been partly realized.

Yesterday morning the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company started a 1-cent delivery system with sufficient patrons to give a number of boys and men employment for the day, and yesterday's canvassing among the wholesale houses resulted in further patronage, so that the scheme is said to be already on a paying basis.

There is also another company with the same object in view on the tapis, and perhaps there is money in it, for the merchants who send out two or three hundred local invoices and letters every day have already come to the conclusion that a 3-cent rate of postage for drop letters is neither profitable nor popular.

The increased registration fee of 5 cents is throwing more business into the money order and express offices, and there is a grave doubt whether the new change will be found to pay in the long run.

CABINET RUMORS.

Mr. Chapleau, it is Said, to be Promoted to the Portfolio of Railways and Canals.

MONTREAL, May 13.—A gentleman closely connected with the Dominion Cabinet, whose position enables him to know exactly what is going on, said to-day that Hon. J. A. Chapleau in a few days will be transferred from his present portfolio of Secretary of State to that of Railways and Canals, vice the late Hon. J. H. Pope, and that Mr. Charles Carroll Colby, M.P. for Stanstead, will be sworn in as Secretary of State.

"There is no doubt but that this is correct," he added. "Mr. Chapleau is certainly entitled to promotion and would have obtained it long since had his health not been so bad. The position taken by Mr. Colby in the Jesuit debate, his long connection with the party and the fact that he represents the district of the late Mr. Pope are reasons given for his promotion. The Government also selects Mr. Colby so as to give him an opportunity of proving the allegation made by him that the stand taken by the Government on the Jesuit question is approved of by the Protestants of Stanstead and the townships generally.

It is understood that the Government expects to prove by the result of the bye-elections of Compton and then of Stanstead that their policy is approved of by the Protestants of Quebec.

Mr. Chapleau will not need to stand for re-election.

Sharper Than a Serpent's Tooth.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Nathan Corwith, sr., has been very ill in this city, and his death may occur at any minute. Corwith a year ago was the richest lead merchant in America, if not in the world. The supposition has been that Corwith's gigantic failure in business was solely the result of an attempt to corner the lead supply of the world. The fact, however, appears to be that Corwith's every move in speculation was coppered with his own capital by his own son Gurdon Corwith, and that before the inevitable crash came $11,000,000 had been withdrawn from the old man's coffers and sunk in operations in which young Corwith had become hopelessly involved.

NEWS OF THE OLD WORLD.

QUESTIONS TOUCHING THE IRISH VICEROYSHIP.

An Officer of Stanley's Rear Guard Threatens to Publish a Sensational Book—The Miners' Strike.

LONDON, May 13.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Howorth (Conservative) asked whether the Government after the resignation of the Marquis of Londonderry from the Viceroyship of Ireland would make a Royal Prince Viceroy and provide him with a suitable residence and retinue.

Edward Heneage (Liberal-Unionist) asked the Government to consider the abolition of the Viceroyship and the transfer of the duties of the office to the Chief Secretary.

Mr. Smith promised that the Government would earnestly consider the question, but stated that in the meantime it was impossible to pledge the Government to any course.

Troup Will Spring a Sensation.

LONDON, May 13.—Mr. Troup, late transport officer of Stanley's rear guard, is about to publish a book describing the rear camp on the Aruwhimi, which will excite a sensation. The Emin Relief Expedition Committee have tried to muzzle him, but, being of independent means, he defies them and will speak out straight. He says the failure of the rear guard to carry out Stanley's instructions was entirely due to Major Barttelot's bad policy and cruelty; that Barttelot never concealed his hatred and contempt of the black men, and his murder was due to his cruel punishments and neglect to provide proper food for his black followers.

The Miners' Strike.

BERLIN, May 13.—The delegates sent by the striking miners of Westphalia to wait on Emperor William have arrived here. The semi-official press deny that collisions occurred between troops and strikers Saturday, and assert there was no rioting on that day in any of the disturbed localities. A council of the Prussian ministry was held to-day to consider the strike. The session was prolonged. Prince Bismarck presided. At the height of the discussion Emperor William appeared and took an active part in the deliberations. It is reported that the council decided to summon to Berlin deputations from the mine owners and the miners, that they may submit their disputes to arbitration by the Government.

Emperor William received Schroeder, Bunte and Siegel, the Westphalia committee, as the delegates of 100,000 miners. The strikers to-day tried to prevent the opening of the Altehasse and Sprockhoevel pits. Hussars dispersed the strikers and made many arrests. A man named Heunen, whose brother was killed in the riot at Schleswig, suddenly became insane to-day and killed a friend named Bleichert with a hatchet. The colliers at Waldenburg, Silesia, have gone on strike.

MIMICO, May 13.—On Saturday while Thomas McLean, W. McMillan and Paul Chapelle were drilling for water on the new Asylum farm formerly the property of Mr. Benjamin Goldthorpe, about 1½ miles west of this place on the Lake Shore-road, they struck a rich vein of natural gas at a depth of 465 feet, which increases as they go deeper. The hole through which the gas escapes is six inches in diameter. When lit to-day the gas threw a flame five feet high.

Her Husband's Image.

TUSCOLA, Ill., May 13.—A singular case of mistaken identity occurred when Mrs. James Duke of Beloit, Wis., arrived here in company with six interesting children, and claimed as her lost husband a cigarmaker named David Robinson, who is the foreman in the factory of Messrs. Robinson & Watson. The lady, who is well dressed and quite prepossessing, confronted her alleged husband, and even after conversing with him was not satisfied that he was not lost her husband until she examined his wrist for a scar. Failing to find this she broke down and admitted that she was mistaken in the man. How much Robinson must have resembled Duke is attested by the fact that the children clung around him affectionately calling him papa. Mrs. Duke's husband, who was a cigarmaker, disappeared mysteriously about a year ago, and she was led to believe he was located here through information received from a traveling tobacco salesman.

When a mail bag from Toronto was opened at the post office here here yesterday a six-chamber revolver, with each chamber loaded, and a box of matches were found it. The Tug of War.

The Queen's Birthday sports of the 57th Batt. will settle a question that has been a good deal discussed by the men of the different companies of late. Another Runaway Accident.

Last evening another runaway accident occurred from the result of which two gentlemen are suffering to-day, one of whom will probably be laid up for some little time. Mr. Alphonse Legros and John Tracy were driving Mr. Chas. Legros' mare which was attached to a light waggon when the horse became frightened on Gilmore-st. and bolted. Mr. Legros attempted to hold the horse and for this purpose had his feet against the front of the waggon when the front board gave way and the occupants of the rig were thrown out upon the road. Tracy was not seriously injured, but the horse stepped on Mr. Legros' ankle and fractured it. The horse did not run very far when it was captured. A fractured ankle is not very painful, but means a couple of months nursing.

The Magistrate allowed him to go upon paying for the glass he had broken. John Scott, a local inebriate, was also allowed to take his departure free of cost, and a moulder from Ottawa who was passing through the town and had indulged too copiously of the frothy beverage was given his dismissal with a few words of advice.

THE SEWERAGE QUESTION

MR. MACDOUGALL, OF TORONTO, ADDRESSES THE COUNCILLORS.

The Council of the Board of Trade also Present—The Councillors have a hot Debate and Cause Much Ado About Nothing—The Precipitation Scheme of Disposing of Sewerage.

A committee meeting of the whole Council was called in the Council chamber last evening and a meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade was also called for the same time and at the same place. The object of calling together the municipal legislators and the heads of the Board of Trade was that the gentlemen comprising these bodies might be enlightened on the important question which must sooner or later be considered and dealt with by the town authorities—that of procuring for the town of a proper system of sewerage. The enlightenment that was to be received was to be given by Mr. Alan Macdougall, M. Inst. C.E., F.R.S.E., consulting sanitary engineer, of Toronto, who was to address the ratepayers' representatives on the subject of sewerage. His Worship Mayor Stevenson was in the chair, and the Councillors present were:—Winch, Kendry, E. H. D. Hall, A. Hall, Rutherford, Baptie, Langford, Dawson, Kelly and Cahill. The Board of Trade was represented in the audience gallery by Messrs Robt. Innes, Geo. Hilliard, F. H. Dobbin, W. E. Sherwood, Bean, while the Town Engineer, Mr. J. E. Belcher, and Street Inspector Pope also graced the legislative halls with their presence.

THE MAYOR'S OPINION.

Mayor STEVENSON in opening the meeting explained to the Councillors his reason for calling them together—to hear Mr. Macdougall in reference to the sewerage question—and said that the subject of drainage was an important one and one which had been broached before, but the question of expense had always caused them to put it off from time to time. He said in 1893 the town would pay off the debentures then maturing and would be practically free of debt and would then be able to go into sewerage, but it might be possible to go into it before that time. At all events it would do no harm to get all the information possible on the question.

MR. MACDOUGALL'S INFORMATION.

Mr. MACDOUGALL was then called within the rail and requested to unfold to the assembled magnates some information on the sewerage system. This he did in a short address the principal and most important points, as far as our local interests are concerned, appeared in the interview which a REVIEW reporter had with him on Saturday and which appeared in last evening's paper. He first explained that he wished the municipalities to know that he had left the city hall at Toronto and had gone back to his private business and that he had prepared plans of sewerage for the city of Stratford, St. Catharines and St. Thomas. He said when he came here he did not know that the question of sewerage was such an agitated one or one in which so much interest was being taken. He then proceeded to speak of sewerage generally. He said the primary objection brought forward had been that the cost would be very great. Other engineers had always been advocating one great trunk sewer into which all the others would empty, and which necessitated an outflow. He went on to point out that in considering this question there were two schemes—one, the combined system, taking away all the surface water as well as the household waste, and the other, the separate or wearing system, in which the services were small in size and less in cost than the combined system and which carried away the household waste and made no allowance for the surface water. Then as regarded the disposal of the sewerage he said that at first sight any person coming into this town would say that it would be an easy matter to get rid of the sewerage because of the river which flowed through it. He said the amount of sewerage which would come from a town of this size would not be so great as to seriously effect the water, the volume of water in the stream being so great that by the time the sewerage got five or six miles down it would be so diluted as not to effect the water, not even for culinary purposes. In

THE CASE OF PETERBOROUGH

he said there was every reason to believe that if the sewerage was carried down to a point below the locks that it could be put into the river there and would be mixed up with the river and not do any harm. Of course he pointed out that the neighboring municipality (Township of North Monaghan) would have to be consulted and its sanction received. The quality of the sewerage depended on the kind of industries in a town, but in a town like this washing days would be the worst when a large quantity of soapy water would come down. In towns where there were dye works or meat and lard refineries the sewerage was difficult to be treated. The disposing of the sewerage could be accomplished in different ways, but there were two which he pointed out would do away with the necessity of constructing a mile of trunk sewer. The first of these was by mechanical filtration, by which the sewerage was run into a field divided into gridirons and allowed to flow over it and form manure or else passed in pipes about a foot under the surface, and after passing through these goes downwards and is caught by another line of pipes. By this downward filtration he said in this town, if the ground was prepared and the surface flooded, it would sink down, but in winter time they would have to divide it with pipe filters. Then he told them of

THE CHEMICAL PROCESS,

by which the sewerage is mixed with chemicals, of which the sulphate of lime is the principal, and then passes into the precipitating tanks. There are three of these tanks. In the first the heaviest of the matter is taken up, in the second still more is caught and in the third not ten per cent was left, and then the water was allowed to run off to the river. This latter scheme for the disposal of the sewerage seemed to be the most favorable. Coming down to the question of laying the sewers, he said he he did not think there would be any difficulty in arranging a system by which the sewers could be laid down so that they could take George-st. and lay down a complete sewer, then lay down Aylmer-st., and have the side streets from George drain down to Aylmer. Then on Rubidge-st. they came to the heighth, and from here they could arrange sewers to come down to Aylmer. These main sewers were to be so arranged that each would be complete and independent themselves. On Park-st. there was plenty of fall to make a sewer by itself, and then all these main sewers would connect with the tank sewers and and carried to the outflow, and the question was where would this be. He thought it quite possible to introduce the precipitation tanks and then there would be no reason why the sewerage could not be kept within the limits of the town and the expense not be beyond their finances. He said to carry out the entire sewerage system of the town would be almost unnecessary at present, but they could get in the trunk sewer and the others afterwards as deemed advisable. Mr. Macdougall had some of the water taken from the mouth of the George-st. sewer in the Council Chamber with which he illustrated his precipitation process in a practical way.

COUNCILLORS' QUERIES.

In reply to several queries from Councillors Rutherford and Langford, Mr. Macdougall said the question of cost would have to be found out by detail. He thought the precipitation process would not be so expensive as the others, but he could not give figures as it had not been worked out yet. This would be cheaper than running the sewers to the locks. He favored getting the work done by contract at first, until the local men understood sewer work, for he said it was really skilled labor which was required in shaping the bottom of these sewers.

COUNCILLOR RUTHERFORD.

Councillor RUTHERFORD said before they could take up this matter they should have some idea of the expense. He considered it very kind of Mr. Macdougall to come here at his own expense and enlighten them on this question which had been agitating the town for so many years. He referred to the present poor and imperfect sewerage and spoke of the state of many of the cellars in consequence. It was forty years since the front sewer on George-st. was built and they should move in the matter and rid the town of the danger of fevers, diphtheria and malaria. He did not think there was any time when they could do it cheaper than at the present time when many men were idle. They could commence with only a little at first, but in time they would have the system complete. He thought surveys and plans should be prepared and some steps taken at the next meeting of the Council.

SOME DISCUSSION AND A MOTION.

Councillor KENDRY suggested that before they did anything at all they should get the engineer to go over the town and get the levels and give them the probable cost of the whole system and then after that they could take up any particular part of the town and do the work. He also suggested that a public meeting be held and the views of the ratepayers be secured on the question.

After a great deal informal conversation Councillor KELLY moved, seconded by Councillor RUTHERFORD,—That the committee having heard Mr. Macdougall in reference to the system of sewerage would recommend to the Council to take the necessary action to procure plans and surveys of a proper system for the town at the next meeting of the Council.

A HOT DEBATE.

Over this motion a hot wordy war ensued.

Councillors CAHILL and E. H. D. HALL objected to it on the grounds that it committed the councillors as to their future action in the matter.

On the other hand Councillors Kelly, Langford, Rutherford and Dawson held that it did not commit them to anything and that they could vote as they pleased at the next meeting of the Council even if this resolution was carried.

Finally the motion was put and was lost by the casting vote of the Mayor.

THE TWO FROM CENTRE WARD.

Councillor RUTHERFORD then rose and was slightly ruffled. He said that two men from the centre ward would hear of their action in voting against a sewerage system when they had to face their electors again. They above all others should support it when the centre of the town was the portion most benefitted.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL, who was one of the centre ward men referred to, interrupted Mr. Rutherford and called upon him to cease putting words into his mouth which he never uttered and said he was not going to allow Mr. Rutherford to say what was not true about him.

Councillor Rutherford, however, never missed a note in his speech notwithstanding the interruptions, but if anything talked faster and more vehemently then before.

It was a rather wild scene and was enjoyed by those who were onlookers.

Councillor ADAM HALL, when the third Ward orator had resumed his seat, said he would not be afraid to face his electors and stated that no one was more in favor of sewerage than he was, but he wanted to be free to consider the matter when it came up in Council.

Councillor CAHILL did not want Mr. Kelly or Rutherford to lecture him. He was in favor of sewerage when the question of expense had been been considered and the people were desirous of having it.

THE MOTION THAT CARRIED.

After some more discussion Councillor Adam HALL moved, seconded by Councillor E. H. D. HALL,—That the thanks of the committee be tendered to Mr. Macdougall for his attendance and explanation in this matter of drainage, and that we recommend the Council at the next meeting to consider the matter of obtaining estimates, etc.

This motion carried and the thanks of the meeting was tendered Mr. Macdougall when the committee adjourned at nearly eleven o'clock.

Where are Their Parents.

Four boys were up before the Magistrate this morning for having called Robert Scriber insulting names. Scriber, it will be remembered, was recently an inmate of Nesbitt's Castle and the boys have been troubling him since his release. The complainant did not appear to prosecute the boys, and the Magistrate allowed them to go with some words words of warning.

It Could not Run.

Patrick Navin was summoned before the Magistrate this morning charged with allowing his horse to run at large. Mr. Navin explained that the animal was only allowed out yesterday in a field on Water-st., but he said the horse could not run or in fact could hardly walk. The Magistrate said it did not matter how harmless the animal had been he would have to fine him as the law had been broken. He fined him two dollars.

A Great Mistake

is made very often by merchants advertising goods at very low figures and when the public call to price the goods they are much higher than the prices their advertisement calls for, or they are just out of the goods. Now, it is altogether different with W. J. Morrow. When you see his advertisement you can rely on procuring the goods at the price stated, just so long as he can get the goods, but of course when we are out you must make an allowance. We have another consignment of beautiful 2 lb. tin Peaches at 15 cents per tin. 3 lb tin Tomatoes, 3 for 25 cents. W. J. Morrow, 340 George-st.

A Member's Opinion.

"You see," he explained, "they generally have some refreshment after lodge closes down—yes, the Masons. Coffee, cheese, crackers, etc., just a snack. Goes good, specially on a cold night. I've found out that there's one thing, if I drink the coffee keeps me awake to all hours. They don't spare the coffee and its made good, I tell you. But a fellow has to get to sleep, and I'm going to ask the stewards to substitute tea for some of the coffee, and, by George, we'll get some of Hawley Bros.' tea. It's the best I find and the lodge 'll endorse the brand." Hawley Bros. make a specialty of tea and give the best value in town. d112

Official Board Meeting.

A regular meeting of the Quarterly Board of the George-st. church was held last evening. The financial report showed that the year had been a prosperous one, and that there was a surplus of between $300 and $400. Of this $200 was applied to paying off a circuit debt and $200 was appropriated to the clergyman's salary in addition to the regular salary. The licenses of the local preachers were renewed, and Dr. Fife was elected delegated to the District Meeting. A resolution expressive of satisfaction with the services of the minister, Rev. Mr. Pearson, during the past year was adopted. Other matters of interest to the church were considered.

The Rag Man Gets Off.

At the Police Court this morning the iron stealing case was finally disposed of. Mrs Harrison, the mother of the boy who took the iron, gave her evidence to the effect that Rogers, the rag man, had come to her house and inquired if they had any iron to sell, but he did not mention the particular piece of iron over which the case has arisen. The Magistrate in dismissing the prisoner said that the evidence showed that the boy knew he was doing wrong when he took the iron and therefore his evidence could not be taken into consideration. He referred to the business which Rogers followed, which while being a legitimate business was one in which it was easy to take what was not a persons own property, but he would give the prisoner the benefit of the doubt in this case and allowed both Rogers and the boy to go.

SOME GEORGE-ST. CHANGES

THE PREMISES OF A NEW FIRM VISITED.

Some Changes that are Being Made in Several of the Leading Grocery Establishments—Complying with the Requirements of the License Law.

Among the George-st. business houses which have come into existence since the birth of the present year, 1889, is that of the firm of Lee & Thompson, stationers, booksellers, etc. This firm embarked in business with good prospects of success, and during their life of several month's duration their operations have been of a most encouraging character. Both of the gentlemen are well-known in town and Mr Lee's past experience has given him a thorough knowledge and insight into the business generally, and more especially into that department of which the firm make a specialty—the wall-paper branch. Yesterday afternoon a REVIEW reporter visited the premises and made a tour of the store, which is hardly recognizable in its present condition as the shop which was occupied so long by Mr. Thomas Menzies.

The front store, which is 65x22 feet in dimensions, has been immensely improved in many ways. The walls have been papered in a very handsome manner, while the ceiling decorations, which are of a Mosaic style, divided into into two panels, are most artistic and have a very fine and finished appearance. The shelveing and stone fixtures are of a cherry, and look exceedingly well. On the South side of the store is a counter which extends the entire length of the store, and where is to be found a very complete stock of stationery and school books. On the north side are four tables, two of which are surmounted by handsome glass show cases, which are devoted to miscellaneous books and fancy goods. In the centre of the store is a unique stand for paper-covered literature in the shape of all the latest literary productions, which is extremely well adapted to the purpose for which it is used, doing away with the necessity of fingering and sorting over an entire tableful of books for the desired volume, as the name of each book is exposed to the eye of the customer. In the centre of the store but nearer the rear is a handsome walnut stand, fitted up with drawers specially made for the reception of drawing papers. This stand is surmounted with a brass stand for the display of tissue papers. In the rear part of the store is situated the firm's office, which is an elegant little apartment, nicely carpeted and, like the store, finished in cherry. Just outside the office door is a nicely finished desk, made to accommodate two persons and which is furnished with ink, pens and blotters for the use of customers who may desire to write or address letters in the store. The store is lighted with three incandescent lights, one at the door and two within, and with its very complete stock of books, stationery, papers, periodicals, fancy goods, etc., has a very attractive and fine appearance.

A wide, nicely carpeted winding staircase in the rear of the store leads to the second storey, which is wholly taken up by the wall paper department. This department may be said to be divided into two apartments or show rooms. The ascent of the stairs brings the customer into the larger of the two show rooms which measures 50x22 feet, and which is handsomely papered and the ceiling elegantly decorated. Here in this room is an immense stock of wall paper of every pattern and price and which can be shown to the best advantage, as the rooms are extremely well lighted both from the front and the rear. The front show room, which is separated from the rear by a square arch, and which is 15x22 feet, is finished in a better style than the front one and is carpeted. Here is kept the finest lines of paper and bordering, as well as that used in ceiling decorations. This second storey is especially well adapted as a wall paper show room, being well lighted and furnished with paper racks, both for storing and displaying. The firm carry a fine and well assorted stock of wall paper, and with these facilities are enabled to give satisfaction to all comers.

The third storey of the building is utilized as a store room.

Grocery Changes.

All the grocery men who have secured shop license are now making preparations for the reception of their stock of liquors, and in consequence are making changes in their present premises.

ELLIOTT & TIERNEY'S.

The Palace Grocery store of Messrs. Elliott & Tierney, besides the arrangement made in order to comply with the requirements of the License Act, have made several other improvements and changes which undoubtedly make their store throughout second to none in this district. In the rear of the handsome and well-stocked fruit store an elegant and nicely furnished business office has been fitted up, the floor being nicely carpeted, the walls decorated, etc. Here the journals and ledgers are presided over by a young lady book-keeper, who undoubtedly can be credited with much of the neatness and tastefulness displayed in the surroundings. Passing out to the rear of the store a spot is found which is as beautiful as it is unusual in the territory of a wholesale and retail grocery store. The ground between the store and the storehouse instead of being littered as is usually the case with old boxes, barrels, etc., has been nicely sodded and flowers planted, and withal presents a very refreshing and beautiful appearance—a veritable oasis in the surroundings of a large business establishment. In this yard a commodious new refrigerator has been built specially for the storing of O'Keefe's celebrated lager, for which liquor the firm have the sole agency. Just within the storehouse door is the government bond house for liquor. Returing again to the store and descending to the cellar further changes are being made. There are two large cellars of about equal dimensions, 55x30 feet, the one of which will be used for groceries and the other for the wines and liquors. In the liquor cellar a bond house for fine imported liquors has been built which is the perfection of order and neatness of arrangement. Ascending a new flight of stairs in the north-west corner of the liquor cellar and the customer is up again in the light of day in the neat little office or sample-room which as been built in the front of the store for the liquor. This office is entered from the street by a separate entrance from the grocery and in accordance with the license law there is no internal communication between the liquor and grocery stores. Then in front of the store as a beacon light to all who may require first-class groceries the firm has erected a handsome electric light transparency which is an ornament to the street and store and is attractive to the pedestrian.

MR. W. J. MORROW.

On the other side of George-st. Mr. W. J. Morrow has also been making his preparations, although to a casual observer no difference is apparent in his premises. Mr. Morrow's elegant and commodious front shop remains unchanged except that a partition has been run across the rear of the store, so as to form the liquor store. In his premises Mr. Morrow has many advantages, as the entrance to his liquor store will be from the arcade and will be entirely separate from his groceries. Down cellar a large bonded warehouse is being built, while the liquor cellar is separate from his grocery store, he having secured the tunnel in the arcade which was recently occupied by Mr. T. Dunn as a saloon and to which an entrance is gained from the arcade. In the rear of the cellar a wine vault for choice imported liquors has been fitted up, and withal Mr. Morrow's premises are extremely well adapted for the addition of the liquor to his grocery business.

J. GARVEY & CO.

This firm has also made provision for the requirements of the License Act, and although their grocery store is a little affected, still they will have an excellent opportunity to display their stock in the quarters which they have fitted up. A separate store has been divided off from the main shop with a partition of glass, and one of the front plate glass windows looks into this liquor department. Shelving for the reception of the stock is ranged along the wall, and in the cellar the law has also been complied with, and there is no communication between the grocery and the liquor department. It is the intention to also make several improvements in the grocery store, such as papering and ceiling decorating, and when this is done the appearance of the store will be much enhanced.

TUESDAY, MAY 14, 1889.

A NUMBER ONE.

On a weather-beaten board, supported by a creaking iron rod, hung the sign, "Soles Saved Here," which Breckinridge thought so exceedingly funny that it never ceased to attract custom and comment. It had been there ten years, since Jonathan Mender came into the little town in the Rockies and bought out the shoe-repairing business of Caleb Bian.

Mender on this June afternoon sat in the door of his shop, repairing a small and extremely shabby shoe. He was a short, stubby man, with twinkling eyes behind spectacles, and a shock of gray hair standing straight up from his forehead.

Down the trail from Red Mountain, as the afternoon shadows grew long, and night came creeping under the evergreens, galloped a lean broncho at a headlong gait. His rider, a big-bearded miner, glanced around under his bushy eye-brows, and now and then gave a grunt of satisfaction.

"The old place don't see you no more, Bill," he muttered, as the broncho panted up a short incline, "fur you've struck it rich, as a certified check fur 'way up in the thousands kin testify."

He galloped into Breckinridge, left his broncho at the hotel, and went along to the shoe shop.

"Same old sign, I'll be derned," he smiled. "Ev'nin', Mender."

"Hullo, Bill; thought you was dead. Ain't seen you these three years. Same butes, too, I made. Wal, I allus done good work."

"You did; but jist clap a patch on this one whilst I wait, fur I ain't a-goin' to torture myself if I hev struck it rich. My feet is liable to swell in the koors. I'll leave ye an order, too, Mender, fur butes is good enuff with me. No lace shoes like a jude."

"Who you roped in on the mine, Bill?"

"No one; they'll double what they give me—three hundred thousand—but I ain't no hog; I know when I've got enuff."

"Few does," muttered Mender, waxing his thread.

The miner looked around the shop; then his eye fell on that shabby little shoe.

"Beats all what sawed off feet wimmen has, though I ain't a mentioning Norwegians."

"The Lord made 'em so."

"Prob'ly. An' this, now," (turning the shoe over in his big hand) "is a gal's, not a growed woman's?"

"All of twenty-eight: quite a yarn about that, too. Three years ago I was a settin' here betweenst, day an' dark, when my door busts open an' in runs what I took to be a gal, but afterward see was a little mite of a growed woman, with bright, bird-like eyes and curly hair. 'Them miners is a follerin' me,' she cries, drops inter thet cheer, an' faints dead away."

"Gosh, this very cheer?" echoed Bill, in an awe-stricken tone.

"Same, set right there. I opens the door, 'B'ys,' I says, 'I've got the drop on ye, an' it's a durn shame to act like thet, an'—git,' which they done, an' I went back an' give her whisky, an' she come to an' jest kitched my han' up an' kissed it."

"Lord!" cried the miner.

"An' it wasn't over-clean, fur mendin' ain't over-pertikler wurk. Wal, she hadn't no frens, an' was come here to settle, an' bein' weak an' hystericky, I took her home to sister Jane. "Pears to me,' she says to Jane, 'all the troubles of my life is bin caused by men.'"

"They be ornery," said the miner sympathetically.

"We kep' her a week, and then she went to wurk sewin', an' insisted on payin' her board, an' made Jane the trimmest gowns an' caps, and me a dressin'-gown like I was a female. I wears it to please her, but I allus feels I looks like one of them old patriarks in't. We never asked her hist'ry, but Jane sed she was bruised from blows, an' I see she trained her pretty curls over a scarce healed scar on her forehead. I calc'lated she was one of them thoroughbreds what will stan' enny amount of drivin', but it's a sneak an' a runaway if you hit 'em."

"There's some men as ought to be shot on sight," muttered the miner. "An thet shoe was hern?"

"Yeah, an' I've got to keer fur her so much that I've allus been glad I was here 'stid er Caleb; he wa'n't never neighborly. When I come here I says, 'I'll give ye fifteen dollars fur the place.' Says he, take it for fourteen an' a harf. 'Why?' says I. 'Did you,' says he, 'ever know a man wot become a sewer fur gab? Wal, look at me. Ev'ry crank as has breath enuff ter git up the bank comes in an' talks to me; ev'ry bummer who kin walk staggers in an' vents his rum-soaked remarks on me, an' ev'ry sun-bunnited or shawl-headed female woman comes to tell me her troubles with the old man or the neighbors.' 'Wal,' I says, 'it's comp'ny?' 'Yah, I hate 'em,' growls he. 'Know where I'm going, not you. You're the kind as tells about a gal you loved named Sairy, wot died fifty year ago. Wal, I'm goin' to be a sheep-herder, where I want see one of human kind fur months on a stretch, an' where I kin go bare-footed the year 'round. So he goes an' I stays."

"When I was in Arizony," said the miner, laying the shoe down, with a sigh, "I boarded to the house of a little woman as could a-wore them shoes. The vittles was awful, some of the biscuits would a took a blast to open 'em, an' the pie might a soled them butes, but she wa'n't but a young thing, an' her husband was the onneriest."

"They allus hes thet name in them cases," suggested Mender, slyly.

"This wa'n't no cases. He never keered, only that the wurk were done, but I did," —the miner's face saddened—"an' I sold out as good a teaming business as you ever see."

"'Count o' popler sent'ment, I s'pose?"

"Naw, there's queer things in a man's life; an' ef I'd stayed I'd a killed her husband, an' that would a bin no way to get her affection, an' wouldn't a looked fair. Them's my morals. She wa his wife an' a good woman. I sold out the business at a dead loss" (with a sigh) "an' I just wisht her time o' day an' run off like a coward. I starved up here fur ten years, an' I wa'n't blessed with myself neither when a feller from Arizony told me he'd heerd he an' him had parted, an' she was the wust abused woman he ever see."

It was quite dark in the little shop now, and Mender lit his lamp, leaning low to his bench to see in the light. A lean cat came walking out of a corner, and the miner turns back his chair.

"An' me, with all my money, can't make that poor little soul comfortable," he sighed.

There was a sound of quick footsteps outside, something like the clatter of slippers down at the heel, then the latch clicked.

"Ain't done, Nelly," cried the old man. "I'll wait an' finish 'em; they're purty fur gone."

There was no answer, only a sort of gasp and a smothered exclamation from the miner, who brought his chair down with a jerk. The old man looked at them.

"I calc'late you two is 'quainted," he grinned.

Bill had forgotten his one stocking foot, even his stern morality, and she, that little, thin creature, with her white, worn face, her red, tearless eyes, was looking at him so wistfully, so yearningly, that he must have known she had not needed his telling her that he cared for her before he ran away. A quick suspicion flashed through his mind. She loved him, and had come to [illegible] to find him these three years back. Still his lips had to utter the name in his heart so long.

"Nelly!" he cried, with a sob; and she—she put out her hands like a sleep-walker; then, with a low cry, she ran to him and hid her face on his breast. Still he did not touch her as she clung to him, weeping passionately.

"It aren't right," he muttered, hoarsely. "I sed never should you be as you is now, till it were. You an' me has seen camps, an' knows what wrong love is."

She only clung closer, such a child-like thing, in her shabby black gown, with her short little curls, and her tiny hand clutching his arm.

"I tell you," he cried, passionately, "once my arms meet around you, I shall never let you go."

"Wal, you needn't," said Mender, dryly; but there were tears in his old eyes. "You needn't, Bill—she's a widder."

"It's only since this mornin'," he continued, as the big arms inclosed the tiny figure, "but, it's proper, I calc'late. She'd run away from him, but he tracked her; six weeks ago he come in when we was eating supper, an' Jane hove the teapot at him. Vi'lence wa'n't no use; he took Nelly an' her savin's, an' was jist a-goin' to leave town arter losin' all she had, an' draggin' her along, when the altitude kitched him. I cal'clate this place is too nigh heaven fur a creepin' cuss like that to crawl. I was a mendin' that shoe fur his widder to wear to the funeral."

"I knowed no woman but her could wear 'em," cried Bill, holding the shoe reverently, "an' it shall be set in gold outen my mine."

"It's a mile too big," she said, very blushing and shy, "an' so horrid."

"Never heered a woman but sed them very words," grinned Mender, beaming on them. "Now, Bill, yourn's done, an' lemme stick a patch on that one, Nelly, fur you don't wanter be a-creekin' round in new ones to the funeral, like you was too glad to get him planted."

The next afternoon, when the twilight shadows were falling, Jonathan Mender stood in his shop door and watched the train creep miles above on the mountain on its way to Denver.

"Purty rapid this western country," he soliloquized, jingling the coins in his pocket. "We never miss no time; but there ain't many small wimmen like Nelly as kin bury one husband in the forenoon, an' git merried to the second in the arternoon, an' I guess Bill don't know the mate to that little shoe he' got stowed away is over on my shelf as a mementomory that little number one—the smallest fur wimmen-kind as ever I see."

The Church's Pulpit.

Space forbids more than the briefest reference to one of the most interesting features of the church's work. Its hold on the people is growing stronger every year by the development of really great preachers in its pulpits. This was not the case twenty years ago. The church then slumbered and its congregations dozed. Now the crowds are found around church pulpits. Canon Liddon, Canon Knox-Little, who recently preached a week of midday advent sermons in Trinity church, New York; Canon Body, the bishop of Peterborough; the bishop of Derry, the bishop of Truro, Archdeacon Farrar, these and some of their fellows rarely preach to congregations of fewer than 2,000 to 5,000. Church life is vigorous all around. Missions are always being set in motion in the thickly populated parts; parish agencies, religious and charitable, are ceaseless in their pious efforts. The services are more hearty and attractive, and the good fellowship of the clergy with the people more marked than ever before. If an English Rip Van Winkle were to revisit his haunts of thirty years ago he literally would not recognize the sleepy parish church of his youth in the flourishing activities that now radiate from its heart, and the signs are that the old national church will do more as the years roll by to make England better and happier than she has done at any period in her noble history.—New York Mail and Express.

He who theoretically or practically denies that God has a providence in this world, by which he superintends, directs and controls all its affairs "according to the counsel of his own will," is, to all intents and purposes, an atheist, whatever else he believes or disbelieves. He to whom the docrine of such a providence is offensive, has either a wrong view of God, or a perverse moral nature, or both combined.—Independent.

In our Black Goods department we are showing a new voile of cloth, fine light and durable, just the dress for an old lady, much nicer than the nuns veilings.

It needs to be repeated and remembered that in all goods and most emphatically in Cotton Goods we keep a most complete stock. Where will you find the variety of Cottonades, Shirtings, Ticks, &c., you find with us, not less than sixty different patterns of Shirtings at prices as low as the lowest. At the Ribbon counter you are almost always sure to find exactly what you want for Dress or Millinery use.

Our Stock of Neck Frillings is very choice, being different to what is usually shown, we import them from a different market.

When house-cleaning you may find you require a new carpet. We show a beautiful Tapestry at 50c. Lower and higher qualities according to good value.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 1889.

SHELVED BY THE SENATE

MR. MACLAREN PUTS THROUGH AN ADJOURNMENT MOTION.

The Victoria University Injunction Matter—A Resolution of Censure Burked—Honorary Degrees Conferred.

COBOURG, May 14.—A meeting of the Senate of Victoria College was held here to-day. The degree of D.D. was conferred upon Revs. Hugh Johnston, D. G. Sutherland and others. After the regular business and conferring of degrees was concluded, Rev. Dr. Potts of Toronto introduced a resolution, which was seconded by Hon. John Macdonald, expressing regret that two members of the Senate should have entered an action for an injunction in the civil court against the Board of Regents and repudiating approval of and responsibility for it. This was evidently designed to show that the injunction was only the work of a part of the Senate and not of the entire body. The resolution was so worded that those who were against federation as well as those who were in favor of it might have voted disapproval of taking out the injunction. The opponents of federation seemed exceedingly anxious that no vote should be taken on Dr. Potts' resolution.

Lawyer J. J. Maclaren, who has from the first fought against the scheme, moved in amendment that the Senate adjourn until 2 p.m. to-day. Owing to other arrangements no such adjourned meeting could be held and Mr. Maclaren's amendment was plainly designed to prevent any vote being taken on the original motion. The vote was thus much more significant than had it been on a motion for an ordinary adjournment. Messrs. Potts and Macdonald refused to withdraw their resolution. They insisted that the votes should be counted, and according Mr. Maclaren's amendment was carried by a vote of 20 to 17.

TWO BRUTAL HUSBANDS

Attempt to Kill Their Wives by Shooting and Stabbing.

MONTREAL, May 15.—A man named Francois Laurent, residing on Maple-street, is alleged to have been drinking for some time past. He went home under the influence of liquor and quarrelled with his wife, whom he said he would murder. He then pulled out a revolver and shot her through the neck and in the hip. A third shot missed her. By this time the police arrived and arrested Laurent. Medical aid was procured for the poor woman and the bullet extracted. Though wounded severely, she is not supposed to be in any danger.

A woman named Mary Sullivan, aged 30, residing on St. Urbain-street, was brought to the General Hospital. She said that her husband while under the influence of liquor tried to murder her. He took a razor and struck at her face. She put up her right arm to ward off the blows, when he gashed her on the back of the wrist, cutting her to the bone and severing the tendons. He also slashed her across the knuckles, and up the arm, when she managed to escape. The doctor says that she may probably lose her arm. The husband was arrested.

Short $35 Out of $184,000,000.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The recent count of money at the New York Sub-treasury revealed a discrepancy of $35 out of $184,000,000 to be accounted for. The shortage resulted from the acceptance of a few counterfeit notes in the hurry of business and by the loss of a few pieces of silver. The loss was promptly made good and a receipt in full given to ex-Treasurer Hyatt, who was responsible under his bond for the entire amount.

THE KAISER ON STRIKES.

EMPEROR WILLIAM RECEIVES THE MINERS' DEPUTATION.

William O'Brien Causes a Writ to be Issued Against Lord Salisbury for Libel—The Boulanger Prosecution.

BERLIN, May 14.—Emperor William to-day received the delegates of the striking miners. He assured them the Government would use its influence to settle the dispute.

The strikers' interview with the Emperor lasted 15 minutes. The Emperor gravely listened to the grievances of the strikers and occasionally asked questions. In reply to their complaints he said he took a deep personal interest in the welfare of his subjects in Westphalia, as he did in the welfare of all his subjects. He had carefully followed the struggle and he had ordered a thorough enquiry into the facts. He warned the delegation against the plottings of political and especially socialist agitators. He grieved that there had been rioting and said that it was impossible to tolerate such conduct. "Tell your fellow-workmen," he added, "that the Emperor himself if necessary will order the troops to batter and shoot rioters, while if they are quiet the Emperor will protect them." He hoped the disputants would settle their differences without Government meddling.

The Berlin Post urges the Government to arbitrate between the mine owners and strikers.

At Bochum to-day the strikers who drove off the miners who wished to return to work at the Prince Regent colliery yesterday were overawed by troops. The employers have sent a deputation to Berlin to interview the Emperor. Large quantities of English and Belgian coal are arriving at Essen.

It is for this speech that the action is brought.

The Boulanger Prosecution.

LONDON, May 14.—The Nineteenth Century, in an apparently inspired article, says the Senatorial Court finds difficulty in framing a specific charge against Boulanger. Some Senators propose that a nolle prosequi be entered. Others that he be tried at the Assises, and still others that he be court-martialled. It is believed, the paper says, that the proceedings against Gen. Boulanger will fail and that the prosecution of M. Rochefort will be abandoned.

Anti-Ritualism at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, May 14.—At a meeting of the congregation of St. Bartholomew's Church last evening a petition signed by 100 members of the congregation was presented to the rector, Rev. E. A. W. Hannington, complaining of ritualistic practices in the Church of England at large, and St. Bartholomew's Church in particular. The specific charges are the wearing of colored stoles by the rector and the using of colored book marks with crosses on them. The rector announced that this was not within the province of a vestry meeting. Nevertheless he would carefully examine the statements made, and reply to them. Dr. Bell, a prominent member, protested that the rector knew well enough what the charges against him were, and that he should answer them. Mr. Hannington, replying, said that he had received an anonymous communication, but as he never read anonymous communications he repeated positively that he had not read one word of this particular communication.

Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, May 14.—The churchwardens of Christ Church Cathedral refuse to allow the cathedral branch of the Church of England Temperance Association the use of the Sunday-school room and say in a letter to the vice-president of the association that they "have decided not to grant the use of the schoolhouse to any class of men who dare to make the impious and horrible statement that the large majority of the members of Christ Church Cathedral who have departed this life have filled a drunkard's grave."

The city's receipts for 1888 were $906,584.21 and expenditures $896,152.85, which with its cash on hand at the beginning of 1888 left a surplus of $61,750.08 to start the new year.

Missing for Nearly a Year.

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—Captain Smith, first officer of the steamer British Princess, which arrived yesterday from Liverpool, reports that on May 4, lat 44, long. 42-40, he saw an enormous sea serpent. It was at day break, and Smith and the fourth mate were on the bridge at the time. Smith chanced to look astern and saw something in the water 100 yards away. To the naked eye it appeared as a large black obstacle sticking out of the water in a perpendicular position like a long spar or buoy. Smith seized the glasses to make it out more plainly and saw it was alive. Above the water rose the head and neck of a tremendous monster. The head resembled in size and shape the top of a beef barrel, as Smith put it. The body, though completely submerged, could be made out plainly by the disturbance of the water around it, and 300 feet away from where the head and neck stood out of the water the monster's tail was beating and lashing the sea into foam. Smith turned to send for Capt. Freeth, the Princess' commander, but before he could give the order the sea serpent had disappeared. Smith has hitherto been a disbeliever in sea serpent stories.

MURDER AT DETROIT.

Lively Fusillade in the Street—Both Combatants Shot.

DETROIT, May 15.—Peter Hartswell, 287 First-street, and his wife had family quarrels which resulted in his wife leaving him and going to live with her father, Wm. Smith, 140 Grand River-avenue. Hartswell wanted his wife to come back and live with him. Mr. Smith refused to let his daughter go. He said Hartswell was a worthless fellow and ill-treated his wife. Last evening Hartswell started to go to a grocery on Grand River-avenue near Smith's place. Just as he reached the grocery he saw his wife and another lady at the corner of First and Grand River. He started on a run towards them and Smith immediately left his door running after Hartswell. Hartswell grabbed his wife by the arm and the other lady with Mrs. Hartswell struck at him with her umbrella. Then the women began fighting Hartswell, raining blows upon him. Smith ran up and he and Hartswell had some hot words. Hartswell then let go of his wife and made a motion as though he was going to draw a revolver from his hip pocket, when Smith whipped out his revolver and fired. Hartswell also drew a revolver and fired at Smith. They exchanged several shots in rapid succession, then Hartswell turned and snapped the revolver at his wife. Smith in the meantime had fallen to the ground and Hartswell yelled that he was dying. Both were covered with blood. One shot from Smith's revolver struck Hartswell in the left breast above the nipple. Physicians say he will bleed to death. Smith was arrested by the police and taken to the station. He is probably fatally injured. Hartswell claims he got his wife to come out to speak with him and that he had no intention of doing any shooting, also that Smith fired three times before he (Hartswell) drew his revolver.

BISHOP'S LAST TEST.

The Mind-reader Stricken with Death After Performing a Feat.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Washington Irving Bishop, who became famous in this country and Europe by his extraordinary, and to many people inexplicable mind-reading performances, died at noon yesterday at the Lambs' Club. The circumstances attending his death were as singular as, and in perfect keeping with, his remarkable career, for it was the effort to perform a wonderful feat of thought-reading which caused the cataleptic fit that ultimately proved fatal. Bishop had asserted that if two gentlemen would go to a distant part of the house and select a word in some book he would find the book, the page and the word. Dr. Irwine and Mr. Greene descended to the basement, and among a lot of old account books picked out the minute book of the Club and on page 87 selected the word "Townsend," afterwards secreting the book in a disused drawer among some discarded rubbish.

On returning to the room where Bishop was sitting Dr. Irwine endeavored to dissuade him from proceeding in what he gravely informed him was a very dangerous experiment, Bishop having just been seized with a fit while attempting to perform a similar feat. But Bishop remarked that he would accomplish the feat even if it killed him, and insisted upon his being immediately blindfolded. When the handkerchief had been tied over his eyes he was led downstairs, his right hand being clasped on Mr. Greene's wrist. In due time he discovered the room, then the drawer and the book, and on the leaves of the latter being rapidly turned over by him, he stopped at the right one and then ran over it with a pencil. Suddenly he seemed to make a private mark, and then feverishly requested that the book be brought upstairs.

He had no sooner entered the room where the members were assembled than he pulled a bandage from his eyes and exclaimed, "Quick! quick, give me a bit of paper!" and on receiving it he dashed off "Dnesnwot," that being the selected word written backward, so that it could be read in a mirror. He had performed the feat, but scarcely had he written the word when he was again seized by the cataleptic fit, from which he never recovered.

Roasted to Death.

DENVER, Col., May 14.—A freight engine doing switching near Bailey station yesterday ran into a boulder on the track and was ditched. Fireman Charles Lapman was caught under the red hot fire box. He lay in that position with his head only out from under the machinery for an hour suffering untold agony, no one being able to render assistance. Just before he expired he called a brakeman, and while half of his body was roasting from the heat of the engine, dictated his will, leaving $15,000 to his two brothers in San Francisco. He gave instructions regarding his funeral and whom he desired to conduct the services, then offered prayer and died. The body was brought here to be shipped to San Francisco. Several other trainmen were injured.

Freight Rates on Beef.

CHICAGO, May 15.—The Freight Committee of the Central Traffic Association yesterday agreed to reduce the beef rate to the basis of 45 cents a hundred pounds, Chicago to New York, taking effect May 18. The present rate is 50 cents by the direct lines while 50 cents has heretofore been the differential rate of the Chicago and Atlantic, the Wabash Western and the Grand Trunk's Montreal route. The purpose is to abolish differentials and make the rates uniform by all lines. It is feared that the Chicago and Atlantic and the Wabash Western which are not members of the association will now cause trouble.

Ray bringing into Glendive a nugget of pure gold worth $45 that he found in a gulch several miles southeast of this city. Hundreds have gone to the spot. TOPICS FROM TORONTO.

WORK ON THE NEW PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS RESUMED.

Why the Proposed Schemes for the Delivery of Drop Letters by Private Companies Will Fail.

TORONTO, May 15.—The recent change in the cost of drop letters has started the quidnuncs upon a scheme for ousting the jurisdiction of the Postmaster-General in this respect. But enquiry yesterday at the Postoffice elicited the information that the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company or any other association or firm are likely to find themselves in difficulty if the proposed scheme is carried out or attempted. The Postmaster-General has a monopoly of the collection and delivery of letters in Canada and anbody infringing is subject to a penalty of $20 for each offence. The exclusive privilege of the Postmaster-General does does not embrace letters sent by a friend, who is journeying or traveling, provided such letters be delivered by such friend to the party to whom they are addressed; nor letters sent by messenger on purpose, concerning the private business of the sender or receiver: nor letters concerning goods sent by common carriers to be delivered with the goods without hire or reward, profit or advantage for receiving or delivering them. But no person is allowed to collect any such excepted letters for the purpose of sending them or conveying them, and any person employed in the Postoffice or in the Inland Revenue Office or Custom House can seize any such letters so conveyed, received or collected, sent or delivered and take them to the nearest Postoffice and give such information to the postmaster as he may be able to give and as is necessary for the effectual prosecution of the offender; and the letters shall moreover be chargeable with postage.
